Germany Inaugurates a New Campaign of Frightfulness

THREATEN TO STOP SEA TRAFFIC TO ALL OF THE ALLIED COUNTRIES

Campaign Opened Early This Morning—Several Ships Lost

Germany Will Wage Unrestricted War With Aid of Submarines

Threatened New Campaign of Ruthlessness Opened During the Night With the Loss of Several Ships, Including a Dutch Steamer and Three British Fishing Smacks —Neutrals Warned Off the High Seas—Ultimatum Causes Grave Concern in Washington as Several Thousand American Citizens Are Involved—Great Britain is Prepared to Deal With New Situation.

DUTCH PARLIAMENT SUMMONED

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, February 1.—Germany last night delivered an ultimatum stating that from February 1st her submarines and mines will stop all sea traffic in the neighbourhood of Britain, France, Italy and the Mediterranean. All neutral traffic will enter these zones, Germany says, at its own risk. This is considered a very grave issue from the neutrals' standpoint.

CONDEMNS BRITAIN'S SUPERIORITY

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, February 1.—The new Berlin note delivered to-day, condemns Britain's rule of the seas. It says German people are suffering heavily as a result, and talks of the lust of conquest of the British allies and intimates that Germany is angry at the Allies' refusal to discuss peace, and will wage unrestricted war on the seas.

BREAK DIPLOMATIC RELATION

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, February 1.—The New York World says that there is no course open to President Wilson but to break off diplomatic relations with Germany and join the Allied forces.

CAMPAIGN IS UNDER WAY.

LONDON, February .—The German new submarine campaign of ruthlessness is under way. The Dutch steamer "Epsilon" was the first victim to be sunk in the new barred zone to-day. Three British fishing smacks, the "Merit," "Watt" and "Wetherill," were also among the first vessels known to be sunk in pursuance of the new German orders.

CABINET MEETING CALLED.

COPENHAGEN, February 1.—A specially summoned Cabinet meeting to-day discussed the German note to America. It is understood the Riksdag (parliament) has been summoned in secret session.

ULTIMATUM TO GERMANY.

WASHINGTON, February 1.—An ultimatum to Germany, or an immediate break with her—that was what Washington believed would be President Wilson's course following Germany's announced intention to strike, unrestrained, at shipping in a big barred area. The President himself had not announced his course, and in these circumstances official and international experts recalled that he has always held that war or a break must be avoided up to the last pitch. It was stated authoritatively that 4,000 British ships of various classification are available for convoy duty and submarine chasing on the Atlantic. It is believed here that Allied shipping will be safe but neutrals will suffer.

Approximately 2,000 American citizens are now on the Atlantic bound either for this country or Europe. In addition there are hundreds of Americans working as members of crews on ships carrying supplies to the Allies.

NEW YORK PORT SEALED TIGHT.

NEW YORK, February 1.—Fearing that German interned steamers would break for the open sea this port was sealed tight last night.

LONDON, February 1.—German submarines left seven members of the crew of the British ship "Artist" to die in open boats.

WILL TAKE REPRISALS.

LONDON, February 1.—Britain will take reprisals on Germany if hospital ships in the Channel are attacked again.

NORWAY PROHIBITS SUBMARINES.

LONDON, February 1.—The Norwegian order shutting submarines out of her waters may cause war between Germany and Norway.

LOCAL WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

The past week has witnessed little market activity. Farmers are perhaps not greatly interested in the present advancing prices of potatoes, for the reason that they have comparatively none to sell, and in most instances are buyers. The wholesale price of potatoes is fast approaching the $3.00 mark, and although it is felt that there are more than sufficient supplies in the country for the needs of the people the difficulties of winter transportation have had the effect of influencing the price upward.

Butter seems to be steadily receding from its top prices. It is at least rather stationary around 40 cts. a pound, with the tendency downward. For the next two months or so it may be expected that the price will not vary to any considerable extent. At 40c a lb. it comes within reach of the average purse. As the winter passes and the storage stocks decrease there will be a corresponding bolstering of prices which might lead to slight advances.

While eggs are slightly easier in tone, the actual difference in price scarcely affects the quotations. The egg yield is on the increase, and is expected to have a reducing price effect within the next few weeks; 45c is about the average price, although last Saturday there were quite a few purchases reported on the market at 40c.

Live hogs and wheat are off a little this week. For the former last week Toronto reported off cars at $14.25; this week they are back to $14, and the current local quotation is $13.75.

Take No Credit For Convictions By "Spotter"

The Headquarters Officers Place Responsibility Upon Division Men.

TORONTO, Feb. 1.—Catching offenders against the Lord's Day observance by selling groceries to alleged "tired munitions workers" was apparently not done at the instigation of Staff Inspector Gregory of the Morality Department, who states that he had no knowledge of a man employed by the police to catch those violating the Sabbath. "They are hired in the division in which they are used," he stated, "but we don't want anyone to be fined by that method."

"I would never send a man in a false light like that," said Acting Deputy Chief Archibald, "and I would never permit a case of that kind to be brought to court."

Two such cases were brought to the Police Court last week, and both defendants said that they sold to the "spotter," believing him to be a tired munitions worker who could not get his supplies on Sunday.

SUBS. IN SOUTH ATLANTIC.

Brazilian Minister of Marine Says, Denies Base in Brazilian Waters.

Rio Janeiro, Jan. 31.— The Minister of Marine confirms the report that German submarines have crossed the South Atlantic. He says that they have kept to the high seas and denies the rumour that a German naval base was being maintained in Brazilian waters.

Germans Dying Daily From Extreme Hunger

Arctic Winter Has Paralyzed the Economic Life of Germany --Men and Women Over 50 Rapidly Succumb in Dusseldorf--Potato Famine Exists--Children Under 14 Years of Age Terribly Reduced by Hunger.

BERLIN PICTURE OF MISERY

AMSTERDAM, February 1.—Germany always dreaded the occurrence of a hard winter during the war, realizing that a situation must arise from the cold of which it could be impossible to exaggerate the gravity. That moment has arrived.

General January has now joined the allies, and Arctic weather prevails in the Empire. Deep snow and severe frost accompanying the interruption of traffic, has partially paralyzed the economic life of the nation. Berlin presents a picture of misery which is heightened by the pressing food problems. Everyone familiar with Germany knows the immense importance of potatoes as a factor in the nation's daily life. In Germany, as in Holland, potatoes form the staple article of food of the masses. Potatoes are very susceptible to damage by frost, and although every effort has been made by Germany to prevent details of the losses reaching foreign countries, enough is known to indicate the extreme seriousness of the position. Collective feeding in Berlin, which began in October on a voluntary basis, is now extending rapidly and producing a decline in the standard of life. Fears are entertained that institutions concerned will soon no longer be able to receive adequate supplies. The deficiency in supplies, accentuated by the inadequate traffic facilities, is producing intense suffering just when a more generous feeding, both in quantity and quality, is indispensable. Germany is now realizing the mockery of substitute foodstuffs. This is admitted even in letters allowed to pass the frontier for publication in Holland. The Handelsblad has an article from its Berlin correspondent dated Jan. 25th, which says no organization can feed 80,000,000 persons adequately and equally from a centralized office dispensing insufficient supplies. That Food Controller Batocki himself is unable to do it he has admitted, although his latest utterance maintains it is possible to win through with care. The opinion now hardening against the organization of maximum prices has caused articles to disappear from the market.

PROVISIONS BECOME SCARCER.

People are asking whether less severe regulations, as in Austria and Hungary, are not better. The question, however, is whether the productive capacity of Germany is large enough to allow her to imitate the example of Austria-Hungary. Batocki's latest utterance admits that provisions have become scarcer this spring than in either preceding years of the war. He is careful to warn people against exaggerating the estimate of supplies obtainable in neutral countries, and intimated that such supplies as Roumania afforded only arrived gradually owing to traffic difficulties. He insisted nevertheless that the existing system of food distribution is more indispensable, as the supplies available are shorter.

As a natural result the mortality in Germany is increasing. In Dusseldorf men and women over 50 are rapidly dying. Children under six years of age and sometimes older are terribly reduced by hunger. Reports from various districts in Germany indicate the existence of a potato famine. In Hamburg no potatoes are available except those given to hard-manual labourers. The remaining population are receiving turnips and slight increases in flour, bread and meat. In Berlin the scarcity of bread is necessitating the reduction of the existing meagre rations by three slices daily. The bread card system is threatened with a breakdown owing to disagreements in individual municipalities.

DENY CHARGE OF PLOT TO MURDER LLOYD GEORGE

Mrs. Alice Wheeldon, Says it is a Trumped-up Charge to Punish Because Her Father is a Conscientious Objector—Three Women and One Man Accused

DERBY, January 31. — Four persons were arraigned quietly in the Police Court at the Derby Guildhall this morning, charged with plotting the murder of Premier Lloyd George and Arthur Henderson, the Premier's right hand man in the War Council. The accused persons indignantly denied the charges, declaring they had been trumped up as punishment for their conscientious objections to compulsory military service.

The proceedings at the Guildhall, over which the Mayor presided, were merely of a formal nature. No details of the charges or evidence were divulged, although gossip has been busy with rumours of various details since the news of the arrest was received late yesterday. The accused, who are well known here, are Mrs. Alice Wheeldon, her two daughters, Miss Ann Wheeldon and Mrs. Alfred George Mason, and the latter's husband. Two of the women are school teachers.

DIDN'T ASK BAIL.

The prisoners made no formal defence move at to-day's appearance before the court, merely pleading not guilty. They did not demand release on bail, apparently realizing that the charges were too serious for consideration by the court of such a request. They were returned to their cells. Owing to lack of accommodation here for such important prisoners, they will be taken to Birmingham jail to await resumption of the case next Saturday.

For the man in the street the case was a cause of great indignation, particularly as the accused belonged to two classes against which there is much feeling—suffragettes and conscientious objectors.

NOT WELL ENOUGH GUARDED.

Both Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Henderson are known as very democratic and accessible. Recently, there has been some agitation for better protection of the nation's leaders.

Ample precautions were taken here to protect the prisoners, and the conservative British law, circumscribing matter which the newspapers may print in advance of court proceedings, insures against any efforts in the press to arouse feeling against them. Police witnesses to-day described in a cut-and-dried manner the arrest of the accused.

PROFESS IGNORANCE.

Herriot Ann Wheeldon was arrested at Ilkeston School, at which she has been teaching. Her only comment was: "I know nothing about this charge." Winnifred (Mrs. Alfred) Mason was arrested at Foundry Lane School, Southampton, where she has been employed as a teacher. She said; "I don't know what it is all about." She added that her husband also was innocent. He is a druggist's clerk, who has been seeking employment.

Mrs. Alice Wheeldon said, on being asked in court if there was any reason why she should not be remanded: "This is just a trumped up charge to punish me because my dad is a conscientious objector. You brought up an unfounded charge against him, and he went to prison for it. Now that he is out of the way, you are trying to punish him through me."

Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath

When the heart becomes affected, there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness, and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

The nerves become unstrung, you dread to be alone, have a horror of society, start at the least noise and are generally fatigued.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. They are just what you require at this time. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mrs. C. M. Cormier, Buctouche, N.B., writes: "Since two years ago I was troubled with a shortness of breath, and sometimes I could hardly breathe. I went to see several doctors, and they said it was from my heart and nerves, but they did not seem to do me any good. One day I got one of your B.B.B. Almanacs and read of a case similar to mine.

"I bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking it I noticed such a change that I kept on taking them until I had used four more boxes, when I was cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

DOBRUDJA IS DREARY EVEN WITHOUT WAR

Half-Desert Province of Roumania Where Danube Slides to Sea —A Picture

Says a writer in the Fortnightly Review: Now we are in the Dobrudja (which means "good pasture"), the name given to the wild, rolling, God-forsaken plain which lies on the right of the river opposite the equally lonely and deserted Baragan steppe. Between these two vast stretches of open country the Danube winds and curves, sometimes shallow, sometimes deep, around sprawling, marshy islands, the two largest of which measure respectively fifty and forty miles in length and about ten miles in breadth. It is difficult to describe utter emptiness, utter loneliness. All the objects and scenes and life with which one has become familiar on the voyage now vanish. The floating mills, the white villages, the bright costumes, the sounds and sights of human activity are no more to be seen or heard.

In Grip of the Orient

The East and the atmosphere of the East holds this land in thrall. The political and military power of Islam may have retreated, but its ideals and doctrines remain, and the very air of the Dobrudja brings supineness, fatalism, a belief in the uselessness of combating anything, especially the silent, irresistible forces of Nature, the will of a passionless, remorseless Deity.

Fishers, Boats and Desert

Along the muddy, sunken river banks, the rushes and stunted willows are a brilliant green, and on the islands, glowing in great vivid patches behind the rushes, low scrub and tamarisk, there are wonderful flowers —melilot, the sweet-scented clover, convolvulus, wild roses, blue veronica, chicory, snapdragon. Up and down stream go tow-boats and lighters and sailing vessels, manned by brightly-clad Turks, Rumanians, or Greeks. Out there is a desert, a desert whose monotony is broken by a few yellow roads, or tracks, where the saffron dust lies a foot deep, to rise in blinding, choking clouds with the passing of every wandering bullock caravan, or sheep and swine herd. Sometimes the grass gives place to maize, but both grass and maize are yellow—yellow grass covering a boundless, undulating, melancholy desert.

Here and there, at rare intervals, are villages, or rather clusters of rude, clay, wattle-roofed huts surrounded by tall, decrepit, wattle fences. Summer may be terrible here, but winter is still more awful when the snow covers the face of the earth, when the fierce Russian wind sweeps by with hurricane force, leaving men and beasts frozen stark in death; when the wolves muster to satisfy their hunger and the ravens croak over the icy fields. Civilization cannot tame the Dobrudja; civilization may bring railways and bridges, but the homes and thoughts and customs of the inhabitants are not more civilized to-day than they were in the days of the Roman conquest.

SLACKER WHO MADE GOOD

G. B. tells the story—and it is only one out of very many—how one slacker has made good. "This particular young man," he writes, "was a magnificent fellow physically, (the very type of a soldier; but for the first eighteen months of the war he refused point-blank to enlist. He turned a deaf ear to all appeals to his manhood and patriotism, to abuse and to scorn. He did not seem ashamed to be known as the champion slacker of the town; and it was only when conscription laid its hand on him, and he was compelled to go, that he joined the army. And yet this man, who was branded to the world a coward, has proved himself a hero. Before he had been a week at the front he had won the D.C.M. by an act of the most reckless bravery. This feat was followed by many others; and presently news came that he had been shot through the heart while trying to rescue a wounded friend in 'No Man's Land.'"

TIRELESS SERB ARMY

Soldiers Well Armed, Strangely Garbed, But Peculiar Marchers

Upon the physical side the Serbian soldiers are well provided and in good condition. At first the Serb is not so impressive on the march as the Englishman, let us say, or the Frenchman. His step lacks the swing of the one and the spring of the other. He trudges, rather than marches, at a discouragingly slow gait. Then one learns that this is the national pace of Serbia—a pace adapted to that of the ox-teams the men followed in peace and war—and later that the Serbs can go on seemingly for ever. They appear oblivious to fatigue. With the indifference of the true peasant to physical discomfort, they splash through mud rather than go around. They seem to accept all conditions in a spirit of fatalistic philosophy.

Being deprived of all resources from their own country, the Serbians have been compelled to rely on their allies for the things they need. The French have supplied them with good winter uniforms, which each man seems to have supplemented with some article of wear to which he was accustomed in his mountain home. Watch them stripping for a wash-up when they find time to spare near running water. This man's waist will be wrapped in a wide, brightly colored sash which speaks of Turkish influence, and another will wear a pair of the enormously thick and brilliantly figured woollen stockings the mountaineers favor, and still another will have a home-knit waistcoat of country wool under his coat.

They are well armed, as are the men of the other allies, although their field pieces are still inferior at the front in quantity and calibre to their enemies. However, there is a reason for that. The Serbs in advancing up roadless mountain sides have been compelled to rely on mule-guns and similar pieces of small calibre, while the Bulgarians, fighting from defensive positions better backed by roads, have had superiority in metal. As for food, and without good food no army is an army, the Serbs do themselves well.

RECIPE FOR VICTORY

General Mangin on Verdun's Ingredients—Fight Till Win!

Commenting on the victories at Verdun, General Mangin addressed a striking order to his army. He wrote: "No one can any longer doubt that it is possible to conquer the enemy, who is superior in numbers and disposes of formidable artillery, by careful preparation, good artillery, suitable disposition of ground, a vigilant air service, and a brave and well trained infantry. Friends! our savage aggressors, confessing themselves incapable of conquering us on the battlefield, dare to set for us a vulgar trap—a premature peace. You know the trick.

"Our forefathers of the Revolution refused to treat with the enemy so long as he polluted the sacred soil of the Fatherland, so long as he had not been thrown beyond the natural frontiers, so long as the triumph of justice and liberty was not definitely assured against the tyrants.

"We will never treat with perjured Governments to whom treaties are but scraps of paper, and with assassins and torturers of women and children. After the final victory, which will make them incapable of harm, we will dictate our desires. To their hypocritical overtures France replies with the mouth of your guns and the points of your bayonets. You have been good ambassadors of the Republic, and she thanks you."

The Mad Hapsburgs

The Austrian Emperor Charles father, the late Archduke Otto, was the maddest offspring of the Hapsburg monarchy. He was leader of the "idiotic Archdukes," as Count Beust, the Austrian statesman, called them in a famous phrase. He was wont to amuse himself in an odd way, such as keeping an ox without water for days, and then watching it die in agony when it had gorged itself with water. On one occasion he appeared on the stairs of a fashionable restaurant, where he was entertaining a party in a private room, in the somewhat inadequate costume, even for a mad Archduke, of a pair of gloves, a military cap, and a sword.

Baron Killed in Ranks

Baron Hubert Julius de Reuter, private in the Black Watch, killed in action at the age of thirty-eight, was the only son of the late Baron Herbert de Reuter, head of Reuter's News Agency. At Beaumont Hamel his platoon of 26 captured 97 Germans and a little later he fell dead under machine gun fire while carrying wounded men into shelter.

Stomach Was Very Bad Much Dizziness and Pain

The Liver Got Out of Order and the Whole System Was Poisoned

When the course of the food through the alimentary canal is impeded by sluggish action of the liver or bowels the food remains undigested and as a result it ferments.

This gives rise to poisonous gases which crowd about the heart, and cause dizziness and choking sensations as well as irregular action of the heart.

The liver struggles to remove the poisons from the blood, becomes enlarged, and finally fails, allowing the poisons to pass on to every part of the human system. Complications arise, and there is Bright's disease, hardening of the arteries and apoplexy.

The earlier derangements of the digestive system are such as are described by this letter from Mr. Rochon. He also points the way to cure by use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. Louis Rochon, R. R. No. 11, Ottawa, Ont., writes: "For about seven months my stomach was very bad. I was troubled with dizziness, and had gas on the stomach and awful pains in the right side. The liver seemed to be out of order so I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This treatment seemed to be just exactly what I needed and before the first box was all used I was cured, and feeling as well as ever. I also used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food when feeling weak and suffering from nervous headache, and was soon restored to good health. I am proud of Dr. Chase's medicines, and recommend them above any doctor's medicines."

TASTY SALADS

A salad which will be found especially delicate in flavor for most tastes consists of two cups of diced chicken meat, an equal quantity of parboiled sweetbreads, also diced, two tablespoonfuls of capers, ten or a dozen olives, cut into small pieces, one cup of mayonnaise. The chicken and sweetbreads should be seasoned with salt and pepper. The mayonnaise should be mixed with the ingredients. Serve on romaine or lettuce leaves.

Tomato and Chicken Salad

Choose round, medium-sized tomatoes, one for each person to be served. Prepare in advance by plunging them into boiling water, then holding under cold water and slipping the skin off. Cut a small piece out from the stem end, remove the seeds (saving them to make strained tomato dressing). Thoroughly chill the tomato cups and when ready for serving, fill them with chicken salad. This last may be made as follows: One measure of diced chicken, to one of cold peas and one of asparagus, with one tablespoonful of capers. Mix with mayonnaise before filling into the cups and put a small mound of mayonnaise on top. Set the finished tomato cups into lettuce leaves.

Romaine Salad

Place the romaine leaves, previously crisped in the ice box, in a salad dish that has been rubbed with a clove of garlic. Pour over it a dressing made with three tablespoonfuls of oil, a pinch of salt and paprika, six drops of Worcestershire sauce and one scant tablespoonful of tarragon vinegar. Toss the romaine leaves well in this before serving, or mix the dressing on the table. Toss with the salad fork or spoon.

Herring and Sardine

Cut cold boiled potatoes into thin slices. To two cupfuls add one small minced onion, one small pickled beet, cut into dice, a fresh cucumber sliced the flaked meat from a cold cooked herring or bloater, four sardines flaked and a spoonful of boiled ham. Mix all together and serve on lettuce leaves with French dressing.

Egg Salad

Take hard-boiled eggs and put them while warm into warm beet juice. Let stand until they are colored a dark pink. Cut in halves lengthwise and take out the yolks. Then cut the whites into shapes resembling daisy petals and spread these out radiating from a point over lettuce leaves. Grate the egg yolks and arrange in little piles as daisy centres. Serve with French dressing and with cheese sandwiches.

Egg and Tomato Salad

With a very sharp knife, slice cold hard boiled eggs into thin slices. Select round tomatoes as large as an egg in diameter. Cut these into thin slices. On a nest of lettuce leaves or a bed of cress arrange the egg and tomato slices, alternately, each one over-lapping the other, so that about a quarter of an inch of the edge shows. These may be arranged in straight lines or in a circle. Pour over them French dressing and serve very cold.

Vegetable Salad

A good combination for vegetable salad is as follows: One carrot, boiled one cold boiled potato, one beet, two or three hard-boiled eggs, depending upon the size of the vegetable, a scant teacup of olives, pitted and sliced fine four well rounded tablespoonfuls of capers. Cut the vegetables and the eggs into half-inch cubes, and the olives and capers and serve with mayonnaise.

FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER

Tin is an undesirable material for a coffee pot. Tannic acid acts on such metal and is apt to form a poisonous compound.

To iron ruled lace, place it between blankets. Or do not iron it at all. If not ironed it should be stretched, while wet, with a pin at each point.

Hardwood floors are not difficult to keep clean if they are dusted every day with a dustless mop. These mops are treated chemically and will pick up all dust.

A very satisfactory way to mend shirts that are worn around the collar band is to sew a narrow yoke to fit the neck and to come just below the worn place.

If the fire is running low and a quick oven is needed, try opening the oven door, filling it with cool fresh air. Then close the oven door and it will heat much more quickly.

To remove water spots from a dress dampen it in lukewarm water. Place a piece of cloth over water spots on right side and press until both pieces of material are dry.

When making baked or boiled custard, the milk to be used should be scalded and set aside to cool. Then make the custard in the ordinary way and it will be perfectly smooth.

To remove iodine stains from a garment, mix cold starch with water and put the garment to soak in it. Let it remain in this mixture until the stain has entirely disappeared.

WHY WOMEN WASTE TIME

Importance Women's Time Has Had No Money Value

Mary Roberts Coolidge, Ph.D., gives some interesting facts about woman's "queer traits":

"The traditions and habits of domesticity have become so fixed that women who are quite capable of thinking to good purpose on matters of reform, education and civics, seem to stop thinking when it concerns the best use of their own time and strength. There is an apparent reversion to the attitude of the peon. Time, for the woman as for the slave, has heretofore had little or no direct money value—it has not been measurable in terms of production, for all her strength had to be given in any case. All values looked alike to her. Unconsciously moved by this traditional attitude, the exceptional woman, as of giving herself too needlessly—she manages everybody's affairs well or often as not commits the same fault upon her own.

"As for what is worth while when expenditure of money is under discussion, no two women will agree. One sees them frittering away their resources because they cannot refrain from buying whatever they see or buying hastily to repeat the next day; managing to be beautifully dressed, but hesitating over the purchase of a book they really want—in short, never considering what true value may be as measured even by their own satisfaction. Moreover, from habit they save in the wrong place. The woman who darns the family stockings to the very limit cannot find time to go to the free market to pick out her supplies."

EVERY WAGE EARNER SHOULD ANSWER QUESTION HIMSELF OR HERSELF

WHAT DOES THE FUTURE HOLD FOR YOU IF HEALTH GIVES WAY?

In dollars and cents, what is the worth of the brawn of your arm; what is the value of the staying power that permits continuous labor—what are they worth to you?

Suppose you did something so foolish as to reduce your strength, vitality or judgment one half, and it were impossible to get them back—how much would you pay to regain the lost portion?

When you let yourself run down, you reduce your chances for success in life—if sleeplessness comes you score lower still—should appetite or digestion fail, you are stared in the face by physical bankruptcy.

Don't let it go so far, take Ferrozone, it has cured thousands and it will cure you; it builds up bodily strength, makes muscles like steel, replaces Spring tiredness by energy and new life Ferrozone rebuilds sick folks because it contains the strengthening elements that every run-down system requires.

Especially before the hot weather comes, everyone needs a purifying tonic—Ferrozone fills the bill exactly—nothing known that invigorates and uplifts so fast.

At once the appetite improves. You rest well and arise next morning feeling fit and fine.

Headaches disappear, weakness gives way to the vigor that only Ferrozone can supply. Try it, results are guaranteed, 50c per box or six for $2.50 at all dealers or by mail to any address if price is remitted to the Ferrozone Co., Kingston, Ontario.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Helen MacAlister

A Story of a Girl Brought Up With Cowpunchers.

By HORACE SLATER

My father was interested with a Scotchman of the name of MacAlister in ranching in the west. MacAlister attended to the stock raising, while my father remained in the east managing the financial end of the business. When my father died I was twenty-one years old. I found with his will, leaving all his property to me, a letter stating that it was all in the ranch. He and his partner had virtually been one owner, and this was all that had saved their investment from bankruptcy. MacAlister had died ten years before, since when my father had managed the business alone for himself and his partner's daughter, who was sole heir to her father's interest. From my father's death, the latter went on to say, I was to be sole manager for myself and this daughter, Helen MacAlister, now seventeen years of age.

I am a methodical chap and after reading this letter sat back in my chair for a job of thinking. I did not relish any business relations with a woman. My father had been dealing with a child who was now entering upon womanhood. Doubtless my task would be far harder than his. The result of my thinking was a resolution to go west and look over the property and especially the owner of the other half of it.

When I reached the ranch I found it entirely in the hands of men. Asking for Miss MacAlister, I was told that she was visiting a ranch near by, where there was a woman, since there was no one of her own sex at her own home. I was further informed that she had lived only among the men on the ranch from the time she was five years old, when her mother died, and her father had the undivided care of her. She had never been away from home till this visit.

I sent to Miss MacAlister a request that she come home, since it was necessary that we have a business talk together. She returned at once. On the day of her arrival I was sitting on the veranda of the ranch house. Being just from the east, I was dressed in eastern costume. Miss MacAlister was robed in cowboy apparel of a feminine cut. She rode up to the house on horseback, astride, and, flinging her right leg over the saddle, planted it on the ground; then, taking the left foot from the stirrup, she turned and came up the steps.

Suddenly she stopped and looked me over from my derby hat to my checked spats. Evidently she had never seen one got up as I was before.

"Are you Mr. Millbank?" she asked.

"I am," I replied, rising and making a drawing room bow.

"I did na reckon I was to meet a tenderfoot," she said, with a Scotch accent. Her father and mother had been Scotch highlanders. "Have they taken gude care of ye?"

"I think they have been waiting your arrival to dispose of me. Men are not as well fitted as women for household affairs."

"I say," she said to several men lounging about, "what do you mean by leaving the gentleman without a room and sumwhat to eat? Bestir yourselves and show him to the room his father always had when he visited us! Gang on!"

To my horror the order was accompanied with a volley of oaths emanating from a rosy little mouth, the most inappropriate instrument in the world for their conveyance. One of the men addressed shouldered my trunk, which had thus far been left on the veranda, and carried it to a room on one side of the hall within. I followed him and made a toilet, donning a flannel shirt which fortunately I had brought along as a protection from the cold. While doing so I heard Miss MacAlister talking with some cowpunchers in the hall, and, though her voice was musical, her words did not differ from theirs. There was the same cowboy nomenclature, the same slang and, what grated most on my sensitive nerves, the same oaths.

Now, if Miss MacAlister had been an angular, homely, coarse visaged woman I doubt if I would have been shocked. I would simply have been disgusted. As it was, while I was jarred, I was fascinated. If this pretty Scotch girl's accent was a bit like a finger on the strings of a mandolin, her oaths were the bitters in a sweet drink. At any rate, they were unique.

It occurred to me that the daughter of a gentleman brought up among men, with no associates of her own sex, would naturally fall into their ways. Of the two elements that go to make up the social human being, heredity and environment, the latter had the field all to itself. Nevertheless, in Miss MacAlister's case, heredity had not been put out of the fight, for among the slang and the oaths was a cropping out of gentility that must have come from parents of refinement.

The first meal I took at the ranch house was supper. All were men except Miss MacAlister, and there was little difference in her and their apparel. She was evidently "one of them," but she was treated differently

Mother-Made, Quick Acting Cough Syrup

Should be Kept Handy in Every Home—Easily Prepared and Costs Little.

Mothers, you'll never know what you are missing until you make up this inexpensive, quick-acting cough syrup and try it. Children love its pleasant taste and nothing else will loosen a cough or chest cold and heal the inflamed or swollen throat membranes with such ease and promptness. It's equally as good for grown-ups as for children.

This splendid cough syrup is made by pouring 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth) into a 16-oz bottle and filling the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you 16 ounces—a family supply—of much better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for $2.50—a clear saving of $2.

The moment it touches the inflamed, cold-congested membranes that line the throat and air passages, the healing begins, the phlegm loosens, soreness leaves, cough spasms lessen and soon disappear altogether, thus ending a cough quicker than you ever thought possible. Hoarseness and ordinary coughs are conquered by it in 24 hours or less. Excellent for bronchitis, whooping cough, spasmodic croup, bronchial asthma or winter coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and is famous the world over for its quick healing effect on the membranes.

Beware of substitutes. Ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions and don't accept anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

How to Learn to Write.

Putting words together is not writing; making fine sentences is not writing; elaborating striking plots is not writing. Of all the arts literature is the most exacting mistress. To write you must have lived, you must have suffered and know joy, you must be able to analyze people, to understand their motives, to love them.

Granted that you have learned something of the motives, the passions, the sorrows that rack us humans, then you must also have your medium in control. Words are like little creatures that march and fight and sing. They are like extra hands and brains. All the passions wait on them. Until you get this sense of the choiceness, the fragility, the power of words, you are not ready to transcribe your thoughts.

Tolstoy's Intensity.

Everything in Tolstoy's character, says a Russian writer, attains titanic proportions. "As a drinker he absorbed fantastic quantities of liquor. As a gambler he terrified his partners by the boldness of his play. As a soldier he advanced gayly to bastion four, the bastion of death at Sevastopol, and there he made dying men laugh at his witty sayings. He surpassed every one by his prodigious activity in sport as well as in literature."

His Own Shame.

Robert's mother's admonishings to her small son generally ended with the words, "I'd be ashamed of you if you did so and so," and the word ashamed therefore was constantly in his ears.

One day after he had eaten up his little sister's candy his mother said to him:

"Robert, did you eat Dorothy's candy when I told you not to?"

"Yes, ma'am," said Robert in a tone of triumph, "and I'm just as ashamed of myself as I can be, so you needn't be ashamed of me at all."—New York Post.

Both Died as They Wished To.

Tennyson, who was a shy, reserved man, could never understand Robert Browning's love of society. He had been heard to remark that Browning would die in a white choker at a dinner party. The two poets died as they would have wished to die—Robert Browning in the grand Palazzo Rezzonicco, with his son by his bedside, and Lord Tennyson in his beloved Surrey home, surrounded by his loved ones.

STORY OF A SONG.

"Ben Bolt" and Its Author, Dr. Thomas Dunn English.

Of all the American songs none is so hauntingly sweet as that beginning:

Don't you remember sweet Alice, Ben Bolt—
Sweet Alice, whose hair was so brown,
Who wept with delight when you gave her a smile
And trembled with fear at your frown?

Dr. Thomas Dunn English, its author, contributed his poem to the New York Mirror in 1843. It was a work of love, written without compensation, to oblige the editor, N. P. Willis, who had recently undertaken to put the paper on its feet.

The poem had a pathetic lilt that attracted no little attention, but its fame did not come until later years. In 1848 Nelson Kneass, an actor, adapted the poem to an old German melody, and the air captivated the American people. Then the song crossed the water, achieved an equally great success in England and literally ran round the world.

It remained for George Du Maurier to immortalize "Ben Bolt" in the play "Trilby," where the gentle victim of Svengali sings the air so sweetly to Taffy the Laird and Little Billee.

The Doctor's Prescription.

Of historical interest is the emblem found on every prescription written by a physician, consisting of the letter R with a thin line across the tail at an acute angle. According to historians, it had its origin in the ancient custom of allowing the stars to dominate everyday incidents of life. The R thus marked is said to have been the emblem used by the ancients to designate the supremacy of Jupiter. Therefore it seems probable that some chemist of ancient days gave a prescription or a recipe to some patient and wrote upon it the emblem of the planet then in the ascendancy, which happened to be Jupiter. This emblem has come down to the present time and is always used. In a more modern sense it stands for a recipe, or an order or instruction to take something. Literally construed, recipe means "take" or "take thou."

TAKE SALTS TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if you feel Backachy or have Bladder trouble

Meat forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or side headache, dizziness and a general decay of gue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless, and makes a delightful effervescent lithiawater drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.

Co-operative Wool Selling.

The co-operative system has been successfully applied to the marketing of wool in Quebec, the work being under the direction of Mr. A. A. MacMillan of Macdonald Agricultural College.

The amount of wool handled this season was 169,329 pounds, with a total value of $71,092.70. Medium combing, fine medium combing, and medium combing grades sold at 43c a pound. Low medium combing at 42c, coarse combing at 41c, black and grey and rejections at 38c. Fifty-one per cent. of the wool sold for 43c a pound, while the average price for all grades, including rejections, was 41.8c a pound. The associations had no difficulty in selling their wool to Canadian mills immediately after grading at the above prices, which were f. o. b. at shipping points. The wool throughout was put up in excellent shape for market, and was considered one of the choicest lots of Canadian wool offered for sale this year. Local prices for ungraded wool throughout the Province ranged between 31c and 35c a pound, so that grading and co-operative sale netted members a gain of seven to twelve cents a pound, or twenty to forty per cent. advance.

No Respecter of Persons.

Mistress (to maidservant by way of mild rebuke)—I don't think your young man has very good manners. I noticed that he did not rise from his seat when I came into the kitchen.

Maid (deprecating)—I'm very sorry, ma'am, but he doesn't do it even when I come into the room.

Talking and Listening.

Probably it would be better for every one of us if we listened more and talked less. Some need the advice more than others, but there are few that could not profit by it. With most people listening is a good deal a matter of bargain. We let others tell us their troubles and interests and experiences so that we may have a decent excuse for telling them ours.—Exchange.

Suspicious.

"When Bill Simmons goes to church they always pass the contribution plate to him before any one else."

"Why is that? Is he such a generous giver?"

"Not he. By passing it to him first they don't stand a chance of losing anything but the empty plate."—New York World.

A Monastery Fortress.

The most strongly fortified monastery in the world is at Solovetsk, in Archangel, Russia. This monastery is inclosed on every side by a wall of granite bowlders and, is nearly a mile in circumference. The monastery itself is very strongly fortified, being supported by round and square towers about thirty feet high, with walls twenty feet thick.

Realistic.

The Author—Well, how did you like my play?

The Critic—Oh, it was very nice.

The Author—Didn't you think the church scene realistic?

The Critic—Intensely so. Why, a great many of us actually went to sleep while it was on.

DANCING IN ROUMANIA.

Peasants Make Merry on Sunday to Oil Their Joints For Monday.

The Roumanian peasants have a saying that they must dance on Sunday to keep the creak out of their bones on Monday. Most of the dances are at the public houses—dance halls under the blue sky, as it were—and young and old gather there. The old folk spend the day with the tipple, while the young ones dance. There is very little drinking on any other day of the week, and a tipsy man except on Sunday is seldom seen.

The dances are organized by the boys of the community. They arrange for the music, provide the refreshments and preside as masters of ceremony. When the girls reach a marriageable age and have been sufficiently instructed in the household arts they are allowed to attend these dances as participants. "She dances at the dance" is the peasant way of saying that a girl has made her debut and is eligible for matrimonial attentions.

The national dance of Roumania is a sort of cross between a jig and the game of ring-around-the-rosie. All the dancers clasp hands and form a ring. They then begin a stepping, swaying motion that never moves them out of their original tracks, and to the music of the gypsy band they keep it up for hours.

The Great Privilege of Illness.

Illness is the great privilege of life. Love only is comparable to it. They are twin privileges. Both deny the common value of things; both assert that man's destiny is bound up with transcendental powers. Of this theme ill is the only testimony we have, for the body's evidence is a denial—a negative assertion that the sparkle of consciousness is a random striking of substances on substance, like sand on flint. Illness pares and lops off the outer parts of life and leaves us with the essence of it.—Henry Dwight Sedgwick in Atlantic.

Largest Crystal of Beryl.

It remained for a Turk, wandering far from his native land, to find the largest crystal of beryl (aquamarine) ever discovered, a long distance inland in Brazil. It was dug out at a shallow depth, transported by caboo to the coast and finally sold at Bahia, bringing the finder, it is said, $25,000. According to estimates, this crystal would furnish fully 2,000,000 carats of aquamarines of various sizes.

Influenza

Nothing I know of will give such prompt relief from this disease as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The pain in the chest disappears, the fever goes down, and the whole body feels better. After effects of the disease can also be avoided by taking

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

I have never known a single case of influenza to result in pneumonia when Chamberlain's was freely given, and the cough following influenza speedily yields to this splendid remedy.

Had Bronchitis FOR YEARS

Bronchitis comes from a neglected cold and it, if neglected, will surely turn into pneumonia. The first symptom is a short, painful, dry cough, accompanied with rapid wheezing and a feeling of oppression or tightness about the chest.

The phlegm raised from the bronchial tubes is at first of a light color, but as the disease progresses it becomes of a yellowish or greenish color, and is very often hard to raise.

Dr. Wood's Norway is just the remedy that you require as it loosens the phlegm and heals the lungs and bronchial tubes.

Mrs. Chas. Breau, Amherst, N. S., writes: "I was troubled for years with bronchitis, and could not find any relief. I was especially bad on a damp day. I went to a druggist and asked him for something to stop the constant tickling in my throat. He gave me a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, which I found gave me instant relief. I think it is the best remedy for bronchitis that I know of. I now take care that I always have a bottle on hand."

"Dr. Wood's" is the genuine, put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 35c and 50c.

"OVER THE TOP"

A Vivid Story of the Last Moments Before the Attack

(BY AN OFFICER)

The infantry will advance to the attack of the First Objective at 1.30 p.m.—Operation Orders.

8 a.m.—Since dawn two lion-hearted servants, who came up five miles under shell fire during the night, have been busy with mysterious rites in the bottom of the trench.

It is quite a good trench, as trenches on the Somme go, about shoulder deep, with long holes scooped at intervals in the sandy parapet (rather like the tombs of Christian martyrs in the catacombs), where one may sleep, if one can. The trench is just the breadth of a man. To pass along it, crowded as it now is with men, requires the agility of the jungle ape blended with the patience of Job.

The previous occupants of the officers' corner of the trench, who displayed such indecent joy on being relieved last night, have scooped out a niche in the parapet to serve as a table. On this one of the servants deposits a tea pot, a loaf, a plate of cold boiled bacon, a saucer of butter, and two tin cups, and announces breakfast.

We stop studying the view. The trench is not deep enough to prevent one's enjoying the landscape—a stretch of undulating pasture in front, then a reddish, greyish tangle of wire running in front of a yellow scar gashed in the grass. Beyond it is a village wreathed in dense clouds of smoke. The noise—not to forget a detail—is ear-splitting. That is why we all eat breakfast standing up. If you sit down the thud of the shells bursting in the German lines rattles your ear-drums till your head aches.

DISAGREE VIOLENTLY.

We are only four officers, with the two companies that are going to lead the attack, for we are going in "under strength." While we breakfast, my company commander and I pore over our maps spread out on the parapet of the trench. For the hundredth time we discuss the plans we have made for keeping our direction as we advance to each successive objective. We disagree violently as to whether we turn half left, on leaving the trench, as he maintains, or a quarter left, which is my opinion.

8.30 a.m.—We still breakfast. The subaltern of the other company, pointing at the landscape with a piece of bread and jam, says: "Doesn't their wire look beastly?"

8.45 a.m.—The sun comes out and floods the scene with light, even tinging the shell-burst with gold. You catch yourself looking at your watch. "Only a quarter to nine!" is what you say. What you are thinking is that in five hourse, anyhow, this rotten waiting about will be over, one way or another.

9.30 a.m.—The other company commander retires to his Christian martyr's tomb and reads the Feld. His subaltern is still eating bread and jam. My company commander writes a note to the company sergeant-major. I watch two grey-coated Huns plodding stolidly along among the shell-bursts carrying a plank. They disappear.

10 a.m.—Three aeroplanes come out from over our lines. Rather more noise in consequence, "Archies'" machine gun fire.

10.30 a.m.—German "H.E." shrapnel, very black, very smelly, very noisy, very erratic. The other company commander leaves his hole and demands to know why the blazes we are kept loafing about like this all the morning; people always attack at dawn; why make a blessed matinee of it?

KILLED LAST NIGHT.

11 a.m.—Frantic demands down the trench for Sergt Bradawl: "Pass the word down for Sergt. Bradawl." One of the servants vouchsafes the information that the sergeant was killed last night. "On the water fatigue, sir," he says. "I saw him dead myself." More aeroplanes more noise, more German shrapnel, most objectionable, but wide.

11.30 a.m.—Two hours more! My company commander and I agree we will stay where we are till one o'clock then go along the trench to the right where the company is, see that the men can all get out of the trench easily, and pick a good jumping-off place for ourselves.

Noon.—The servant produced a bottle of port. It betrays considerable signs of the agitation of the night. We partake of "port wine and a biscuit" in approved style. Wine does not taste well out of a chipped enamel mug, especially port after it has been under shell fire.

12.15 p.m.—We lunch off tongue, bread and sand. The port is by this time so thick that it fortunately veils the interesting mineral deposits in the bottom of the mug. I retire to the Christian martyr's tomb and read several pages of the Field without understanding them.

12.30 p.m.—One hour more! Great map and compass work by everybody. Much discussion about the final objective, somewhere beyond the smoke wreaths round the village. My company commander produced a two-franc piece. "We'll toss who goes over with the leading platoon," he says. "Winner goes second." I win.

12.45 p.m.—My servant, wearing the chastened yet hopeful air of a second in the prize-ring, divests me of my raincoat and cap and hands me my helmet, then girds about my waist my belt with all the implicated paraphernalia of modern war—revolver, compass, field-glasses, gas helmet. The other officers are similarly occupied. Conversation languishes.

12.55 p.m.—Our orderlies appear mysteriously, unbidden, at our sides, as is the way of orderlies. We four officers compare watches. My company commander and I set off along the trench.

AWE-INSPIRING DIN.

1 p.m.—The British soldier is as full of angles as he is in a Nevinson war picture. He and his equipment stick out all over the trench. We are squeezed, battered, and bruised as we force our way along the trench foot by foot. The men are singularly quiet—the old ones phlegmatic, the young ones thoughtful.

1.10 p.m.—The dine is awe-inspiring; the very air seems to tremble with noise. This must be in intensive bombardment. It makes the nerves tingle with excitement. The men are waking up. You look at your watch and wonder how much longer you can bear the strain of waiting. Not for what may happen, but to fight—to get at them.

1.20 p.m.—We find a good spot to get out from, right in the centre of the company. The men of the platoon that is to lead are standing in the niches they cut, ready to leave the trench at the sound of a whistle.

1.25 p.m.—Five minutes to go! We get our whistles out. My company commander gets up in our niche. The noise is deafening. You have to shout to make yourself hear.

1.27 p.m.—"Three minutes more I make it!" bawls my company commander in my ear. I nod, without lifting my eyes from my wrist.

1.28 p.m.—A man beside me points excitedly to the left. "They're off!" he yells. I see a stream of figures moving forward, ever so slowly, on the extreme left. It is a false start, but they keep on.

1.29 p.m.—We are still waiting. My company commander has one foot on the parapet. He turns round and grins at me.

1.31 p.m.—How very leisurely everybody seems to be moving forward! My platoon is tumbling out of the trench; I presume I blew my whistle. Smoke and noise and figures swarming through the haze. My company commander waits for me as I come up and roars in my ear: "Half left; you see I was right!" A man beside you exclaims, "Oh!" in pained astonishment, as it seems, and you see him at your feet with the blood gushing out of his head.

Then you realise you are "over the top"—and you never knew it.

WINS OCEAN RACE TO HEAR HUSBAND'S DYING GREETING

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—In her race across the Atlantic Mrs. John H. M. Bonnor arrived here Monday aboard the steamship Carmania, of the Cunard line, in time to hear the last word uttered by her husband on his death bed.

Mr. Bonnor had been fighting death for more than twenty-four hours, hoping to be able to live long enough to bid his wife goodby. It was nearly four o'clock when Mrs. Bonnor reached the home of her brother-in-law, Fred C. D. Bonnor, No. 557 Clinton avenue, Newark, N.J., and ran into the room where her husband was lying.

"Nancy!" came from the lips of the dying man, as she fell half fainting by his side. A moment later he was dead.

Mr. Bonnor was a sculptor. His brother said that he had been applying himself so incessantly to making statues for public building in Ottawa, Canada, "that he actually worked himself to death."

PARALYZED LIMBS.

To-day it is sleeplessness, headaches, nervous trouble, and irritability. Next thing you know some form of paralysis has developed. Mr. Alex. Mossburg, Moore Street, St. Catharines, Ont., writes: "Nervous trouble developed into paralysis of the limbs so that I became helpless. Doctors failed me, but after using ten boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I resumed work and now feel better than I did for twenty years."

SEATTLE, Wash., Jan. 30.—The steamer steamer Verona, which left here at 6 p.m. for Everett, was on fire when she passed Multnoo Light, four miles from Everett at 9.30 o'clock last night. Reports received here said that many of the passengers had jumped overboard.

POPULAR DIET EXPERT.

Says Better to Eat Too Much Than Too Little.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—The expressed opinion of Dr. Welzmiller, physical director of the West Side Y.M.C.A., that the "brain-food calory stuff" adhered to for any length of time would make "Fat-heads" of those feeding on the calory principle, brought a hot retort from Dr. Fiske. The latter is the presiding genius who is guiding the Police Diet Rookies stomachically along the Calory Way.

Dr. Welzmiller also said that it was not only more pleasant, but more beneficial, to eat a little too much than too little.

"Don't you worry about getting fat in the head," said Dr. Riske, "Calories are the necessities of food in life, and life itself is simply one calory after another. Without enough of them a man will perish."

It was a field day for Old King Calory, for instead of the prescribed 3,000 calories as a dainly stint, their meals, at three for a quarter, lavished them with 3,800, as per the following programme:

Breakfast.

Hominy and Milk.

EVERDAY READING.

Jesus said, "Take My yoke upon you and learn of Me, for My yoke is easy and My burden is light, and ye shall find rest to your souls."

O blessed rest of heart,
From doubting fear and sin;
A rest in Christ the risen Lord,
Who surely reigns within.

I'm glad this rest is free,
This blesed rest from sin.
This rest is free for you and me,
A living Christ within.

He seeks our wayward heart,
In earnest to come in;
Our heart to wandering ever prone,
Whose reigning power is sin.

I gave to Him my heart,
A rebel sinful thing;
I gave it, all the heart I had
It sorely needed Him.

My rest is deep and strong,
Abiding true and clean;
No darkness now, nor fear at all.
For Jesus reigns supreme.

Now open wide your heart,
Refuse not Jesus room;
Admit Him now, He'll give you rest.
And bring eternal noon.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S NEGLIGEE.

By Anabel Worthington.

8126

A pretty negligee is always a creditable addition to a woman's wardrobe and a very tempting model is shown in this illustration.

The garment is cut in one piece, having the front and back gathered to form a heading. This treatment results in the graceful Empire effect, with the draped sides to the skirt section. The sleeves may be kimono style, or cut rather full and long enough to just turn the elbow, finishing with a roll cuff. The collar is daintily embroidered, as are the cuffs, and may be developed in contrasting goods or self-material, as you like.

The silk ribbon bow with "streamers" adds to the effectiveness of the garment. The closing is at the front with snaps or hooks and eyes as preferred.

Striped or figured wool challis, French flannel, cashmere and corduroy are suitable for cold weather. Crepe de Chine, albatross, silk, &c., are also excellent fabrics. Any one who follows the chart can make an exact duplicate of this design. It can be completely finished in less than two hours. A one-piece garment is the easiest possible to make.

The negligee pattern No. 8,126 cuts in sizes 36, 40 and 44 bust. To make in size 36 requires 6¾ yards of 36 inch material, ⅝ of a yard 30 inch contrasting goods and 2 yards of ribbon; or, 7¼ yards of all one material.

To obtain the pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

President And Lansing Are In Conference

VERY GRAVE SITUATION IN U. S. A. OVER GERMAN NOTE

SITUATION REGARDED IN THE UNITED STATE AS EXTREMELY CRITICAL

President and Lansing Confer Over New Developments---No More Passports Will Be Issued to American Citizens to Travel Abroad---Port of New York Declared Closed Last Night But Was Opened Again To-day After Extra Guards Had Been Placed Around the Interned German Ships

UNITED STATES PAPERS CALL FOR WAR

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, February 1. — The United States Government has planned, if it has not already taken its first preliminary step, toward meeting the new declaration of Germany withdrawing all restrictions to submarine warfare. Secretary Lansing and President Wilson, it was learned today, had a long conference last evening in secret, at which the serious development in the relations between the Government and Germany were studied with the most careful deliberation.

The closing of the Port of New York was the result of this conference. To-day, however, after special guards had been established about the interned German liners anchored at Hoboken and other New York piers, the order issued by Collector of the Port Malone last night, prohibiting the departure of any ships, was lifted.

WASHINGTON, February 1.—Secretary of State Lansing will confer with President Wilson as early today as possible with the German sea-warfare note. Lansing to-day cleared his calendar of all engagements including the usual morning interviews with the newspaper men. There was extreme activity about the State Department.

PATROL ENCOUNTERS ON THE WEST.

PARIS, February 1.—Patrol encounters were the only fighting activities from the western front reported in to-day's official statement. They occurred at various parts of the line, notably east of Rheims and north of Altkirch.

AMERICAN EDITORIAL OPINION ON THE SUBMARINE CAMPAIGN

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, February 1. — "Cannot temporize," "cannot tolerate," "must maintain our honour," "should be only one reply," "verge of war," are some of the phrases which appear in the editorial opinions published in American papers to-day in regard to the German note. The Albany-Argus says: "It is indeed Germany's last desperate throw; her recognition of the fact that in reversion to savagery is the only chance of winning this war." German-American papers are the only dissenters in the demand for the breaking off of relations. They ask the United States to wait and see.

Secretary of State Lansing Preparing Another Note

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, February 1.—At noon to-day Secretary Lansing took to the White House what was understood to be a declaration of this Government's course of action in the crisis with Germany. The document was what he had been working on throughout the morning. Lansing declined to discuss the situation in any way before he had talked with the President, even refusing to state whether there would be any announcement by the Government to-day.

"It Is Impossible To Dispute The Gravity of the Situation"

(Former Premier Asquith)

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, February 1.—It is impossible to dispute the gravity of the situation, declared former Premier Asquith to-day, addressing a meeting at Ladybank, and commenting on the new German blockade order. "But with the navy supplementing such other measures as the arming of merchantmen and acceleration of new tonnage we may hope to counteract it," he added.

WILL NOT ISSUE PASSPORTS.

WASHINGTON, February 1.—The State Department to-day suspended the issuance of American passports to travellers abroad. No explanation was given and the length of the suspension was not announced.

It was pointed out that the refusal to issue passports might mean either that this Government was planning to take drastic action and foresaw an inevitable break in relations between United States and Germany, or that President Wilson has determined to modify his former stand, prevent Americans from travelling on the high seas, and thus maintain this country's neutral status. While no hint was available from any quarter as to the President's decision in the case, the gravity of Secretary Lansing's expression after talking with the President indicated plainly that a most serious situation has developed.

German Freighter Sinks in Harbour

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

CHARLESTON, S.C., February 1.—The German freighter Leibenfels, lying in harbour here since the war started, mysteriously sank at her anchorage to-day, in forty to fifty feet of water.

Tugs standing by offered assistance, but it was refused, their captains said.

Shipping men in general believed the Leibenfels was deliberately scuttled. Captain Klattenhoff and her crew were aboard her just before she sank.

Two More Vessels Sent to the Bottom

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, February 1.—Two more vessels, the British steamer Trevean and the Belgian steamer Euprates, were reported this afternoon as victims of the new German ruthlessness.

SIR ROBERT BORDEN ASKED TO ELIMINATE HON. ROBERT ROGERS

Ottawa Citizen Characterizes Justice Gate's Report as an "Unqualified Pronouncement of Guilt" Upon Hon. Robert Rogers

IRREGULAR TRANSACTIONS

Examiner Special:

OTTAWA, Feb. 1.—The Morning Citizen (Independent Conservative) editorially called upon Sir Robert Borden to get rid of Hon. Robert Rogers, because of the finding made against him by Mr. Justice Galt of Winnipeg in connection with the inquiry into the construction of the agricultural buildings of the Province. The Citizen says: "Hon. Robert Rogers must not be allowed longer to degrade the Crown by holding a position as Minister in Canada, with the verdict of guilt attached to him by Justice Galt of the Supreme Court of Manitoba. Furthermore, Justice Galt's report is an unqualified pronouncement of guilt upon Mr. Rogers regarding the increasing of the government contractor's bid. According to Mr. Justice Galt's report the evidence would seem to show that Mr. Rogers' irregular transactions as Minister of Public Works in the Roblin Government of Manitoba were directly connected with collecting of political campaign funds from the government contractors."

SEE THE CANADIAN PICTURES AT THE GRAND TO-NIGHT

Aviation, Motor Boat Men, Medical Corps, Men and Women and Soldiers of Other Branches—All Canadians

Of all the films that have come out of the war none none will have more true interest for the Canadian than Lieut. D. J. Dwyer's "Series Two" of "Canada's Fighting Forces," which is to be shown at the Grand Opera House to-night, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The opportunity of gathering a thorough idea of just what the Dominion's boys are doing in the Aviation service and motor boat patrol work is not to be ignored ,especially when there are so many thrilling moments connected especially with the former. A battle scene, in which the advance under shell fire, the signallers, and the trench catapults, are splendidly shown is one of the big features of the infantry pictures, while other interesting features are those portions of the film dealing with the bringing down of the first Zeppelin on English soil, the hospitals for Canadians, and the searchlight display, as seen over the city of London every night.

There will be few people in a Canadian audience anywhere who will not be able to recognize some one in the numerous 'close-ups' of aviators, motor boat men, medical corps, men and women, and soldiers of other branches of the service.

Fathers Of Peterboro' Boys Overseas Are Invited To Meeting

And Everybody Else Who is Sympathetic to the Recruiting Efforts of the 247th Battalion is Urged to Be at the Armouries To-night to Discuss Objects of 500 Club---Pte. Corrigan, of Peterborough Wounded--To-day's Military News.

Lt.-Col. Ackerman would like to meet as many as possible of the citizens to-night in the recreation room of the Armouries in order to discuss the objects and aims of the 500 Club which is to be launched at a monster meeting in the Grand Opera House on Sunday night. The fathers of Peterborough boys overseas are particularly urged by the commanding officer of the 247th Battalion to be present to-night. The 500 Club is expected to prove a big stimulus to recruiting in Peterborough, and everyone who is sympathetic with that object is asked to be on hand to-night to meet Col. Ackerman and to take the preliminary steps in the campaign that is expected to do much to fill the ranks of the 247th Battalion.

PTE. CORRIGAN WOUNDED.

Word has been received of the wounding of another Peterborough boy in the person of Pte. E. B. Corrigan, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Corrigan, Downer's Corners, who enlisted in the 20th Battalion and was transferred in a draft to the 44th Battalion as a bomb thrower. No particulars have as yet been received.

Orders of the 247th Battalion today contain the announcement of the promotion of Sergt. J. C. Gamey to the rank of Co.-Sergt-Major of A Company, succeeding Co.-Sergt-Major H. M. Latimer who has been granted a commission.

Capt. J. L. Thomson of the 247th Battalion was in Havelock yesterday in connection with the pay of the Havelock members of the Peterborough unit. There is a nucleus of a very fine platoon in Havelock for the new battalion, already numbering 18 or 20 men. The 247th have detachments also in Lang, Bancroft, Apsley, Millbrook and Norwood.

The Campbellford News says: Another young man from this district has made the supreme sacrifice for his King and Country. On Friday Mrs. Neil McArthur, Seymour West, received the sad news that her only son, Pte. Hugh Neil McArthur, was officially reported killed in action on January 17th.

Pte. McArthur was a young man 20 years of age and enlisted with the 93rd Peterborough Battalion in September, 1915. He went overseas last fall and after training in England for a short time was sent with a draft to France.

He was well known in Campbellford and throughout the township, having lived in Seymour West practically all his life.

The entire community sympathizes with Mrs. McArthur in the great loss she sustains by the death of her noble son while engaged in battle for the cause of righteousness and liberty. He is also survived by a sister, Miss Mary, who lives at home with her mother.

DECREASE IN CONGESTION.

One Result of the Cutting Off of Passenger Trains.

Ottawa, Jan. 31.—Before the orders were called this afternoon in the House, Hon. Geo. P. Graham inquired if the cutting off of passenger trains had had any effect in addition to incommoding the public. Premier Borden replied that the Board of Railway Commissioners had done the cutting down, but he was informed that there had been a marked decrease in the congestion of freight.

More Ruthlessness The New Hun Policy

Germany Announces Her Intention of Murdering Neutrals Who Approach the Harbours of Britain and France—Hospital Ships Must Avoid the Channel.

LAYS DOWN REGULATIONS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Germany has declared unrestricted submarine warfare, and henceforth all traffic by sea—neutral or enemy—within a prescribed zone, will be endangered.

A starvation blockade of England was announced to the world to-day in notes delivered to American Ambassador Gerard in Berlin and to the State Department here by Count von Bernstorff.

Thus begins the long-feared campaign of ruthlessness, conceived by von Hindenburg, it is said, here, on a magnitude never even contemplated by von Tirpitz.

A sea cordon, running from the Terschelling lightship, off the Dutch coast in the North Sea northward to a point off the coast of Norway, thence west into the Atlantic, and south along the French coast, and in the Mediterranean, except the western part adjacent to the Spanish coast, down into Greek territorial waters, has been drawn by Germany, and in it neutral Governments have been warned their ships will ply at their own risk.

Under certain conditions regular American [illegible] steamers may continue their trips to England if Falmouth is made their port of destination and a certain lane, which will not be mined, is used by them. Only one steamer may run each week to and from the United States, and the United States Government is asked for guarantees that they carry no contraband.

In a document announcing Germany's purpose to do away immediately "with the restrictions" which until now have been imposed upon the use of her full sea-power, the German Government announces that the step is taken because of the failure of the Teutonic allies' attempt to bring about peace.

The Super-Crisis.

Again the United States faces severance of diplomatic relations with Germany with all its eventual possibilities. President Wilson's repeated warnings of "a world afire" and Secretary Lansing's "verge of war" statement are being recalled in the capital to-night with feelings of apprehension and misgiving.

Germany's action is the supercrisis of all those that have stirred the American Government in two and a half years of world war.

Talk of peace in Europe and of means of preserving the peace of the world have gone glimmering. President Wilson, incredulous at first when the unofficial text of Germany's warning was brought to him, at once called for the official document which had just been presented to Secretary Lansing by the German Ambassador. Mr. Lansing absolutely refused to make a comment.

CAN'T GET BELAND FREED.

More Influence Brought to Bear Makes Germany More Stubborn.

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—In the House this afternoon, Hon. Charles Marcil, read from a Montreal paper that Baron von Polenz and Baron von Mumme had been released from Canadian internment camps, and asked if the time was not opportune for negotiations for the release of Dr. Beland, M.P., now a prisoner in Germany. The Premier replied that interned prisoners were under the control of the Minister of Justice. As to Dr. Beland, the Canadian and British Governments had both done everything possible to secure his release, but it appeared that the more influence brought to bear to secure the release of German prisoners, the more anxious the Germans became to hold him.

SMALL ECONOMY.

The letter carriers of Peterborough consider that their request for increased wages should be strengthened by the fact of a decrease in their street car privileges. Formerly, the post office allowed $25 per man for year for street car transportation. The company did not think this was enough, and offered to continue the privileges of transportation for $35 a season, not considered extravagant in view of the fact that in London, Ont., each postman is allowed $75 per year on account of street car transportation. Now, in contrast, the Peterborough postmen get one ticket for each delivery, and after miles of tramping in all sorts of weather, they must pay for transportation out of their own pockets, while the London postmen have the free use of the cars at all times.

This seems to be very small economy. The Postmaster General cannot regard post office revenue as his own money; and if he showed as reckless disregard of other people's money as he declared in the Dorchester bye-election, he should certainly accede to the request of the postmen for more pay—or more car fare. Speaking in Dorchester in reference to the waste of money on shells, Hon. Mr. Blondin, who is Postmaster-General in a Conservative Government, although he is the same Nationalist of shoot-holes-in-the-fog notoriety, said it made little difference if the money was wasted—"it was only British money anyway."

The Peterborough postmen are certainly deserving of consideration. They give faithful service by hard work. There is not, as far as we know, a case on record where a "postie" has failed to make his delivery promptly and regularly. Rain or shine, snow or heat, he makes his round, sometimes staggering under loads that would be a load to a dray horse; and to deprive him of street car tickets, and forces him to do his duty to the public, and pay for transportation out of his own pocket, in contrast to liberal allowances in other places, does not seem to be quite British fair play.

It seems to be very pleasant economy to take it out of the postmen, especially in view of the lavish expenditure on postal administration represented by an increase under the present government from $7,900,000 in 1911-12 to $14,900,000 in 1915. The post office authorities refused to pay the street railway company $35 per man, which was considered a reasonable increase from the figure of $25; certainly not unreasonable in view of the fact that the postmen in London are allowed $75. In contrast, the Peterborough postmen are allowed the ticket for each delivery trip, and their work is as hard as that of the London postmen. There should not be needed a petition to get the postmen what they consider their rights. It would be thought that a word from the local postmaster, who knows the hard and faithful and, as they claim, inadequately paid work of the Peterborough Letter Carriers, would be sufficient to induce Hon. Mr. Blondin and Sir Robert Borden to do the fair and equitable thing.

NOW "UP TO" THE GOVERNMENT.

The Montreal Star rather exultingly declares that a "million National Service cards are in already, and more will come." What of it? This "great part of the man power of the Dominion" has thrown its cards on the table. What is the government's play? What does it propose to do with these National Service cards—whose practical use is to be made of them, and when is it to be done?

The government has made a considerable ripple in the postal service with these cards; but has vouchsafed no specific information as to what is to be done with them. Are they to be converted into war waging and war winning material? If so, in what way; if so, when?

We are now at the beginning of the second month of 1917, the year the war is to end. If the National Service cards are to take a part in the gain of victory, there does not seem to be much time to lose. Are they to be used as a help to recruiting? If so, the sooner they "get busy," the better.

There is evidence that the work of recruiting is ended under present conditions. A government newspaper, strongly Conservative, the Welland Telegraph, says so. In a two column article it shows, giving facts, figures and dates, that recruiting is at an end.

It tells of the organization in November last, in Welland, of a strong local body, composed of the leading citizens, without regard to party—representing "the brains and energy and patriotism of the town." Plans were laid for an energetic recruiting campaign, to culminate in the last half of January.

The final effort was made, twenty-eight recruiting meetings were held in churches, halls and factories, and there was "not a weak spot in the campaign organization."

The Telegraph gives the meagre result; the total number of volunteers was twenty; of these seventeen were rejected as medically unfit, and three were accepted—only one fighting man for the 176th Battalion—and of the other two, one each to the Army Service Corps and the Construction Battalion.

This was the result of work concentrated on recruiting since last November. And these three "net" recruits represent a cost of $300 each; and the Telegraph points out that if the present Canadian army of under 400,000 had been recruited at the same rate of cost as the last Welland platoon of three, the total cost would have been 120 millions—for recruiting alone—not to speak of cost of equipment, clothing, food, etc. Figures are given to show that the cost of recruiting these three soldiers was $900.

These facts show the exhausted fruits of private enterprise in recruiting, which has been the main element in recruiting all through the war. The government has of its own initiative done little for the specific work of recruiting. Private enterprise, private means, private zeal, have done the main part of the work.

The government has followed, not led. It has graciously accepted the fruits the Patriotic Leagues, and others, have gathered; and armed and equipped the soldier recruits, and even in this it has done its work with a good deal of waste.

The government has its last chance now to do something for recruiting by its National Service campaign, the first specific effort it has made—in the third year of the war.

The people's private patriotism has done its best, and done the worst—for recruiting, and now confesses itself beaten; and if we are to provide the missing part of the 500,000 soldiers Premier Borden has promised, the government will have to "get busy."

There is no partisanship in developing the facts of the government's failure, its neglect of apparent effort to promote recruiting. The Telegraph is, it may be said, without offence, a rabid government organ—it has in the same issue in which it shows by facts and figures that recruiting by private agencies is a failure, a column article, glorifying the election of a Nationalist—the stumbling block to recruiting—in Dorchester.

Its summary of the situation is significant and throws the onus on the government. The Telegraph concludes its article on the failure of recruiting by private agencies, in the following words:

"The Telegraph has endeavored to faithfully present the facts, and shall as faithfully try to make its deductions that recruiting is at an end, that a continuance of the effort is extremely wasteful and futile, and that it is the duty of the government to provide other machinery to meet the need."

PROPOSAL TO COMBINE CITY AND COUNTY BUILDINGS IN A JOINT STRUCTURE

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir: For the purpose of obtaining expressions from the public of the City and County of Peterborough, I give my reasons for the erection of a suitable edifice to combine the various city and county public offices.

The present Court House, erected in the year 1889, remodelled in 1878, and again some ten or fifteen years ago, has lately been partially destroyed by fire.

This building is not modern in any respect, and there is not sufficient room under the present roof to give nearly the accommodation needed, even for present requirements; expensive changes and additions must be made. For instance, excavation for the purpose of removing the earth from under the whole building, and providing for a basement, or the old over-head system of steam heating, unhealthy, dangerous, and a positive eye-sore, must be replaced. This is most expensive work. Larger and more modern quarters are needed for the ever-growing Law Library, which is now rated as one of the finest in the province.

The Judge's Chambers and Clerk of the County Court, Deputy Registrar, and Surrogate Court Offices, should properly be under the Court House roof. The Crown Attorney and Clerk of the Peace are entitled to offices at the Court House.

The office of Public School Inspector is relegated to an out-of-the-way room on the third story.

There is practically no accommodation for either Grand or Petit Jurors.

The Court Room is a bye word to all of the visiting Superior Court Judges. The money that was spent in a so-called renovation of the building (some thousands of dollars) was just thrown away. The corridors are dark and there is not a modern office or modern accommodation throughout the whole building. Why, therefore, repeat the wastefulness and loss by expending the insurance money, some $18,000, on an old and out-of-date building, that will not meet even the present day requirements.

No one will question the immediate necessity for the erection of a City Hall in keeping with the increasing requirements and the growing importance of the City of Peterborough, and one that will give proper accommodation to the municipal offices, City Treasurer, Colector of Taxes, City Treasurer, Collector of Taxes sor, and their respective staffs. The Utility Commission will shortly need much increased accommodation, especially if the city takes over the Street Railway and Gas business. Police Court and Police Station, City Trust and other public offices, should be provided.

Many valuable securities, books, documents and papers are without proper vault accommodation, and are in danger of being destroyed by fire. These cannot be replaced except at great expense of time and money, and many of them not at all.

It being conceded, therefore, that two new buildings are imperatively required, why not scrap the present Court House and gaol, and erect two suitable and imposing buildings, combining them in so far as practicable on the present Victoria Park site, say west of the present band stand? This site is central and suitable for the people of the city and county.

The first and only valid objection is the cost and expenditure of money at the present time.

In answer to this the debentures may be issued to cover forty years, a large percentage will be taken up locally. All the money can be spent here and a number of our factories can supply the necessary material—and should we not now begin to prepare for "After the war?"

There will be a great increase in the population of this country. The C. P. Railway and steamship companies are now preparing to take care of this immigration. We have naturally the healthiest and the most attractive centre in the province, and do not sufficiently appreciate it. Many hundreds of fine English and Scotch families will have to leave the Old Land; their revenues and livings have been sacrificed to the war calls; they will be unable to live as they formerly did. Their sons and husbands have been killed and the remaining members of the families will welcome an entire change of life and surroundings.

We must conclude that if we need these buildings, money spent on them is not being wasted. It is true that the debenture debt of the City and County will be added to by the money spent.

If one loses his residence by fire, or his requirements have outgrown the old one, it is not waste money to rebuild. The asset replaces the money, and is of much more real value and benefit. Money is circulated, people enabled to get employment and live.

"No part of a man's income is so "well laid out or procures for him "in exchange so large an amount "of positive benefit as that which "he pays to the State in the form "of taxation, and it should be particularly remarked that the poorer "classes receive, relatively, much "more positive advantage from the "public expenditure than the richer class. They contribute far less "per head or family to the revenue. "The revenue is spent in a manner which affords them employment.

"Nothing appears to us more calculated to mislead and deceive the "uninstructed part of the public "than expressions which imply that "taxation is something taken out of "the pockets of the people, as if "the nation were robbed of the "money to pay its own expenses.

"It is a favourite maxim with "many of the governing persons of "to-day, and notably with economical "reformers, that 'you must not be "generous with other people's money.' That I deny. When you are "in an office of great trust, and "have to deal with other people's "money, it is your business to try "to deal with it as though it were "you own; and the highest functions of your trust may, in the interest of those for whom you have "to act, compel you to be generous. "In fact, if you are not generous "with their money, you are often "doing them a great injustice, and "manifest dis-service."

CANADIAN NORTHERN RAILWAY MAKES GREAT STRIDES IN FIRST YEAR AS TRANSCONTINENTAL LINE

Transcontinental Railway For Last Fiscal Year Reports Tremendous Gains in Freight Traffic - System, Notwithstanding Most Severe Winter Conditions, Comes Close To Earning Total Fixed Charges And Now Plays Important Part in Supplying Mother Country With Its Wheat Requirements

(From our own Correspondent.)

Toronto, January 31st.—That another Transcontinental Railway System is rapidly coming into its own, is strikingly illustrated by the annual report of the Canadian Northern Railway System made public to-day.

The remarkable progress made during the past twelve months is likely to prove one of the spectacular achievements of the leading Canadian corporations, even in a year during which many Canadian companies have reported exceptional growth of business.

Every Canadian may, with pride, regard the performance of the Canadian Northern in its first year as a Transcontinental. This line, conceived and constructed by Canadians, and linked up just a year ago, shows in its annual report an indication of the part that the System is bound to play in solving the transportation problems of the country it is so well located to serve. While the report only covers a seven months' period of Transcontinental operation, yet the figures show a wonderful advance when viewed from any standpoint.

Some of the principal features of the report are as follows: Gross earnings of $35,476,975, an increase of $9,564,168 or 36.91 per cent. over the previous year; freight earnings $26,560,213, a gain of $8,352,412, or 45.87 per cent, a new high record in the amount of grain handled over the System's lines, the amount totalling over 131,000,000 bushels compared with over 58,000,000 bushels in the previous year, an increase of 123.31 per cent. Such a showing is sure to be of the greatest benefit to the new transcontinental system, as it is bound to result in Canadians taking a very different view of the road and its prospects than those which have been noticeable in certain political circles on a few occasions during the past couple of years. In fact the strides made will likely go a long way towards establishing a great change in the views held in Canada as well as in England and the United States regarding the railway situation in the Dominion.

DIVISION OF EARNINGS.

	1916	1915
Gross Earnings:
From Passenger Traffic	$6,128,470	$5,411,224
From Freight Traffic	26,560,213	18,207,800
From Express, Mail, Telegraph, Interest and Profits from Elevators and other Subsidiary Companies, Investments, etc.	2,787,591	2,293,081
	$35,476,275	$25,912,106
Working Expenses, (Including Taxes, etc.)	26,102,744	19,288,814
Net Earnings	$9,373,530	$6,623,291
Deducting Fixed Charges	9,621,657	8,263,574
Net Loss or Deficit	$248,127	$1,640,283

During the year the System had under operation an average of 8,048 miles, as compared with an average of 7,269 miles, an increase of 779 miles, or 10.72 per cent. over the previous year.

As was to be expected, a large part of the System's increase in freight revenue originated from the grain traffic. The System during the year, carried a total of 131,378,803 bushels of grain, as compared with 58,575,800 bushels in 1915, an increase of 72,803,289 bushels, or 125.31 per cent. The great advantage this traffic has been to the Mother Country is touched upon in a striking manner in the Directors' Report, in which they state:

"Inasmuch as many of the security holders invested their funds in the Company's undertakings, believing that the heart of the Empire would some day need to draw heavily upon the wheat fields of the Canadian west, it is with pride that the directors present these figures illustrating the extent to which the prairies have been opened up, made productive, and the produce marketable by the Company's railways. There are probably few who thought that the crucial necessity would come so soon; but having come it must be considered fortunate that the Canadian Northern Railway System and the country tributary to it were sufficiently developed to take an important part in supplying the Empire's food requirements."

RESULTS OF NEW MILEAGE.

The report gives complete information regarding the returns obtained on the Pacific Coast and Northern Ontario divisions which were operated for the first time during the course of the year. The report says:

The System's new mileage on the Pacific Coast and the Northern Ontario Divisions have not yet come into their full earning power, as operation on these divisions was only commenced in the late Autumn of last year. The British Columbia section from the commencement produced each month substantial increases in revenue, and before the close of the fiscal year yielded most encouraging revenues. Much of the business offering is from the Pacific Coast to points inland but a commencement has been made in the marketing of the excellent timber tributary to the line, and in the cultivation of the rich lands in the valleys through which the railway traverses the mountain country. The excellent showing made by the mileage in British Columbia, after only seven months of operation, may be well considered an outstanding feature of the year's operations.

LITTLE ECONOMY YET FROM BRITISH FOOD REGULATION

Consumption of Meat and Cheese Increased by Law Reducing Number of Courses at Meals, While There is Saving in Butter, Sugar and Milk

LONDON, Dec. 20. — Without any grumbling, and certainly with very little observable economy in food consumption, England has entered upon a simpler "war time meals" regime. Hotels, restaurants and boarding houses have adapted themselves readily to the new regulations, but it is still possible to dine extravagantly by the card.

At lunch and dinner all the first class restaurants are still crowded with cheerful men and women. People realize that a two course lunch or a three course dinner, with cheese and coffee to follow, is quite good enough.

Some restaurants have printed on their menus the new regulations in bold form:

Two course meals,
except during 6 P.M. and 9.30 P.M., when three courses are allowed.
Cheese, Biscuits and Bread and Butter not reckoned as courses.
Hors d'Oeuvre (excluding Fish), Soup and Dessert.
Count each as half a course.

From the carte de jour at the Carlton it is possible to choose a costly meal of great simplicity. One might have half a grilled chicken with potatoes and French beans with turbot as a prelude. This would cost $2.60, with cheese, coffee and wine. Dinner on the same scale, with 60 cent soup, a sole Meuniere at $1.50, some expensive game and dessert, would cost considerably more. But there are not many people to be seen dining expensively at the Carlton. "Our guests are ready to carry out the spirit of the regulations," said the restaurant manager.

To help their customers in deciding "When is a curse not a course?" the Savoy restaurant sets out on the menus several suggestions for both lunch and dinner, each varied as much as possible. Here are typical suggestions for each meal:

LUNCH.
Hors d'Oeuvre Oysters or Soup (each counting as half course).
Entree or special dish for day, with vegetable, one course).
Cheese and Celery (exempt).
Dessert (half course).

DINNER.
Soup (half course).
Fish (one course).
Entree or Roast, with vegetables (one course).
Cheese and Celery (exempt).
Dessert (half course).

In practice the possible variations are fairly extensive. In the lunch, for instance, which costs $1.25, eggs or fish or hors d'oeuvre without restriction (the latter then counting as a full course), can be substituted for the initial half coutse, in which case the dessert comes off and the meal finishes with cheese after the entree joint, or grill. If sweets are wanted, only the entree or joint can be served as well, as sweets are a full course.

"We have found," said the Savoy manager "that the most popular lunch comprises fish, joint and cheese. We sell less than half the normal quantity of sweets, while the consumption of cheese has increased proportionately. All the courses served are more substantial than in the past, and the net result of the change from the food point of view is that while there has been little, if any, economy in meat there has been increased consumption of vegetables and cheese, but a saving in butter, sugar, milk and other things used so largely in the making of sweets."

At the pleasant little restaurants in Soho the management are adding cheese as a course and giving much bigger portions in their table d'hote menus, the price remaining the same. But the cheap places are finding it difficult to design a satisfactory two course lunch at 30 cents for people who hitherto have had five courses for the same amount.

Inevitably there were, to begin with, some amusing mistakes. People ordered soup, fish and sweets for lunch, only to be reminded that something must be sacrificed, and there were merry little discussions regarding the relative attractions of soup and sweets.

It came as a great surprise to many that the regulations applied to breakfast as well as to lunch and dinner. Business men arriving in London by the midnight expresses from the north contemplated a hearty breakfast of porridge, fish, bacon and eggs, with toast and marmalade. They found that the porridge had to go, or the fish or meat.

PLAIN TALKS ON MINING

BY MARK HARRIS

THE EARNING POWER OF MONEY

THERE is no disputing the fact that the European War is directly responsible for a wave of prosperity in the United States and Canada that has steadily grown in force for over eighteen months; until it has embraced practically all of the important industries.

Thousands of artisans, small shopkeepers, manufacturers and business men, who only a few years ago found it hard to make both ends meet, are now earning such large profits that, in spite of the high prices for foodstuff, they find they have a respectable surplus at the end of each month.

Bank deposits have been doubled and the Savings Banks throughout the country have their vaults loaded to overflowing with gold and silver and high grade securities.

This shows clearly that the prosperity is not confined to any particular locality, or to any favoured class, but that it has engulfed the rich and poor with indiscriminate fancy.

These are certainly prosperous times for many, but as the prosperity is abnormal, it cannot be lasting, so I say it behooves every man and woman who is directly benefitted by this "War Prosperity" to make hay while the sun shines.

The standard of value in this country is the "Dollar" and every school boy knows that while the standard has remained stationary, the cost of necessities, as well as luxuries, has slowly, but surely, advanced, until the dollar of old purchases only about half what it formerly did.

As an example, let us take the man who had $100 invested in Government bonds, paying him 3 per cent. yearly. At the end of each year he received $3.00 as interest, which at the time purchased 3 bushels of wheat. To-day, if he still holds the same investment, his $3.00 will buy but 1½ bushels, which shows that there must be something wrong somewhere.

The "something wrong" is the earning power of the dollar, for whereas it was only 3 or 4 per cent. a few years ago, it should be 6 to 8 per cent. to-day.

Financiers throughout the world are recognizing this fact, and this is proven by the number of gilt edge securities that can be purchased on a basis, where they return anywhere from 5 to 7 per cent.

If the war continues another year or two, I expect to see this table advanced to a point where 7 or 8 per cent. is the recognized standard on the almighty dollar.

The man or woman who is reaping some of the prosperity in this land and who is placing all surplus capital in some bank for safety is losing an opportunity that may never come again, and the sooner they realize it the better.

Take your money out of the bank and place it in gilt edge securities, which will bring you an income year after year. There is no such a thing as an absolutely safe investment, but at the same time there is no such a thing as an absolutely safe bank, so you take no more chance by investing than you do by hoarding, providing you use ordinary intelligence in the selection if your securities.

If you don't know anything about securities or finance, go to some responsible broker with an established reputation and ask for advice which he should give you freely and without any charge.

If you don't know of such a broker, ask your bank and they will recommend some stockbroker in your home city.

The important point is to take advantage of these abnormal times, for in all my experience in finance I have never seen so many genuine investment bargains as the market offers to-day.

Many of the big producing copper mines with ore reserves that guarantee dividends for years to come can be purchased at prices that bring you a return of 8 to 12 per cent. yearly, which means an income of from $80 to $120 yearly in every $1,000 invested.

If your bank cannot or will not furnish you with information on such investments, write me and I will send you full and complete reports by return mail.

Yours faithfully,

Mark Harris

FAMINE AMID PLENTY.

LONDON, Jan. 29.—Russia is experiencing famine in the midst of plenty chiefly in Petrograd and Moscow. There is enough food in Russia to supply the entire population for two years but owing to the inadequacy of the railroads and the lack of organization in distribution, the police in some districts find it difficult and even impossible to get supplies.

The people of Petrograd have to stand in queues for many hours to obtain food and the thermometer is sometimes 30 below zero.

LORD, MAKE ME A FISHER OF MEN.

E'er the sun be up in the dewy morn,
Till the stars shine out again,
Let me cast a line in the silvery brook,
Lord, make me a fisher of men!

Whether tides go out or tides come in,
Let me launch my skiff in the sea,
O teach me, Jesus, to cast thy net,
Where shoals of fishes be.

Let me gather them out of the mighty deep,
And up from the sick'ning pool;
Let me fish for men in the darkling waves,
Where waters are deep and cool.

Let me hear the thunders of roaring waves,
Where icebergs float in the spray,
Or catch the gleam of the Southern Cross,
On the crest of the milky way.

Wherever a child of man is born,
Oh, there let me fish for men,
And gather them in from the depths of sin,
Till the Master shall come again.

On the pebbly beach of Galilee,
Let me draw thy net to land,
And see the smile of a Saviour's love
And feel the touch of his hand.

—Rev. W. M. Yonge, Middleport, N. Y., Nov. 2nd, 1916; brother of Y. C. Yonge, Peterborough, Park and Lansdowne streets.

CHIPPEWAS, ONCE POWERFUL, NOW SCATTERED FEW

STANDISH, Mich. — The once powerful tribe of the Chippewas, the leading Indians in Michigan for the last hundred years, consists now of scattering parts of the once great gathering of these copper coloured aborigines.

The largest remnant is living near here, at Saganing, five miles southeast of town, on Saginaw bay, at the mouth of the Saganing river, named after this tribe of Indians. Out of a once flourishing tribe of 500 Indians there are scarcely left seventy-five, old, and young.

The chief of all the Indians in Michigan, James Coon, resides here, and has general charge of all the Indians. A neat little white church graces the banks of the ricer, and services are regularly held every Sunday by Indian and white preachers.

Drink Little "Firewater."

Nearly all the Indians here belong to the Methodist Episcopal church, and are good Christian adherents. Except in a few instances they do not partake of "firewater" any more. They own little patches of ground, which they farm industriously, and a few own quite large farms. Through the winter they make baskets, bead work, birch bark canoes, ax handles, bow and ararows, mats of bulrushes, etc.

Along up the Lake Huron shore there is another remnant of this tribe around Tawas City, around Petoskey, in the western part of the state, at Machinaw, in Wisconsin, and other points in Michigan, at Pinconning, and Bay City. A few Pottawattamies are also intermingled with them.

Money from Government.

They all, especially the latter remnant of this numerous tribe, received an allowance a short time ago from the government at Washington, in money due them from the sale of lands purchased of them. Several of their leaders are preachers and teachers among them. They have recently been given some lands up north of here in Alcona county, and many will move there and settle down on the lands.

LAME AND BLIND, SHE KILLS HERSELF

Mrs. Louise V. Hitchcock Shoots Herself in her Home in Yonkers, Leaving Note to Husband.

YONKERS, N. Y., Feb. 1.—Worry over her prolonged illness and the fact that she was both lame and blinded led Mrs. Louise V. Hitchcock, wife of Samuel M. Hitchcock, lawyer, to shoot herself to death in her home at No. 165 Bruce Avenue, this city. Her husband found her dead when he went to her room to investigate the noise of the shot.

In the room was found a note addressed to Mr. Hitchcock and explaining Mrs. Hitchcock's act. It read:

"It is the only way, dearest. I am lame and blind, but I will not live to be a burden on you. You have done everything for me. BABE."

A physician was called immediately, but he said that death had been instantaneous. The bullet from a small calibred revolver had penetrated Mrs. Hitchcock's right temple.

In former years Mrs. Hitchcock and her husband were identified with social activities in this city. Recently, however, they had lived a retired life. Mrs. Hitchcock was forty-five years old.

WHAT SIR SAM TOLD K. OF K. ABOUT CANADIAN OFFICERS

Maj.-Gen Steele and Brother John, Each as Good as any in the British Service, He Said.

OTTAWA, Feb. 1.—During the course of his speech in the House Tuesday, General Sir Sam Hughes read cables which passed between him and the late Earl Kitchener, regarding the proposal of the former to appoint Major-General Steele to command the Second Canadian Division.

The first, which was dated from Ottawa, March 20, 1915, from General Hughes to Earl Kitchener, was as follows: "I purpose appointing Major General Sam Steele to command Second Overseas Canadian Division. He is splendid organizer and disciplinarian. Do you object?"

Two days afterwards Earl Kitchener replied from London: "Reference to your telegram of twentieth March. I am sorry that in present state of warfare on the continent it would not be possible to place General Steele in command of a division. Very experienced officers are necessary in such positions to do justice to the troops under their command."

HAD FIFTY REAL LEADERS

On March 29, General Hughes replied from Ottawa: "Regret your views re Steele. Could he have done worse than at Salisbury? My opinion based on years of experience and observation in war and on manoeuvres convinces me Steel and my brother, Col. John Hughes, each as qualified for division as an officer in British service seriously suggested from England. Believe I have fifty better. However, Steele could take division across and commander satisfactory to you could be named later. How would Lowther do?"

Lord Kitchener cabled back on April 1: "Your telegram of March 29. I have no objection to General Steele coming here in charge of the contingent, if it is clearly understood by General Steele that when the contingent takes the field as a division other arrangements for its command will have to be made."

NOT DICTATING, MERELY REVIEWING.

This was General Hughes' reply, dated April 17, 1915: "Am somewhat surprised at your 3833 cipher April 1st. Am not in habit of deceiving, and Steele will certainly know exact situation. Am not dictating, merely reviewing. I know many of your major-generals; some good and capable, but many absolutely reverse, far inferior for administration in office or capability in the field to Steele or a dosen other of my officers. Have calmly and loyally remained aloof from interference with Salisbury horror and disintegration of first Canadians, but please do not ask that too much be borne. Claim no authority to manage force in the field, but under Army Act Canada has absolutely authority in respect to appointments. Further, offensiveness and contemptuousness of some army officers in first division became almost intolerable. I look to you to see that courtesy, even-handed justice and fair play are accorded to all my deserving officers."

Bernard Shaw at the Front To Swank About Hardships

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN FRANCE.—G. Bernard Shaw regards President Wilson's speech to the Senate "the most remarkable utterance since Lincoln spoke."

England's famous satirist, novelist, dramatist and author, paid the American President this compliment while on a visit to the British front to-day.

"I consider his speech stupendously important," he declared. "With one stroke he set America on the right track again. I never understood the Imperial American of Roosevelt—but Wilson has rehabilitated American democracy. The country of Lincoln has refound itself."

PEACE BASED ON JUSTICE

Asked for his interpretation of the phrase "peace with victory," Shaw responded:—

"Peace based upon justice—that's all. It's perfect nonsence for the people to believe Wilson is Germany's enemy, or that he advocates a Carthaginian peace."

Shaw said he was "glad to visit the front."

EVERYONE HATES WAR.

"Because," he added, characteristically, "I hate war and now I'll be able to discuss war with people who understand. The soldiers hate war too. They know what it is. You can't talk war with civilians—their belligerent attitude is plain torture."

Being commiserated with because his visit happened to coincide with the bitter cold weather not reigning in the battle area, Shaw retorted: "I hope the cold wave continues. Frost is better than mud—and besides, when I get home I can wank about my hardships."

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—As a resident of Byerseville I would like to call the attention of the Street Railway officers to the fact that the facilities for handling the Saturday evening traffic are entirely inadequate. Bigger cars are needed on that line, especially at that time. I have seen car after car crowded from vestibule to vestibule, and this is practically the only section of the service in which such a condition prevails. I hope something may be done soon to increase the accommodation.

SUBURBAN.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Sir,—Regarding the price of potatoes it is all very well for dealers to charge $3.00 a bag, but when you find that nearly half of them are bad and have to be thrown into the garbage can, it is evident that we pay nearer $6.00 a bag for the potatoes that actually reach the table. I see that food inspectors chase up the grocers about maple syrup and other goods, but there should be some present means to protect the public against bad potatoes that are sold as good and at the price of good ones. I don't know whether the police have the authority in this matter but I certainly wish they had.

ONE WHO WAS STUNG.

Hun Secret Service Man Is Captured

LONDON, Feb. 1.—A man, said to be Captain Hans Boehm, who is declared by the British authorities to be a German army officer, who was travelling under an American passport, issued in the name of Jelks Leroy Trasher, of Quitman, Brooks county, Georgia, has been taken off the Dutch steamer Zelandia at Falmouth, bound from Spain for Holland.

It is said that the man at first stoutly protested that his name was Trasher, but that when the Admiralty intelligence officers called him "Captain Boehm" he promptly admitted his identity. After serving for several months in the German army, Boehm, according to his own story, as made public by the British authorities, went to the United States where he was employed in the German secret service.

It was asserted in official circles that the passport carried by Boehm or Thrasher was the first improper one that has fallen into the hands of the British authorities for a considerable time. Forged American passports have also become exceedingly rare, none having been seen in many months.

Why Verdun Stood.

(New York Sun.)

Salutations of respect and admiration to General Gerard Amanrich, Commander of the Legion of Honour, who has transferred himself from the retired list at the age of sixty-five to an artillery regiment as a private. It is easy to understand why the French at Verdun would not let them pass.

The First Gun.

(Yonkers Daily News.)

The first gun in the industrial war which will be declared upon the United States when the war in Europe is over was fired the other day when a firm in England underbid all the firms in the United States for supplying 16-inch shells for the United States Government. . . . . .

Joffre.

(Hartford Times.)

So Joffre is a marshall of France. He can never be as dashing as Ney, staggering out of Konigsberg, covered with blood and snow, to proclaim himself the rear guard of the army of France, or as romantically handsome as Murat, but he has shown himself of better stuff than Bazaine or even the high-minded MacMahon. And he possesses at least one claim to picturesqueness. Did he not fight the battle of the Marne in his underclothes?

BRITAIN WILL NEVER RESTORE FOE COLONIES

LONDON, Feb. 1.—The colonies captured from Germany during the war will never be returned, said Walter Hume Long, Secretary for the Colonies, speaking as a representative of the Overseas Dominions in an address.

"We acquire possession of different German colonies in various parts of the world as a consequence of this war," he said. "Let no man think these territories will ever return to German rule."

Danish Captain's Act Refreshing In Its Mettle

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 1.—via London)—According to the Ekstrabladet, the Captain of the Danish steamer Iris, which arrived at Copenhagen, defied a German submarine which threatened to sink his ship and compelled the submarine commander to permit him to pass. The Iris encountered the submarine while it was engaged in sinking another boat. The Danish craft was ordered to stop and was boarded by the submarine commander who inspected its papers and ordered the crew to take to the small boats. The Danish captain refused, saying that the Iris was bound from one neutral country to another and had no contraband on board. He added:

"You may sink us, but I and my men will remain on board."

After threats and arguments had failed to alter the determination of the captain of the Iris the submarine commander returned to his own ship and allowed the steamer to proceed.

Deutschland Not Seized, Agents Say

Reports From British Sources Said She Had Been Taken to Pembroke, Wales.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.— Emphatic denials of the reported capture of the merchant submarine Deutschland were issued at the offices of the Eastern Forwarding Company No. 17 Battery place, agents for the craft. An official of the company not only asserted that no news of her capture had been received, but that preparations for her arrival at New London were still going on.

Maritime circles in this city were divided as to the fate of the craft. Attention was called to the fact that if the Deutschland had left Bremen for New London on January 2, as is reported, she has so far been twenty-five days on the trip, five days longer than it took her to make her first homeward voyage from Baltimore to Bremen. Her first trip from Bremen to Baltimore was made in sixteen days, and the second, to New London, took her twenty-one days.

The reports of her capture, which emanated from British sources, were to the effect that she had been overhauled by a light cruiser of the Arethusa type and taken to the naval dockyard at Pembroke, South Wales where the reports also asserted, the Bremen, the Deutschland's sister submarine, was also lying, having been captured on her first voyage to New York.

CLAIM HOLD-UP MAN IS ESCAPED PRISONER

SARNIA, Feb. 1.—Andrew Casknett, aged 47, who claimed Duluth as his home, was charged in court with stealing $16 from John Dunn on January 25. He had pleaded guilty on the 26th, and was remanded. After hearing the evidence of Dunn, the prisoner was sentenced to one year in the Ontario Provincial Reformatory, and will be deported at the end of his term.

"I took a trip to Port Huron in search of a man to assist me in clearing some timber off my land," said John Dunn, "and became acquainted with Casknett. After having a few drinks we crossed over to this side and walked to the east end of the city, where I expected my son to meet us with a horse and buggy and take us home. We wandered down Russell street, and after we had journeyed a couple of blocks, I discovered that we were on the wrong road, and asked Casknett to turn back. Instead of doing this he choked me, and extracted the money from my pocket."

"Did he knock you unconscious?" the crown attorney asked.

"No. I knew what he was doing, but was unable to stop him. I then returned with him up the street as far as the house of George Toole and when I turned in there he went on up the street."

Dunn then told of the trip to Port Huron, where the prisoner was arrested.

Casknett told the court, in typical sailor fashion, that he met Dunn in Port Huron, returned to this side, and admitted stealing some of the money but denied that he choked him or made any marks on his face. "He was buying drinks for the crowd and was pretty well teed up," said Casknett, "before we left Port Huron."

Casknett is an escaped prisoner from Burmah prison, according to a message received from Chief Sherwood of the Dominion Police. When arrested his finger prints were taken and sent to Ottawa, and by this means the identification was established.

The President has the task of deciding what shall be the course of the United States. Three immediate steps appear among the possibilities. The United States might solemnly warn Germany against a violation of her pledges; it might be decided that the German warning is sufficient notice of an intention to disregard those pledges and a sufficient warrant for breaking off diplomatic relations; it might be decided to await the results of the blockade and determine the course of the United States as the actual operations develop.

On almost every side Germany's drastic action is interpreted as an open confession of the effectiveness of the British food blockade. It is regarded as a determination to attempt to strike back in kind.

Renewal of Blockade.

It virtually is a renewal and an extension of the submarine blockade of the British Isles proclaimed on Feb. 4 1915, and which became effective Feb. 18, 1915. Under it ships were sunk without warning until Germany abandoned the practice and gave her assurances, in the Sussex case, to abide by international law. The Lusitania, Falaba and scores of other ships were sunk under the decree.

The precautionary measures suggested for distinguishing American steamers not carrying contraband according to the German list, were rejected when proposed by Germany early in the negotiations over the Lusitania. At that time Germany proposed to guarantee immunity from attack to certain specified passenger ships, sailing on prescribed courses with agreed distinguishing marks and carrying no contrabands. President Wilson rejected the proposal promptly on the ground that the United States was contending only for its rights.

The new German proclamation brushes aside all the perplexing collateral issues which have surrounded the submarine controversy and brings it back to the point where it was left at the conclusion of the Sussex case.

To-day's announcement, reciting the refusal of Germany's enemies to discuss her peace proposals, and referring to the starvation blockade, says:

"Thus a new situation has sprung up which forces Germany also to new decisions."

The development to-day came as a staggering surprise. For weeks inspired authoritative and almost semi-official statements have been coming from Berlin indicating an absolute decision not to resume unrestricted submarine warfare. The complete agreement of the Emperor, Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollwegs, Gen. von Hindenburg and Gen. von. Ludendorff, the four men in whose hands Germany's destiny lies, has been mentioned frequently in despatches passing the censor.

Information received only to-day, however, shows that a very careful campaign for the full use of sea forces has been under way recently. It has been urged as essential to Germany's existence.

Germany, according to information received here, realizes that her action may result in a break of relations, but Berlin officials are prepared for the rupture. To-night they were represented as feeling that the only other steps open to the United States are the calling of a conference of neutral nations to end the blockade, or the taking of some step which speedily would result in peace.

Information received from the same source is that Admiral von Tirpitz or his followers, had absolutely nothing to do with the new policy. On the contrary, it was said to-night that von Tirpitz was not, as has heretofore been supposed, removed from power because he advocated ruthless submarine warfare. The fact, according to this information, was that he was deposed because he did not effectively carry out the campaign he inaugurated.

ADDITIONAL SUPPLIES MAY BE SENT THROUGH CANADIAN RED CROSS

The Post Office Department is in receipt of a cablegram from the British authorities stating that no parcels containing food stuffs or articles of clothing should be forwarded in future from Canada for Prisoners of War in Germany.

The British authorities represent that it is absolutely necessary that the above regulation should be complied with. Therefore, on and from the 1st February, 1917, the Post Office Department will refuse to accept any such parcels for prisoners of war in Germany. The Department is advised by the English authorities that such parcels cannot be accepted for transmission to the prisoners, and could not get through.

The Canadian Red Cross Society through its London Office undertake that every Canadian prisoner shall receive adequate relief in food and clothing, sending one parcel every week to each prisoner. Therefore, existing Organizations should continue their work of collecting funds to be sent to the Canadian Red Cross Society; and it is most desirable that they should not relax efforts in this respect.

Persons desiring to have additional food or supplies sent to a Canadian Prisoner should send money for that purpose to the Prisoners of War Department, Canadian Red Cross Society.

A letter containing a remittance and asking the Prisoners of War Department, Canadian Red Cross Society, to send food or other articles to a prisoner of war should be addressed to the Prisoners of War Department, Canadian Red Cross Society, and should contain information in the following form:—

No. 12345 Private A. G. Robinson,
48th Highlanders, Canadian Contingent, B. E. F.
Canadian Prison of War Gottingen, Germany, c/o Prisoners of War Department.
Canadian Red Cross Society.

The remittance should be in the form of a Post Office Money Order drawn in favour of the Prisoners of War Department, Canadian Red Cross Society, for the Prisoner of War in question.

Any person wishing to send a remittance direct to a Prisoner of War may do so by means of a Post Office Money Order, which is issued free of Commission. Instructions as to how to proceed can be obtained from Postmasters of Accounting Post Offices.

Parcels for prisoners of war, containing articles which are not prohibited, may be sent fully addressed to the place of destination in the form above, care of Prisoners of War Department, Canadian Red Cross Society, London, England, to be forwarded after they have been censored.

Detail regulations respecting communication with Prisoners of War are being issued to the Postal Service generally, and full information may be obtained by making application to any Postmaster.

Suggest Seat For Sir Robert Borden In British House

LONDON, Feb. 1.—A striking suggestion has been put forward by Samuel Chapman, Unionist candidate for West Perthshire, a seat now vacant through the Marquis of Tullibardine succeeding as the Duke of Atholl.

Mr. Chapman writes to the Scotsman, suggesting that West Perthshire should invite Sir Robert Borden to become its member. He says that two years ago it was suggested that the Cabinet should become truly Imperial by inviting fou roverseas Premiers to seats in the British House of Commons.

He has received the following reply from Sir Robert Borden:

"I view your suggestion with the greatest possible interest."

Mr. Chapman points out that two Canadian Premiers, Messrs. Macdonald and Mackenzie were Perthshire men.

EX. MAYOR A. SHAW HAD HIS ARM FRACTURED

Ex-Mayor Abraham Shaw, Kingston, inspector of customs, had the misfortune to fall on the steps of the portico of the customs house as he was leaving for his home on Monday afternoon, and his left arm was fractured near the shoulder. Ice forming on the steps was responsible for the fall.

The sleet storm which set in early on Monday afternoon, put the sidewalks in a bad condition, and many citizens suffered falls.—Kingston Whig.

Mr. Shaw is well known in Peterborough as he makes frequent trips to this city in connection with the local Customs House.

Elopes With Young Actor And Marries At Mission Inn

Miss Violette Stitt Wilson, pretty daughter of J. Stitt Wilson, former mayor of Berkeley, Cal., but now a resident of Los Angeles, who last spring left the University of California because the rules there were cramping her soul, has been captured by Dan Cupid.

Word just received in Los Angeles told of the marriage at Riverside of Miss Wilson, whose age was given at 20, and Irving Pichel, 25, leading man at the Little Theatre of Los Angeles. The couple motored to Mission Inn, where the ceremony was performed by Dr. Benjamin B. Haywood. The newlyweds to-day are on their honeymoon.

Secrecy surrounded the plans of the couple. The elopement took place on a Sunday and did not become known to relatives and friends until some days later.

Miss Wilson became almost as well known in Los Angeles as her famous father last March, when she suddenly severed relations with the University of California and hurried to her home in Los Angeles.

"The university, with its pedantic, old-fogey methods its high lectures and its staccato rules was cramping my soul," she explained at that time. "It was crushing all the sweetness and idealistic imaginings of my higher self. I became a machine and God does not want a woman to become a machine—so I quit."

No plans for the future have yet been announced by Mr. and Mrs. Pichel.

CHURCH LEAGUE TO-NIGHT

CURSED JUDGE

MONTREAL, Jan. 31.—Thomas Leithead, fifty-four years of age, convicted of stealing one pair of shoes valued at $7.50 from a boot and shoe repairer, was placed beyond temptation for a long time yesterday, when Judge Basin sentenced the old timer to a term of fourteen years in the penitentiary. Leithead flew into a passion when the sentence, the maximum for robbery by breaking and entering, was delivered from the bench. A string of oaths flowed from his lips as soon as the words of the judge sank into his bewildered brain. He left the dock swearing at the judge.

Since 1891 Leithead has never been out of jail longer than three months at a time. During twenty-five years he has been arrested thirty-nine times and he was told by Judge Basin that his vacations were the few short months between sentences.

Peterboro' Juniors Improving in Form

Local Youngsters Will Be in Good Shape When They Tackle Kingston Here on Monday Night in Junior Semi-finals ---Winner of the Series Will Meet the Aura Lee-De La Salle Victors---A Great Junior Battle in Sight.

The Peterborough Juniors are working faithfully to perfect their teamwork for Monday night's big semi-final battle when they clash with the speedy Kingston juniors at Brock Street rink in an O.H.A. second round fixture that should be the classiest junior contest staged here in years. The team showed the best form of the season last night and with another practice before the 247th noble game to-morrow night should be in the best of shape, when they tackle. "Senator" Powell's fast kids from the East. Jock Adams of the 247th team was out with the junior squad last night and coached the team. They worked nicely together last night and looked altogether a new team from the outfit that tossed the game away to Oshawa two weeks ago. They are out to redeem themselves for that exhibition and the Kingston aggregation will realise that they have been in a hockey game. It looks like, by long odds, the most exciting O.H.A. fixture of the year, and from the manner in which the game is being discussed around town there will be few vacant seats when the puck is faced, on Monday night. The expenses in connection with the Kingston series will be heavy and it is up to the fans to turn out and encourage the Peterborough youngsters, who will be out there trying all the way. There is no more exciting hockey than a close game between the good junior teams and the clash between the champions of Groups 1 and 2 should be a battle of that calibre.

NORTHERNERS WILL MAKE SOLDIERS TRAVEL IN TO-MORROW'S GAME

Noble Crew a Classy Coterie of Puck Chasers and the 247th. Team Will Have to Step the Entire Distance at Top Speed, if They Want to Win the Decision— Will be a Great Game

The 247th Battalion team are delighted with the arrival of Jack Frost in time to give them a perfect sheet of ice for their game with the crack Nobel team at Brock Street Rink to-morrow night. The Soldier aggregation like fast going and the hockey cushion will be just to their taste to-morrow night when they will endeavour to secure revenge for the beating the Nobel team handed them on December 30th. The 247th are looking for their hardest battle of the year. They have a wholesome respect for the boys from the Explosives' town and realise that they will have to play hockey every minute of the hour to earn the decision. Arbour of the Nobel team, who is a cousin of Armos Arbour of the 228th N. H. A. team, resembles the soldier pro in his style, and he is assisted by a coterie of clever hockey players, who check closely, and have a bunch of speed. The game will give the fans a chance to get a line on the soldiers' chances against the Depot Batteries of Kingston, against whom they will be stacked up in the O. H. A. second-round next week. The band of the 247th Battalion will povide music for to-morrow night's game.

HOBOS CHALLENGE SUNDAY

"Migratory Workers" in Convention Would Debate with "Billy."

BUFFALO, Jan. 31.—Billy Sunday is to be challenged to debate the "real message of Christianity" with members of the Hobo Association, otherwise known as the International Brotherhood Welfare Association, now holding a convention here. The Association holds that the hobo is a "migratory worker," distinct from the tramp or bum, but is treated by police and others as in the same class as the latter, who will not work, but will steal. Branches of the Hobo Association have been formed in various cities, with a college or forum in Chicago, where the "uplift" stuff is assimilated after 'soup and sinkers' have been served to the "migrates."

TWO GOOD GAMES IN CHURCH LEAGUE TO-NIGHT

The Church League programme at Brock Street Rink, to-night, promises to furnish two of the most exciting games of the schedule. The two leading teams, St. Andrew's and George Street, neither of which has been defeated, are to clash in the opening game and it should be some battle, while the second game between Mark Street and Knox Church should be equally as exciting as the two teams have been playing clever hockey.

BOWLING

Last night saw another great contest at the Water Street alleys in the league game, this one between the Business Men and the Grocers. As the Business Men are fighting to hold the top of the league great excitement existed among all spectators and players. The Grocers gave their opponents a great run for all three games, but the Business Men came out of the battle with three more games on their belt, though the last game was only won by 5 pins. Large crowds should attend the remaining games as the finish should be worth going a long way to see, as it draws near the end the players are working hard for their teams and are sure to fight it out to the finish. Outram for the Grocers pulled off a great spare last night and in both teams there were four players who bowled a good game going over the 200 mark In all the contest was closely contested for, and a fight all the way.

To-night the Left Overs play the C. G. E. This game should also draw a crowd after the close game the Left Overs gave the Business Men last week, they are looked upon to-night to put up another great fight. Friday night the Printers meet the De La Val and the Printers are hot after this game but Capt. Carter of the D Laval says he and his trusty followers are out for the win, so this will also be a good match.

After this week there are only 2 more games for each team to play before the contest is over, so a large crowd should turn out to see all remaining games and some great bowling will be witnessed.

Y. M. C. A. NEWS

Last night the members of the Canadian Standard Efficiency Tests Troops had the pleasure of hearing Colonel Ackerman of the 247th Battalion lecture on the organization of the British army and the methods of trench fighting in France.

The Colonel held the boys spellbound while he explained the attack of the British soldiers on a German trench, and how preparations were made days ahead by the infantry and artillery for the attack.

The Colonel explained how these attacks were carried out to the minute. In every trench there was a telephone connected with the headquarters staff, and a half hour before the time appointed for the attack the correct time was sent from headquarters and every officer had to set his watch so that not a minute would be lost in the time given to take the trench. The artillery received the same time, so that they would know when to cease fire.

At the close of the very interesting and instructive lecture the Colonel placed on exhibition a number of souvenirs which he had brought home with him from the battlefields of France.

To-night, at 7.30, the senior employed boys Life Problem Club, and at 8 p.m. Gymnasium Class.

SEARCH FOR MODEL CAUSES HIS ARREST

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—After a struggle in her apartment, witnessed by a detective concealed there, Mrs. Victoria Stepka caused the arrest of a man who said he was Dr. Isador H. Alexander, of No. 204 West Eighty-sixth street, alleging a serious offence.

Mrs. Stepka said that her sister advertised for an engagement as an artist's model and that on Monday a man called, saying he was Dr. Alexander, an artist. The sister was not at home then and the caller said he would come again. He left a card bearing Dr. Isador H. Alexander's name.

The man at that time caused Mrs. Stepka's suspicions by saying she would make a good model and that he would like to have her pose. He telephoned yesterday and said he would call at four in the afternoon. Mrs. Stepka telephoned the Fourth Branch Detective Bureau and Detective McGuire was sent to her home.

The detective was concealed in a closet when the man called. When Mrs. Stepka entered the room he suggested that she qualify as a model, by removing her clothes. She refused and then the man attacked her, according to Mrs. Stepka and the detective. Mrs. Stepka's dress was partly torn off her before McGuire could seize the fellow.

In his pockets were physicians' instruments, cards bearing Dr. Alexander's name and address and letters addressed similarly. No one but might answered the telephone of Dr. Alexander, who is quite well known

Detectives Flocked To Montreal Church

MONTREAL, Jan. 31. — Thirty-one detectives from this city attended the services in the Catholic Church at St. Henri on Sunday. With them it was not a spiritual duty but a matter of protecting the worshippers against possible harm, though no person outside of the authorities knew of the presence of the sleuths. Nothing unusual happened, however. Rev. Father Decarrie, the parish priest, had received a letter from a woman, who stated that she had overheard a plot to destroy the church and all within by means of a liquid fire produced from a powder, the powder to be set off in water. He communicated with Archbishop Bruchesi, and it was at the latter's request that the detectives were sent to the church.

That the time is approaching when landlords will have to increase their rents was the intimation from several property owners lately who claim that the local rentals have remained at the low figures of the panicy period of the Fall and Winter of 1914. When Spring comes it is almost certain that rents will be advanced. There are few empty houses now, in fact there is a scarcity of house to rent at from $9 to $12 a month.

THE OAK HALL CONTEST.

The winner of the Oak Hall clock contest was Mrs. P. Fuller, of 516 Gilmour street, and not Mrs. H. Fuller, as announced yesterday. Incidentally it might be mentioned that it was Sergt. Reid of the local police force who got one of the prizes for first notifying Mr. Maher that the clock had stopped.

EVEN TURNIPS BRING FARMERS PRICES WORTHY OF SMALL GOLD MINE

Potatoes are not the only kind of vegetables that are putting on aristocratic airs at the present time. The turnip that used to be selling by the bag for 25 cents or thereabouts, has also become chesty and has moved up in the dollar reservation. A farmer living not one hundred miles from here brought a load of turnips to a neighbouring town and went home with $49 in his pocket. Talk about your gold mines— what better gold mine could a man desire than one situated right in the lowly turnip patch?—Millbrook Reporter.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

SOME EYES NEED A DOCTOR

When Dr. Fowler finds that a patient's eyes have a deeper trouble than any he can correct with his "Peblo" glasses, he does not make any attempt to prescribe, or give the patron unnecessary expense in experimenting, but at once advises the party to go to an oculist for treatment. This only occurs on rare occasions, but proves that Dr. Fowler has his patrons' best interests always in mind.

LAST MINUTE WAR DESPATCHES

AMSTERDAM, February 1.—Imperial Chancellor Von Bethmann Hollweg held a long conference to-day with American Ambassador Gerard after he had concluded his speech before the main committee of the Reichstag. Despatches from Berlin did not reveal the nature of their discussion.

NEW YORK, February 1.—At the Customs House to-day it was said that every rule inaugurated at the outbreak of the war would be enforced rigidly. Any vessel attempting to leave port without clearance papers will be fired on.

LONDON, February 1.—An idea of the bitterness with which London newspapers characterize the new submarine frightfulness may be gathered from the following headlines and editorial expressions: "The Beast at Bay," "War Against the World," "Wild Boat Warfare," "Super-frightfulness," "Extraordinary Foulness," "Anarchical Methods." The Evening Globe commenting on Germany's warning that she intends to sink British hospital ships if found within a certain area demands: "In the event of the sinking of any such ship that five imprisoned German naval officers including Grand Admiral Von Tirpitz' son, be shot forthwith."

TORANTO, Ont., February 1.—The News has a despatch from Ottawa to-day stating that a despatch received in the Canadian capital from official Washington sources indicate that President Wilson has given Bernstorff his papers and suggested the recall of the American Ambassador to Germany. There is no other confirmation.

MADRID, February 1.—Following a lengthy special meeting of the Cabinet today, the official announcement was made that Spanish ships would continue their traffic with the Allies. But that "severe defense measures would be necessary."

President Wilson Will Make a Statement This Afternoon

Bernstorff Expects the Severance of Diplomatic Relations

Attitude of United States Will Be Made Known Sometime This Afternoon

Bernstorff Outwardly Expects Severance of Diplomatic Relations--Ten Ships Sunk By the Germans Yesterday Neutrals Will Not Be Spared Once They Reach the Barred Zone.

PLEDGES CAST OVERBOARD

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—President Wilson will make known the attitude of the United States in the present crisis, this afternoon. Bernstorff outwardly expects severance of diplomatic relations. The flat statement that all ships within the German barred zone, neutrals included, will be sunk, is contained in Germany's note. This was revealed this afternoon and means she is definitely casting overboarad all her Sussex pledges.

TEN SHIPS SUNK YESTERDAY.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Ten ships were sunk by the Germans yesterday, including six fishing boats, also the steamer Dundee, formerly sailing on Canadian lakes. Several sailors were reported lost. The Germans sunk some without warning. The Norwegian steamer Portia, 1,527 tons, was officially reported sunk.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2.—Spain, Norway, Denmark and Holland have asked the United States its attitude regarding the new German sea policy. Secretary Lansing met the press late yesterday afternoon but would say nothing on the submarine crisis.

Activity On The Western Front

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Feb. 2.—There was considerable activity on the western and Italian fronts yesterday.

WHISTLING BUOY

The Hydrographic Office of the United States Navy has published a chart of the remarkable drift of the red whistling buoy which, set on Nantucket Shoals during the temporary absence of the famous light-vessel, broke loose in January, 1915, and was recovered last August by the French armoured cruiser Masellaise, on patrol duty some hundred miles northwest of the Bermudas.

Three months after starting on its cruise the buoy had been picked up in midocean by the Italian steamship Andrea, which towed it for some distance back to the United States, but lost it. During the year and seven months that elapsed between the beginning and ending the buoy was frequently observed by passing ships. It is the custom of the sea to note every floating object in the ship's log, and from data thus provided it his been possible to chart the erratic voyage of the whistling buoy.

It might be thought that an object cast loose off Nantucket Shoals would be caught in the Gulf Stream and carried toward Europe. But this buoy went whistling down before the northerly gales of the first winter until it arrived off Hatteras, where it turned abruptly and made for the Bermudas. The Italian steamer fetched it almost back to Hatteras, and free once more it then started for the West Indies. From an extreme southern position in the latitude of the Bahamas it turned homewar again arrived off Hatteras, started for Europe or Africa, met the gales of the second winter and headed for South America, tugned again last spring as if to go straight back to Nantucket and, well on its way by midsummer, fell into the hands of the watchful French cruiser. In all, the buoy appears to have travelled some 2,500 miles.

Kiel People Must Go To Bed Before Nine

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 1.—According to The Schleswigsche Nachrichten the coal and gas supplies of the whole province of Schleswig-Holstein is becoming exceedingly scarce. The largest towns, including Kiel, have issued warnings to the public to have to the utmost possible and retire before 9 o'clock. It is expected that street lighting will be completely suspended in a number of towns in February.

What the future has in store is a guess, but if prices of grains fall below a remunerative level for some years to come, it will require conditions even more determinative than a succession of bumper harvests. — Breeders' Gazette.

MR. M'INTOSH LEAVES GUELPH

GUELPH, Feb. 1.—At a special meeting of the Guelph Presbytery, held in Chalmers Church here, the call extended to Rev. C. F. McIntosh of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, this city, by St. Andrew's Church, of Campbellford, was dealt with. Mr. McIntosh announced that he intended to accept the call, and a deputation of three, from Campbellford, was present on behalf of that congregation. The Presbytery then sustained the call, and the pulpit will be declared vacant on February 11th by Rev. Dr. MacGillivray. Rev. Mr. McIntosh will preach for the last time in Guelph next Sunday. With regard to Chalmers church, Elora, which the congregation wished to abandon, the Presbytery discussed the matter very fully, and it was decided to call another meeting of the congregation with a view to keeping it intact.

Germany's Sea Restrictions Summarized and Explained

Here Are the Proposals Which the Huns Have Impudently Submitted to Neutrals—United States is Permitted to Send One Steamer Each Week To and From England.

UNRESTRICTED SEA WARFARE

Germany's proposals are as follows:
Unrestricted sea warfare.
Putting a "verboten" sign on all waters adjacent to all allied nations—except Portugal—and all their territorial possessions in the western Mediterranean.

Neutral ships may reach Holland only by steaming far north, around the Faroe Islands, thence to Norway, and down a strip of water twenty miles wide paralleling the Norwegian coast to Holland. A twenty-mile strip is excluded from the zone around the Dutch coast.

From the southern border line of Holland, the barred zone extends over all waters, down to Cape Finisterre, Spain.

England, Scotland and Ireland are thus in the very centre of a zone which extends approximately from the Faroe Islands on the north to Cape Finisterre on the south; from the continent on the west to the twentieth parallel on the east (to a point about 500 miles east of the Irish coast).

In the Mediterranean, the whole western part is barred, a twenty-mile lane zig-zagging through to Greece alone permitting free passage for neutral ships.

America is permitted by Germany to send one steamer each week in each direction to and from England—but only under certain restrictions. These are: That the British port be only Falmouth (at the southermost part of England.) That such American vessels steer a specified course. That they be painted with vertical stripes of red and white, nearly ten geet in width; carry on every mast a red and white checkered flag, and have an American ensign on the stern; the ship to be fully lighted and brightly illuminated at night, so that as many of these distinguishing marks may be visible in the darkness as possible. That American vessels thus permitted by Germany to pass the zone carry nothing in their cargo which Germany has adjudged to be contraband.

GERMANY CONFESSES DEFEAT.

The Toronto Star of yesterday's date says: Germany's announcement is the most cheering news as to the outcome of the war that has yet developed. It brings, at last, conclusive proof that Germany is being hurt and that she is in dread of the future, in dread not so much, perhaps, of the hunger blockade about which she whines, as of the blockade of war essentials and of the growing power of the new allied armies now ready to strike. "We stake all," cries Bethmann-Hollweg in the language of the gambler.

To say the news is cheering does not mean that there are not stern days ahead. The foe's desperate avowal is no bluff, and his assassin's weapons, particularly if he has invented a submerged mine which submarines can lay, may be despised, but cannot be ignored. But we can await the issue with confidence. British seamanship will rise above every danger which land-locked Germany can create. Hints of guns fore and abeam as well as aft on merchantmen, of the new North Sea blockade of German submarine ports, of convoying cruiser fleets, of a fleet of 4,000 mine sweepers, of new ships by the score, give an indication, doubtless a very inadequate one, of the measures already in force to surmount the new peril.

Ruthlessness can have few new terrors. If Germany ever exercised any humanity in her sea operations, she has been under no obligations to exercise it in respect to transports. Carrying armed forces they were always legitimate prey. But since the war began 9,000,000 allied troops have been transported in safety.

As to neutrals, no one can predict. Norway is defying Germany. Holland is being despicably treated, and it looks as though Germany would welcome any excuse to invade her territory.

As for the United States, the language of the Associated Press despatches from Washington yesterday afternoon is grace, but who knows?

The adhesion of new belligerents now to the allied cause will not affect the nature of the result—for Germany is already beaten. They might help to hasten the end.

Soldiers as Farmers

PARIS. — The Bulletin des Armees (official newspaper of the trenches) says that 735 acres were farmed last autumn and spring of this year by one army corps. All this land is in the region of the Meuse in the immediate vicinity of the Germans. Oats, barley, potatoes and vegetables were grown, and besides 235 acres were worked for hay and preparations were made as the time the army corps was replaced to cut the grass on 175 acres remaining.

Farm material was made up of what had been abandoned in the communes. Every day without cessation there were put into service thirty ploughs, twenty four harrows, twelve rollers, eighteen cultivators and forty vehicles of all kinds for carrying fertilizer.

The TRUTH

Tea and coffee do disagree with many. And in these days of accurate scientific knowledge there's no virtue in appearing astonished when this truth is faced.

Caffeine (the drug in coffee, and in tea also) leaves the system in an overworked and debilitated state, and is responsible for various serious ills and discomforts.

Thousands who desire an appetizing hot table beverage with none of tea or coffee's drawbacks, find a most delightful cup—one containing no deleterious substance whatever—in

"There's a Reason"

Beware of the Cold Storage Egg! In his work on food and dietetics Doctor Robert Hutchison says, "the absence of carbohydrates prevents eggs from being in any sense a complete food." This refers to the fresh egg—the egg with a clean bill of health. What would Doctor Hutchison say of the modern cold storage egg? At present prices two eggs cost ten cents—and the egg is not a complete food! Something must be eaten with it to supply the needed carbohydrates. Two Shredded Wheat Biscuits, with cream or milk, make a complete, perfect meal at a cost of four or five cents. Made in Canada.

BALD HEADED? FALL IN LOVE, 'TWILL BE A "NOBLE BROW" THEN

That there is a very wide range of opinion among American men and women on the subject of love is indicated by the results of a contest which has just been closed by the New Orleans Times-Picayune. That newspaper offered cash prizes for the best answers to the question:—"What is love?" In all 23,761 answers were received. Most of them were from women, and dealt seriously with the subject. In the main the response from male correspondents were satirical, sarcastic or facetious.

Three of the four principal prizes were won by women and six of the ten minor prizes offered also fell to women. All of these selections dealt seriously with the subject of love. The first prize was awarded to Mally Anderson Haley, of Mobile Ala., for the following:—

"Love is the doorway through which the human soul passes from selfishness into service, and from solitude into kinship with all humanity."

In selecting that from nearly twenty-four thousand offerings the jury announced that it was worthy of distinction because "it has in eminent degree dignity and beauty of form, and is a clear, direct response to the question asked."

"CHISELLING THE BLOCK OF REALITY"

The second prise fell to Mrs. W. P. O'Toole, of New Orleans, for this offering:—

"Love is a chisel that carves into soft outlines the granite block of stern reality."

The third prize winner, Mrs. Albert Godchaux, of New Orleans, dealt that it has been eminently successful more lightly with the subject in the following:—

The fourth prize went to H. C. Delcourt of Houma, La., for this sentiment:—

"Love is the gentle art of being very miserable in a perfectly happy fashion."

Among the other prize winners was Miss Stanley Arthur, of New Orleans, for this verse:

"Love's like a well and a deep one,
A fact you have noticed, no doubt;
It's easy enough to fall into
But hard as the deuce to get out."

Music by Father, Words by Mother.

George Gowland, of Attalla, Ala., submitted the following:—

"Love:—A song; music by father, words by mother."

Here is love as described by Mrs. V. L. Crawford, of Meridian, Miss.:—

"The thing that throws a halo around duty, makes poverty endurable, lightens burdens that would otherwise crush, and makes any four walls a home—that is love."

Mildred Blincoe, of Vicksburg, says:—"Love is a perfume you cannot pour on others without getting a few drops on yourself," while Jennie N. Wheless, of Yazoo City, says:

"Love is a bank wherein every deposit bears interest, and, notwithstanding frequent panics among its patrons, the old reliable establishment has never been forced to close its doors."

The Times-Picayune states that it started the contest to relieve somewhat the gloom of war news, and feels

GERMAN CAMPAIGN PLANS.

Complete Agreement eReached at Conference at Headquarters.

London Jan. 31.— Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg and Foreign Secretary Zimmermann have returned to Berlin from headquarters at the front, where a complete agreement on measures to be taken by Germany on land and water was reached, according to a Berlin telegram transmitted by Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent.

GERMAN POLICE WORST

Terrible Powers and Complete Control of Opinions and Persons

Dr. Thomas Curtis, after spending ten months in Germany for British newspapers returned to England and wrote as follows: The German Government has now, therefore, complete control of speech, the press, the professors and pastors, every kind of public meeting, kinematographs and photographs. All of which are, in effect, under the control of the police, manipulated by the Government. As the German Parliament in no way resembles England's Parliament, so do the German police in no way resemble the British police.

The German police, mounted or unmounted, are armed with revolver, sword, and machine gun, with powers of search and arrest with warrant. They are allowed in their discretion to strike or otherwise maltreat not only civilians, but soldiers, always provided with great powers, their position since the war has risen to such an extent that the words used in the Reichstag, "The Reign of Terror," are not an exaggeration.

Added and even abetted by a myriad of spies and agents provocateurs, they have under what is known as "preventive arrest" throughout the German Empire and Austria so great a number of civilians that the German prisons, as has been admitted, are filled to repletion.

Weak From Birth

Harriston (Ont.) Child Saved by Dr. Cassell's Tablets.

MR. CORBY, HARRISTON P.O., ONT., writes:—"Just a few lines in praise of Dr. Cassell's Tablets. Our little girl was weak from birth, and though we tried doctor's medicine and other things she got no better. She just lay in her cot and cried, and neighbours all said we could not save her. Then I read about Dr. Cassell's Tablets. I said to my wife, 'while there's life there's hope'; we will try these Tablets. We did, and from the first box we could see a change in the child. She seemed to rest more comfortably, and slept well at night. We kept on giving Dr. Cassell's Tablets till she was 18 months old, and now at three years I don't think there can be a healthier child in the whole Dominion."

The doctors said she had stomach trouble, and that her chances were small, yet Dr. Cassell's Tablets cured her. They have been worth their weight in gold to us, for we were just giving up hope of saving our little daughter. I don't think there is any other medicine for children like Dr. Cassell's Tablets. I may say my wife has taken them for nerves, and they have built her up splendidly. Publish this letter if you like; it may help others as the Tablets helped us."

Bright, healthy, happy children, full of life and activity—every mother wants her babies to be like that. Are yours? If they are not, if they are sickly or fretful—we say it in all sincerity—the surest way you will ever find to build up strength and vitality in their little frames is a course of Dr. Cassell's Tablets.

to cure that skin disease of yours if you will only use the right remedy. Zam-Buk is the right preparation for all such troubles, because Zam-Buk is specially adapted for obstinate and chronic troubles. Zam-Buk owes its great power to its unique herbal composition.

Mr. W. B. Love, of 32 Rand St., Central Falls, R.I., U.S.A., writes: "For nine months my little son suffered a bad attack of eczema on his face and head. The pain at times was intense and although we tried numerous remedies and spent dollars upon dollars on doctors, he got no relief. Finally we were persuaded to use Zam-Buk. To say the results were gratifying is putting it mildly! The first few applications eased the pain and irritation, and it was soon evident that Zam-Buk was effecting a cure. We persevered, with the result that my little son is now completely cured. In the interests of other sufferers you have my permission to publish what a wonderful cure Zam-Buk has wrought in my home."

BATTLEFIELD MUD ADDS JOYS AND WOES

Canadian's Vivid Impressions Recorded From Mud Hub—Months of Rain to Blame

Capt. Rex Vickers, at the front as paymaster of one of the Canadian ammunition columns, in a letter to his mother in Ottawa wrote a most graphic description of conditions at the front, with particular attention to the all-pervading mud. He said: "It is still raining—I say still, because it has been raining for two months. Everywhere is mud. If you look out of your door as far as you can see is mud. In your hut, even, anything that you pick up has mud on it. The dogs that play around (and every camp has its hundred dogs) are covered with it. And even the camp cat has long since gone from white to mud. In England your mum used to clean your boots. Here he just gets a stick and scrapes it off.

Reads Like Jelly Rivers

"If you look across what was once a field you would think it was an ocean with waves of mud. All the horses that go across each step in the same place, so that between the steps it is sometimes over two feet deep of solid hard mud. Then the roads, if you could call them roads, are covered with another kind of mud, a sort of soft jelly, and when the sun comes out, which it does, by the way, for as much as half an hour sometimes, they shine and look like running rivers.

Has Its Usefulness

"But the same mud has some good points about it. My man is an old English plasterer, and the cracks between the boxes in my hut used to let the wind in, so he has plastered them with mud, and it's fine. I have an open grate made entirely out of mud and when it gets hot it sets as hard as a rock. At nights we sit in front of it and do you know, sometimes almost end the war. Only the other night in front of this same grate we decided that there was no way in which the Boche could win."

AFTER-WAR WOOD MARKET

Britain Uses Up Forest Reserves Now —Canada's Chance

An officer of the 245rd (Canadian) Forestry Battalion writes from British as follows: Everywhere one turns in England and Scotland one sees large areas of cyberbery and of tops of little value from a commercial point of view, areas which might be contributing in a goodly measure to the nation's demand for timber if planted in proper species. This is especially so in England, and yet, if it had not been for the action of landlords years ago in planting the areas we are now cutting, the timber problem would be a serious one indeed. Whether the land owners were actuated in the matter by a farsightedness or merely as a hobby to have wooded areas as a place for game, it is difficult to say, but one thing is certain that as soon as the war is over the British Government will put into force a permanent and comprehensive forestry policy which will ensure reproduction of commercial species of timber on at least the areas now being cut over.

Of course Canadians would like to see this timber supplied from our own vast and superior forests, but we may well take time to consider that if the abnormal demand created by the war is being supplied in Britain more of the normal demand in peace times must of necessity be supplied by Canada as the reserves are being used up in Britain. Those we see that the submarine warfare has not caused us to lose our market for the supply of this timber, but rather caused its postponement.

Queen of Roumania

The Queen of Roumania was born at Eastwell Park, Ashford, Kent. There she spent her girlhood. Her father, the late Duke of Edinburgh and Saxe-Coburg, was the second son of Queen Victoria, whilst her mother was the only daughter of the Tsar Alexander II. Her marriage to King Ferdinand took place at Petrograd in 1893.

For the furnishing of a hospital for wounded soldiers at Coalville all the Leicestershire colliers agreed to pay 10s each and boatmen and boys 5s each.

DUEL OVER RAEMAEKERS

Pro-German Aggressor Killed in Hot Blooded Spain

Prominence is given in Spanish newspapers to an account of a fatal duel about M. Raemaekers' cartoons. Professor Vincente Jay, a violent pro-German and a great admirer of Teutonic Kultur, protested against the exhibition of M. Raemaekers' works. He used highly offensive expressions in discussing the matter with Senor Ignacio Hermida, the organizer of the exhibition, who demanded an explanation. The professor said that the question could be settled only by arms. He named his seconds, one of whom was a German officer.

The duel was fought with swords after the severest conditions had been drawn up. Professor Gay fenced himself on his opponent. The combat was so violent that two pairs of swords were broken in the first round. During a pause the seconds advised Senor Gay to be less furious, but he replied that he wanted to kill Senor Hermida. The duel was resumed, Senor Hermida remaining on the defensive. Senor Gay rushed upon him with increased fury. The defender, a very able swordsman, was able to ward off the blows, and at last, weary of parrying his opponents' wild rushes, he thrust at him and pierced his throat. Senor Gay died eight hours later.

WOMEN IN CANTEENS

Where Manual Labor For the Cause Is Honored

Miss Jennings, who has been working in a canteen for over two years, says that the work is extremely hard and a real sacrifice by women accustomed to luxurious homes and a life of ease. "Some of them," she said, "come to the canteens at midnight and work until eight o'clock in the morning. They used to work in four-hour shifts, the night shift finishing at 4 a.m., but they found it was impossible to get home at that hour, especially as so many families have given up motor cars. When there is a big rush of soldiers the work becomes a great strain.

"In the canteen it is an honor to be looked upon as a good washer-up. That is quite the ambition of all the canteens I have worked in, and the women not only hand out cups of coffee—they do the rough work of scrubbing the floors and working over the hot stoves. A professional charwoman is only engaged to scrub the kitchen floor and to scour the stove."

Bronx No Place To Hug a Girl

Man, Forty Years Old, Gets Three Months in the Workhouse for Annoying Young Women.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—A love for "sweets" proved to be the undoing of a young man who described himself as Fried Hoff, forty years young, of the Sherman Hotel, 141st street and Third avenue, and whom the police described as "a professional hugger of Bronx girls." Hoff's particular choice was "broilers," the police declared, and his favourite loitering place was a candy store near 149th Street and Third Avenue.

Detective Mulcahay of the Bronx Detective Bureau heard complaints from several pretty girls in the neighborhood that Hoff annoyed them as they went in and out of the candy store. Mulcahay stationed himself near by, and soon, he alleged, Hoff came and stood in front. Then several young women passed, and despite their cries, it is alleged, Fried embraced them.

He was arrested and Magistrate Brough in the Men's Night Court gave him three months in the Workhouse.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE JOYS OF A RIOT

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The cop and I had been driven into a doorway by a shower when he said:

"I am goin' home in about an hour, now, and I'll be one thankful man. I said home, but it was a misnomer. What sort of a home has a patrolman got? Well, it's a place where you go to when you can't go anywhere else. Your wife and children are almost strangers to you."

"I thought it was a pretty good job," I replied. "There's a pretty good salary and your pension when you have reached a certain age."

"Pretty good job!" he exclaimed in contempt. "Why, man, a longshoreman or a ditch digger is not as tired when his hours of labor have passed and he is not so bunged up at the end of a year. It's walk, walk, walk until there is no more feeling in your feet. It's watch, watch, watch until your eyes need spectacles. It's worry and trouble every hour you're on duty."

"So have I, and I smile and laugh myself, but the occasions have been few and far between. I have come into the station house when relieved at my post so exhausted that a man could have pushed me over with his fingers. I have piled into bed and shut my eyes and just got a dream running through my head when the call came. It was a call for us to turn out and be mighty prompt about it. There was a riot going on half a mile away. The waiters in a certain restaurant were on a strike and they were smashing things up in a beautiful manner. A crowd of outsiders was collected and encouraging them and taking part in the smashing. Then, my son, is when you have seen the patrolman smile and laugh. His chance was coming to get even. We smiled and laughed as we tumbled into the wagon and all weariness and all desire for sleep vanished away.

"I said our chances had come to get even. The strikers had made it hard for us, but we want a show at something or somebody to pay off old scores. When you can't strike a man who has buffeted and humiliated you you turn and kick his dog or somebody else's dog to get even. The horses go away at a gallop.

"We jump out and form in line, and the crowd laughs and hoots at us. We get the word to advance in line, and we select the biggest men and those who are hooting the loudest. The rioters give way for a moment and then hold their ground. Every man of them is armed with a brickbat, cobblestone or stick, and they are just as anxious for a fight as we are. We do not seek to kill, but they are ready to take life.

"Crash! And we are into them. We strike for their heads, their arms, their hands, their knees and any other part which will take the fight out of them. They grapple with us. They seize us by the arms, the legs, and try to grasp our nightsticks. Sometimes there is only one opposing you, sometimes there are five or six climbing over you like a pack of wolves. Even if you were a coward you cannot get away. You have got to stand up and face it and take your medicine.

"There is a joy in it, my son, more joy than a soldier feels in battle. The best man is going to win in that row. You are hit with brickbats a dozen times a minute, but you don't feel the darts until afterward. You are knocked down by some missile striking you in the face, but you don't stop to wipe away the blood—you keep facing on. From your prone position you strike out with your club at the knees and shins around you, and many a man will limp for the next month.

"Up comes more wagons and more men from other stations, and we begin to drive that crowd. Some run away; some seek refuge in doorways; some mount to the roofs and from those vantage points continue to hurl brickbats down upon us. The row lasts half an hour. At the end of that time some rioter raises a call, and the street is cleared in a minute—no, not cleared. There are fifty men down and in need of a surgeon's care. They are the wounded of the battle. Every one has shed his blood for what he deems is the principle of the thing. If you could see those fifty laid out side by side, with three or four surgeons rendering first aid, you would be shocked.

"And how about us? Some have to be carried to the wagon and bundled in most any way, and those who have escaped the lightest have a bad limp at least. There is hardly a uniform that is not ripped and torn and tattered. The men have bruised faces, bleeding hands and bruised bodies. Every one of us needs the surgeon's care as soon as we reach the station. There is no boasting about what this man or that man has done, but there is victory in the eyes of every one. We have paid off old scores. We have got even for fifty humiliations. We get leave of absence for three days, and then we are to be back and as good as new. I tell you, my son, curious as it may seem to you and others, that the greatest joy in a patrolman's life is to be one in a riot like that."

There was a silence of two or three minutes, and the shower passed away, and the cop added:

"Well, I must be tramping the old beat again or the roundsman will sneak up on me. Oh, there are a few joys in a patrolman's life, and one of them is when he has to fight for his life and when he knows he is putting up a scrap which the bravest man on the force could feel proud of."

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a virile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of lime stone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds, and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

A "sameness" that is most enjoyable——the daily, unvarying goodness of a cup of "SEAL BRAND" COFFEE. It never fails to greet you with that same exquisite fragrance, amber clearness and delightful flavour, that win people with the first cup.

In ½, 1 and 2 pound tins. Whole—ground—pulverized—also fine ground for Percolators. Never sold in bulk. 184

AVERTED A TRAGEDY.

A Perilous Situation and the Way It Was Mastered.

There is a striking illustration in Das Buch fur Alle of the fact that it is not necessary to roam over the world to find adventure. The German merchant of the story found it in his own peaceful house in the quiet town of his birth. It happened on his daughter's wedding day, about sixty years ago. The happy father was alternately welcoming the guests and bustling about attending to final details.

In one of the halls he met a maid carelessly carrying a lighted candle without its holder. He did not rebuke her, as she was not one of the regular servants, but had only been brought in to help for the occasion. In a short time she returned from the cellar, her arms full of bottles, but with no candle. The absence of the light sent a sickening thought sweeping over the merchant. Only the day before several barrels of gunpowder had been stored in the cellar, and one of them had been opened in order to get a sample for a customer.

"Where is that candle?" he asked her quickly, with his heart in his mouth.

"I had my hands full and couldn't bring it up," the maid answered.

"Where did you leave it?"

"I stuck it in the black sand in the open barrel," she explained.

But the merchant had not waited to hear her out. Into the hall and down the cellar steps he stumbled. His knees were shaking, his breath caught in his throat; death already seemed to have its grip upon him.

Just beneath the room in which the guests were assembled stood the fatal barrel, the burning tallow candle upright in the powder. To his horror he saw a long piece of burned out wick sagging in the reddish flame. If that spark should fall! He made a desperate move toward the candle—and stopped. The slightest touch or breath might shake that glowing bit of wick into the powder. He heard the sound of laughter from above, and he trembled. He stared at the light, powerless to move.

Suddenly the end of the wick nodded, and with its movement the merchant recovered from his momentary paralysis. Cautiously he thrust both hands toward the candle; then, with a sudden squelch, he smothered the wick and flame in his grasp. Never relaxing his hold, he carried the candle the length of the cellar; then he fainted.

Too Exacting.

AERONAUTICS IN WARFARE.

Why Napoleon Did Not Favor the Use of Observation Balloons.

It is on record that the first employment of aeronautics to observe the positions of an enemy were made during the French revolution. It was a Dr. Coutelle who produced hydrogen gas from the decomposition of water. He had been interdicted the employment of sulphuric acid in this preparation, as there was a lack of sulphur for the making of gunpowder.

Dr. Coutelle was ordered to put himself at the disposal of General Jourdan, who commanded the army of the Sambre and Meuse. On presenting himself to Duquesnoy, a commissioner of the convention, that dignitary rose in wrath, exclaiming: "A balloon, a balloon in the camp! You look to me like a suspect. I am going to begin by having you shot!"

Coutelle returned to Paris, and his balloons were afterward put to use at Bonn, at Coblenz and at Andernach. At the last named place General Bernadotte, the ancestor of the present reigning house of Sweden, was invited to go up in a balloon. "No," responded that careful man, "I prefer the road of the asses."

There was a school of aerostation at Meudon, which Bonaparte closed after his return from Egypt. As nothing could prevent other nations from using like air fliers, the balloons, he claimed, might become an embarrassment to all the armies, without any special advantage to the French army. —Cri de Paris.

"Hobson's Choice."

"Hobson's choice" may best be translated, "that or nothing." Tobias Hobson was a carrier and innkeeper at Cambridge, who erected the handsome conduit there and settled "seven lays" of pasture ground toward its maintenance. But the story about him, as told by the Spectator, is as follows: "He kept a stable of forty good cattle, always ready and fit for traveling. But when a man came for a horse he was led into the stable, where there was great choice, but was obliged to take the horse that stood nearest to the stable door, so that every customer was alike well served, according to his chance, and every horse ridden with the same justice." Milton wrote two quibbling epitaphs upon this eccentric character.

WASTED TIME IN COURT.

How It Might Be Saved by Following the English System.

Professor Higgins tells how waste of time is avoided in English courts and suggests that the same practice ought to be adopted in American courts. It is done by "leading questions," of which the following is an example in an action for personal injuries, where the fact of the injury is admitted, but the negligent act denied:

"Your name is John Doe, living at so and so. You are a painter by trade, and on May 1, 1914, you were on the Strand opposite the law courts and saw the accident when the plaintiff was run over by the defendant's bus, and you helped to pick the plaintiff up and carry him from the roadway?"

To which the witness answers "Yes."

Now, in an American court the testimony in that one question and answer would have been the subject of at least eight distinct questions and eight distinct answers, and in the hands of some lawyers this information would not have been elicited short of twenty questions, as: "State your name to the jury." "Where do you reside?" "What is your business?" "Where were you on May 1, 1914, at the hour of so and so?" "State what accident you saw there, if any?" "What did you do then?" And so on, and so on.

American courts are run in as leisurely manner as if there was nothing else on hand except the trial of the particular case at bar, whereas usually the court is weeks, often months, and sometimes a year behind in its docket.—Kansas City Star.

Commodores In Our Navy.

Previous to 1862 the courtesy title of commodore was given to all captains in the United States navy who had commanded a squadron, but no actual rank higher than that of captain existed. In July, 1862, the first captains to hold a higher office were commissioned as commodores. In 1862 the number of commodores on the active list was reduced from twenty-five to ten, and in 1899 the grade was abolished, and the ten commodores on the list promoted to the rank of rear admiral, the members in that grade being increased from six to eighteen.

For Patriotic Purposes

Resolution in Commons Calls for Use of "Unclaimed Balances."

OTTAWA, Jan. 30. — The banks have a good deal of other people's money in the form of unclaimed balances.

Duncan Ross, M.P., for West Middlesex, wants these moneys applied to patriotic purposes. To this end he has given notice of the following resolution:

"That in the opinion of this House it is advisable that unclaimed balances at present in the chartered banks of Canada, should be transferred to the treasurer of the patriotic fund to be used for the usual patriotic purposes."

Suits For Slander

ACTION FOLLOWS SETTLEMENT OF SUIT AGAINST CITY.

GUELPH, Jan. 30.—Members of the Sewerage and Public Works Committee have ordered institution of proceedings against six members of the Guelph City Council for slander.

The action is the sequel to a resolution passed by a special meeting of the city council, censuring in very strong terms the Works Commission for a settlement they made with Wellington Hunter, of a suit he brought against the city for damage done to his mill property when the city engineer was instructed to blow up part of his dam last spring.

4,000 Cruisers of British Navy Guard Sea Lanes

Small Fast Cruisers, Submarine Chasers Assembled to Guard Commerce—Will Act as Convoys For Troopships and Other Transports—Effect of German Defy on American Ports.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—Although representatives here of leading British, French, and allied shipping lines said to-day that the movement of their vessels would proceed as scheduled, regardless of the German note defining a new naval warfare, it was understood, on good authority, that the movement of all ships will from now on, be controlled to even a greater degree than heretofore by orders of the British Admiralty.

Prompt action was taken, however, by representatives of neutral lines, whose vessels in compliance with British orders have been touching at Kirkwall and Falmouth for examination. The Danish passenger steamer Hellig Olav, booked to leave to-day for Copenhagen, was ordered to remain at her dock until further notice. Similar action was also taken by representatives here of the Holland-American Line, which has five ships now in American ports. It was said by representatives of these lines that definite order regarding the future movements of their ships would no doubt be received from the home offices, but until such word is received, it was decided to take the safer course.

AWAITING OFFICIAL ORDERS.

From representatives of several of the leading British and French lines, and from shipping companies handling chartered freighters flying the flag of the entente allies, it was learned that they were doing nothing pending receipt of expected "official orders."

The order issued last night by Collector of the Port Malone, closing New York harbour to both incoming and outgoing vessels, was lifted at day light to-day. It was understood that the order was intended only to prevent the possible departure of German liners self-interned here without clearance papers and compliance with other port regulations, a precaution which would be observed every night, for the present, it was said.

VAST FLEET OF PROTECTORS.

To meet just such an emergency as this the British Government has assembled, it was said, a large fleet of small fast cruisers to be used as "submarine chasers." These vessels, said to number four thousand, will be available to keep the sea lanes clear of raiders and submarines, and act as convoys.

Meanwhile the neutrality squad of the United States customs office has been increased by the addition of a number of special men, and the force has also been augmented through the commissioner of police. German and Austrian ships to the approximate value of $50,000,000, tied up in New York are being carefully watched. So far no unusual activity has been reported from the docks, where these ships are made fast.

There are now in New York harbour between fifteen and twenty British, French and Belgian ships that have feared to sail or are loaded ready to clear and sail within a week. These ships, it was said, will leave only after definite orders are received.

MUST REDUCE CARGO.

Shipping men pointed out that the most obvious effect of the German declaration would be the reduction in the tonnage which the freight ships of the European neutral lines could carry on account of the increased space which would have to be sacrificed to carry coal and provisions for one continuous voyage from American ports to neutral ports Hitherto neutral ships have relied largely upon British ports to renew their supplies.

No shipping of any kind was permitted to leave the port of New York last night. The harbor gates were closed by Dudley Field Malone, collector of the port, who has full authority to act upon his own initiative in case of emergency.

HOLDING INTERNED GERMANS.

Mr. Malone did not disclose his ideas as to the nature of this emergency, but after stationing two destroyers off Quarantine, where the harbor narrows like the neck of a bottle, the Federal officials devoted most of their attention to the German merchant fleet, which has been interned here since the brinning of the war.

Collector Malone called upon the police of New York and Hoboken for assistance and sent squads of men to assist the guard which have been on duty at the piers where the German vessels lie. A thorough search by the neutrality guards disclosed no evidence of any preparation to justify rumours that the Hamburg-American and North German-Lloyd liners were preparing to escape from the harbour.

A rumour that the crews of these ships would attempt to scuttle their vessels and destroy the machinery officials could not ascertain. Crowds gathered in the neighbourhood of the German line docks in Hoboken, and New York, in response to rumours that a gigantic plot of some kind has been discovered.

Officials of the Hamburg-American Line asserted that their ships had on board only enough coal for heating and cooking purposes. Soon after midnight many of the policemen summoned to aid the Federal detectives were sent home, but an augmnted guard was still on duty at the German docks this morning.

A WONDER WORKER.

"It heals like magic!" is a favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quickly stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barber's itch skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic it prevents blood poisoning.

NINE MILLIONS THE PENSIONS ESTIMATE

GOVERNMENT INCREASES PENSIONS ESTIMATE BY FIVE MILLIONS—REDUCES PUBLIC WORKS ESTIMATES.

18 Million More to Pay the War Interest.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 31.— When the Commons met this afternoon Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, tabled the main estimates for the fiscal year which commences on April 1, one-quarter of which are to be voted before the House adjourns, in order to allow Sir Robert Borden to attend the Imperial Conference. The estimates provide for an expenditure of $203,472,765 as compared with $271,011,545 voted last year. Supplementary estimates to be brought down later in the session will, of course, increase the amount to be voted.

Of the amount provided $182,359,215 are for consolidated account, or in other words for current expenditure, while $21,113,550 covers proposed capital expenditure.

The principle features of the estimates presented are heavy reductions in ordinary and capital expenditures of the Dominion Government for the coming year and the heavy increases in interest and pension accounts due to the war. The estimated increase in interest upon the public debt due to war borrowings is eighteen million dollars.

There is an increase of five millions in pension charges, the total estimate on this account for the year being about nine millions. Against these increases the Government effects reductions of thirteen millions in public works and of twelve millions in railways and canals. The large items remaining in the estimates represent works under construction which, it is claimed, cannot be discontinued without national loss.

Free Transportation For M.P.P.'s.

Mr. McCraney, of Saskatoon, introduced a bill to amend the Railway Act so as to give Cabinet Ministers of Provincial Governments the same rights of free transportation throughout Canada as Senators and members of the House of Commons have. It further provides that members of legisaltive assemblies should have free transportation within the Provinces which they represented.

The proposed amendment, said Mr. McCraney, would add no burden to the railways as passes were at present given to such members. It would, however, relieve such members from any suggestion that in their dealings as legislators with the railway companies they might be influenced by the receipt of passes from the companies. The relationship would then be one founded on statute and not on the favour of the company.

Premier Was Silent.

Before the orders of the day were called, Hon. Geo. P. Graham asked whether the Bruce and Baptie reports would be brought down. The Prime Minister replied that they had been moved for and would be brought down.

"I noticed," said Mr. Graham, that certain newspapers are publishing serials of these reports. Why should this happen when Parliament has not seen the reports?"

The Premier made no reply.

WON'T KEEP BORDEN HOME.

Premier to Attend London Conference if Transportation Possible.

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—Canada is vitally interested in the situation created by Germany's lateat declaration because the German plan is deliberately designed to starve the Mother Country, which in a very considerable measure depends upon the Dominion for her food supplies. There is no thought here that marine activity or the transportation of men, munitions and food will in any way be diminished, but the attendant risk is increased and the need of precautionary measures emphasized.

If the United States comes into the conict, the resources of her shipping, as well as the German interned ships, can be utilized in carrying supplies to the allies, with whatever protection that the American navy can give.

The plans of Sir Robert Borden and his colleagues to go to the war conference in London will not be interfered with in any way by the latest policy of the enemy. They intend to leave shortly for London providing ships are running.

FEW PASSPORTS TO ISSUE.

Government Will Prevent Women and Children Going to England.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 1. — The Canadian Government is going to shut down on the issue of passports to women and children going from Canada to Great Britain. This policy does not follow as a result of the latest German campaign, but rather has been under consideration for some time.

From time to time memoranda, has been issued discouraging the emigration to Great Britain of relatives of soldiers and others. Difficulties of securing transports home after the war have been mentioned, while emphasis has been placed on the fact that the mother country already has enough to feed. In recent months thousands have gone over and the applications for passports continue undiminished. Any food blockade would simply be aggravated by a continued influx of Canadians.

Regulations, therefore, are about to be issued whereby passports will be refused women and children unless exceedingly good reasons are given. As regards passports to men, there are no new regulations.

Working women in Oregon expect to have a law passed in that State that will compel them to work only 48 hours a week.

ROSES KEPT HER YOUNG; DIED SMILING, AGED 105

Mrs. Alice Bennett died at the age of 105 in the two-story frame house at No. 152 Webster avenue, New York, which had been her home for 66 years. Until last Wednesday she was "up and around," pottering in her garden and looking after the house, as spry as a young woman of seventy.

Then she told her daughter, Mary, who lived with her, that she was too tired to get up. She remained in bed until she died, getting more and more rested, she declared, more happy and more contented, and when the end came she was smiling. There were roses, which she loved so, where she could see them and inhal their perfume.

Mrs. Bennett was born in Dublin, Ireland, on Dec. 24th, 1811, and came to this country at the age of 25. She made her home in Flatbush, New York, and had never moved far from her first residence. Her husband died 45 years ago, ten years after they had moved into the little house with the garden on one side. She had eight children.

The garden was her especial care. It boasts of a grape arbor which was her summer house, and in the spring and summer it was a riot of colour, with roses and all kinds of sweet-smelling flowers. She snipped the dead leaves and twigs and dug up the weeds all by herself and trailed the vines. Her garden was her greatest joy. To her friends, and they were many, she would say:

"Stay out of the rocking-chair. Get out in the fresh, open air, if you want to live to a ripe old age."

She followed her own advice, and, as a result, always remained young. She never wore glasses and never carried a stick.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

PULPWOOD SHORTAGE.

Prediction That Paper Mills Must Shut Down in Autumn.

MONTREAL, Jan. 31.—A serious shortage of pulp wood in Canada during the coming year was predicted by J. A. Bothwell, of the Brampton Pulp and Paper Co., chairman of the Mechanical Pulp Section of the Canada Pulp and Paper Association, at their annual meeting in the Ritz Carleton to-day. The shortage will be of such extent, he continued, that the paper mills purchasing the entire wood supply are going to find themselves shut down for want of pulp wood by September 1, 1917.

That paper manufacturers had not raised prices to an unjust level, although they had made substantial profits last year, after many bad years, was the contention of C. Toward Smith, acting president. He called, for standardization of lines, variety, shades and weights. Many lines were being imported that should be made in Canada. The members were addressed this afternoon by Sir George Foster.

Was Completely Laid Up With Severe Case of Piles

Sworn Statement From a Man Who Has Unbounded Confidence in Dr. Chase's Ointment

There is no longer any debate as to the best treatment for itching, bleeding or protruding piles But since about one person in every four suffers more or less from this annoying ailment it is necessary to keep on telling the people about Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Mr. Wm. Shaw, Island Brook, Que., writes: "I am writing this to let you know the benefit that I have derived from your Ointment. I have suffered more or less for years with protruding piles and last winter I got so bad I was completely laid up with them. I went to our local storekeeper and asked him if he had anything that was good for piles and he recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment. I purchased a box and took it home and used it according to the directions and for over one year I have not been troubled with piles. I had tried other remedies before but they only gave me temporary relief and that one box of your Ointment did more for me than all the others, as I have not been troubled since last winter. I consider it to be the best remedy for piles I have ever used and shall always carry a box with me, although I don't think I will need it for piles. We have used it for other purposes in the family, such as burns, and cuts and scratches, etc., and my wife says it is one of the best remedies for such purposes we have ever had in the house Although you only charge sixty cents a box for it it is well worth $5.00 a box for anyone who is afflicted with piles. Now you can use this letter if you wish or refer anyone to me who wants to know about it for piles. I might say that in my business I am known all over the English portion of Quebec, and am having this statement sworn to before a Justice of the Peace."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

MISS' AND SMALL WOMAN'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

The universal note of the season is easily recognised in this frock. It is of the one piece variety, fashioned on lines that are decidedly youthful and finished with perfection of detail. To give it individuality, inserted plaited sections are introduced at the sides.

There is no fitted effect, but a wide belt proves its popularity at normal waistline, where it just gracefully holds the fulness. Fashion favors the wide and narrow belts this season, and this is a model where the wide belt shows to advantage. The sleeve, set in without fulness, is of interesting cut; it forms its own cuff and marks it with button decoration. The collar and neck revers agree with the belt in tone and, in a season of collars, it is notable that the collar of this frock adds much to the back view of the dress, in rounded outline, descending almost to the waistline.

One may add wool or silk thread embroidery or braid to make the dress more effective, but the use of contrasting goods tempers the plainness enough to satisfy the average taste. Serge with satin or broadcloth in the pale shades for collar, revers and belt will give a neat and serviceable garment. Other materials suitable for such design are gabardine, wool checked materials, velveteen, wool poplin and satin. Its simplicity is evidence enough that the model can be easily reproduced by one who has little or no experience in dressmaking.

The three pattern No. 8,135 cuts in sizes 34 to 20. To make in size 16 requires 5¼ yards 36-inch material, ¾ yard contrasting goods.

To obtain the pattern send [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even colour, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

WASHINGTON, February 2.—The Cabinet met this afternoon at 2:30. President Wilson has been in conference all morning with Secretary Lansing, Colonel House, and Senator Stone, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. The meeting is expected to last some hours. Smaller Neutrals Are Looking to the U.S.

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, February 2.—In the presence of what may be the supreme crisis in the war were words awaited to-day from American by the neutrals of Europe with more poignant interest than by the belligerents.

The smaller neutrals, notably Holland, look to Washington to determine the issue which may mean their own life or death.

Messages to-day from Amsterdam ,Rotterdam and The Hague, indicate fear that the Netherlands is doomed to be crushed between German land and underseas forces. Actual blockade, the correspondents declare, means starvation.

The present supplies of foodstuffs in Holland may last a month or two months, according to varying estimates. The concentration of troops on the German-Dutch frontier is the cause of constant speculation. The London Times' correspondent in Holland declared to-day: "While the Dutch, predominately cautious, feel a disposition to stand or fall by their rights, their eyes are turned anxiously toward the United States, the greatest neutral, to see whether she will abandon her little sisters to their fate."

British And Norwegian Steamers Are Sunk

LONDON, February 2.—Three men were lost when the British steamer Ravenbourne was sunk to-day. The Norwegian steamer Heukla was also sunk.

The following additional sinkings were announced: The British steamer Ewonite, the Spanish steamer Algorta, and the Belgian steam trawler Marcelle. The last named vessel was sunk by gun fire from a submarine.

NEW YORK, February 2.—The United States Secret Service has been put on the watch for German plotting, particularly guarding against the destruction of interned German ships by their crews. Nearly one hundred German ships are in American ports.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., February 2.—Expressing complete confidence in President Wilson, the Lower House of the Legislature to-day unanimously passed a resolution supporting him in any action he may see fit to take during the present crisis with Germany.

"New Amsterdam" Is Recalled To Port

ROTTERDAM, February 2.—The Holland-American liner New Amsterdam, which sailed from Rotterdam Thursday for New York was recalled to port by the Government.

Stand By President Is Hughes' Advice

NEW YORK, February 2.—"Stand by the President," was the keynote of Charles E. Hughes' comment on the international crisis to-day. Hughes' words were echoed, with variations, by the other leading men of the United States.

"The time," said Hughes, "has come to show what America is made of. It is a solemn hour. We are all Americans, standing loyally behind President Wilson on whom this great responsibility rests. The exigency of no nation can fix the limit of American rights. This is not time to embarass, in any degree by private utterances those who have our sincere loyal co-operation."

"Philadelphia" In Near The Barred Zone

NEW YORK, February 2.—The American liner Philadelphia bound for Liverpool, with many Americans aboard, is nearing the barred zone of the waters about England to-day. Captain Candy reported "all well."

LADY VISITORS IN CONNECTION WITH THE SOLDIERS' AID

Commission Decides Upon This Step—One Hundred and Ninety One Returned Soldiers Were Placed in Positions During January

4,988 RETURNED MEN

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 2.—The report of the Soldiers' Aid Commission of Ontario covering its work from its inception to date shows that 4,988 returned Ontario soldiers have passed through the hands of the Commission since Nov. 7th, 1915, when the Commission started business. The Commission records show that 191 returned men were placed in positions during the month of January. The Commission has decided to appoint lady visitors for all parts of the province, whose duty it will be to visit the homes of men at the front, to call upon widows and orphans and offer such assistance as may be required. These lady visitors after being appointed, will undergo a period of three or four weeks' training in Toronto before they enter upon their duties.

The Kingston Standard says:

Recruiting for the past two weeks in this district has broken all records and no doubt will lead the Dominion as in the first two weeks of this year. The total number of recruits is 1317 as compared with 1003 for the first part of this month, which in itself was an increase of nearly four hundred over the last two weeks in December.

This steady increase is due in a large part to the Mayor Hughes trophy and to the energetic and persistent efforts on the part of every officer and man in the different units. Major G. I. Campbell, C.R.O.M.D., No. 3, is very highly pleased over the splendid returns and is sending to-day to all the officers recruiting in this district a copy of the report, with a letter expressing his thanks to N.C.O.'s and men as well as officers for their excellent work, assuring them that the General Officer commanding the District has expressed his personal appreciation and desires that he communicate to all ranks his thanks. He points out that a study of the report will be useful and asks for their continued earnest effort in keeping up the high standard set by the district. The results in detail are:

72nd bat., Kingston, 28 recruits; total, 135.

73rd Bat., Kingston, 15 recruits; total, 110.

74th Battery, Kingston, 7 recruits; total, 79.

LANCE CORP. J. J. GIFFORD

Who went overseas with the 93rd Battalion and has been transferred to the Highlanders.

And Will Probably Be Purchased From the Hydro Electric Commission in Near Future---Street Railway and Gas Plant Offered to City Whenever It is Prepared To Buy.

ARE BEARING PROFITS NOW

For a lump sum of approximately $400,000 Peterborough may purchase from the HydroElectric Commission the complete plants of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company, the Otonabee Power Company and the Gas Company. Such was the offer Sir Adam Beck extended to a deputation that waited on the Commission in Toronto yesterday representing the City Council and the Utilities Commission. The purchase is optional with the city. The three concerns are operating on a paying business, but it's the Hydro Commission's desire to dispose of them whenever the city is prepared to take them over.

The deputation went to Toronto at the expressed wish of Sir Adam Beck in order that the prospects of Peterborough's purchase might be thoroughly discussed. When the Commission acquired all the assets of the Seymour Power Company among the local items were the Street Railway, the Gas Plant and the Otonabee Power plant. In other towns that were links in the Seymour Power chain various other industries were secured which the Commission intends to gradually turn back to the municipalities when they are prepared to assume them. The Hydro Commission's intention is to retain only the main power plants and the trunk distributing systems.

May Take Otonabee Plant Now.

The Otonabee Power distribution plant was offered to the city for $7,512, and it is altogether likely that immediate action will be taken by the Council and Utilities Commission to obtain possession of that system thus bringing under the control of the Utilities Commission the complete lighting of the city.

But the Street Railway and Gas plant will probably remain with the Hydro Commission until the Council decides that the conditions warrant their assumption of these utilities. They will have to be submitted to the people, but the fact that they are both showing profits is a strong assurance that they will be acceptable to the ratepayers. Certainly they will provide the city with a compact group of public utilities.

Extensions to Be Recommended.

In the meantime the Council will make certain recommendations to the Hydro Commission for extensions and improvements to both the Street Railway and the Gas plant. It is understood that the Hydro engineers have already begun an estimation of the cost of certain extensions to the Street Railway which may materialize this yar. Nothing definite, however, was reported in this regard.

Of all the properties taken over by the Hydro-Electric Commission in its Seymour Power purchase the group in Peterborough was the most profitable and promising, Sir Adam Beck remarked.

The local deputation was composed of Mayor Duffus, Aldermen Duncan, Stratton, Dobbin, City Clerk Armstrong, City Solicitor Gordon, Mr. W. H. Moore, Mr. Robt. Hicks and Mr. E. H. D. Hall, the three latter representing the Utilities Commission.

FRIDAY, FEB. 2, 1917

ACTION IS DEMANDED.

It would not, perhaps, be fair to criticise the government in respect of its responsibility for the high prices of food articles. The government is not responsibility for the scarcity of the harvest, and the extraordinary demand for foodstuffs, nor for transportation difficulties—all factors in the high prices. But the government is responsible if, through trade combinations—unjust at any time but absolutely treasonable in war time—artificial scarcity is created or facility of access impaired, with the result of increased food prices.

We do not see that the government is taking any effective control of the food situation. The seed situation is serious. Farmers and others are urged to greater production, but they cannot produce without seed. There promises to be difficulty in getting seed potatoes, yet we see in the press reliable statements that shipments are being made from Toronto to Cuba of potatoes. Of course that is business, but it should not be allowed when there is so much local scarcity. Every carload shipped out of the country tends to produce local scarcity and cause higher prices. Why cannot the government take action and prevent shipments abroad? For not doing this the government should be, and will be, held responsible.

This might be regarded as drastic action, but it is the action needed at this critical time, as is similar action in regard to allowing young men eligible for military services to leave the country. The despatches state that there is a large and continuous exodus of young men of military age and capability from the country at border points. No doubt many, if not all of these "shedaddlers" have filled in National Service cards. This fact throws responsibility on the government. Why should it not take action to prevent the depletion of the manhood of the country? The probability is that these young men are leaving the country to escape doing their duty to the country in the way of military service.

Why, however, should they not do so, when a member of the government, Hon. Mr. Blondin, Postmaster-General, and flag-shooting Nationalist, gave the slackers the tip how to escape the responsibility of military service—"the United States border is not far away, and there lies the way to escape." When a member of the government, actively advises, as Hon. Mr. Blondin did in Dorchester, the young men of the country to escape doing their duty, how can we expect the government to act, as the circumstances demand it should act? The government has done nothing effectively and officially and whole-heartedly since the war began to assist recruiting; it has provided no machinery, organized no service to this end, and in compensation for past neglect it should do something now? It might take measures to keep eligible recruiting material in the country, so that voluntary agencies might have a chance to exercise persuasion.

HOME INTERESTS.

The report of the annual meeting of the Peterborough branch of the Ontario Motor League, furnishes a suggestion of how home interests may be served. The revenue derived from automobile licenses at present goes into the Provincial treasury. Why should not a fair proportion of these license fees be paid to the municipalities in which the motors are owned and operated? There are about four hundred autos owned in Peterborough and the average license fee—according to horse power—would be about $11.

This means that the automobiles of Peterborough pay a total of license fees of about $5,000. At present the government pockets the whole of this amount. Would it be more than fair that this revenue should be divided in the proportion in which the expense of road construction is borne under the Good Roads system—60 per cent. to the municipality and 40 per cent. to the province. This would give Peterborough $3,000 a year out of the $5,000 the automobiles of the city pay into the provincial treasury. There does not seem to be anything objectionable in such a division; but fair play is a chief element in it. Naturally the autos owned in the city use the city streets and do their share in wearing them out, and necessitating repairs; and the city should have a fair proportion of the revenue derived from automobile licenses for this purpose. Three thousand a year would be a welcome addition to the appropriation of the Board of Works and would do a good deal of street repairing, in the interest of the auto owners, who pay license fees, as well as in the interests of the finances of the city.

As a matter of right, the Province has no claim to the whole of the auto license fund, and if the subject were gone about properly a change could be effected that would do justice to the municipalities, and no injustice to the province.

In regard, however, to removing the issue of licenses from the local League, and making it a matter of party patronage, that is a matter in which the government, under the party system, has a "right" to decide; it would reluctantly surrender its power to reward its faithful supporters, even if in a very modest way. This consideration is so important that its implementing did not involve the courtesy of giving an intimation of the change to the local league, an organization that exists more for promoting the interests of motoring among its members, and in the community, than for promoting party interests.

A NATIONAL GOVERNMENT.

A despatch states that Sir Robert Borden proposes a war appropriation of 500 million dollars, and is asking authority to borrow 100 millions. In stating this, Sir Robert added that Sir Wilfred Laurier, on behalf of his followers, had agreed to this Thus the Liberal Opposition in Parliament repeats or continues the attitude it has assumed during the war—prompt acquiescence in the proposals for gigantic expenditures considered necessary for prosecuting Canada's participation in the war. By this joint and harmonious action, both halves of our population—Liberals and Conservatives—through their representatives endorse the war and the employment of the necessary means, as far as the mere expenditure of money is concerned.

It seems, however, an anomaly that only one half of the people is represented in the expenditure of their money. The expenditure is entrusted, constitutionally, of course, to the government of the day, and the opposition have no voice in the matter. All they can do is to protest against improper or inefficient expenditure of their money. And even then, though the Opposition loyally votes war supplies by the hundreds of millions, the moment it takes an attitude of watchfulness, with the object of providing that the people of Canada, her fighting forces, and the cause of the allies, get the largest measure of benefit from the expenditure of public money, the Liberal Opposition is charged with treason—with hampering the hands of the government in the discharge of a great national duty.

Our system of party government is a strange thing. Both halves of the people as represented in parliament, are welcomed to vote all the money needed for war purposes. But when it comes to the expenditure, the cry to the Opposition is "hands off"—that is the sole prerogative of the government; the Opposition has no right to a voice in the expenditure, though it has to meet a popular responsibility; if through its lack of vigilance any proportion of the public money is wrongly spent, though, if it makes protest it commits treason—yet it is held to responsibility.

This condition may, in times of peace, work out in the long run, in a fairly satisfactory manner; but it seems evident that in war times when such gigantic expenditures are involved, such tremendous interests involved, and such heavy burdens imposed, the work should be more equitably divided; that the responsibility should not be so one sided. The people of Canada, without distinction of party, are one in sentiment regarding the object and issue of the war; it is one in consenting to the mighty expenditure demanded; is one in bearing the burdens imposed; is one in meeting the supreme test of fealty to right, the surrender of sons, brothers and husbands to the perils of service on the field; but when it comes to the application of means to implement the unanimous aspirations of the whole people, one half of the people is shut out and disfranchised; told that it may pay and suffer sacrifice, but it must do so without question.

Under such circumstances, is not a National Government indicated, one that will include the best mind, the best heart, and the best spirit of the country, without the distinction of party considerations, which, at the best, create, and at the worst, court, disaster?

Great Britain found such a government necessary, and got it, and the new spirit of service, the clearer vision of victory, that has come from its organization is its justification.

CONSIDERATION OF CANADIAN AFTER-THE-WAR PROBLEMS

Although at the present time, owing to absence of our men at the front and our unusual war prosperity we are hampered in certain industries by a shortage of labour, at the close of the war we shall face a great excess. In addition to the labour already in the country we shall have to provide employment for our own returned soldiers—many of whom were out of employment when they enlisted—as well as a large percentage of the soldiers from the British army.

Of the 4,000,000 men in Great Britain's fighting force to-day, a great number will not be satisfied to return to their former surroundings after the war. Their whole natures have been changed by their experiences at the front and they will wish opportunities to develop along new lines. They will have heard much of the free life in the colonies from their Canadian companions in the trenches, and the very name of Canada already appeals strongly to every British soldier. They will come to us in thousands, men seeking work.

Great Britain will not be in a position to give employment to all of her returned men, and in many cases the returned soldier will be no longer fit for civil life. A further complication to the situation will arise from the fact that a large number of women have entered into the industrial life of the country. Employers have found that women in many positions give better service than men, and therefore they will not be willing to displace them even for patriotic reasons.

That there will be a large increase in our population in Canada, seems to be a reasonable supposition. The very fact that within one year after the close of the South African war, no less than 120,000 of the 300,000 British soldiers discharged from the army emigrated to America, amply justifies this statement. Thus, if we are to be guided by past experience, we should be preparing now for a heavy influx of immigrants as soon as the war ends.

Quite apart from the question of British emigration, we must take into consideration that the people of Northern Europe will probably flock to this country. It is true that their labour will be needed at home and their governments will pass laws prohibiting emigration. Nevertheless, that will not hold them back. It has always been illegal for the men of Russia, Austria, Italy and Germany to leave their country before performing their military duty, and yet 1,-900,000 to 1,500,000 men from Northern Europe have arrived each year in America, having evaded the authorities of their home lands.

In Canada we need all the agriculturists we can get. As the Northern European usually has an agricultural vocation and therefore makes a good settler, we should welcome him and send him where he is most needed to our Northwest. The returned British or Canadian soldier is a more difficult proposition. It is a fallacious dream to imagine that any large proportion of these men will settle down on the land. They will not. Our greatest problem will be to provide work for them. In the radical readjustment of our wage scales we shall find further complications.

The Canadian Government unfortunately has not yet dealt with the important matter of establishing labour bureaus and making other practical preparations for the return of our men and the immigration that will follow the close of the war.—J. S. Deanis, Assistant President C. P. R., in Journal of Commerce.

MEN WHO WIN THE V. C. ARE NOT POSEURS

(From the New York Sun)

The latest awards of the Victoria Cross have gone to three officers and two privates of English regiments, a sergeant of a Scotch regiment and a sergeant of an Irish regiment. All distinguished themselves by rallying and leading troops under fire in most desperate situations and storming or holding positions against great odds. To illustrate, Pte. Robert Rider, of the Middlesex Regiment, assumed command of his company, assumed the officers had been killed or disabled, led a remnant of men forward, worked a Lewis gun, cleared the trench in front of him with it, and captured the enemy's position. Rider received the V. C. "for conspicuous bravery and initiative during an attack."

In the first two years of the war 160 Victoria Crosses were won by men of the army and navy. Regulars, Territorials, Kitchener's Volunteers, Colonials, East Indians and naval men of all grades qualified as heroes, a term that is not misapplied in their cases. One of them was an elderly man who left a wife and nine children at home to serve his country; another was the glorious boy, John Travers Cornwall who remained mortally wounded at his post in the battle of Jutland until the end. The first to win the Cross in the great war was Capt. Francis O. Grenfell, of the Ninth Lancers, who was wounded in both legs and a hand at Andregnies, Belgium, on August 24, 1914, while saving the guns of the 119th Battery. He was invalided home, but returned to the front and was killed in action. In his will Capt. Grenfell, a nephew of Field Marshal Lord Grenfell, left his decoration to the Ninth Lancers, "to whom," he wrote, "the honour of my gaining the V. C. was entirely due, thanks to the splendid discipline and traditions which exist in this magnificent regiment" of the First One Hundred Thousand, the "Old Contemptibles," whose story has been told by Capt. Ernest Hamilton, one of the few surviving officers. Some of the regiments, the Coldstream Guards, for instance, lost almost every officer. The Expeditionary Force had been trained to fight to the last gasp, and there was little of it left when the battle of the Marne was fought.

BRAVE DEEDS REVIEWED

What was the bravest deed that won the Victoria Cross can hardly be told. It depends upon the point of view. Some soldiers, like Sergt. Michael O'Leary and Lance-Corp. Albert Jacka, of the Australian Imperial Force, acquitted themselves as super-men in attacking the enemy. The indomitable O'Leary's achievement has rung through the world. Jacka, at Courney's Post, in Gallipoli, single-handed shot or bayoneted seven Turks, who rushed the trench he was defending, Jacka being the only man alive or unwounded of in it. The blood of these first-class fighting men. O'Leary and Jacka, was up; but there were examples of valour when the head was cool and the will dogged. Take the case of Corp. Charles Jarvis, of the Royal Engineers, who worked for an hour and a half under fire to explode charges which destroyed a bridge on the retreat from Mons. Pte. Potts, of the Berkshire Infantry, shot in the left thigh, dragged a worse wounded comrade for three nights on an intrenching shovel at Suvla Bay, moving only a few feet with every effort, until a British trench was reached, and a sentinel challenged. Lieut. A. V. Smith, of an East Lancashire regiment, threw himself upon a grenade that had fallen from his hand and saved several officers and men by sacrificing his own life.

For calm and indomitable heroism what could be finer than the devotion of Lieut. George Allan Maling of the Medical Corps, who at Fauquissart worked among the wounded in the open under shell fire for twenty-six hours dressing the wounds of more than 200 men? Maling, at 11 o'clock in the night was knocked down and stunned by the force of a high explosive shell, but "pulled himself together and resumed his work." Piper Daniel Laidlaw of the King's Own Scottish Borderers at a critical moment at Loos leaped upon a trench parapet and rallied and roused his company with "Blue Bonnets Over the Border" and "The Standard on the Braes of Mar." Laidlaw was wounded and his pipes were smashed, but the Scots jumped from their trenches and carried the enemy's position. The pipes have been repaired with silver mountings.

Major C. Yate of the Second Yorkshire Light Infantry was seriously wounded and taken prisoner at Le Cateau, but not until he had led the nineteen survivors of his battalion of 220 men in a charge. Only three were on their feet at the end. "He was seen far ahad of his men riding single handed straight for the enemy's standards." That was Major George Wheeler of the Seventh Lancers at Shaiba, Mesopotamia, a born leader of forlorn hopes. In this forlorn hope he was killed.

SOME CHARACTERISTICS.

Photographs of not all the glorious company of Victoria Cross winners have been taken, but from scores of pictures an impression of characteristics may be formed. There is a quiet, steadfast look about most of the faces; seldom, if ever, a pose of conscious gallantry. They are the faces of just plain men who have the instinct of doing their best when it is most needed and who could not leave a comrade in the lurch. The animation in some faces is that of men who take danger gayly if aggressively. The V. C. man usually seems to be the soul of good nature. The bulldog type is hardly present at all. Braggadocio is entirely absent. Some men do not look the part at all. The deathless Yate had a small chin, a keen, laughing eye, hair parted in the middle, and might have been taken for a frivolous society man. Private Potts, the Gallipoli life saver, has flaring ears, a twisted mouth, a flippant eye, and looks absolutely unheroic. The antecedents of some of the V. C. winners did not promise much. Corporal Fuller, who was mentioned in Sir John French's despatches for conspicuous gallantry at Chivy, was graduated from a reformatory.

However ordinary, of no account, or obscure at home, whatever their origin and repute, it is to be noted that these British soldiers were as famous for doing things without orders, on their own initiative, as for coolness and bravery.

DIFFERENT WAYS OF SERVING POTATOES

Every cook of an inventive turn of mind ought to be able to devise occasional new ways of cooking potatoes, in order to vary the monotony of a potato-once-a-day diet. It is perfectly inexcusable to stick to two or three ways of cooking them, for the keenest appetite loses its edge when variety is not exercised in the serving of potatoes.

Did you ever think of having broiled potatoes? To make this delicious dish cut cold boiled potatoes in thick slices. Dip each one in butter and then in bread crumbs and broil them in the gas oven or over a coal fire till they have taken on a golden brown. They are especially suitable when served with broiled chops or beefsteak.

Mashed potatoes, though generally popular, grow tiresome when always served in the same way. Try this: To a dish of mashed potatoes add one teaspoonful of butter for every cupful of mashed potatoes. Beat this thoroughly and add the beaten white of one egg and half a cupful of milk for every cupful of the mixture. Season with salt and pepper, mix thoroughly and place in a baking dish. Brown in the oven and serve with roast beef or beef stew.

With Roast Beef.

Another good way to serve mashed potatoes is to form them into small balls, roll them in flour and brown them in the pan with a roast of beef or lamb. When they are browned they looked very much like the ordinary browned, boiled potatoes, but they are much more delicious.

A good way of cooking potatoes to serve with a roast is to cut balls with a potato cutter and parboil them in salted water, then drain them and simmer gently in well seasoned stock until they are tender. Season with salt and pepper and a little minced parsley.

One of the best ways of making scalloped potatoes is to chop potatoes boiled until they are not quite done and place them in a deep stoneware dish. Sprinkle liberally with salt and pepper and then pour on milk until it shows at the top. Add a liberal amount of butter in small pieces over the top and cook the potatoes very slowly until they are thick and creamy.

THEORIES OF WAR CHANGED.

PARIS, Jan. 31.—Andre Tardieu, Deputy from the Seine-Et-Oise Department, publishes an article in the Petit Parisien, in which he discusses the relative merits of offensive and defensive in the light of experince in the present war.

In 1913, army decrees established that henceforth the principle of offensive would be adopted as the only one which could furnish definite results in war. "But," says the writer, "the conditions of trench war as developed on the western front, put a different complexion on the question, not having been foreseen when the decrees were adopted. Trench warfare was then only considered as occasionally necessary for tactical reasons. Otherwise the cavalry was expected to co-operate freely, and the role of the artillery was laid down in the following terms: "Artillery no longer prepares the attacks. It only supports them."

WOMEN'S AILMENTS

Come From the Heart and Nerves

Young girls budding into womanhood, who suffer with pains and headaches and whose face is pale and their blood watery, will find Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills build them up.

Women between the ages of 40 and 50, who are nervous, subject to hot flushes, feeling of pins and needles, smothering feeling, shortness of breath, palpitation of the heart, etc., are tided over this trying time of life by the use of this remedy.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have a wonderful effect on a woman's system, making pains and aches vanish, bringing color to the pale cheeks and sparkle to the eye.

The old, worn out, tired out, languid feelings give place to strength and vitality, and life again seems like living.

Mrs. Alfred Winter, Castor, Alta., writes: "I would like every woman who is suffering from nerves or heart trouble to know how much Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have helped me. For two years I kept a hired girl and was doctoring all the time. After having taken four boxes of your pills I am able to do all my own work. I would especially recommend them to women between 40 and 50, as at that time they are more liable to be far from well One of my neighbors knows how they helped me, and she is now using them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers, or sent direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Mrs. John A. Elisler, aged 93, is probably the oldest living actress of the English speaking stage.

Women represent from 10 to 16 per cent. of the total number of persons employed on French railroads.

Miss Anna Durkee of St. Paul, Minn., owns and operates a gold mine which yields many thousands of dollars yearly.

Before the war railways in England employed only 11,000 women, while at the present time they employ over 33,000.

Benefits of the Charge Acct's

Arguments ih Favour of Them Made by the Executive of a Department Store

In spite of the evils, commercial and ethical, that have been laid at the door of the charge account from time to time by writers who have used the modern department store as a topics, there is no possibility that the business Utopia pictured as the result of its abolition will be reached for a long time to come, if ever. This was the opinion expressed yesterday by an executive of a store that is known the country over.

"Disregarding the good points of the charge account for the time being," he said, "let us look at the 'dark' side of the question, if there really is one. Several charges have been made against this method of doing business, the one coming closest to the public in my mind being that the stores giving charge accounts make it too easy for the customer to overbuy, possibly encouraging extravagance in this way. Certain merchants are prone to complain that the charge account contributes very largely to the returned goods evil, with the attendant trouble and expense for the stores. By opponents of the charge account system it is also sometimes argued that the losses sustained through it militate against the purchasing power of the store and its ability to serve the public best and most cheaply.

"Analysing these points separately, let us take up the one about making it too easy for the customer to overbuy. If this charge be true at all, it is rarely apt to be true more than once in the case of any individual customer. It is as necessary to have a credit limit in the conduct of a retail business as it is in doing business at wholesale and, in cases where the evidence is clear that this limit has been exceeded once, there are any number of tactful ways in which its repetition may be prevented. In fact will not suffice the store always has the right to close the account.

"But experience has shown that real cases of overbuying have been cured promptly when the head of the house has received the monthly statement, and it has also shown that much of the 'brain-storm' buying is done by women who go on periodical shopping sprees. In these cases most of the goods came back. One point should be made very clear, and it is that the charge account is maintained solely for the convenience of that part of the shopping public which is in a financial position to make use of it.

A SECOND COMPLAINT

The second complaint made against the charge account is that it contributes very largely to the returned goods evil. While it must be admitted that this is true, no doubt, in a number of cases, there is little question in my mind that, if the truth were known, there is no great margin between the illegitimate returns suffered by charge account stores and those received by stores that do a cash business. In our own case, the returns, legitimate and illegitimate combined, rarely exceed 16 per cent., while in a recent month they dropped to 14 per cent. It must be admitted that there was a pretty good reason for the 2 per cent. drop, and that the returns have again crept back to 16 per cent., but I doubt if there are very many cash stores of our size that can show a smaller monthly percentage.

"Then, again, no small part of the returns we and other stores—cash or credit—receive are the results of shopping sprees by women who have little else to do with their time. As long as the present C.O.D. and approved delivery systems exist, the cash store is no better protected against this class of women than the charge account store. It has been our experience that women who go in for that sort of thing take the stores of the class they favor in rotation. For instance, if they are so badly addicted to the habit that they indulge in it every week they will make us the victims to-day, a competitor of ours next week, another competitor the third week, and so on. Because of this it takes quite a while to 'get anything on them' but when we do here we make it our business to put the brake on gently but firmly. I doubt if we lose business in such cases. The average woman is fair-minded enough to see and appreciate the error of her way in this respect if it is pointed out to her tactfully. The trouble with some stores may be that they are afraid to put the brake on.

A POOR ARGUMENT.

"One of the poorest arguments of all against charge accounts is that the losses growing out of them hamper the store serving the public cheaply and well. Inquiries made in various quarters show that rarely, in a well-managed store, do annual losses from unpaid charge accounts exceed one-half of 1 per cent. of the gross business done. I doubt if they run above three-tenths of 1 per cent. here. No well-run store in these prosperous times should be hampered by a lack of ready money. I know for a fact there are big stores that are paying their bills before they come due, and yet they use the charge account in the conduct of their business.

"The primary object of the charge account is to accommodate customers who have been given them; that is, to facilitate shopping as much as possible. The average patrons of a department store, whether wealthy or not, usually do not carry large sums of money on their persons and very often they come to a store after merchandise that they could not get if they had to pay cash over the counter. Of course the C.O.D. method of doing business would cover such cases, but the average woman of position and refinement does not care to do business that way. She wants to feel that there is some bond between her and the store she patronizes beyond cold, hard cash. In other words, she wants to feel that if she trusts the store to give her proper merchandise and values for her money, the store will trust her to make good her part of the transaction.

"Then again, the charge account as a builder of business is not to be taken lightly. Let us say that Mrs. Smith opens an account here. The chances are that in some way or another this fact will become known to her friend Mrs. Jones who has none. Mrs. Jones will probably feel that she is just as much entitled to an account here as Mrs. Smith, so she makes an application and is given one. From her Mrs. Brown gets the thought that to have an account at —'s is a very fine thing, hence she must open one. She does, and the thing goes on and on.

DEVELOPING BUSINESS

"In this way a good store will build up business not wholly unlike a good doctor, a good dentist, or a good lawyer gets his clienttele. It has been my experience to find that most people want to pay their bills, especially the woman who has an account in a good store. To lose this account is to her something of a step downward in the social scale, so it is very apt to be protected carefully.

"Inversely, one might think that the ungranted charge account would alienate business from a store. Perhaps it does, but it cannot to a very large extent. If Mrs. Brown applies here for an account that cannot be granted because of her husband's business record, for instance, she is not going around telling of the fact. If she does, her friends, recognising 'sour grapes' are not apt to pay much attention to her. She may try to hurt our business by 'knocking' the merchandise, the values, or the service, but if her friends have been well served here her complaints will be raised in vain.

"Commerce has taken long, long strides since the days when a skin was worth fifty olam shells or when a horse might have been exchanged for two pigs and a cow, and the reason is the introduction of credit. Dispense with credit in general business to-day and the world would be in chaos in a week. While the abolition of charge accounts might not wreck the retail dry goods business, it would certainly injure it seriously. And, from an ethical viewpoint, there is just as much reason why a store should give credit to a customer, when that customer's worthiness of credit and ability to pay have been demonstrated, as there is for a manufacturer or a jobber to extend credit to a retailer under similar conditions."

Dog Costs Actor One Dollar a Day

Careless Actor Entering Canada Pays for Experience.

New York, Feb. 2.—Charles Keeny, of the vaudeville team of Keeny & Mack, has learned a lot about traveling in foreign countries—and is paying for his lesson.

Keeny and his partner—who is his wife—boarded a train at Buffalo last week for St. Catharines. Like all passengers bound for the Dominion, he was given a slip to be filled out, telling his name, business, destination and so forth.

Keeny, however, thought it was an advertisement. He threw it out of the window. When the inspector came around for it there was a scene, and the train had to be stopped at one of the stations to get another slip. Keeny filled it out.

Just as he got that done, a small dog he had in his grip started barking. The inspector saw that, took the dog away and had it put in bond, for which Keeny must pay a dollar a day every day of the five weeks he is to be in Canada.

Suffered From Severe Headaches

FOR TWO YEARS

Headaches are many and varying; but when the head starts to ache you may be sure there is some chief cause. The stomach may go wrong, the bowels become constipated, the blood may not circulate properly, but the presence of the headache clearly shows that unless the cause is removed some other baneful disease is liable to assert itself.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for the past forty years, been curing all kinds of headaches and has proved itself to be a remedy that cures where others fail.

Mr. I. N. Petersben, Dnieper, Man writes: "I am only too glad to be able to state that I derived wonderful benefit from Burdock Blood Bitters. I suffered from severe headaches for two years. I was treated by several doctors but received no benefit until by chance I heard of B.B.B., and I at once procured two bottles and in a short time I was completely cured. I am and always will be grateful for what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. I am glad to recommend it to all who suffer from headaches."

B.B.B. is the oldest and the best known blood medicine on the market to-day, having been manufactured for the past forty years by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The pastor, Rev. J. W. Down, delivered the sermon, after which the Rev. Mr. James of the Anglican church, Omemee, Rev. Mr. Wickett of Fraserville, and Rev. Mr. Butler spoke very eloquently, showing the high esteem in which the doctor was held. The choir rendered very sweetly the last hymn which the Dr. was heard to sing "Saved to the Uttermost." The hymns were also some of his favourites.

TO CHECK A COLD.

It is easy to check a cold if you begin in time. Frequent doses of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine keep the cough loose, allay the inflammation, and so prevent it spreading to the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mrs. S. M. Moore, Shortreed, B.C., writes: "I wish to state my gratitude for Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, for it cured a cold which a friend said would soon put me in the grave."

CALLED FOR HOME DEFENCE

King Appeals to Men Over Active Service Age.

LONDON, Jan. 31.—King George has sent a letter to the Lords-Lieutenant of counties throughout the counry, appealing to men over military age to enroll in a volunteer force for home defence. The letter recalls the territorial force which was originally intended for home service, but has since gone to the front.

After expressing his thanks to the Territorials who have gone to France, the King continues: "While they are thus fighting the battles of the Empire abroad we must organise and equip a force to take their place as defenders of these shores in the case of invasion."

The King refers to the fact that some volunteers have already been enrolled, and that the Duke of Connaught has been appointed their commander, and concludes: "I am confident that all who are now prevented from undertaking active service abroad will join the yeomanry."

TOO DRUNK TO KEEP FIRES ON

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31.—The mother driven from the home by a drunken father, fires out, and the baby frozen to death, while an older child was barely alive with frozen hands and feet, when found, and the father passed from a drunken stupor to his final reckoning—such was the grim tragedy of a tenement house in which David Fox and his family occupied two rooms. A chance visit of a neighbor resulted in the discovery.

35 SOLDIERS FOR ARSENAL

LINDSAY, Feb. 2. — Capt. McIntyre, of Ottawa, arrived in town and will station 35 men at the arsenal plant for precautionary purposes and protection to the plant. Small buildings will be erected for the men and a suitable dining hall will also be constructed where the men will be fed. The whole is under Government supervision and in no way connected with recruiting.

Strangers who enter the arsenal grounds will be kept under strict surveilance and suspects found loitering around will be summarily dealt with by the guards.

In view of the vandalisms perpetrated through the country to so many plants it devolves upon the Government to take protective steps in time.

ECONOMY THE WATCHWORD OF THIS OTTAWA FAMILY

FAMILY OF TEN PERSONS LIVING ON $12 PER WEEK MUST REDUCE EXPENSES UNDER COURT JUDGMENT RENDERED.

OTTAWA. — How can any family of ten persons live in Ottawa on $47 per month? The question is a knotty one, but it rests with one J. P. Cornelius to figure out how he is going to support his eight children, his wife and himself, and contribute one dollar a month to the gas bill, when he only earns $12 every six working days.

"Take a quarter of a cent off each one per day, and have them pull their belts in another hole," was the solution Judge Gunn gave Cornelius when he was sued in the Judgment and Summons Court yesterday for a gas debt amounting to eleven dollars.

How Cornelius contracted the debt was not explained in court. The defendant admitted his liability but told the court that he could not pay it off as he had eight children, his wife and himself to support.

The best he thought he could do at first was to pay off the bill at 25c a month, but Judge Gunn couldn't see this at all, remarking that by the time the score was paid off the defendant would be a grandfather, or deceased, leaving a legacy of indebtedness to his children.

The payment of any more than 25c per month, the defendant thought, would incur a hardship upon him. Judge Gunn thought otherwise, and raised the sum to one dollar, advising the defendant that the enforced economy must begin at once.

Germany's Areas of Piracy

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—Following is the annex referred to in the final paragraph of the German note sent under Washington date:

From February 1, 1917, within barred zones around Great Britain, France and Italy and in the eastern Mediterranean, as outlined in the following, all sea traffic forthwith will be opposed. Such barred zones are:

In the North Sea, the district around England and France which is limited by a line twenty nautical miles; the district along the Dutch coast as far as the Terchelling lightship, the degree of lengitude of the Terchelling lightship to Udir; a line from there across the point sixty-two degrees north latitude, five longitude, westward along sixty-two degrees to a point three nautical miles south of the south point of Farover (Faroe Islands?); from there across the point sixty-two degrees north, ——— degrees west, to sixty-one degrees north, fifteen degrees west; then fifty-seven degrees north, twenty degrees west, to forty-seven degrees north, twenty degrees west; further to forty-three degrees north, fifteen degrees west; then one degree latitude forty-three degrees north to the point twenty nautical miles from Cape Finisterre anad twenty nautical miles along the Spanish north coast as far as the French frontier.

THE MEDITERRANEAN ZONE.

Concerning the south, in the Mediterranean: For neutral shipping there remains open the sea district west of a line from Point de les Paqyett to thirty-eight degrees twenty minutes north and sixi degrees east, as well as north and west of a zone sixty sea miles broad along the north African coast, beginning on (?) degrees west longtitude.

"In order to connect this sea district with Greece, the zone leads twenty sea miles in width north or east, following this line thirty-eight degrees north and six degrees east, thirty-eight degrees north and eleven degrees thirty minutes east to thirty-four degrees north and eleven degrees thirty minutes east to thirty-four degrees north and twenty-two degrees thirty minutes east. From there it leads to a zone twenty sea miles broad west of twenty-two degrees thirty minutes east longitude into Greek territorial waters.

"Neutral ships plying within the barred zones do so at their own risk. Although cautions are being taken to spare neutral ships which on February 1 are on the way to ports in the barred zone, during an appropriate delay, yet it is urgently to be advised that they should be warned and directed to other routes by alal means available.

"Neutral ships lying in ports of the barred zones can with the same safety abandon the barred zones if they said before February 5 and take the shortest routes into the open district.

RULES FOR UNITED STATES SHIPS.

"Traffic of regular American passenger steamers can go on unmolested if:

"(a) Falmouth is taken as the port of destination; and if,

"(b) On the going and return journey the Scilly Islands, as well as the point fifty degrees north, twenty degrees west, be steered on. Along this route no German mines will be laid.

"(c) If steamers of this journey bear the following special signals which only they will be permitted to display in American ports: a coating of paint on the ship's hull and the superstructure in verticle stripes three metres broad, alternating white and red; on every mast a large flag of checkered white and red, on the stern the American national flag; during darkness the national flag and the coat of paint to be as easily recognizable as possible from a distance; and the ships must be completely and brightly illuminated.

"(d) If only one steamer runs each week in each direction, arriving at Falmouth on Sundays, leaving Falmouth on Wednesdays.

"(e) If guarantees and assurances are given by the American Government that these steamers carry no contraband (according to the German list of contraband).

"Two copies of maps on which the barred zone are outlined are added."

SAMPLES OF HIGH AND LOW GRADES AS WELL AS NEWS PRINT, EXHIBITED.

AUSTIN, Texas, January 31. — In response to an invitation of Governor James E. Ferguson, two expert paper manufacturers, R. Daetwyler and M. W. Marsden of Philadelphia, arrived here several days ago and have been making an investigation into the possibilities of utilising cotton plant stalks for paper making purposes.

The state department of agriculture has been conducting a research along this line for several months, and it has considerable information and data bearing upon the subject, which is turned over for the use of Daetwyler and Marsden.

SAMPLES ARE SHOWN.

As a practical demonstration of the character of the paper that may be manufactured from cotton stalks there have been been placed on exhibition in the state department of agriculture samples made from this product ranging from the high grades of writing paper to wrapping paper and including news print.

"A mill having a cotton growing country of a radius of fifty miles," Mr Daetwyler declared, "would be able to run for twelve months in the year and manufacture over thirty tons of paper in a day. If only a small percentage of the stalks in the state were used, the demand from the Texas newspapers and magazines and stationery houses could be met and a surplus would be left for exportation."

Mr. Daetwyler estimated that a mill drawing its stalks from a radius of twenty miles would be able to pay the farmear enough for their stalks to make it a business proposition for them to harvest and bale the plants.

THRASH SURPLUS IN BOLL.

If the stalks are cut while green, or immediately after the frost strikes them, the yield will be two or more tons to the acre. The cotton which remained in the boll would have to be threshed.

While this would lower the grade of the cotton, on the one hand, it would increase the yield on the other, for the machine also takes the lint and the seed from the bolls which do no open before the frost strikes them. The cutting and thrashing is common practice in north Texas, where the frost is unusually early.

Chicago Wheat Market Breaks

CHICAGO, Feb. 2 — Germany's move for unrestricted sea war caused far greater effects on the wheat market yesterday than did the first opening of hostilities or any event since An extreme break of 15 1-4 cents in values took place in the first minute of trading, and excitemetn was at such a pitch that transactions seven cents apart were made in the same instant in different parts of the pit.

Rallies of six cents from the lowest level reached at the start were made by wheat within five minutes after the opening, and although wild fluctuations intervened in the next quarter of an hour, three cents more of a recovery was shown. Fresh declines, however, then ensued. The rebound from the initial fall was generally contributed to profit-taking by traders, who of late have been plunged heavily on the bear side of the market. At the worst of the collapse of wheat prices, the market was off 39 3-4 cents a bushel as compared with the highest quotations attained during the war, a maximum of 196 3-4 for May delivery.

DEAD MAN WAS ELECTED

Probably for the first time in the annals of civic elections a dead man has been elected to the position of alderman. The incident occurred in the town of Aylmer (Que.) last month when Mr. John Beaton was nominated as alderman, though he was ill at the time. He got worse and died on election day, but the name could not legally be removed from the ballot, and consequently forty-six more votes were cast in favour of the name of John Beaton than that of his opponent and how as declared elected — though dead A by-election will take place.

Says Minister of Justice Seems Wedded To Scaffold; Slams Capital Punishment

OTTAWA, Feb.2.—The Bickerdike bill for the abolition of capital punishment was moved in the Commons by Robert Bickerdike of Montreal. He declared that juries hesitated to convict when hanging was the penalty, therefore some crimes were unpunished.

Capital punishment was not based on Christianity, but on vengeance. Last year there had been 50 murders in Canada; 40 persons arrested, 20 found guilty, and 10 executed; 9 had received commutation and 1 had committed suicide. Judge Galt of Winnipeg had two hangings to his credit, and if he could have had his way the number would probably have been three.

The present minister of justice seemed to be wedded to the scaffold. The people of Canada were opposed to capital punishment; they did not feel that the state had the right to murder murderers.

At 6 o'clock the speaker left the chair thereby sending this bill back to the foot of the list, which means that it is unlikely to be considered again this session.

INTERESTING CANADIAN PICTURES AT GRAND

A very interesting series of moving pictures is being shown at the Grand Opera House, under the title "Canadian Fighting Men; Series No. 2." The pictures are wide in scope and deal with almost all branches of Canadian activity in the world war. Particularly noteworthy is the section of the films dealing with the Canadians in the Royal Naval Air Service, which are decidedly exciting. A portion of the film was photographed from an aeroplane during a flight and one almost gets the sensation of being up in the air. One of the pictures showed Bruce Clegg of Peterborough, who is in training with the R. N. A. S. Interesting pictures of Canadian boys in the motor Boat Patrol are shown and there are views of the inspection of a Canadian Division by His Majesty the King and Earl Kitchener, and of the presentation of colours to a Canadian unit by Princess Louise. Hospital scenes, the work of the Mechanical Transport, Horse Transport, Army Service Corps, etc., and many other pictures are included.

Pte. Grosvalet of the French Army who returned to Canada minus a leg, but proudly wearing the Croix de Guerre and the Medaille Militaire gives an interesting talk on his experiences at the front, and tells how he won his two medals. The pictures will be shown again to-night and to-morrow.

German Attack Was Failure, Says Paris

PARIS (French Official Communique), February 2.—The failure of a German attack Thursday evening against a French trench at Leintrey, in Lorraine, was announced in to-day's official statement. Around Verdun the statement detailed artillery activities in the sector of Louvremont. Dunkirk was bombarded by enemy aircraft, with small damages. There were no casualties in the air raid.

WASHINGTON, February 2.—The definite statement that "Nothing has gone forward to Germany yet" was made to-day by the State Department relative to the present German-American crisis.

PETROGRAD, February 2.—Violent fighting was announced to-day in the snow around Slovetine, where the Germans were first victorious, and later the Russians gained much ground. The Germans preceded their attack with a violent bombardment.

ROME, February 2.—Efforts of Pope Benedict is reported to have been made to persuade Germany against enforcing the order for unrestricted warfare on the seas has failed to bring any response to-day. It is understood that at the outset, His Holiness had little hope of success. The Italian press believes Germany's new break will influence neutrals in favour of the Allies.

CHICAGO, February 2.—A groundless rumour evidently started in a Milwaukee brokerage house that an American ship had been submarined, caused May wheat to break 4½ cents to 1 dot 60½ this afternoon.

WASHINGTON, February 2.—President Wilson played golf for two hours this morning. It is said here his delay in announcing his new policy may be to give Americans time to get away from Germany.

PHILADELPHIA, February 2. — A double guard of United States marines is to-day standing watch over the interned German raiders at League Island, the Eitel Friedrich and Kron Prinz Wilhelm.

Germany Enthused By New Policy

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, February 2.—Nothing since Grand Admiral Von Tirpitz' first announcement of blockade early in the war has enthused Germany as the submarine policy upon which Germany has now embarked. Captain Persius, the Tageblatt's naval critic, pointed out today that under the new regulations Germany cannot lose her submarines as before. When, under strict compliance with the visit and search, they were always subject to attack, while unprepared, by armed merchantmen.

CHAIRMAN ELECTED

Standing Committee of House of Commons Met This Morning

OTTAWA, Feb. 2.—The select Standing Committees of the House of Commons gathered this morning, and re-elected their chairman for the session. No work has yet been mapped out for the Public Accounts Committee, whose duty it is to examine into expenditures.

After adjournment, when the Prime Minister returns from England, further pressure will undoubtedly be brought upon the Government along these lines. It is likely that an investigation may be asked for in connection with the Camp Borden purchase.

Give All Members Equal Privilege

ASKS FREE TRANSPORTATION FOR PROVINCIAL MINISTERS.

In the House of Commons, Mr. George McCraney, of Saskatoon, introduced a bill to amend the Railway Act. The proposed amendment is intended to give to Cabinet Ministers of Provincial Government the same rights of free transportation as Senators and members of the House of Commons now have.

It further gives to members of the Legislative Councils and Legislative Assemblies free transportation within the provinces which they represent.

The object of this bill is to relieve members of Provincial Parliaments from any suggestion that in their dealings as legislators with the railway companies they might be influenced by the receipt of passes from the company. The relationship would be one founded on statute and not on the favor of the company giving a pass.

Bear Saw Shadow But Old Hunter Has No Faith in Story

"I never did believe in that yarn of the bear seeing his shadow," said a street railway motorman this morning replying to his own query of, "Where's the man who said we were going to have an open winter!" When I was a young chap the bush wasn't far from the house, and I don't think many men had more experience hunting than I did. But in all that time I never saw a bear at this stage of the winter. Why he has only turned over for his second sleep. I've seen his tracks in the snow occasionally but that was only when he was chased out of his quarters by wet and dampness. There may be bears and ground hogs that come out of their winter homes to-day, but I've never seen one. The story is acceptable as a touch of fancy with the legends of Christmas and other occasions, but when many people indicate a trust in it, then it is time to deal only with facts. We will have six week of winter whether February 2nd is clear and sunny or not, and we are lucky if we don't get a wet, disagreeable April thrown in for good measure."

Tales From The Birdmen

"Raiding in a Zeppelin"

(From the Daily Mail)

"Those who have seen the gear and structure of the Zeppelin in East Essex can form a very clear idea of her fighting methods. The most curious facts about these immense ships is, perhaps, the small number of men carried. The total is only two officers and 20 N.C.O.'s and men. All are volunteers selected for the work of murder, from which it appears that some of the more honourable men in the German air service shrink.

A study of the hull throws light on the distribution of the crew. When the vessel is approaching Great Britain an attack by aeroplane is apprehended, and all the guns must be manned. There are nine in the Zeppelin, three of 2 1-2 inche calibre on the top of the structure and the other six of machine-gun calibre, in the four gondolas. If one man apiece be allowed that absorbs nine men. The stations of the men at the three platforms on the top of the hull must be intensely cold and lonely.

The temperature of the upper air is bitter, indeed, and the swift movement generates a cutting wind.

The airship, when in the danger zone, appears to fly at about 6,000 feet or 9,000 feet, and in the attack on London, October, 1915, one was for some moments at a level of 11,000 feet, or two miles up. Hence we can understand why the Zeppelin crews are clothed very warmly. They are encased in leather or fur. The men at the upper gun platforms can only be reached by steep ladders running up through the hull. They are isolated, and it stands to reason that they could not very long maintain their fire as the quantity of ammunition which can be carried on their little perches is not large, and there is no surplus of men to take up fresh supplies.

The men at the machine guns in the gondolas would have a less dangerous post. They have company near at hand, and the engines in the gondolas must give out a certain amount of warmth. The wireless operator, in his little cabin which had no heating arrangements, also has a cold and uncomfortable station.

The Captain, forward in his aereal chart house, would also be much exposed to the cold, as he must certainly have his celluloid windows open to see clearly what is happening.

In ordinary times, each of the six engines and each of the six dynamos would need a mechanic absorbing twelve men. But some of them must be left untended, as it would take one more man than figures in the crew to provide each with an attendant.

The sum works out thus:

Captain	1
Wireless operator	1
9 guns, 1 man each	9
6 engines, 1 man each	6
6 dynamos, 1 man each.....	6
Total	23

Whereas the crew is 22.

Probably there are only 3 or 4 instead of six, mechanics, in the stern gondola, which contains three engines and dynamos. But if the slightest thing goes wrong the difficulties must be great. It is much worse than in a warship, where there is a reserve of men.

In the Zeppelin there is no reserve at all. For that reason every possible effort ought to be made to attack these crafts at sea before they reach British air. Thy fly low at sea when coming here with their heavy load of bombs, petrol and oil, and the infliction of very little damage might result in their destruction.

The noise in the gondolas when the engines are running at 1,600 revolutions a minute, must be terrific. The men can hear little or nothing. Movement about the airship, when in the danger zone, is possible, but must be difficult for then all lights except carefully screened ones, in the gondolas, would be extinguished and the men would have to grope their way in the dark. To proceed under such conditions along the 'cat walk,' which runs inside the keel, would be no easy matter. If the narrow brood-way, only 9 inches wide, be missed, the fabric would not support the weight of a man, and he would go through on a swift journey to the next world. Possibly there is a rope above or at the side, to hold, but it does not show in L-33.

There seemd to be no fire extinguishers in L-33, but they are known to be carried. The position of the Zeppelin crew, who suddenly sees patches of flame appearing on the faline, which forms the other sheathing of the hull, may be pictured.

To stop the ship exposes her to gun fire. To proceed creates a draught which must fan the fire, and hasten her end.

In most of the accounts of the disasters to these airships it will be noted that the fire began forward, and ran swiftly aft. There is no hope when the vessel is once alight and in no case has anyone lived to tell the tale of what happened.

In earlier, the Zeppelin tales were told of men watching on the top. If there was a gangway on the top of L-33 it was destroyed by the fire and no trace of it remains. But it would be most difficult to retain a balance up there while the vessel is whirling through, and diving or climbing at a steep angle. The three upper gun-platforms are tolerably well walled in, but it may have been from them that certain of the crew fell when L-31 and L-32 dropped to their fearful end. Little distance from the main tangle of wreckage.

Of cooking arrangements there were no signs whatever. The crews on their journeys, must have used flasks, or have eaten their food cold. As these airships sometimes remain in the air for two or three days, an electric stove might have been expected.

As a cruising and scouting vessel L-32 seemed to have great advantages. The system of wire bracing in her would probably enable her to remain at sea in weather which would try a larger ship. And this accords with actual observation. The bombing must be effected entirely at haphazard. At the height at which these vessels cruise, their Captains know perfectly well that they cannot hit any target.

In October, 1915, the Captain boasted of dropping bombs on London, but any one could do that from a great height over such an extensive area, especially as then there were practically no guns or aeroplanes to disturb him. His hits caused loss of life and damage to property.

In the other raids it is quite clear that the bombs were dropped wildly. In examination of the discharging apparatus of L-33, it is impossible to believe the Germans ever expected to hit any definite object. They must fire "into the brown," which renders their procedure more cruel and callous."

TORONTO YOUNG MAN ASKS POLICE TO ASCERTAIN WHETHER HE IS MARRIED

A worried bridegroom sought the help of the Toronto police to find out for him if he is really married. The story he related to an official of the Morality Department at the City Hall was one of the strangest of the many strange tales that reach that office.

The young man who resides in the east end of the city, and has many friends, says that when he woke up in the house where he rooms last Sunday morning there was a lady in the room, and when he asked her for an explanation she replied that she was his wife, whom he had married the night before.

"When?" asked the astonished young man, who says he could only remember having imbibed a little too freely.

"Oh, last night,' 'the woman replied.

When he persisted in the statement that he had not married her, the woman produced a marriage certificate. It bore his name and hers. The man told the official that he remembered having met her once before but did not recollect her name. He vowed he did not remember a marriage ceremony.

Plainclothesman Bloodworth and Kerr, who were assigned to the case, brought the girl to the Morality Department. She had the certificate with her, and on inspection it proved to be a genuine one. It showed that the couple had been married.

Vowing that he would have the marriage annulled, the young man, now fully convinced, but still unreminded of the circumstances surrounding his marriage, left the Morality Office. His wife followed.

Rev. J. W. Aikens, who performed the marriage ceremony in the Metropolitan parsonage, is positive that the man was not drunk, but that he was in his right senses. Both of the parties he said were acting in a frivolous manner, but on being reminded that they were taking a serious step, they quieted down, saying that they realized fully what they were doing.

According to the story that was told by the girl she met the young man down town. They had met once before. She did not think he had been drinking to excess, and after "jollying" each other it was suggested that they get married. She could not say just who it was broached the subject, but after a little discussion a decision was reached, and they wended their way to the parsonage. They afterwards went to the young man's home, where they spent the night.

The girl is just 19 years old, rather well built and attractive. She was formerly employed as a telephone operator, but is out of work at present. The man is 27 years old. He has two sisters living in Toronto, both being highly respectable young women.

DEPUTY SHERIFF

Of Cornwall, Ont., All Run-down, Tells How Vinol Helped Him.

So many cases like this are coming to our attention that we are publishing this letter for the benefit of others who are in Mr. Rombough's condition. Read our offer below:

Cornwall, Ont. "I suffered from general debility. My system was all run-down, I had a stomach trouble and my nerves were affected, and my trouble interfered with my occupation. I had tried different remedies, without benefit, and several told me about Vinol. I took three bottles, and it certainly proved a good medicine for building up my run-down system." W. I. Rombough.

The reason Vinol is so successful in such cases is because it is an unequalled tonic-body-builder, combining beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, the oldest and most famous tonics known to medicine.

So strong is our faith in Vinol that we offer to return the purchaser's money in every case if Vinol should fail to give satisfactory results.

Circus Elephants Haul Berlin Traffic

BERLIN, Jan. 30 (via London). — Of the extraordinary sights seen in the snow-blocked streets of Berlin, the employment of huge working elephants for traffic purposes is certainly the strangest. These animals belong to the Hagenbeck Show which is now exhibiting here. Every morning they may be seen on their way from the Lerter railway station drawing heavy carts loaded with iron boilers, each weighing 35,000 pounds. No eight horses would be sufficient to move these waggons, but to the gigantic pachyderms it seems as child's play. Apparently they suffer as little from the intense cold prevailing here at present as from the tropic heat of their native country, and they wind their way along the crowded Berlin streets with almost uncanny nimbleness. If they find an autobus stuck in a snowdrift with panting, exhausted horses trying to pull it out, the working elephant lends a friendly forehead, and in a trice the stranded vehicle is afloat again.

No one acquainted with Berlin in peace times would recognize it now in its white garment, since once upon a time snow was never permitted to remain more than a few hours in the streets. Now it has been snowing for nearly a whole weak, and only the principal streets have been partly cleared, which means a grievous disturbance to the general traffic and street car service and no doubt is responsible for the scarcity of food and fuel, of which there is such bitter complaint. Very timely, therefore, comes the appeal of the commanding General of the Province of Brandenburg, von Hessel, which the newspapers publish under the headline, "Volunteers to the Front." This document speaks for itself.

"For days snow has been falling, accumulating in large heaps in the streets, and blocking traffic. Men who other times used to clear the streets within twenty-four hours are at the frontiers opposing the enemy. Who is going to do their work? Can we look calmly on as poor horses draw their last breath in a fruitless effort to move heavy loads? These horses are drawing war material which must not be delayed. Retarding helps the enemy. Are we going to allow it?

"Volunteers to the front; Work for the Fatherland does not disgrace, whatever it be. Every housowner or janitor should remove the snow from in front of his property so far as to permit free traffic. Never mind the pavement now; the principal thing is to clear a way for merchandise to the factories, for your coal, flour and potatoes. Whoever lends a helping hand serves the Fatherland. I trust no one will fail."

Kessel trusted not vainly, for about by noontime many streets had been fairly cleared and there were thousands at work who surely never dreamed of ever handling a snow shovel. Among them were women in furs and men with gold-rimmed eyeglasses.

Field experiments have demonstrated clearly that small, shrunken seed may be expected to produce a crop much inferior to that from large and plump seed.

New York Women Employ Others To Steal For Them

Women Seem to be More Prone to Steal From Stores Than Men—May be Syndicate of Thieves.

(From the New York World).

Say "kleptomaniac" to a store detective and he will look at you sternly and reply with steely candor:

"A kleptomaniac is a rich thief."

"But her psychology?"

"She hasn't any. She's just like the woman who smuggles or the woman who picks up an ermine scarf at a friend's tea and forgets to return it to the owner, or acquires somebody else's muff while the owner is up at the alter taking communion on Sunday.

"She wants the stuff and doesn't want to pay for it. She takes it, gets away with it once and forms the habit. No doubt she gets a certain amount of pleasure from the excitement of the game. That's true of any thief. But you'll notice that when she's well enough off to be called a kleptomaniac, just as when she's poor enough to be called a crook, she is always sufficiently sane to hide the stuff. She always frics her best to prevent being found out. Her bewilderment and other evidences of insanity develop after her arrest."

Nowadays, along with the rest of our modern development we have brought the business of shoplifting to an advanced plane. There is for instance, the woman who shoplifts to order.

"They work in this way," explained the store detective to a New York Herald writer. "A woman who lives within the law, perfectly respectable, although not exactly scrupulous, wants something new in wearing apparel.

"In the old days she might have been content to leave the selection to the shoplifter. But now she may prefer to do her own selecting and employ the shoplifter merely to bring in the goods.

"The customer makes the round of the big shops until she sees exactly what she wants. It is always something valuable, of course, as women of this class do not bother with ordinary clothes. The customer looks over the stock and makes a mental note of the department, the floor the very counter where the desired object is to be found.

"Later she meets the professional shoplifter, gives her all this information, and the shoplifter soon returns with the desired article. The reason that she is anxious to work under this system is that she has a customer for her goods ready to hand. The reason that the other woman prefers it is that she can select the articles which are most becoming to her without trusting to another woman's taste.

Importance of a Customer.

"Finding a customer is almost as important a part of the shoplifter's game as getting the goods. Especially is this true of articles which have a style value and which may be unsalable after the lapse of a few months.

"As for selling to fences, few expert shoplifters are willing to do this. Naturally after one call they are at the mercy of the fence and must part with their goods for any sum offered to them, no matter how trifling. The expert shoplifter prefers to have a choice clientele of her own. This includes often some of the lower class vaudeville performers, unscrupulous cabaret dancers and singers, the residue of the motion picture 'extras' and women in private life who have need of variety of elaborate gowns and no money to buy them with.

"The modern shoplifter usually carries a bag, which is the simplest matter in the world nowadays, when all well-dressed women are so equipped. She may appear to come from the suburbs and carry a rather good sized bag, such as are known as overnight bags, or she may carry one of the ordinary hand bags of velvet knitted work or satin. These are quite large enough to carry away laces, lingerie, chiffon blouses, gloves, stockings, shoes and a hundred bijou articles. Hundreds of dollars' worth of exquisite material may vanish into one of these bags and it will look no more stuffed than that of the average woman, because all women have a habit of stuffing their bags unmercifully.

'There aren't so many men picking up things in this amateurish way as there are women.

The Merchants and Manufacturers Association of Baltimore now has three women members.

MYSTERY IN GIRL'S DEATH IN SUBWAY

Miss Silverblatt, Typist of Mme. Pavlowa, Struck by Train, may have Dropped Manuscript to Rails.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Miss Rebecca Silverblatt, young Russian typist employed by Mme. Pavlowa, dancer, was killed by a subway express train at the station under 149th street and Third avenue, the Bronx, falling to the rails in a manner which the police were unable to determine.

In her home, Miss Silverblatt, who was twenty-five years old, had written a manuscript in Russian on a typewriter and was on her way to the home of Mme. Palvoda, in Manhatan, when she was killed. Leaving the Third Avenue elevated railroad at 149th street, she entered the subway station and was seen to walk to the north end of the downtown platform.

When a southbound train approached the lighted station the motorman, Guy McFarland, saw the girl staggering across the rails. He applied the emergency brakes, but the train hit her and threw her between the iron pillars dividing the subway. She was carried to the station quickly and a physician summoned, but he said she had been killed almost instantly.

The manuscript was found near rails, and her family believed that while waiting for a train she had dropped it accidentally and had leaped down to the track to recover it, being caught by the train.

GEORGE STREET TEAM LEADING THE LEAGUE

Methodists Beat Trinity-St. Andrew's in an Overtime Church League Fixture Last Night—Mark St. Won Their First Game of the Season Making a Great Finish Against Knox.

The Church League provided two more exciting games of hockey last night when the George Street team went into the lead by beating Trinity-St. Andrews 5 goals to 3 in an over-time game, while the Mark Street youngsters scored their first victory by trimming Manager Cranfield's Knox Church boys, who have yet to break into the win column. In both cases the winners had to come from behind, which added to the excitement.

George Street won a clever victory in the first game. The Trinity-St. Andrew's team took an early lead and at the end of the first period, were 3 goals to 0 in front. Then the Methodists got going and blanked their rivals for the balance of the game, while they started to creep up themselves. It was 3 to 2 at the close of the second period, and the George Street gang tied it up at 3 to 3 in the last period, and then went out and won in the overtime, making the second successive overtime victory for the boys from Rev. R. G. Peever's church.

The Mark Street team won a popular victory in the second game. Not that the fans had anything against Knox, but because they realized the East City kids had lost two hard-luck games, and they were glad to see them win out. It looked for the first period as if Tom Hendry's boys were going down to defeat for the third time. Several easy shots filtered into the nets and at the close of the period the boys from across the river were down 5-2. They got going in the second period and ran in three goals, the figures being 5 to 5 when the teams went back for the last period. A sparkling play by Jack Gillespie put the Mark Street youngsters in front in the last period, and it was all over when Williams batted another past Mahood. Williams, Gillespie and Hagerman played fine hockey for the winners, and their team mates gave them every assistance. The victory was richly earned. The teams lined up as follows:

The Peterborough Juniors will practise to-night before the 247th Nobel game, at Brock Street Rink, and every player is expected out in view of Monday's game with Kingston in the O.H.A. semi-final which promises to be the greatest battle of the year. It is the first visit of the Kingston Juniors to Peterborough in a number of years. The Easterners have a fast clever lot this year, as their victory over Dick Arnott's good Belleville team shows, and the Petes will have to be on their best behaviour Monday night. The local youngsters have been showing greatly improved form in practice. They learned their lesson in the Oshawa series and team work is being substituted for the individual style. An improvement, too, has been made in a shape up in the forward line, Graham going to left wing, Bartley to centre, and Cherrett to rover, and the advance guard is working more smoothly as a result. The practice to-night will be the last work-out before Monday night's game.

BROCK STREET RINK

NOBEL TEAM Versus 247th BATT.

COLLEGIATE HOCKEY

A very interesting game of hockey was played last evening between 5 and 6 o'clock at the Brock Street Rink, between the team of II. A and B, and the the team of Com. II. The game was very closely contested in the first half, neither team scoring. In the second half ,however, Com. II. showed up their team work, scoring eight goals to their opponents' 2. The referee was Mr. V. R. Henry, the popular associate Science Master of the Collegiate, and the position of time-keeper was ably filled by Mr Vern Fiske. Armstrong, Hunter and Westlake starred out on the ice; Doupe starred in goal for II. A and B., while Hagerman, Corsey, Thrunbeck and Stevenson starred for Com. II.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME SHOULD BE GREAT EXHIBITION

To-night's game between the fast Nobel team and the 247th Battalion intermediates will start sharp on time, as the Nobel team will be here on the Port McNicholl train. With the fastest ice of the season available the game should be a corker all the way. The Nobel aggregation haven't lost a game all season and they expect to maintain that record to-night. The Soldiers will have something to say about that, however, and the Northerners will have to step faster than they have done all season to earn the decision. The 247th players, however, who played against Nobel at Parry Sound say that it will be some contest to-night. The teams will line-up as follows:

Nobel		247th
	Goal
Brothers		Legros
	Defence
Flesher		Halpin
Taylor		Thornton
		A. Flanagan
	Rover
Jones		Evans
	Centre

Last night, at the Water Street Alleys the C. G. E. took two out of three games from the Left Overs. Both teams played in hard luck. Bishop for the C. G. HOCKEY GOSSIP

The Kingston Standard says:

Oshawa's action in defaulting to Peterborough for the group championship of Group 2 of the Junior O. H. A., came as a surprise to local hockey fans. Oshawa was looked upon as having their best team for some years, and it is regrettable that they could not get a team together to go to Peterborough where they should have played Tuesday night. It has, therefore, been decided that the Kingston Juniors will journey to Peterborough on Monday, Feb. 5, with the return game being played in Kingston some time during the week. Peterborough has a real good team and it is likely that a large number of Kingston fans will take the trip with the team next Monday morning.

The day of the motor has not arrived—in hockey circles at least. Last night the Expressmen met the Motor Car Drivers in mortal combat at Brock street rink and once again Benny Dunsford's gang triumphed. The score was 4 to 2. The teams were:

While in Toronto, yesterday, Mayor Duffus and the Aldermen who composed the deputation from the Council made further investigations regarding motor fire apparatus. They visited several of the fire stations and also interviewed manufacturers, obtaining all the information available regarding the apparatus it is proposed to add to the local Fire Department this year.

PATRIOTISM?

Peter McArthur, in Farmer's Advocate: A few days ago a prominent business man told me with an air of deep sadness that four of his boys are now at the front. I felt awed in the presence of so much patriotic sacrifice but a few minutes later I felt like smashing the furniture to ease my feelings when I found that the four boys were not his sons, but four clerks from his business office. He spoke to them as "my boys." I learned a short time later that he had replaced these heroic boys with four girl clerks at about half the wages and has made a neat profit from the sacrifice that had affected him so deeply.

If you want to see "punk patriotism" at its most insolent just read some of the annual addresses that are being published in bank statements at the present time. Most of them make a great show of their contributions to the Patriotic fund and of the number of men who have enlisted from their branch and head offices. In order to get at the true inwardness of this patriotism I made careful inquiries, and although I am not certain that the same conditions prevailed in all banks I found that it worked out in this way with at least three of our leading banks. They gave a lump sum to the patriotic fund, I think fifty thousand dollars was the usual amount, and that certainly looks fine. But at the same time they made the war an excuse for refusing to give their underpaid employees the annual increase of salary to which they would be entitled in normal times. The saving made in this way amounted in some cases to fully one hundred thousand dollars. This means that they made their employees, who as a class are about the most poorly paid in the country, pay much more than the entire amount of the contribution to the Patriotic Fund. And when their clerks enlisted their positions were filled by girls in many cases at lower wages. Corporations are taking advantage of present conditions to enrich themselves and most of them are succeeding in doing it. In the annual statement printed in such papers as the Montreal Journal of Commerce I find that twenty per cent. dividends are not unusual and in the current issue I find a statement of one concern working on war supplies, that earned sixty per cent. in 1916.

WEDDING BELLS

DRISCOLL—JOHNSTON.

On Tuesday, Jan. 30th, a very pretty wedding was solemnized at the Church of the Sacred Heart by the Rev. Father J. J. O'Brien, when Clara Jane, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Johnston, of Otonabee, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Dennis Driscoll, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Driscoll of this city. Miss Annie Johnston, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, while the groom was attended by Mr. John Shaughnessy.

After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride's parents, where a dinner dance was held.

The pretty young bride looked charming in a navy blue suit with hat to match. The couple received a number of beautiful presents. Among them a check for one hundred dollars from the bride's parents and two other checks from friends.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Driscoll, father and mother of the groom, and Mrs. (Dr.) Young and son of Elston, Sask., cousin of the bride. The young couple will reside

OBITUARY

CHRISTINA McNAUGHTON.

There passed away, about 4 o'clock on Thursday, the widow of the late James Alexander McNaughton, aged eighty-seven years and six months. The maiden name of the late Mrs. McNaughton was Christina Wright. Her father was David Wright of Cobourg. She was born in Ardrie, Scotland, on August 9th, 1830. For some years past she has made her home with her daughter, Mrs. J. P. Cunningham, 508 Stewart street. The other daughters are Mrs. Wm. Montgomery, of 705 Water street, and Mrs. John Hobbs of Cleveland, Ohio. The sons are David James, of Ohio, John Alexander of Boston, Mass., and Wm. Edward and Francis Glen of New York City. Mr. John Wright of Preston, Ont., is a surviving brother.

While of recent years Mrs. McNaughton's infirm condition made it impossible for her to be much away from her home, she retained all of her faculties until almost the hour of her death, and her cheerful disposition and Christian faith made it a pleasure for her friends to visit her.

The funeral will leave the home of her son-in-law, Mr. J. P. Cunningham, on Saturday afternoon at 2.30. The service, which will be of a private character, will be conducted by Rev. J. R. Webb, Pastor of Murray Street Baptist Church. It is requested that friends omit flowers.

A NEW FAST G. T. R. TRAIN BETWEEN TORONTO AND PETERBOROUGH IS RUMOURED

It was rumored that the G.T.R. intend to put on a new fast train between Peterborough and Toronto, leaving here at 6 o'clock in the morning and returning in the evening. The proposal contemplates the removal of the morning train on the main line from Belleville and Cobourg to Toronto, and the disposal of it to the Peterborough-Toronto run. Nothing definite is known of this report, but it is believed that an announcement to that effect will be forthcoming in a short time.

Mrs. (Dr.) Eastwood and Mrs. W. H. Hill were the hostesses yesterday afternoon of a most successful tea given by the 57th Chapter I.O.D.E. in the Masonic Hall. A novel touch was lent by the table decorations. Instead of the usual table covering, white and yellow crepe paper lent a decidedly pretty effect which, combined with the ferns, daffodils, candles and an enormous basket of ferns donated by Mr. Roland Denne, proved very attractive. Mrs. E. F. Mason presided at the tea table. The assistants were the Misses F. Gladman, M. Rush, Jean Hill, F. Collins and Robina Cummings.

A number from town and country went to Peterborough on Saturday to hear "Daddy Long-legs"; Mrs. (Dr.) Turner and Frances, Mrs. T. A. Campbell, Mrs. W. G. Paterson, Mrs. Winslow, Mrs. Colthard, Misses Janet and Alice Needler, Misses Gladys and Muriel Smith, Miss MacArthur, Miss Lottie Vance, G. Russell, and from Cavan, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. McCamus, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Might. Mrs. Geo. Eagleson, Miss Tate, Miss McGill and Mr. Elgar. The lateness of the train took some of the pleasure from it however, as it was twenty to one when they got away from Peterborough.—Milbrook Reporter.

Mrs. Harry James Sharpe and Master Lloyd left here Thursday morning for Montreal, where they will spend a few weeks with Mrs. Sharpe's mother, Mrs. C. I. Morrison, Mr. Sharpe, District Manager for the London and Lancashire Life and General Assurance Association, Ltd., will leave here Saturday on a business trip to Montreal he hopes, however, to be back during the early part of next week.

ICELAND TO HAVE CITIZEN ARMY FOR WORKS OF PEACE

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—Iceland whose inhabitants, because of the isolation of their country, have always been exempt from military duty, is about to create a citizen soldiery of peace, according to Godmundur Kamban, an Icelandic dramatist, who spoke last night before the Poitical Equality Association at 15 East Forty-first street.

"A Bill, known as the Alliance Act, pending before the Althing, the Congress of Iceland, provides that every youth reaching maturity must give at least six months' service in some constructive public labor, for which the Government is responsible," said Mr. Kamban.

"The service would include bridge and road building and construction of public edifices.

"Instead of training to destroy and kill, the youth of Iceland is to be trained to construct. The Bill was conceived by a farmer legislator, Herman Jonasson, and has attracted wide attention in the Scandinavian countries. It is certain to pass."

Heavy Toll Among Aged

The death toll amongst elderly people has proved exceptionally heavy this week. Over thirteen residents have died since last Friday, whose ages average 74 years.

THE WEATHER

The temperature this morning was 20 degrees below zero. This low figure was accompanied with a strong wind, and the cold was intense. At noon it was 10 below, at 3, 12 below. This day, last year, the ground was practically bare of snow, and the weather mild. Two years ago all the trains were blocked by a heavy snowstorm. Temperature, that day, 2 below. This is the day on which Bruin takes his usual mid-winter survey, and decides whether he had better go back and hibernate, or stay out. As he could see his shadow to-day, he has gone back for another six weeks.—W. P.

President Wilson Has Made Decision Which May Lead To War

Present Indications Point to a Question of Severing Diplomatic Relations Immediately or Awaiting Some Destructive Act by Germany---Break is Regarded as Certain To-day---Argentine Government Formally Advised That Outlook For Continuance of Friendly Relations Between United States and Germany is "Most Grave".

"NIGHT OF REFLECTION"

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, February 3.—At eleven o'clock last evening President Wilson and his advisors parted for "A night's reflection." It was then officially stated that there was nothing to announce. One Cabinet member said that the near future would develop something very very serious.

DECISION MAY LEAD TO WAR.

WASHINGTON, February 3.—After "A night of reflection" on the German-American crisis, it is believed here that they are this morning unanimously in accord with the position outlined as follows: President Wilson and his Cabinet have made a decision in the crisis with Germany which may lead to war.

According to the best judgement of those in close touch, the only form in which President Wilson will act, remains to be determined. It appears to be a question of severing diplomatic relations immediately or awaiting some overt act by Germany. The probability is that he will await some destructive act by Germany before cutting the last ties binding the two nations. But a break is almost everywhere regarded as certain to-day and soon.

REPORT TO ARGENTINE GOVERNMENT.

BUENOS AIRES, February 3.—The Argentine Government has been formally advised that the United States regards the outlook for a continuance of friendly relations with Germany "As most grave." Such report from the Argentine Ambassador in Washington Romulo S. Naon, was formally presented to the Argentine Congress to-day.

RAIDER SUNK IN FORTY MINUTE NAVAL ENGAGEMENT

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BUENOS AIRES, February 3.—A Pernambuco despatch to-day quotes the Belgian Consultaf Clerk as declaring that the British cruisers Glasgow, Amethyst and Kent sank the German raider with the entire crew in a forty-minute naval engagement. The story is unconfirmed from other sources. It is stated that the British used a freighter to draw the raider into the trap.

American Press Sees Grave Crisis in Latest Note From Germany

Newspapers of the United States Say Country Can Never Submit to Impositions Proposed by Germany, Advocate Suspension of Diplomatic Relations and Many Do Not Hesitate to Say That Hostilities Are Likely to Follow.

"GERMANY RUSHING TO HER DOOM"

Following are the editorials from the principal newspapers of the United States commenting on the submarine note from Berlin:

NEW YORK.

The New York Sun.

The note closes for the present the chapter of altruistic endeavours and tentatives of parley into which President Wilson has written his idealistic hopes. It creates an entirely new situation, of the most practical sort so far as the United States is concerned and serious in the extreme in its possibilities of untoward incidents which may put to the test the steadfastness of Washington in its attitude and assertion of the principle which our State Department has already enunciated.

The New York World.

There can be only one answer on the part of the United States to the new German submarine proclamation, and that answer should be made at once. The German Ambassador must receive his passports forthwith and diplomatic relations must cease at once. There should be no procrastination until the hand of the United States government is forced by premeditated murder and depredation. We have made every concession to Germany that self-respect will permit, and all those concessions have proved to be in vain. If Germany wants war with the United States, let Germany have war with the United States. Our hands are clean.

The New York German Herald.

What basis can our government have for taking serious measures against Germany in the war area question? The English close one part of the ocean, the Germans close others. There is no difference. While there is a possibility that the question may lead to trouble between America and Germany, the plainest rules of logic should keep our government from objecting to Germany's course.

The New York Staats-Zeitung.

The promises which were made a year ago concerning passenger carrying steamships of all nationalities, as well as freight steamships of neutral nation, are thereby withdrawn. This declaration has come very unexpectedly. It is to be assumed that President Wilson will stick to the course he has been pursuing. Then it only remains to be seen how the proclaimed regulations will work out in practice.

The New York Tribune.

We have submitted to outrage long enough. Peace with Germany would be purchased at too dear a price if it is to be purchased by compliance with the Kaiser's insulting instructions to us as to how we shall conduct our commerce with the Entente nations. The United States fought one war—the war of 1812—in behalf of the principle of the freedom of the seas. We cannot believe that it has so far lost its manhood as to hesitate now that the challenge has come which may compel it to fight another.

The New York Times.

The inhibitions which Germany puts upon the world's trade with the British Islands France and Italy are such as no nation has ever submitted to if it had the power to resist. They are beyond the law, they are not to be tolerated. The new war zone order is a counsel of desperation and in itself may be considered an indication that the end of the war is not very far distant.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

The Washington Post.

Germany's note will fall upon the American public with stupefying effect. No doubt it was in view of this danger that President Wilson made such extraordinary efforts to bring about peace. It is impossible for this government to tolerate the new rule which Germany seeks to impose.

CALIFORNIA.

The San Francisco Chronicle.

Looked at in a practical way, and it should be remembered that none of the belligerents have respected the provisions of international law, Germany is simply cutting loose from all restraints and proceeding on the principle that all is fair in warfare and that is best which makes for victory. It is a desperate move, but America can and should do nothing until she is specifically injured.

COLORADO.

The Denver Post.

Germany is rushing her doom. There is no plan in the universe that permits a nation to succeed by such methods as these, and this final step of Germany, in defiance of the United States, permits President Wilson to have no other choice than the severance of diplomatic relations altogether.

CONNECTICUT.

The Hartford Courant.

Germany announces that she is going to increase the ferocity of her marine warfare and warns us to look out. The Allies declare that they want no peace without victory. That is the return so far from President Wilson's surprising intrusion into European affairs.

The Meriden Record.

Germany has at last shown her hand and it reveals the reason for President Wilson's frantic efforts to stave off the inevitable. The serious import of document cannot be under estimated. If it does not mean war it signifies that the days of miracles have not passed.

The New London Telegraph.

There is no dodging the question that the most perilous situation of the war has arisen and the question suggests itself whether there may not hav been more after all to Secretary Lansing's "verge of war" speech than has hitherto been acknowledged.

INDIANA.

The Indianapolis Star.

A ruthless campaign, such as indicated in the Berlin announcement, will embitter the allied nations to such an extent that peace efforts of neutrals are likely to fall on deaf ears. The war rapidly is degenerating into a rough and tumble scramble in which the rights of neutrals and the laws of humanity count for nothing when they interfere with a belligerent.

MAINE.

The Waterville Sentinel.

Germany has cast prudence and restraint, regard for neutrals and the obligations of international law to the winds. It would be idle to deny that the United States stands face to face with the probability of war.

MARYLAND.

The Baltimore American.

The mailed fist cannot be shaken in the face of Uncle Sam with impunity because Germany goes hungry. If Germany intends to carry on the war it cannot make assailment upon the United States and count upon the nerveless activity that has doubtless been represented to Berlin as the characteristic American attitude.

The Baltimore Sun.

The government is now facing the most critical situation of the whole war. We cannot temporize. There must be no more illegal killing of American citizens on the high seas. If insistance upon this means a break with the Central Powers, then the break must come.

The Baltimore German Correspondent.

Our government has not kept its promise. It not only did not compel England to refrain from its infringement of the laws of humanity, but it permitted England to continue its illegal acts. The time, therefore, seems to be ripe when Germany, after futile attempts to bring about peace, finds itself confronted by a new condition regarding which it has reserved to itself liberty of action.

MASSACHUSETTS.

The Worcester Telegram.

It is a declaration of war against the United States sent in the form of an insult which red-blooded Americans cannot stand for. Also, it is assurance that Germany has almost reached its limit of war endurance, and takes this reckless method of making one more bluff to stop the war before German militarism is crushed.

The Boston Herald.

The German government cannot have forgotten how solemnly it was warned what would be the consequence of a continuance of the unrestricted submarine warfre which it formerly attempted. Are these warnings flouted? It may seem so, and in that case the Lansing phrase, 'nearer to the verge of war' looks more ominous than it did.

The Springfield Republican.

This means impossible conditions for the United States and no American in his senses would consider for a moment acquiescence in Germany's action. It is a grave question whether President Wilson should not hand to the German Ambassador his passports immediately.

The Boston Post.

The answer appears to be that the Kaiser and von Bethmann-Hollweg have lost their more sane and pacific grip on German affairs, and that the von Tirpitz and the junker element has triumphed. But to what avail? Nothing but humiliation and almost sure defeat can or should follow such a reversal to barbarism as this new declaration suggests.

WHEAT MARKETS RECOVERED FROM THURSDAY SLUMP

Cash Prices are Comparitively Steady—The Cattle Market

Wheat markets recovered from the panning tone of Thursday, and option prices were generally strong, except that May wheat took a sharp tumble towards the close as the result of a pit floor rumour that an American ship had been sunk. Cash prices are comparatively steady.

Cattle Markets.

The market opened strong on the early markets for the week, prices showing a substantial gain of from 25 to 40 cents over the previous week for choice heavy steers and best loads of good butcher cattle. Receipts for the midweek market included too large a proportion of half-fat medium-quality stuff, the demand slowed up a bit, and prices softened slightly for the poorer quality. Thursday and the closing brought a strong, active market for all classes of cattle, with prices fully at the top for the week for anything of quality.

Sheep and lambs closed steady to strong.

Hogs finished strong, again touching a new high record at $14 to $14.25, fed and watered.

Cattle Receipts.

Union Stock Yards—Total receipts for the week, 397 cars, 4,409 cattle, 513 calves, 9,900 hogs, 990 sheep and lambs, and 1,571 horses.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 Per Cent. In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A FREE PRESCRIPTION YOU CAN HAVE FILLED AND USED AT HOME.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eyestrain or other eye weaknesses? If so you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through a principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind and could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seemed clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and the expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes from two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and the inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time. Note: Another prominent physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists, and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen the eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family." It is sold in Peterboro by Warne Drug Co.

Would not be Without Zutoo Tablets At Any Cost

Such is the statement of Mr. A. O. Norton, of Boston, the largest Jack Manufacturer in the world. His voluntary testimonial regarding ZUTOO follows:

286 Congress St., Boston, Mass.

"I have been a sufferer from Headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all the so-called 'cures' on the market. Some months since my attention was called to Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a 'sick' or 'nervous' headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effects. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from Headache and they never failed to give quick relief. I always carry Zutoo Tablets in my grip on the road and WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM AT ANY COST."

Dealer Says American Eggs Can Be Sold Under the Domestic Supply at Profit.

LONDON, Jan. 25.—Owing to the importation in the last week of 15,000,000 eggs from America and Egypt the price of eggs in London markets, which had been gradually soaring for six months, has suddenly fallen.

While eggs a week ago to-day were selling at 90 cents to $1.14 a dozen, to-day the price dropped to $1.08 for the freshest variety and to 60 cents a dozen and even lower for other varieties. The average household egg that brought 90 cents a dozen a week ago is being sold to-day at 60 to 75 cents a dozen, according to the neighbourhood. A week ago there were almost no eggs in the market to be had for less than 5 cents each while to-day some of the larger markets are selling them as low as 3 cents, these being small, but none the less fresh.

That is what the importation of 15,000,000 eggs has done for London in one week. A wholesaler at the Tooley street market stated that another huge cargo was coming over from America next week, while another shipment was expected from Egypt. These together are expected to approximate 20,000,000 eggs. If they arrive there will be a further decline in the price of eggs in London.

Never before in England had eggs reached the price of $1.14 a dozen, for which they were selling before those 15,000,000 arrived from America and Egypt. Nine cent top notchers were of a variety guaranteed as "absolutely fresh laid," while others equally palatable but not laid within a day or so of reaching the market commanded 90 cents a dozen, or a trifle less, according to the neighbourhood. London and the market she caters to consume some 20,000,000 eggs a day, and England has been supplying the bulk of this supply during the last six months, owing to the difficulty of getting imports from America, Canada, Egypt and elsewhere.

Of the 15,000,000 eggs imported last week, 7,000,000 came from Egypt, and the rest from America. Canada shipped over some 12,000,000, but this was no more than her average weekly export to England, and was not counted in the aggregate of 15,000,000. As the Tooley street importer explained, the mere importations of 15,000,000 eggs in a single week would have hardly an appreciable effect on the market, except for a day or so if it were not assured that there would be more coming, for that quantity would be quickly absorbed by the market. But it is expected that there will be a steady supply from now on, both from America and from Egypt. American eggs were found selling for 4 cents each in Smithfield market, which compares favourably with prices at Washington market, New York. Elsewhere the prices of American eggs ranged from 4 to 5 cents each, while the smallest of the Egyptian eggs were on sale at some of the stalls at eight for a shilling, or 3 cents a piece.

Big Import Contracts.

Egg importers in London have been making big contracts with American firms for the last six months, one firm having given a standing order for 3,000,000 eggs a week. Up to now it has not been possible to fulfil such a big contract weekly, but importers are hopeful for the future.

"American eggs are selling in London to-day for less than in New York," remarked one dealer. "That is because contracts were made some time ago. We can buy American eggs cheaper than English, pay the freight over and sell them at prices under those of our English eggs, making a decent profit too."

LOCOMOTOR ATAXIA.

"My nerves were very bad, and I could not sleep at night, nor could I control my arms or legs," writes Mrs. Robert Bustard, Maxwell, N.B. "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cured me of what I believe was the early stage of locomotor ataxia or paralysis. I cannot describe what I suffered, but now I am entirely cured."

ROMANTIC CAREER ENDED

Soldier Killed Who Once Fought For the Turks

A romantic career has been closed by the death in action of Mr. Herbert Gerald Montagu while serving as a private in the Oxfordshire and Buckinghamshire Light Infantry. Mr. Montagu came into prominence during the war between Turkey and Italy, in which he fought with the Turks as a volunteer. A stir was caused by criticisms of Italian methods of warfare which he cabled home from Tripoli. Questions were asked in Parliament, and Mr. Montagu, who was then a second lieutenant on probation in the 5th Special Reserve Battalion Royal Fusiliers, was notified that his commission was cancelled. Invalided from Tripoli, he went to Constantinople, where he was decorated by the Sultan in recognition of the gallantry he had shown in the field.

In the present war Mr. Montagu, as a lieutenant in the Munster Fusiliers, took part in the Suvla Bay landing and other operations on the Gallipoli Peninsula. In the autumn of 1915 he returned to England suffering from wounds and nervous breakdown, and, owing to his illness, he resigned his commission. When he became fit for active service again he joined the Oxford and Bucks Light Infantry as a private.

Visored Hun in Action

After the steel helmet comes the visored casque. Germans in the trenches are now wearing shields to protect their faces against projectiles. The visored helmet is of steel, fastened by two belts of leather crossing behind the head, one going around the neck, the other over the temples. It is pierced by two small holes at the height of the eyes, and its lower edge is rolled over to the right, so as not to get in the way when shooting their rifles.

STURDY CHILDREN

Oxo Cubes mean health, strength and irrepressible vitality to the little folk, and an immense saving of time and trouble for mothers and nurses.

Oxo Cubes are also a splendid safeguard against the little ailments which give mothers such anxiety. A daily cup of Oxo during the long dark winter months will ward off many a chill, and lessen the danger of being exposed to damp, inclement weather.

An Oxo Cube in a cup of hot milk is a nourishing and easily-digested diet. For delicate and anæmic children it is invaluable.

TANK IS "BEHEMOTH" CREW MUST BE BRAVE

Momentum is Great Even at Low Speed, But Novel Warfare Has Trying Dangers

Describing the tanks a London Times' writer says: They are, as you know, armor-clad, but the thickness of their armor I must not tell, although the Germans doubtless know it. For their armament, it may vary as you please, but is of the machine gun type; and the guns, it is needless to say, can fire in all directions.

Each carries its commanding officer and a crew of driver and gunners; and they have at least room enough in their interior to have been able on at least one occasion, as you have been told, to bring home a German battalion commander as a prisoner inside.

Splendid Men Inside

To thrust oneself, cooped up in the beast's steel interior, into the maze of the enemy's trenches and strong positions, must be an exceedingly unpleasant job, but not a man, I believe, on any machine has yet behaved otherwise than splendidly.

Officially, the new craft call themselves his Majesty's land ships ("H.M.L.S."), and every one carries its own name—Delphine, Daphne, Deisie, Cordon Rouge, or Crème de Menthe—as proudly as any ship of the sea. But, whatever they call themselves, the army generally calls them "Tanks," that name, it is understood, being chosen as having the merit of being totally undescriptive.

Needs Little Speed

Even at a slow rate of speed a creature of this size travels with considerable momentum; and neither the brick wall of an ordinary house nor a tree of moderate size, if Behemoth gets a fair push at it, is much of an obstacle in his path. Lesser obstructions are only pleasing incidents in his journey, which he climbs over, as a slug climbs over a pebble, or squashes by his weight and passes on.

TOOK 102 PRISONERS

"Tedger" Jones of Cheshires Conducted His Own Campaign

Sergeant Tagg, of the R.A.M.C., who witnessed Private T. Jones, of Runcorn, win his Victoria Cross, described the amazing manner in which the Cheshire soldier took a hundred German prisoners. Here is his story: "We took a village and started to dig ourselves in. Some bullets began to fly all round. Jones turned to his officer and said, 'Let us get at them or there will be trouble.' The officer declined to sanction a charge. The shower of bullets continued, and the man next to Jones was hit. This seemed to annoy the man who was destined to win the V.C., who remarked to the officer: 'If I'm to be killed I'll be killed fighting, not digging.' He grabbed his rifle and walked over to the German trenches alone.

"Everyone expected him to go down instantly, and we learned later that one bullet had gone through his helmet and three through his tunic. We gave him up when he entered the German trench, but eight minutes later others of his comrades went across to the German trenches. When they got across they saw a sight they'll never forget. There was Tedger Jones standing by a hundred of the enemy in a big hollow. He was threatening them with bombs, and they all had their hands up. Jones told them to put on their coats, and his pals helped to round them up. They included an officer of the German Staff.

"From the prisoners we learned that he had bombarded the door of their dug-out, killing the first three who showed themselves. Then he ordered them to come out one by one with hands up, threatening instant death for disobedience. One by one they came out and lined up until 102 stood before the bomb-thrower in the attitude of surrender."

Davenport Rose From Ranks

To be the arbiter of what the British shall eat and drink is a considerable promotion for the son of an English small farmer, and later an errand boy in a grocery store. Lord Davenport's career is one more example of the truth that one does not need to be to the manor born to attain the greatest heights in the Old Country.

BECAUSE THERE'S A WAR

Sarcastic Reply of Soldier to Red-tape Weavers

An English clubman writes: Here is a little story, with a moral not hard to read, from one of our bases over the water. A certain commander thought out certain things which would be to the great advantage of the men under him; and, after perfecting his ideas, sent in indents for what he wanted. Weeks passed. Then things began to happen. There descended on him from various quarters papers of all sizes and shapes, all demanding why exactly he wanted the things he did, and what he wanted them for. He descended to the nearest town, bought the largest pencil he could find, and wrote across all the memos: "I want these things because there's a war on over here." Then he got them—a trifle late, certainly—but he got them.

Suffered With Heart For Ten Years

Would Nearly Smother

There is nothing that brings with it such fear of impending death as to wake up in the night with that awful sense of smothering. The uncertain and irregular heart action causes the greatest distress of both mind and body.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are the only remedy that can give prompt relief and effect a complete cure in cases of such severity.

They strengthen and invigorate the heart, so that it beats strong and regular, and tone up the nervous system so that the cause of so much anxiety becomes a thing of the past.

Mrs. M. O. McCready, Wapella, Sask., writes: "I am not much of a believer in medicines, but I feel that it is only right for me to let you know what your wonderful remedy has done for me, and in a very short time, too. I had suffered terribly with my heart for nearly ten years, could scarcely do any work, and would nearly smother at times. I had many remedies, some only relieving me for a time. I got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and felt so much better that I kept on using them, and can truthfully say I feel like a new woman.

"I would advise anyone with heart trouble to use them."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c, or three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

BRITISH WOMEN RUN A HOSPITAL BY THEMSELVES

LONDON, Feb. 2. — Endell street hospital, "manned" entirely by women from the operating room to the closed, black elevator that reeks of disinfectants, has won a name among the Tommies. There is something "different" about it, not measured in terms of appliances and appurtenances. The difference is atmosphere.

People about London see quiet, busy women moving through the crowds, and wearing brown uniforms with blue shoulder tabs, with the letters "W.H.C." Soldiers call them the welcome home corps, but they are the Women's Hospital Corps, who run the Endell Street Hospital all by themselves.

PERFORM 2,000 OPERATIONS.

The work of the corps in France during the early months of the war so conspicuous that the military authorities gave them a hospital in London, not far from the Covent Gardens.

In this huge building with its 570 beds, over 2,000 operations have been performed, and more than 3,000 X-ray photographs taken—all by the women.

WOMAN'S SOOTHING HAND.

Tommy knows there is nothing like the soft, soothing hand of a woman to stroke his forehead when the fever has got him. He knows that he will not get that treatment at the ordinary human repair shop. So if luck is with him he draws a berth in an Endell street ambulance.

SOME NEW PILLOWS.

The very latest in fancy pillows is the flower pillow. These new cushions are most attractive and at a suitable distance resemble a huge open flower very closely. For instance, one may have a pansy pillow made of purple and yellow satin, shading from the yellow centre to an almost black edge. The semblance of petals is gained by successions of puffings. The back of this pillow is plain, of pansy-leaf green satin.

A dahlia pillow is round, with a delicate orchid centre, the petals being simulated by rows of puffed magenta satin.

Oblong pillows of unusually large size are being covered with rich fabrics for use over the arm of a divan or chair or to be used as a bolster on a day bed according to the new scheme of interior decoration. Often these long oblong pillows, covered to match, tone in with or contrast with the general decorative scheme are used on the floor before davenports or large chairs as footrests.

GOOD THINGS TO KNOW.

Gingerbread requires rapid baking and should be set on the top shelf of the oven.

Many of the hat trimmings now have "stick ups" called whips. Many a woman has had the misfortune to break one of them on a hat and thought it would be necessary to take it off. Instead of doing this, mend it with sticking plaster. Cut a narrow strip of black plaster and wet it and wind it over the broken place, then let it dry. It stiffens and supports the whip, and the place cannot be noticed. White, pink, or any colour plaster to match the whip could be used.

HOME HEALTH CLUB

By DR. DAVID H. REEDER

Facts Concerning Epilepsy: — (By Dr. Wm. Held, 5th Installment.) — Internal secretion as factor in charging the system with intoxicating poisons is closely connected with epilepsy. Aside from the observation that epileptics readily succumb to attacks under the influence of emotions and shock, other facts have established the very intimate relation between secretion and emotion. Witness a person's inability to swallow or speak under the influence of excitement, as in stage fright. Based upon this phenomenon is the Chinese rice ordeal. It was customary to compel the accused coming before a judge, to eat a bowl of dry rice. The suspect's inability to do so was considered evidence of his guilt. Rice requires a good deal of saliva in the act of swallowing, but salivation was arrested under the influence of the accused's fear and emotion.

It is well known that as the result of fright bowel and bladder contents may be suddenly voided and that the thought of food may stimulate secretion of gastric juices or "make the mouth water" and that in severe cases of surgical or mental shock (emotion upon hearing tragic news) glandular activity may be so altered as to cause mental derangement. Not only may shock pervert the normal secretions to the end of causing disastrous results but there are many indications which compel the conclusion that shock under certain conditions, may also rearrange the defect and restore normal glandular activity. The subject is not merely interesting but too important in connection with epilepsy as to justify its dismissal at this point.

At a meeting of physicians one doctor asked me to reconcile the following occurrence with my theories and contentions regarding epilepsy: An epileptic afflicted several years and in whose case the ordinary remedies failed to relieve, fell from the roof of a building upon which he had been working and broke both legs. Dating from the accident the patient remained free from epileptic attacks for the years following. This incident strikingly substantiates the contentions as to cause and cure of epilepsy, championed by me for years. The shock inflicted (mental and physical) so altered glandular functions that they ceased in their inharmonious activity and started to pour into the system the required secretions. These substances neutralized epileptic poisons present and no longer did abnormal glandular secretion replenish the store of poisons in the blood. Recovery from epilepsy in this particular case, was brought about by stimulation of the glandular system (through the sympathetic nervous system) by virtue of the sustained shock. Spontaneous cures of epilepsy are not unknown. Epileptics who have been subjected to some infectious disease, as scarlet or typhoid, sometimes recovered from the fever and the epileptic condition simultaneously. This is due to antitoxins automatically formed in the system (under rearranged glandular function) by the combination of the organism of the particular infection and epileptic poisons.

We all know that the milk of a cow which has been abused, will often reject disastrously upon the infant partaking of such milk, causing colic and convulsions. Physicians know that the milk of a nervous mother, one who fails to live content, experiences shock or bears a great sorrow, that such milk will exert bad effects upon the nursing child. We well remember that in our boyhood days the appearance of jaundice in one of our playmates was followed by the advice of some neighbourly old woman to the effect that the patient should be frightened in order to "scare him out" of the trouble. And we recall how in cases where this advice was acted upon that many times the yellow complexion subsided promptly. This is not a brief for that form of treatment for jaundice, neither will I say that the patient did not recover in spite instead on account of the treatment. Whatever the case may have been, the advice had a healthy and scientific basis which doubtless was beyond the ken of the well meaning old lady, but still attached to the treatment. In all these and many other instances which could be cited, the intimate and most vital importance of internal secretion and emotion or shock, is demonstrated. The stranger is the attitude of those who, recognizing these facts, fail to extend its application or deductions to the field of nervous and mental cases or to epilepsy in particular with which we are here concerned. For the close and unbiased observer all these indications and the old woman's remedy, constituted the writing on the wall, enabling him to discern facts which escaped the superficial observer.

STYLES FOR SOUTHERN WEAR

They Forecast What will be Worn in Spring—The Colours and Materials

NEW YORK, February 3.—Although New York is still in the grip of winter, thoughts of lighter clothes to be worn under sunny skies begin to be forced on our attention. Immediately after the holiday season the shops begin to show a tempting array of thin dresses and light suits, for it is now that the exodus to warmer climes begins to take place. Those of us who either from choice or necessity must see the winter through in the cold regions, may still contemplate the styles that are offered for Southern wear, for they are a pretty accurate forecast of what will be worn when spring comes.

Blouse of Chiffon with Oyster-White Tussur Skirt.

The delicate lingerie dress this season is of Georgette, chiffon cloth or net — these for the more formal dresses, while for other purposes there are dainty, fine voiles, with new printed, woven or embroidered designs in the most attractive colorings imaginable. Net dresses are finely embroidered and trimmed with lace, while those of chiffon and Georgette are adorned with the ubiquitous embroidery in cross-stitch beads or darning-stitch.

The New Colours.

Green is one of the most fashionable colours for the coming season. It has already been launched by Paris with great success; furthermore, it is the true colour of spring and for that reason most appropriate for this season of the year. There is a delicate canary yellow used both for afternoon and evening gowns, which is quite new and promises to be very much favoured. Yellow in any shade seems to meet with approval. The deep mustard and citron shades are considered especially smart for sport clothes.

We have not been able to get away fro mark blue, for, in spite of many people being tired of it, Fashion considers it correct for the tailored suit and dress, and it is much too practical a colour to be discarded.

Blouses of Chiffon.

The sketch illustrates a blouse of chiffon made to be worn outside the skirt, a style which increases in popularity as time goes on. The neck line, going straight across the front and back from shoulder to shoulder, is also proving very popular. This line is not so hard when the material is softly shirred and an additional piece of plain chiffon is placed over the shoulder. Shirred pockets at the edge of the peplum, and the ribbon decoration ending in loops below the belt, which is finished with a prim, tailored bow directly in front are special style features worthy of consideration, for they appear in many of the new models, varying according to the nature of the design.

Blouses of satin and silk are also making their way among the very sheer materials which are now being used.

Recipes Worth Keeping at Hand

Recipes requested by readers are given below. The first one is for hot ham mince. To make this you will need one cupful of minced ham, one cupful of milk, one egg, one tablespoonful of cream, one tablespoonful of minced parsley, one teaspoonful of mustard. Mix the ham, parsley, mustard, cream and a little salt. Spread on buttered bread, dip in beaten egg, mixed with milk, and fry in butter.

PLUM PUDDING.

Into a large pan put one pound of chopped suet, one pound each of raisins and currants (floured), one-half pound of chopped citron, one-half pound of lemon and orange peel, one tablespoonful of cinnamon, one teaspoonful of cloves, salt, all-spice and nutmeg, one cupful of sugar, one half cupful of molasses in which is dissolved a teaspoonful of soda, six or eight well beaten eggs, one pound of bread crumbs, one half cupful of milk; mix together. To two cupfuls of flour add three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, and stir it gradually, making the mixture very stiff; it may require more flour. Take a square of heavy muslin — a flour sack is suitable—rounding off the corners. Wring tightly from cold water and flour well one side leaving a margin. Shake off the surplus flour. Heap the pudding in centre of flour side, draw up and tie, leaving room to swell. Plunge into already prepared boiling water, and boil for six hours. If the water stops boiling the pudding will become soggy. Hang away until wanted. Plunge once more into boiling water and boil for an hour. Cut the string and remove the cloth. Pour one tablespoonful of brandy on the top and touch with a match when carried to the table. Serve brandy sauce or lemon sauce and hard sauce with the pudding.

FISH SOUP WITH MACARONI.

Fry lightly in butter four ounces of chopped onion; add one of two tomatoes cut small, and then place the fish in the top. The head part is always the best for soup as it contains the greater part of gelatine. Now add the juice of a lemon and a bunch of savory herbs; cover and let this cook, without adding any water until nearly dry, then cover the fish with water, add salt and boil for a few minutes. Now remove the fish, which put aside for fish cakes or kedgeree. For each quart of soup use two ounces of macaroni, which should be parboiled first and then cut into inch length pieces. These require twenty minutes boiling in the soup, which is thickened a few minutes before the finish by adding two ounces of mixed butter for each quart. Then stir the soup till the butter is well dissolved and the soup boiling. Finish with a few grains of cayenne pepper and a teaspoonful of chopped parsley. Mixed butter is an equal quantity of butter and flour mixed with a fork.

The tam o'shanter crown is fashionable.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

CHILD'S BOX PLAITED DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

8117

This is one of the popular designs in children's frocks, showing the high place that is held by box plaits this season. It is cut in one piece from shoulder to lower edge and slashed at front for slipping on over the head.

A box plait is made in each front and each half of the back. These are just pressed into place and at slightly lowered waistline a belt is passed underneath them to gracefully adjust the fulness. The belt may be of contrasting goods to match the sailor collar, and the sleeves, gathered at the wrist, may be cuffed with the same material. Braid proves its popularity in trimming the dress, but it is a matter of choice whether this finish or a piping of fabric in opposing color be employed.

St. Nicholas cloth, cotton cheviot, gingham, linen or similar material may be chosen for a play garment; for school wool checks, serges, gabardines and plaids are favored fabrics. Several of these little frocks can be cut and finished in a short time. Being in one piece, there is little more to do than sew up a few seams, stitch cuffs and collar and arrange the plaits.

The dress pattern No. 8,117 cuts in sizes 4 to 10 years. To make in size 8 requires 2⅞ yards of 36-inch goods, ⅝ of a yard of contrasting and 4 yards of braid, or 3¼ yards all one material.

SUNDAY SERMON

For Those Who Do Not Go to Church

(By Jas. Sutherland)

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST.

1st Corinthians, 15th chap., 52nd verse.

The change spoken of in our last will be in the very instant, or not long after the raising up of those that sleep in Jesus, and those that are raised and thus changed shall meet together in the clouds, and there meet their Lord, to receive the crown of glory he will then bestow upon them. It will be some happiness that all the saints shall meet and remain together forever, but the principal happiness of heaven is to be forever with the Lord, to see him, live with him, and enjoy him forever. We have a personal reference from our Lord himself in regard to his coming to earth again. Matt. 24th chap. Our Lord having left the temple with his disciples, proceeded to the Mount of Olives, where he had a full view of the temple. The disciples asked him some questions concerning the events he had mentioned, viz., the destruction of the temple, the destruction of Jerusalem, and then concerning what was to happen till the end of the world—quoting from the commentators. This prophecy of our Lord has excited very great inquiry among commentators, and four opinions are entertained on this mysterious and most important subject. 1st, Confining it wholly to the approaching destruction of Jerusalem. 2nd, Including the second advent of Christ, in the regeneration, according to the Jewish expectation. 3rd, Substitutes for the latter the advent of Christ at the general judgment. 4th, Unites the three preceding. Hales considers the last opinion retains what is correct, rejects what is not so in the others and accords with the revelation to Daniel and St. John. He traces the whole three in the statement of Matthew; 1st, When shall these things be, 2nd, And what shall be the sign of thy presence; 3rd, And what the sign of the conclusion of the world. The second question is omitted by Luke and Mark, the third by Luke, which appears consistent with the plans of their gospels. Many valuable commentators consider that to verse 28th relates to the destruction of Jerusalem, and from thence the events to the final judgment are spoken of, including the second coming of Christ, but that they are purposely intermixed and left obscure. Hales considers verses 27, 30, 32, 42; Luke 21, 24, 33. 35; Mark, 28, 33, containing Christ's presence at the regeneration. He considers verses 31-46 of this chapter as signs of the end of the world, and the general judgment. Townsend adopts the second hypothesis, considering that the disciples viewed the coming of Christ and the end of the world, or age, as events nearly connected. Whitby says the Jewish rabbis taught at the coming of the Messiah there should be a resurrection of the just; the world should be wasted or ended, and a new one introduced for a thousand years; and after that eternity should succeed. The disciples ask when Christ shall come—not finally to judgment, but in the demonstration of the Messiah to produce this change.

Further light will be shown by refering to Mark 13 and Luke 21, on this very important passage. The disciples had asked concerning the times when these things should be. Christ gives them no answer to that, for it is not for us to know the times. Acts 1st chap., 7th verse. But they had asked what shall be the sign. That question he answers fully. The prophecy primarily respects the events near at hand, the destruction of Jerusalem, the period of the Jewish church and state, the calling of the Gentiles, and the setting up of Christ's kingdom in the world, but it also looks forward to the general judgment, and towards the close points more particularly to the latter. We observe that what Christ here said to his disciples tends more to engage their caution than to satisfy their curiosity, more to prepare them for the events that should happen. Christ warns them that deceivers will appear. They are more dangerous enemies to the church than persecutors. They would pretend to divine inspiration, and a spirit of prophecy when it was false. Such there had been in the days of Jeremiah, the prophet. Jer. 23, 16; Ezek. 13, 6, as was foretold Deut. 18, 1. There should appear false Christ's coming in Christ's name; they had their emissaries in all places, they showed great signs and wonders, by divination and black art.

Christ's miracles have the divine seal, and they confirm his doctrine; neither miracles nor multitudes are certain signs of a true church. They shall deceive, if it were possible, the very elect. Verse 24. Many shall be carried away from the true faith by their delusions, even those who were thought to stand fast. Men's knowledge, gifts, learning, eminent station, and long profession will not secure them; many will be deceived. Nothing but the almighty grace of God will be their safety.

Our Lord foretells wars and great commotions among the nations, verses 6, 7. When Christ was born there was universal peace in the empire; from the time that the Jews rejected Christ and he left their house desolate the sword never departed from them, because he had given it a charge against a wicked nation. This is the event of the day: wars and rumours of wars. See how terrible it comes to pass. Jer. 4, 19. Thou has heard, O my soul, the alarm of wars. Even the quiet in the land, and the least inquisitive after new things cannot but hear the rumours of war. See what comes of rejecting the Gospel. He says, See that ye be not troubled—is it possible to hear such sad news and not be troubled. Yes—when the heart is fixed, trusting in God, it is kept in peace and is not afraid even of evil tidings of war. There is need of constant care and watchfulness to keep trouble from the heart, but it is against the minds of Christ that his people should have troubled hearts. We may expect worse, because the end of these troubles is not yet—more vials of wrath must be poured out yet, therefore do not give away to fear and trouble but rather gather in all the spirit that you can to encounter what is yet before.

Do not conclude from such events that the end of the world is at hand. These have occurred again and again in different ages. Christ also foretells other judgments sent of God — famines, earthquakes, pestilences.

When God judges he will overcome. He will make a full end. 1 Sam 3, 12. Then he speaks of the persecution of his own people and ministers, and a general apostasy and decay in religion. Christ had first told his disciples when he first sent them out what hard things they should suffer, but they had hitherto experienced little of it. What shall we think of this world, when the best men have had the worst usage in it. It is the cause that makes the martyr and comforts him. It was for Christ's sake that they were thus hated. When the profession of Christianity begins to cost men dear, then many shall sit loose to it, grow weary of it, and go back and walk no more with Jesus. Persecuting times are discovering times; wolves in sheep's clothing will throw off their disguise; they shall betray one another and hate one another; perilous times, treachery and hatred shall have the ascendancy. Though the world lies in wickedness there are times and places where iniquity more abounds, and there may whose love grows cold; in the worst of times God has his faithful ones, that hold fast their integrity.

It is comforting to those who wish well to the cause of Christ that though some are offended, many will endure to the end. In this sermon I am speaking of Christ's own words in reference to his coming again, and the passages of Scripture bearing on it. I hope to make the talk more interesting as we go on.

Yours faithfully,
James Sutherland,

American Press Sees Grave Crisis

The Springfield Union.

Germany's reply to President Wilson's Senate address on 'peace without victory' invites the United States to give Ambassador von Bernstorff his walking papers. Germany sees that the war is lost. She has one chance remaining, and she purposes to take it. If the United States is drawn in at the finish she doesn't much care. All our note writing has been in vain.

MISSOURI.

The St. Louis Globe.

We are again confronted by the submarine question, which we had hoped was definitely and finally settled. This time, however, it is presented in such shape that there seems little probability of continuance of friendly relations between this country and Germany.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.

The Manchester Union.

We have simply taken the position of insisting on due and proper regard for the rights of American citizens by all the belligerents, and on that rock we must stand though the heavens fall. That we must be prepared to protect these rights goes without saying.

OHIO.

The Cleveland Leader

"By the plain terms of the note given out by the German government the United States is brought face to face with a new peril of war. The note is plainly in direct defiance of the United States. But the orders to submarine commanders may be mor restricted than the terms of the note indicate. This possibility may decide the issue between the United States and Germany.

The Cincinnai Freis Presse.

Germany has a right to wage an unrestricted undersea warfare—the right of self-defence. It is also Germany's duty to leave no means untried to end this awful carnage, and the submarines are Germany' weapon for this purpose. England is the only obstacle to peace. Germany's duty toward the neutrals is fulfilled by warning them off ships of belligerents and her duty toward the United States in particular by adding directions as to how American passenger steamships must proceed in order to reach their destination without danger.

PENNSYLVANIA.

The Philadelphia Public Ledger.

It is impossible to exaggerate the gravity of the issues raised by the German note or to ignore the indisputable fact that it brings the United States not only to the necessity of facing an immediate severance of diplomatic relations with Germany, but to the very verge of war. There can be no question of American rights and duties in this grave emergency.

The Philadelphia Inquirer.

It would be impossible to exaggerate the gravity of the situation which has been created by the note which was yesterday communicated to Ambassador Gerrard by the German government. It can hardly be necessary to say that the United States cannot acquiesce for a moment in the conditions thus created, that it cannot upon any ground or for any consideration excuse or condone or tolerate the heinous and abhorrent course which Germany has determined to pursue."

RHODE ISLAND.

The Providence Journal.

The world knows at last what Germany really means when she speaks of the freedom of the seas. This brutal and insolent pronouncement is only added proof that the boasted and blood-soaked policy of Prussia does not change. Here is German militarism in its final flower, the avowed intention to terrorize and murder, to repeat the Belgian infamy, the horror of the Lusitania, the whole gamut of crimes against civilization.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

The Sioux Falls Press.

It is inconceivable that the United States government standing as it consistently has from the beginning of this war for obedience to law, can give such tacit approval of lawlessness as would be implied by obedience to Germany's suggestion.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Lugubrious Race

By ALAN HINSDALE

A hearse drove up to the dock of the channel boat at Calais, followed by a carriage, out of which stepped a man of somber countenance, dressed in funeral black. Summoning a porter, he engaged him to bring assistants, and from the hearse an oblong box was removed and carried on to the boat. During the transit one of the men carelessly let go his hold, and the box came very near falling to the ground.

The mourner groaned. "Be be careful," he said. "That box contains the remains of my dear wife. She died a few days ago in Brussels, and I am taking her body to my home in Harwich, across the channel, to give it sepulture."

"Sorry, sir, that I lost my hold," replied the porter, evidently affected by the mourner's deep grief. "I won't do it again."

The mourner raised his handkerchief to his eyes to dry the tears that had started at the joggling of the dear remains and followed the bearers on to the boat, where he begged them to put down the box gently. They all seemed impressed by the exhibition of grief, and when the box touched the deck not a sound was to be heard. Wiping his eyes with one hand, with the other the mourner gave each one of them half a crown, and they dispersed, walking away with soft tread as if fearing to wound him by unseemly noise.

When the boat reached Harwich a customs officer came aboard. The mourner stepped up to him and, with trembling voice and difficulty in repressing his tears, said to him:

"My friend, I must ask your indulgence for one in trouble. That box contains the body of my beloved wife, who died abroad. I beg of you to see that I am spared any delay or difficulty in receiving a permit to remove it. The circumstances of my wife's death were extremely distressing. She died of a fever after a long and painful illness. Everything was done for her"—

"All right, sir," replied the official. "I'll see that you're put to no trouble, sir."

He put the customs mark on the box. The mourner, stifling his tears, slipped a sovereign into his hand and, turning to some dockhands, asked them to carry the box on to the dock. As the melancholy procession was passing over the gangplank a man stood on the dock scrutinizing those who came ashore. The mourner while passing him put his handkerchief to his face and sobbed.

A hearse stood near—it had evidently been spoken for—and the box was duly committed to it. The mourner entered a carriage, and the two vehicles were driven away.

They had scarcely started when the man who had stood by the gangplank entered another carriage and told the driver to follow them. Slowly the funeral cortege passed through the town and took a road leading to a cemetery. The mourner so far forgot his grief to turn and look through the glass in the back of the carriage and saw another carriage not far behind. Presently the funeral vehicles turned out of the main road. The mourner looked again and saw that the carriage behind also turned. Lowering a window, he said quickly:

"Jim, we're gone up!"

"What makes you think so?" asked the driver.

"I saw a Scotland Yard man by the gangway watching for us. He is in that carriage back there."

"Suppose we race him!"

In another moment the melancholy trot of a funeral procession was changed to a gallop. As soon as the new gait was begun the carriage in the rear also made a change. On went the hearse; on went the carriage containing the mourner, and on went the one containing the detective. Seeing a funeral party galloping over the ground, persons along the road stopped and gaped. Then when the rear carriage passed, scattering dust and dirt, it was evident that there was a race in progress.

Presently the hearse reached a cemetery. The gate was open and the driver turned in, shouting to several persons standing about to get out of this way. The avenues of the cemetery were tortuous and well adapted to leaving a pursuer in the lurch. After making a number of turns on two wheels, the driver of the hearse stopped before a vault, the door of which stood open, the mourner's carriage came up, the two drivers withdrew the box and hurried it into the vault. There the mourner remained with it, while the two drivers drove on. The mourner listened. In a few minutes he heard a carriage go by lickety split without stopping.

"For heaven's sake, get me out of this!" said the other in a guttural voice and broken French. "This jolting has nearly killed me."

The mourner produced a screwdriver, removed the top of the box, and out stepped a man well dressed and evidently a gentleman.

"Hadn't we better dig out?" he asked. "Wash ourselves and get—"

The Frenchman, who was an absconding bank cashier, pulled out a package of pills, gave them to the man who had arranged and conducted his escape, and, passing from the vault, they departed in different directions.

When Appetite Fails And Health Declines Follow This Suggestion

REQUIRES ONLY A COUPLE OF SMALL TABLETS AFTER MEALS TO FIX YOU UP AGAIN.

A New Blood-Feed Called Ferrozone Sure to Restore You Quickly.

"About three years ago," says Mr. Meehan, "I had the Grippe which left me in a very run-down condition that finally developed into Dyspepsia. I was unable to eat but a few things and had a craving for acid. I gave up treating with the doctors because they did not help me and on the advice of a friend used Ferrozone. It not only cured me of Dyspepsia and Biliousness, but has built up my strength to what it was before I had the Grippe. I can recommend Ferrozone as an ideal restorative."

Ferrozone gives you force, energy, vim.

Thousands use Ferrozone—they all feel better; try it yourself — sold in 50c. boxes, six for $2.50, at all dealers or direct from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Colds or Cough SHOULD NEVER BE NEGLECTED

If They Are, Some Serious Lung Trouble Are Sure To Follow

A cold or cough, if neglected, will sooner or later develop into some sort of lung trouble, so we would advise that you get rid of it before it becomes settled. For this purpose we know of nothing to equal Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This preparation has been on the market for the past twenty-five years, and has always given universal satisfaction.

Mr. Erwell Bolton, Wilton, Ont., writes: "Last winter I was caught in a storm and had to stay in a barn all night. I caught a severe cold which several medicines failed to cure. I went to some of the best doctors but these failed to do me any good. A friend advised me to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I used three bottles and they gave me instant relief."

When you ask for "Dr. Wood's" see that you get the genuine, put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, and bearing the name of The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont. Price 25c and 50c.

Still a Secret.

Mrs. Judkins was endeavoring to console her young married daughter, who was weeping over her husband's shortcomings. "What could I do, my dear? I married you to Septimus because he vowed he had the secret of making you happy."

"True, m-m-mamma. It was a se-se-secret, and he k-k-k-kept it!"

She Was Too.

The book canvasser advanced toward the door. Mrs. Flinn stood in the doorway with a huge stick in her hand and an ugly frown on her face.

"Good morning," said the stranger politely. "I'm looking for Mr. Flinn."

"So'm I!" announced Mrs. Flinn, getting a grip on her weapon.—London Answers.

Why Ammonia Cleans Clothes.

Ammonia, the great spot remover of the American people, is really a gas dissolved in water. It belongs to the alkali family, and on account of its mineral origin is the foe of all oils and grease, which explains the easy way it disposes of spots that soap and water cannot affect.

Reserved Too Soon.

"I thought she knew you?"

"I expect she does. I was engaged to her at one time."

"But she snubbed you!"

Improved the Opportunity.

"I'm sorry I asked the girl to clean the typewriter."

"Why?"

"She took fifteen minutes to clean the type and two hours to manicure her finger nails afterward."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Grand Canyon Rocks.

In the very bottom of the Grand Canyon lie the dark, inconspicuous rocks mostly tough crystalline granite gneiss and schist, the oldest in the canyon and among the oldest in the world. They were in part denuded as sands and muds in a sea, in part accumulated as lava flows and in part intruded beneath the surface as molten rock. All these materials became solidified, and later they were slowly heaved and crumpled into mountains, which were in time worn down by rain, rivers and perhaps the waves of the sea to a nearly level land surface. This surface finally sank beneath the sea and became the floor on which fresh sediments began to accumulate. Twice at least was this mighty cycle repeated in the Grand canyon region.

A Polite Doubt.

Herford was much impressed.

"How old did you say little Lena is?" he asked.

"Only three," answered the mother proudly.

"Do you know," said the humorist solemnly, "I have a suspicion that sometimes these children lie about their age."—McClure's Magazine.

SHORT-SELLING

Some people are at a loss to know the methods through which profits can be made on the stock market through short selling of stocks. The explanation is not an easy one to make. The following from the Albany Journal, comes as near to making the matter clear as it is possible to make it:

It is axiomatic that profit can be made only by selling a thing for more than one pays for it. The simplest process to accomplish the desired result is to do the buying when prices are lower than they are likely to be at some future time, and then wait until realization of the expected advance makes opportunity to sell at a higher price.

Short selling is simply a reversal of this process. The selling is done at a time when prices are higher than they are likely to be at a future time, and the buying when prices have declined. Manifestly, the difference between the prices is profit, just the same as it is when the buying precedes the selling.

It is the fact that as a rule, short sellers do not possess what they sell, that makes comprehension of the process difficult—to many. They cannot understand how anyone can sell something he hasn't. But the explanation of that is simple enough. The short seller borrows the stock which he sells, directly if he is a member of a Stock Exchange, or through a broker if he is an outside operator, and delivers the borrowed stock to the buyer. The lender of the stock is secured by the delivery, to him, of the purchase price, and the obligation of the seller to make up to him any advance in the price which may come before return of the stock.

When, sooner or later, the price of the stock declines, the seller and borrower buys as much as he has sold and borrowed for delivery, at the lower price. He returns this to the lender and receives his original selling price. His gain is the excess of that over the price which he paid in a lower market.

We have described a successful transaction. It may happen, of course, that the short seller is disappointed in his expectation that he will be able to buy the stock which he sold when he didn't have it, at a lower price. It may advance so much that he is unable, or deems it inadvisable to hold the transaction open indefinitely, for possible ultimate results in his favour. Then he must buy the stock for return to the lender, at a price higher than that which he paid for it, and the difference between selling price and the purchasing price is a loss to him, just as that difference is a loss to the speculator who buys when he believes a stock will advance sooner or later and instead it declines and he is forced or thinks it advisable, to sell at the lower price.

HUSKY PUPIL USED ROD ON TEACHER

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—Norman McCoy, an alleged unruly boy, who rebelled against his teacher is the central figure in a series of events which have caused a big stir in school section No. 17 of Gloucester township. The trouble arose when the teacher instead of the pupil was whipped and County Chief Hamilton was called.

An ordinary paper bag, inflated with wind from McCoy's lusty lungs was the primary cause of the situation that may terminate in a County Police court charge. Being when the bag in the class room. Miss Smith, the teacher, decided chastisement was due the offender, and undertook the job.

The noise caused by the explosion of the bag came as a surprise to the pupils, but what followed when McCoy, who is between thirteen and fifteen years of age, took the rod or strap away from Miss Smith and belabored her with her own instrument of punishment caused a mild riot.

McCoy, it is reported, on a former occasion when punishment was approaching, jumped through a window of the school house to escape.

County Chief Hamilton, who was called, lectured the pupils on the reported prevalence of profanity among them and told them of the serious consequences that could attend the pupil's assault on his teacher. McCoy, however, was not on hand to hear the address of the chief constable.

The complaint to Chief Hamilton was laid by School Trustee William Joy of the Village of Richmond, and though no charge has yet been laid against any of the pupils, Chief Hamilton said there was a possibility that some charges might arise.

Croup

"I don't think there is a more anxious time for parents than when their children have croup. Without they are prepared with Chamberlain's Cough Remedy they must wait for the doctor and listen to the choking, metallic cough and watch their little one gasping for breath.

"Croup" Chamberlain

You know the great danger of croup is the formation of a false membrane in the larynx, and until this is expelled relief cannot be obtained, and the spasmodic choking continues. Give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in frequent doses. It will loosen this membrane and cause the child to expel it by vomiting.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

is an absolutely safe and certain remedy for croup, and if given as soon as the child becomes hoarse, or even after the croupy cough appears, it will prevent the attack."

Yours for Health.—Granny Chamberlain

Problem of Looking After the Returned Soldiers is a Serious One for the City of Peterborough

Already nearly One Hundred Wounded or Disabled Men have returned from Overseas and their Number is Increasing each Week Employment must be found for these Men and many Men of Military Age and Fitness who are Inspecting Shells or doing similar work should be Removed to give Openings for the Boys who have Offered their Lives for Cause of Freedom. A Big Problem that will grow Bigger as War Drags on.

LIKE all other cities in Canada Peterborough is face to face with a problem that is serious enough to-day and will continue to grow more serious — the problem of what is to be done with our returned soldiers. Already nearly one hundred men wounded in France, or invalided home as medically unfit, have returned to Peterborough and to civilian life. More and more will come back as the war drags on, and places will have to be found for these men in our business and industrial life. A news despatch this week announced that the influx of wounded and medically unfit men is to be augmented, and that in the next three or four months 12,000 soldiers will return to the province of Ontario alone. There will be many Peterborough men among that number, and it is time that some more adequate system of looking after them when they return is put in vogue than at present exists.

Already returned men complain that it is difficult to find employment. In some cases of course the men themselves are to blame for this, but the employers of Peterborough must not make the mistake of putting all the returned men in one class, because a few of them apparently are looking for positions, of which the chief features are a maximum of pay with a minimum of work. The great majority of men returning to Peterborough want to work—they very properly look for a chance to better themselves, feeling very naturally that, having offered their lives for Canada and the Empire, they are entitled to recognition at the hands of their fellow-citizens. No men in Canada are deserving of more sympathetic, kindly and generous treatment than the brave fellows who did not hesitate when the call for men came, who left their employment and their homes and hurried off across the seas to strike a blow for the cause of freedom. All of them, of course, did not get to the firing line — that was not their fault. They were willing to go, and therefore are entitled to consideration.

There is a branch of the Soldiers' Aid Commission in Peterborough, but the greater part of the work seems to have been thrown upon the shoulders of Ald. Dobbin, who, in the management of the Patriotic Fund, has already a great task to look after. It is impossible for one individual to see that all the returned men secure suitable employment. A closer co-operation with the manufacturers of the city should be secured in some way. It is not an edifying sight or one that will help recruiting to see young men of military age and apparent physical fitness engaged in shell inspection work or similar employment, while returned soldiers, who could easily do this work—a great part of which is done in England by women—are walking the streets or forced to accept positions as labourers. Since the war broke out hundreds of men who had little or no knowledge of machinery have been taught one or more operations in shell making, and are now earning large wages. It is surely no more than reasonable on the part of returned soldiers that they demand that they be given a similar chance.

There are many men back from the front, apparently as good as ever, but who are unfitted for heavy work by reason of their experiences. Special consideration should be given to cases of this kind. Some of these men have been offered employment that was arduous and exhausting, and have manfully accepted, only to find themselves unable to do the work. Employers are apt to misjudge such men unless they take a sympathetic interest in each case, and are aware of the circumstances.

The Examiner has learned of a number of returned men who, unable to secure suitable employment, have re-enlisted in construction battalions or any units where the standard of physical fitness is not as high as for the fighting forces.

The problem is a serious one, and will become more and more grave. There is too much indifference to it in Peterborough, and some steps should be taken as soon as possible to make the matter of looking after the returned men one of the chief aims of our civic life.

A PICTURE-STORY OF HEROISM

1. Squeezed by two immense ice floes, the "Endurance" for two months was the centre of ice pressure. 2. For twelve months the ship and camp were on a drifting floe. 3. When the pressure was released the ship sank, the ice coming together again and snipping off the masts as if they were pipe stems. 4. Sir Ernest Shackleton and Mr. Frank Hurley at Patience Camp, cooking, the fuel being blubber and penguin skins. 5. On Elephant Island the party lived until rescued by Sir Ernest; for four and a half months they had fed on penguins. 6. The "Endurance" drifted in Waddell Sea for two months. Many times only the shifting of the wind saved the party from death. 7. Drifting on an ice floe, Sir Ernest Shackleton on the left, next is Frank Wild, second in command. 8. Help coming at last, after three unsuccessful attempts, on August 30, 1916. Sir Ernest, in the row-boat, seen in the distance.

Antics of a Sausage Balloon -- Resurrected Wind-Jammers

Truly a monster of modern war is this singular example of the French observation balloon, known as the "sausage." Seen from the back its bulging ruddera give it the appearance of some antediluvian animal. The balloon is being inflated This is a novel view of a huge French war balloon; the great bag, itself risen from the ground and held back only by the restraining ropes in the hands of the pigmy-like pollus who surround it. It is a matter of much speculation as to the number of submarines captured by the British. Many tales are afloat, some even tell of seeing hundreds, but, anyway, here's proof of one. A German submarine captured at sea is here seen in the left of a row of torpedo boats of the Allies. All photographed in an allied harbor.

Refugee German merchantmen in the harbor of Valparaiso, Chile. These vessels are self-interned in the sense that, while there is no law prohibiting them from putting to sea, they have sought the shelter of a neutral port to escape capture by the hostile ships of the Allies. The various south American harbors hold hundreds of these German merchantmen.

This busy scene is in the harbor of Callao, Peru, and shows the shipping activity in that port at the present time, an activity which is duplicated in nearly every South American port of importance. It is interesting to note that the sailing ships seen in this photograph are all wooden vessels, some of them being of great age.

A room in one of the French arsenals devoted to the production of the deadliest of light field guns, the famous French Seventy-five.

The placid Aisne River in the north of France, the near bank of which is held by the French and the far bank by the Germans.

Native snipers with the British army in German East Africa. This is one place regarding which the whole world, including Teutons, agree as to who is winning. (To right.)

"Automobile Row." A number of ambulances lined up for inspection in Paris. They were given to France as a result of a popular and highly successful subscription raised in Britain. It is these gifts, more than diplomatic words, that tie the real bonds of friendship.

Our photograph shows General Boyovitch, the chief of the Serbian headquarters staff, who are devoting their energies to regaining their lost country.

War pictures are so numerous that we become accustomed to them and are apt to forget the risks attendant in their taking. If we could realize the significance of this picture—the official photographer—on his rounds—we might be more appreciative of the pictorial records of the war.

The United States Breaks With Germany

BERNSTORFF IS TO GET HIS PASSPORTS

President Wilson Addresses The Congress

NO ALTERNATIVE BUT TO SEVER ALL RELATIONS WITH GERMANY STATES PRESIDENT

Chief Executive of the United States Announces to Congress This Afternoon That the German Ambassador Has Been Given His Passports---Any Overt Act on the Part of Germany Such as an Attack on an American Ship Will Lead to War ---President's Plain Warning to Germany.

WASHINGTON, February 3.—German Ambassador Von Bernstorff was handed his passports at 1:37 this afternoon just before President Wilson appeared before the joint session of the House and Senate. When the President closed he was met with a tremendous outbreak of cheering and applause from both sides of the Chamber and from the galleries, Republicans and Democrats alike.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—At 2.20 this afternoon President Wilson commenced his speech to Congress as follows:

"Gentlemen of the Congress,—The German Imperial Government, on the 31st of January, announced to the Government and to the governments of the other neutral nations that on and after the first day of February, the present month, it would adopt a policy with regard to the use of submarines against all shipping seeking to pass through certain designated areas of the high seas, to which it is clearly my duty to call your attention.

"Let me remind the Congress that on the 18th of April last, in view of the sinking on the 24th of March of the cross-Channel passenger steamer Sussex by a German submarine, without summons or warning, and the consequent loss of the lives of several citizens of the United States who were passengers aboard her, this Government addressed a note of warning and declaration of purpose to the Imperial German Government."

The President read Germany's reply on that occasion, which gave the following assurance: "In accordance with the general principles of visit and search and the destruction of merchant vessels recognized by international law, such vessels, both within and without the area, declared as a naval war zone, shall not be sunk without warning and without saving human lives unless these ships attempt to escape or resist."

To this the Government of the United States replied on the 8th of May accepting. Of course the assurances were given with some qualifications. "After reading Germany's declarations of unrestricted warfare, issued this week," the President said, "I think that you will agree with me that in view of this declaration, which suddenly and without prior intimation of any kind, deliberately withdraws the solemn assurance given in the Imperial Government's note of the 4th of May, 1916, this Government has no alternative consistent with the dignity and honour of the United States but to take the course, which in its note of the 18th of April, 1916, it announced that it would take in the event that the German Government did not declare and effect an abandonment of the methods of submarine warfare as it was then employing, and to which it now purposes again to resort. I have therefore directed the Secretary of State to announce to His Excellency the German Ambassador that all diplomatic relations between the United States and the German Empire are severed, and that the American Ambassador at Berlin will immediately be withdrawn, and, in accordance with this decision, to hand to His Excellency his passports.

"Notwithstanding this unexpected action of the German Government and this sudden and deeply deplorable renunciation of its assurances, given this Government at one of the most critical moments of tension in the relations of two Governments, I refuse to believe that it is the intention of the German authorities to do in fact what they have warned us, they will feel at liberty to do. I cannot bring myself to believe that they will indeed pay no regard to the ancient friendship between their people and our own. Only an actual overtact on their part will make me believe it even now.

"If this inveterate confidence on my part in the sobriety and prudent foresight of their purpose should unhappily prove unfounded, if American ships and American lives should in fact be sacrificed by their naval commanders in heedless contravention of the just and reasonable understanding of international law, and obvious dictates of humanity, I shall take the liberty of coming again before Congress to ask that authority be given me to use any means that may be necessary for the protection of our seamen and our people in the prosecution of their peaceful and legitimate errands on high seas. I can do nothing less.

"I take it for granted that all neutral governments will take the same course. We do not desire any hostile conflict with the Imperial German Government. We are sincere friends of the German people, and earnestly desire to remain at peace with the Government which speaks for them. We shall not believe that they are hostile to us unless and until we are obliged to believe it, and we purpose nothing more than a reasonable defense of the undoubted rights of our people.

"We wish to serve no selfish ends. We seek merely to stand true alike in thought and in action to the immemorial principles of our people which I sought to express in my address to the Senate only two weeks ago, seek merely to vindicate our right to liberty and justice and an unmolested life. These are the days of peace, not war. God grant we may not be challenged to defend them by acts of wilful injustice on the part of the Government of Germany."

WASHINGTON, February 3. — President Wilson announced at 10:30 to-day that he will address a joint session of Congress at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

It is definitely learned that a break with Germany has been agreed upon. Bernstorff will be handed his passports and be ordered home, and Gerard, the American Ambassador to Germany, also ordered home.

SERIOUS DAMAGE TO TRANSFORMERS IN FIRE AT THE C.G.E.

Oil Pits Used For Cooling Wires in Testing Operations Discovered Aflame and Water Caused Considerable Loss.

MAY REACH $50,000

Fire in the oil tanks in the transformer test department at the C.G.E. Company's plant last night about eight o'clock resulted in a fire loss unofficially estimated at between $25,000 and $50,000. Neither the origin of the blaze nor the loss suffered was known this morning by the Superintendent, Mr. E. G. Patterson who stated, however, that while the actual damage by fire would be about $3,000, valuable machines had been seriously injured and probably destroyed by water. This damage had not been compiled, but it might aggregate $50,000.

The oil pits in the transformer test are provided to cool the wires that become heated in the testing of finished transformers. It was stated that there was no current on at the time, hence the cause of the fire could not be attributed to that possible source.

The city and shop fire departments responded to the alarm. Chief Howard stated that he first used chemical tanks, but their five gallon capacities were insufficient to quickly smother the flames. The water was then resorted to. The possibilities of the fire were apparently exceedingly dangerous by reason of the quantity of oil in that department.

HOW YOU CAN HELP TO WIN THE WAR

The new War Savings Certificates which have been created by the Dominion Government to encourage thrift and economy and to give everyone an opportunity to assist in financing our war expenditure, are now on sale at every bank and money order post office in Canada. The $25.00 certificate sells for $21.50, $50.00 for $43.00, and the $100.00 for $86.00.

As an investment these certificates offer many attractive features—chief of which are the absolute security and the excellent interest return. For every $21.50 lent to the Government now, $25.00 will be returned at the end of three years.

There are two other features which are especially interesting to small investors. First, the certificates may be surrendered at any time, if the buyer should need his money; and second, each certificate is registered at Ottawa in the buyer's name and, if lost or stolen, is therefore valueless to anyone else.

But while they are excellent from an investment standpoint, the certificates should appeal strongly to Canadians because they offer to those who must serve at home a splendid opportunity for a most important patriotic service. The person who honestly saves to the extent of his ability and places his savings at the disposal of the Government by purchasing these certificates, may feel that he is having a direct share in feeding, equipping, and munitioning our Canadian soldiers, who are so nobly doing their part.

256th BATTALION MAY GET ORDERS TO MOBILIZE IMMEDIATELY

Already Sixteen Peterboro' Men Have Joined the Railway Construction Unit--Others Who Wish to Do So Should Not Hesitate--Church Parade For 247th Battalion ---To-day's General Military News.

The 256th Railway Construction Battalion has secured so far sixteen recruits in Peterborough with prospects bright for a number of others. Those who have been contemplating joining the battalion are warned however that they had better hurry as orders for the mobilization of the unit are expected at any time. The 256th offers many inducements to recruits inasmuch as they will get overseas quickly without long months of training and will go to France as a unit, while on the other hand the battalion offers a man the chance to work at his own trade and at the same time do his bit for the Empire. Skilled and unskilled labour, teamsters, men accustomed to track laying, pile-driving, dredging, bridge work, etc., is wanted.

Capt. Bishop, the Paymaster of the 256th was here this week to pay the local recruits who have all been outfitted here.

Two more Peterborough men joined the 256th yesterday in the persons of Edwin A. Barnes, 581 Harvey street, and Clarence Scholey, 527 Chamberlen Street. Sergt. Stanley has a number of other good prospects.

Mrs. Joseph Reynolds, 593 Patterson street, has received the following letter from her nephew:

Dear Aunt,—Just a line in answer to your letter which I received O.K., also photo. The children have grown so big I would hardly know them now. I am glad to be able to tell you that I am well and in the best of health. I see by the papers that there has been a bad fire at the Quaker Oats and a lot wounded and killed. Glad to hear the girls got out safe. The weather out here at present is very cold and wet. This month and next are the two worst; it will snow for a while and then turn to rain. I had a very good Christmas and New Year's. Hoping that the next will be with father and mother. This has been my second one in this country. I expect to have my pass to England soon; some have gone already. I read the last letter I sent you in the Examiner. It was all right, too. We lost poor Claude Manley about two months ago. His home was down in the south end of the city. His mother keeps store down near the Exhibition grounds. He was liked by all the boys and missed very much. All the rest of the boys are well. So I will close for this time, hoping that all are well and to hear from you in future. I remain,

Yours truly,
Joseph Reynolds.

POISONED NAILS AS PART OF MURDER PLAN

Conspirators Against Lloyd George and Chancellor of Exchequer McKenna on Trial---Confessed to Scotland Yard Agent.

THREE ARE WOMEN

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

DERBY, Eng., Feb. 3.— The three women and expert man chemist, whom the government charges plotted to kill Premier Lloyd George and Labour Minister Arthur Henderson, as well as Chancellor of Exchequer McKenna, told a Scotland Yard agent their scheme was to catch Lloyd George at a hotel and kill him by driving poison nails in his boots, and to catch McKenna unawares and drive poisoned nails into his skull.

The Attorney General declared that conspirators in the plot had told Crown agents that they also proposed to shoot poisoned arrows at Lloyd George while he was playing golf.

Attorney General Smith- said Mrs. Wheeldon told the Scotland Yard agents with curses, that Lloyd George and Henderson ought to be killed, and that she hoped soon to see heaps of them dead. She also showed these agents a phial which she claimed contained enough poison to kill 500 persons.

MUST MEET THE SUBMARINE PERIL BY A NEW STRATEGY

Britain Also Feels the Necessity of Confronting German Policy by Increased Food Production and Reduced Consumption.

IRELAND A SURPRISE

By T. P. O'Connor

LONDON, Feb. 3. — While President Wilson's address to the Senate has virtually receded into the background, his words "Peace without victory," continue to stick in the throats of most people, especially at a moment when everybody here, both in civil and military life, believe that Germany will never be brought to her senses until decisively defeated, and that the allies are now approaching the zenith of their strength while Germany is approaching the nadir of her hopes. These things seem to give confidence in the successful outcome of the allied advance in the coming Spring.

It is noted by independent critics that President Wilson's terms of peace resemble very closely the terms of the entente allies. However there is a belief on the part of some that President Wilson should demand Germany's definition of her terms, while others even hint that he has these terms already in his pocket.

Three things here stand out in relief: First, the full realisation of the submarine peril; second, the necessity of meeting it by a new naval strategy; thirdly, the necessity of confronting its worse possibilities by increased food production and lessened food consumption.

Although parliament meets in a few days little interest is taken in domestic politics except that everybody hails with pleasure the success of Speaker Lowthers in getting a conference of men of all shades of opinion to agree to a reasonable compromise on the most vexed question of suffrage, and except by suffragettes of the extreme type, most of the proposals, including the introduction of the principle of proportional representation are approved, and probably soon will be enacted into law.

IRELAND TRUE TO HISTORY.

Ireland is true to her history; she is once more giving us a big surprise. If there were anything in the world which I thought certain, it was that there could never be any attempt to solve the Home Rule problem in its early stages of existence, it was that it must begin with the partial and temporary partition of Ulster. Two things had become clear in the welter of contradictions during the last five years—first that the Ulster Orangemen would not touch a Home Rule Parliament in Dublin, and secondly that if they did not want to enter into such a parliament, no British Ministry would ever be found which would force them into it by guns and bullets.

The second proposition still remains good. It is nothing but the stupid blindness to facts that can leave any Irishman in doubt as to the fact that no Orangemen will ever be shot by a British soldier by way of getting him to go to Dublin for his parliament. I go further, and say that there is no sane and far-seeing Irishman who would desire if the soldiers and bullets could be got against the recalcitrant Irish Orangemen that even an Irish Government would be

A SOLID AND PROSPEROUS BANK.

A bank with a total of assets of 93 million dollars, may well be regarded as being in a very sound condition, and a prosperous one, too, when it is remembered that this total is composed of an addition to the assets of more than 5 millions in the past year, and an addition of 12 million dollars in the two years, 1915 and 1916. This is the condition revealed by the annual statement presented at the 46th yearly meeting of the Dominion Bank, and printed in another column. Two elements contributed to this splendid expansion—an increase of over two millions in note circulation and an increase of four and a half millions in deposits. These greatly increased funds were dealt with in a way to afford the greatest security to investors while meeting legitimate requirements of clients, and producing satisfactory profits for shareholders. The amount of public securities in the banks's hands shows a growth from the figures of 1915 — $1,167,000—to $7,500,000 in 1916, thus raising the readily liquidable assets of the bank from $33,600,000 to $37,625,000, a virtual increase of $5,000,000. These added securities consisted largely of "Canadian municipal securities and British, Foreign and Colonial public securities other than Canadian." The industrial and commercial activity of the country is reflected in the fact that the current Canadian loans and discounts of the Dominion Bank for 1916, showed a very substantial increase; and the satisfactory profits of $969,068, permitted, after providing for the usual reductions and contributions to special funds, the payment to the shareholders of a twelve per cent. dividend.

To the achievement of a very satisfactory year, a substantial quota was contributed by the local branch of the Dominion Bank, under the management of Mr. John Crane.

SAVING TO SERVE.

The Examiner has received a request from the Government, through the Department of Finance, to give publicity to its appeal, which appears on the front page of this issue, for popular investment in the new war savings certificates.

We accede to this request most willingly; for if we are successful in influencing the public to purchase these certificates several useful purposes will be served. In the first, and most important place, the purchase of these certificates embraces the opportunity for patriotic service, helping Canada carry on its share of the war—an opoprtunity of doing one's bit, that cannot be done in any other way. Then, this form of service involves no sacrifice, but on the other hand, is profitable in a double sense—profitable to the investor and to the country, and to the cause of the allies. Then, not the least important, is the impulse, moral, and material, created by doing a most important personal and national duty by saving and thrift—saving to serve.

A careful reading of the appeal will disclose the great advantages of the investment in war certificates. It provides absolutely good security and an excellent interest return; and provision is made whereby, if it is found necessary, part or the total amount of the certificate may be returned at any time. But, above all, the opportunity is presented by those at home, who can serve in no other way, to give effective patriotic assistance. As the appeal points out, the person who saves to the extent of his or her ability—and thousands, who are not saving now can do so if they will—and places these savings through the purchase of war certificates, at the disposal of the government, can feel that he or she is having a direct share in helping to victory—in feeding, equipping and providing with munitions our Canadian soldiers in the field, who are not only doing their part, but reflecting a credit upon Canada, which every citizen shares.

The Department's appeal of the Government should be heeded—"Buy a certificate to-day; or begin to save for one."

A QUESTION OF LOCAL STATESMANSHIP.

The excellent letter of Mr. Cunningham, which appeared in our columns a day or two ago, in regard to school savings banks, is felt by the Examiner as a valuable encouragement to our desire to stimulate the great interest of popular saving and thrift. The letter shows that he has thought of the subject, and when people begin to think the beginning of success appears. No one who thinks, even superficially, can fail to see the advantages of the establishment of the Penny Banks in connection with our schools. It is a subject that once thought out needs no argument to support it.

In the Examiner to-day is published the appeal of the government to the practice of saving and thrift—in the national interests; in the interests of helping the country in its time of need. Saving and thrift thus becomes a national duty. While, no doubt, the appeal of the government will be largely met, it would have been infinitely more promptly and fully met if during the past generation we had had Penny Banks in connection with our schools. In that event, the children's characters would have been impregnated with habits of thrift and saving—they would have grown up to be saving, prudent men and women. The present generation would have learned the right use of money, and, instead of wasting it all on frivolous pleasures and injurious luxuries, would, without denying themselves, have been able to have, and would have had, available savings to their credit to make the government war certificates enterprise a greater success. Not only that, but these habits would have made of them better men and women, better citizens, and more useful members of the community, and more serviceable to themselves and the state.

Saving and thrift taught—practically—in our schools, are therefore, a national and patriotic thing. It would be a continuous benefit to the pupils themselves, and the families to which they belong; and the habit of saving, the first, as well as the chief principle of thrift, would have been formed. The little savings accounts compiled in the schools, would be continued in adult life—saving a surplus after legitimate needs and legitimate enjoyments had been provided for, and depositing it in government banks, or in the savings departments of chartered banks, would become a habit; and where banks have deposits of dollars now they would have them in thousands.

The world as it wags at present, is prone to live from hand to mouth, in the literal as well as figurative way. Where there is one home in Peterborough, in which the coal bin holds the winter supply of coal, there are hundreds where there is hardly the week's of the primary conditions of success one cellar well stored with food supplies, there are hundreds where the next meal is in the grocer's shop or in the market place. In one case there has been saving and thrift, looking ahead—home preparedness; in the other, there has been lavish living, if not waste, and disregard of the requirements of the future—both proof of the vital advantage of saving and thrift and economy, which is, after all, simply knowledge and sense of the right use of money and means.

With the same principle of neglect of the primary conditions of success operating in civic and national life, it is evident that the best results and achievements are not possible. The wise man, the wise government or the wise administrators of any public interest, will look ahead, and not be content with keeping in the narrow rut of routine; but will look forward, and prepare for the future.

CAN'T BE TRUSTED.

President Wilson may be sincere in his desire to bring about permanent peace, but he is very much mistaken if he places any dependence in a treaty binding nations to observe the conditions that would make peace permanent. He should know by the past that a nation that regards solemn treaties as "scraps of paper," is not to be depended upon, especially when disregard of treaties is made dependent upon the question of advantage from breaking them. Germany has breach of faith as a fixed principle of its national policy.

Treitschke, the recognized propounder of German political morality or immorality, defines this policy in no unmistakable terms. After asserting that the State, replacing all individual and personal considerations of right or rights, is supreme, the only thing to be considered, he says, is:—

"A State cannot possibly bind its will for the future in respect to another State. The State has no higher judge above it, and will therefore conclude all its treaties with that silent reservation.'

That is to say a state (say Germany) cannot bind itself in a way that would later conflict with what it regarded as its advantage. The state recognises no higher—not even divine authority; its treaties must always be subject to a mental reservation involving this principle. Germany's policy is not to keep treaties, when breaking them better serits her purposes. It is to a nation like that President Wilson advises the world to trust as a signatory to an international compact, providing for permanent peace. The only way to secure permanetn peace after this war, is to reduce Germany to a condition of powerlessness to implement her barbarous ambition—with nations that will observe their pledged word as a police force to keep the national criminal on his good behaviour.

DECLARATION OF WAR.

"The German note is a virtual declaration of war on the United States and on all other neutral countries and upon all civilization. It is especially a defiance of the United States on account of the ultimatum which the President sent to Germany in the Sussex case and the series of protests which led up to it. Immediate and vigorous action by the President is imperative."—Buffalo Express.

FREE TRADE SAVED SITUATION.

A lot of people have killed and burned British free trade, but somehow it will not stay in the grave. Had Britain followed protectionist practices Germany might have triumphed. Britain's wealth, won in free trade all over the world, has financed the Allies.—The Globe.

WAR TAX SURPLUS.

The Dominion Postoffice Department in the past fiscal year had a surplus of $2,849,271, instead of a deficit, as the previous year, of about the same size, the improvement being due largely to the war stamp tax.—News-Despatch.

NATIONAL INTERESTS DEMAND NATIONAL CO-OPERATION AT HOME AS WELL AS IN THE TRENCHES

Our Home Statesmen and People Might Emulate Non-Partizan Attitude of Canadian Soldiers on the Battle Front

An important speech in which "a union of parties in Canada" was mentioned, was given by Newton Rowell last night in his own constituency of North Oxford, speaking on behalf of the fund for returned soldiers.

"This is the fiftieth anniversary of our Canadian confederation," he said. "His Excellency, the Governor General, in the Speech from the Throne, has suggested that it should be fittingly commemorated notwithstanding the war. If we were to ask the men at the front how they would suggest we should commemorate it, would they not remind us that Confederation was made possible by the union of parties in Canada to avert a national peril, and attain a great national ideal, and would they not ask us how could we more fittingly or more nobly commemorate this fiftieth anniversary than by the union of all parties to avert a still graver national peril, and to achieve a greater national ideal—a union which would secure a more concentrated effort in the prosecution of the war, a more adequate consideration of the problems growing out of the war, and help speed the day when Canada's sons shall return home again?"

Mr. Rowell prefaced this suggestion by asking whether we appreciated all that our gallant men at the front were suffering and sacrificing for us.

"They are there," he said, "in the battle line enduring unparalleled hardships and winning successes, which have immortalized the name of Canada. They have but one great purpose—to secure a victorious and enduring peace. They are anxious to get back to Canada, quite as anxious to get back as some people are to stay here. But they appreciate the magnitude of the struggle and are preparing to make the further sacrifices necessary to ensure victory. They are sacrificing everything for Canada. Have they not the right to expect that those who remain at home, leaders and people alike, will make corresponding sacrifices?"

"When I was at the front, I found they were not interested in mere questions of party politics at home, but they were deeply concerned about questions of recruiting, and reinforcements, and everything relating to the efficiency of our military administration."

In discussing the immediate aspect of the war, Mr. Rowell said that it appeared to be entering upon its most critical stage since the Battle of the Marne. Prussian militarism was proposing a new and murderous campaign against all travelling upon the high seas. "We might as well recognise," said Mr. Rowell, "that the German military authorities will stop at no crime which they think will help win the war, and as the pressure increases these crimes will grow more desperate."

Mr. Rowell discussed the drastic, and almost revolutionary measures being adopted by the British government and accepted by the British people.

"What evidence," he asked, "are we in Canada showing of a similar grave concern? When was food production so urgent, and when was it more difficult for the farmers to secure the necessary help? When was the demand for munitions so insistent and their production so vital? When did thrift and economy mean so much to Canada and the Empire as at this hour? And above all, when was need for men so pressing? What evidence have we of a nation-wide movement for these great objects or even for any of these great objects? What evidence can we expect without a strong, unified and inspiring national leadership?"

MR. CROTHERS AND THE PRICE OF MILK.

During the past few days the milk dealers of Montreal have, by common agreement, raised the price of milk from 10 cents per quart to 11 cents per quart. Clearly this move to increase the cost of one of the necessaries of life, despite the fact that the farmers deny that the price has been increased to the dealers, is a matter that calls for prompt action by the Minister of Labour (the Hon. Mr. Crothers). On November 10 last an Order-in-Council was passed at Ottawa making it unlawful for any persons to "conspire, combine, agree, or arrange with any other person to prevent, limit, or lessen the manufacture or production of any necessary of life, or to enhance the price thereof." The same Order-in-Council provides that "Any person who contravenes or fails to observe any of the provisions of these regulations shall be guilty of an indictable offence and liable upon indictment or upon summary conviction under Part XV of the Criminal Code to a penalty not exceeding $5,000, or to imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, or to both fine and imprisonment as specified." Mr. Crothers was made the responsible person for seeing that this law is enforced. What is he going to do about it?—Montreal Herald.

PLAIN TALKS ON MINING

BY MARK HARRIS

MARGIN TRADING

PERSONALLY I do not approve of margin trading as I consider it akin to gambling.

Many small investors after becoming inoculated with the "Get Rich Quick" germ take to margin trading as a short cut to wealth, but in time they find it but a trap where they rarely emerge with anything but experience.

The man who works hard for his money and manages to save a few hundred dollars with a view of investing should beware of margin trading for, in my opinion, investment and margin trading are diametrically opposed to each other.

Some brokers attempt to defend margin trading by saying it is the same thing as buying a house with a mortgage on it but this is not exactly true, for when you buy a house with a mortgage the home is yours as long as you pay interest on the mortgage, while the stock you purchase on margin can be sold by the broker at any time with or without notice.

No broker as a rule will sell out a client's stock until the margin is close to the exhausting point, but according to the rules of the game he can do so if he so elects.

What I dislike about margin trading is the fact that it sooner or later makes a gambler out of a man and in time he buys and sells securities simply to make a quick profit without giving intrinsic value, future earnings, or dividends any consideration.

Experience has taught me that fully 90 per cent. of investors lose their money in margin trading and any honest broker will confirm this statement with figures from his books.

The investor who buys on margin sooner or later loses his money, while the investor who buys outright seldom loses a penny providing he makes his purchase through some responsible brokerage house that gives clients honest advice.

Your own intelligence will convince you that it is far better to depend on your broker when selecting investments than on your own judgment, for where you have one opportunity of investigating a proposition the broker has twenty.

In addition the broker has ways and means of getting confidential information that is not open to the average investor, therefore, if you have the right kind of a broker, he will never recommend an investment unless he is fully satisfied it is meritorious in every way.

My firm (Mark Harris & Company) policy is to make their profits THROUGH their clients not OUT of them, and consequently they are just as careful in recommending a purchase to a client as they would be if their own money was involved.

We could make more money for a short time by advising margin trading, for margin trading means many additional commissions and commissions, as you know, are the backbone of a broker's business.

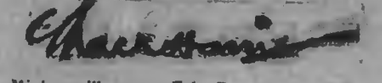
We want all the commissions we can honestly earn but we don't want them at the expense of our clientele and that is exactly what it would mean if we recommended margin trading.

We have the same clients on our books to-day that we had when we started business and we know these customers will remain with us as long as we treat them right.

These customers have made money through good investments recommended by the firm and they are contented and happy and so are we.

This condition would not prevail had we recommended margin trading.

Yours faithfully,



The next Plain Talk on Mining will appear Feb. 7.

PALE, FEEBLE GIRLS

Weakness Generally Comes on as Womanhood Approaches

Girls upon the threshold of womanhood often drift into a decline in spite of all care and attention. How often one sees girls who have been strong and lively become suddenly weak, depressed, irritable and listless. It is the dawn of womanhood—a crisis in the life of every girl—and prompt measures should be taken to keep the blood pure and rich with the red tint of health. If the blood is not healthy at this critical stage the body is weakened and grave disorders follow. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have saved thousands of young girls from what might have been lifelong invalidism or an early death. They are a blood-builder of unequalled richness, strengthening weak nerves and producing a liberal supply of red, healthy blood which every girl needs to sustain her strength. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved their great value over and over again to young women whose health, if indeed they did not save my bang, Haileybury Road, New Liskeard, Ont., says: "I have much reason to be grateful to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as they restored me to health, if indeed they did not save my life. In 1914 I began to feel run-down, and the doctor who was called in said that mine was a bad case of anaemia. I lost flesh, always felt tired, and I felt so nervous that I could scarcely hold a cup to drink. My heart would flutter alarmingly. The doctor did not seem to be able to help me at all, and my family and friends all thought that I was in a decline and could not recover. I was in bed for some weeks when an aunt came to see me and urged that I try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. My father got a supply, and by the time that I had taken three boxes there was a noticeable improvement, and from that on I steadily progressed towards recovery. I continued using the pills for some time longer, and they restored me to my old time health and strength. I shall never cease to praise this medicine and to urge all weak run down girls to give it a fair trial, as I have proved in my own case their great merit."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

MADAME BELAND DIES IN BELGIUM

Wife of Hon. Dr. Beland, M.P., Suffered Hun Cruelty

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux received a letter containing the news of the death in Belgium of Madame Beland, wife of Hon. Dr. Beland, M.P. for Beauce.

The case is a particularly tragic and pathetic one. Dr. Beland was on his honeymoon in Belgium when the war broke out. He at once offered in a current review. The deduction Antwerp and his young bride took to nursing the Belgian wounded. Later Dr. Beland was taken prisoner, after refusing to seek flight from Antwerp. He and his young wife were ruthlessly separated. Dr. Beland was taken to the interior of Germany where he has since remained, despite repeated efforts to secure his release or exchange. Now news has been received of the death of his bride.

THREE BLANK SHOTS! WHAT HAPPENS NEXT?

New York Herald Summarizes Previous Threats of President Wilson

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Under the heading "Three Blank Shots—What Next?" the New York Herald publishes the following summary of Wilson notes:

THE WARNING IN ADVANCE.

If the commanders of German vessels of war should destroy on the high seas an American vessel or the lives of American citizens it would be difficult for the Government of the United States to view the act in any other light than as an INDEFENSIBLE VIOLATION of Neutral Rights.

If such a deplorable situation should arise, the Government of the United States would be constrained to hold the Imperial German Government TO A STRICT ACCOUNTABILITY for such acts of its naval authorities and to take any steps it might be necessary to take to safeguard American lives and property and TO SECURE TO AMERICAN CITIZENS THE FULL ENJOYMENT OF THEIR ACKNOWLEDGED RIGHTS ON THE HIGH SEAS.—American note of February 10, 1915.

AFTER LUSITANIA MURDERS

American citizens ACT WITHIN THEIR INDISPUTABLE RIGHTS IN TAKING THEIR SHIPS AND IN TRAVELING WHEREVER THEIR LEGITIMATE BUSINESS CALLS THEM UPON THE HIGH SEAS, and exercise those rights in what should be the well-justified confidence that their lives will not be endangered by acts done in violation of universally acknowledged international obligations, and certainly in the confidence that their own Government will sustain them in the exercise of their rights * * * The Imperial German Government will not expect the Government of the United States to omit any word or ACT necessary to the performance of its sacred duty of maintaining the rights of the United States and its citizens and of safeguarding their free exercise and enjoyment.—American note of May 19, 1915.

THE SUSSEX "ULTIMATUM"

Unless the Imperial Government should NOW IMMEDIATELY declare AND EFFECT an abandonment of its present methods of submarine war fare against passenger and freight carrying vessels, the Government of the United States can have no other choice but TO SEVER DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH THE GERMAN EMPIRE ALTOGETHER. This action of Government of the United States contemplates with greatest reluctance but feels constrainted to take in behalf of humanity AND THE RIGHTS OF NEUTRAL NATIONS. —American note of April 19, 1916.

Wealthy Hotel Porter

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. — Thomas O'Dwyer, a hotel porter for twenty-five years, died in the Long Island College Hospital, leaving an estate of more than $100,000 to his four daughters. They live in Corona, Long Island. Straight from Tipperary, O'Dwyer started as a porter in the Colonnade Hotel, Philadelphia, in 1893. From there he went to the Rudolph, in Atlantic City. His first job in New York was at the Holland House. In 1904 he became head porter at the Hotel Astor, where he stayed until 1913, when the Hotel McAlpin was opened. He was head porter at the McAlpin until his death.

How You May Reduce Your Weight

Overstoutness is a very unwelcome condition, especially in the present day when slender figures are so fashionable, and every reader of this paper has noticed the tendency of some people to put on an excessive amount of fat.

If you should happen to be one of those whose weight is more than it should be, do not try to starve yourself, eat all you want, but go to your druggist and get oil of orlisse in capsule form, and take one with each meal.

Oil of orlisse increases the oxygen-carrying power of the blood and dissolves the fatty tissue, in many cases at nearly the rate of one pound a day. Be sure to get oil of orlisse in capsule form. It is sold only in the original sealed packages. Any good druggist has it or can have one box will be sent on receipt of $1.00, by money order, or registered letter. Goods will be sent in plain wrapper. Address: D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1246, Montreal, Canada.

Good-bye—trusting in you and me to see his Mother through while he, her natural support and defender, is somewhere in France, facing shot and shell for God, for right, and for native land.

Disaster To Quickly Overwhelm Foe Following Any Attempt To Retire

Hitherto many war critics have held the view that Germany at any time had the alternative of shortening her battle front by retirement and that thus as her armies declined in numbers she could still hold her foes at bay by withdrawing to this or that prepared line.

The time for such a shortening of the line is past, says Hillaire Belloc in a current review. The deduction is that as far as the western front is concerned, the war will end with the armies located about where they are now. Or putting it another way, when the German's western front crumples the war will be about over.

Belloc points out that on the east retirement would not shorten the line, that any drastic retirement there would cut the Constantinople railway. In addition any voluntary retirement on any front would have grave political effects for Germany at home and abroad.

Dealing with the western front, the enemy could shorten his lines by retirement, but Belloc doubts if after the gruelling he has received at the Somme and at Verdun his army has the morale to carry out such a difficult and complex operation without disaster. It could not be accomplished without enormous losses in material particularly heavy artillery, which is life and death in this war. It would involve loss in men probably greater than any possible saving in requirements which the shorter line would give. That operation is still "conceivable, but I think it is admittedly highly improbable," concludes Belloc.

GIRL HAS RECORD FOR RELIEF WORK IN GREAT BRITAIN

LONDON, Feb. 2.—It is difficult to say that one lady of great rank does more war work than another. Every one is engaged to greater or lesser degree, and in a perfect multitude of tasks of varying kinds. But there is one lady of famous family who seems to hold the record. She is Miss Celia Violet Macdonald of the Isles.

Miss Macdonald is the only daughter of Sir Alexander and Lady Macdonald of the Isles, who reside at Thorpe Hall, Yorkshire. At the moment Miss Macdonald, who has had many tasks since the war began, is running the Club for Girls of the Clerical Staff of the Royal Aircraft factory at Farnborough.

Here are many girls doing office work. Most of them are away from their own homes, and so Miss Macdonald established a club for them. Here they have a meeting place and small comforts.

TAUGHT POLICE MORSE CODE.

But Miss Macdonald has done far more interesting and unique things. Some months ago, at the request of the chief constable of the East riding, Miss Macdonald taught a number of policemen Morse code and semaphore signaling. Most of her pupils have passed two test examinations and received their flags, which comprise the reward of efficiency.

At her home in Yorkshire Miss Macdonald took a most active part in the organization of boy scouts. She handled the youngsters herself, and created an efficient body of these youths, who have been performing invaluable service. Among other things she established a miniature rifle range, and has been teaching the young idea how to shoot.

MOBILIZE NATION'S GIRLS

Now Miss Macdonald is transferring her attention to girls. A movement has been started with Gen Sir Robert Baden-Powell, founder of the Boy Scouts, leading, to mobilise the girls of the nation. The girls are to be called "girl guides," and the scheme has been adopted at the suggestion of [illegible] and Lady Baden-Powell.

They have named Miss Macdonald to be county commissioner of the East riding of Yorkshire, and after the first of the year she will take up the work.

If the orchard is not naturally protected from the wind by trees or by rising ground, a windbreak may be planted with good effect along the north and the west sides, or any other side from which the greatest injury is likely, the object being not to stop the wind altogether, but simply to check its velocity. The shelter trees should be at least 30 feet from the first row of apples.

The Wonderful Cherniavskys Coming Again

Will Visit Peterboro' on Monday, February 12th

Of the Cherniavskys, who are appearing here on Monday, 12th February, the Los Angeles Tribune critic says:

"A second hearing of the Cherniavskys only serves to intensify the first impression and justify the verdict sent last week. These brothers appeared in matinee at Trinity Auditorium Saturday afternoon, June 3rd, 1916, before a splendid house that exhibited the same enthusiasm as the evening audience. Words are a poor medium in which to translate genuine emotional elation, and that is what these artists succeeded in creating. One cannot help but feel that he has been privileged to hear something almost superhuman. To account for this it is necessary to take into consideration not the technical perfection alone, nor the intellectual concept, but something much deeper and bigger which lies behind it.

"They look at everything they undertake with the clear vision of inspired art and bring to each number the illuminated vision of their own spirit and not an attempt to portray any preconceived ideas of it; it is as if they expressed externally a bubbling, spontaneous conception which demanded outlet, or, in other words, it is the highest expression of genius, which, after all, is sui generis.

"Of course, the greatest element in the ensemble is the perfect sympathy as well as balance between the three. So perfect is the first that they tell me they never had a mark on their music, and if a cut seems advisable, as is occasionally the case, it is not necessary even to indicate it. They know intuitively and by tone colour when they reach the place whether it is the united desire to cut or to continue. The devotion and loyalty to each other are touching and evident to every one who meets them. The return engagement, which is decided for next fall, will see crowded houses.

"There is a spiritual quality in their music, which transcends everything else. It comes nearer to being disembodied harmony than it would seem possible any human could produce. When one comes to know these unusually gifted young musicians, one is conscious that there is a real basis for this impression, because they have the qualities of character and spirit which would be essential to the production of this effect. I again predict that their success in America will be phenomenal."

ARE BATHS NECESSARY?

This looks like a foolish question in this enlightened age, but there are nearly a million Americans who knew nothing of Internal Bathing a few years ago and are now eager to testify that they are fully as essential to health as External Baths.

By a purely natural process of properly using warm water, the "J. B. L. Cascade" sweeps ALL the poisonous waste from the Lower Intestine, which physicians agree is the cause of 95 per cent. of all human ailments.

It instantly removes constipation, properly regulates the bowels and prevents all the dragging-down which Biliousness and Liver Troubles always create.

E. W. Southall, M.D., of Geneseo, N.Y., writes:—

"I challenged the doctors in this town last week in regard to what I can do with your 'Cascade.' I can say for a truth that I know the reason for my success with many serious illnesses was due to having the bowels washed out once and sometimes twice a day. I only wish I could make the people in general believe in the efficiency of a good bowel washing. Sincerely yours."

The Wharne Drug Company, Peterborough have filled a tremendous demand for "J. B. L. Cascades" in the past few years, and will show and explain it to you on request. A free and interesting booklet on Internal Sunshine, "Why Man of To-day is Only 60 Per Cent. Efficient," can also be obtained for the asking. If you prefer, write to Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell, 184 College street, Toronto, for same.

British Skipper Sank a Submarine

Captain W. R. Miller Received a Reward of $5,000

BOSTON, Feb. 3.—A reward of $5,000 for sinking a German submarine in the Bay of Biscay some months ago has been paid to Captain W. R. Miller of the British freighter Clan Robertson, in port here from Liverpool, it became known. At the time of the encounter Captain Miller was in command of the British steamer Clan MacFayden, bound from India for London.

As the submarine approached and prepared to make an attack, the steamer fired a gun mounted on her forward deck. The submarine, it was said, lurched heavily and plunged to the bottom bow first.

A despatch from London last May said that the Clan MacFayden had arrived at Gravesend from Africa after a battle with two submarines, from which she suffered considerable damage. It was then reported that the officers of the vessel believed they had sunk one of the submarines by gunfire.

A reward for sinking submarines was offered last November by R. P. Houston M.P., a shipowner. In a letter to the London Times, Mr. Houston spoke of the case of a running fight between a British steamer (possibly the Clan MacFayden) and a German submarine in the Bay of Biscay, in which fourteen shots from the steamer sank the submarine. He offered a reward of $10,000 to shipmasters for each and every U-boat sunk between that date (Nov. 12) and May 31 next, the $10,000 to be divided proportionately among the master and crew. It will be noted that the Clan MacFayden's successful encounter took place six months before the reward was offered.

STORMY WEATHER HARD ON BABY

The stormy, blustering weather which we have during February and March, is extremely hard on children. Conditions make it necessary for the mother to keep them in the house. They are often confined to over-heated and badly ventilated rooms, and catch colds which rack their whole system. To guard against this a box of Baby's Own Tablets should be kept in the house and an occasional dose given the baby to keep his stomach and bowels working regularly. This will not fail to break up colds, and keep the health of the baby in good condition till the brighter days come along. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

EVERY HOME A UNIVERSITY

You can get undergraduate and post-graduate courses of lectures delivered free, in your homes, by leaders of the 20th century thought, if you will, or you can make the lecturer your private property for the sum of 25c, if you will.

What a wonderful thing is life is this power of willing, especially when coupled with a steadfast purpose. The human will is really the only wand strong enough to work magic. If it can't move mountains it can annihilate space and set the prophet down at the Pisgar height of his desire. How many a poor student by this divine gift, has found himself transported at last from the remote village or farm-house of his birth to the lecture-room of his ideal of learning, some master of knowledge like Roger Bacon, Erasmus, Isaac Newton, Lord Kelvin; and for the thousands of us busy men and women who can never hope to attend a university the magic of the printed page does as much or more, if we will.

If Hillaire Belloc or Gilbert Chesterton or John Masefield the poet were advertised to give an address in Peterborough he should draw a crowded house; yet in point of fact, all these celebrities are actually in Peterborough at the present time, giving not merely a lecture but a whole course of lectures. With a hundred other writers of equal or even greater ability, if not quite so much in the limelight at the moment, they registered about a fortnight ago at the Public Library and intend (as I understand) to make a permanent stay in our midst.

The Library has purchased the entire series of up-to-date little volumes, (106 so far, but with others in active preparation) known as the Home University Library. The purpose of the books is to put it within the power of all to attend a course of University lectures at their own fireside. This is not altogether a new idea; some 30 years ago in Great Britain a system of extension lectures from Oxford and Cambridge was devised, by which the citizens in any district could club together and have a course of lectures in history, science, art or literature delivered in their home town. In Canada, Queen's and other universities have organized a system of extra-mural courses, by which individuals all over the Dominion can have the cream of academic learning delivered regularly by the postman at their own front door. More recently, too, issues of the best encyclopaedias now include organized plans of reading, intended to be the equivalent of under-graduate or post-graduate courses at a university. But most of our readers probably do not possess a large encyclopaedia, and would have to sit for hours in the Reference Room of the Public Library in order to follow out such a scheme. In the Home University Library you have light little pocket volumes that you can carry home with you, like phonographic records—fancy getting six or eight hours of the brilliant wit of G. K. Chesterton, the imagination of John Masefield or the learning of Frederick Soddy for 25c.

Not long ago the present writer was staying at the home of a colleague whose son had just captured one of the first scholarships at Queen's. This earnest young student asked me to come and see his sanctum; he had something to show me; a surprise to spring I could see from his eagerness; and what do you think it was? There on his bedroom wall hung a little book case, six or eight feet of shelves. The British Museum, you know, has only fifty miles of shelves, so he was getting on. His library was almost entirely made up of carefully selected volumes of the two most wonderful enterprises in the world; the "Everyman" and the "Home University" at 25c a volume. In the "Everyman" are over 700 works of the greatest thinkers and writers in the world's history, but it is limited to reprints and does not include the thought of to-day; that is the only gap in all the ranks of "Everyman", the only breach through which beleaguered ignorance could escape, and into that gap has now been poured under the generalship of four universities a gallant company of veterans, active, expert, invincible, the hundred immortals of the Home University Library.

The idea is due to the four editors, Gilbert Murray, of Oxford; J. Arthur Thomson of Aberdeen; Herbert Fisher, of Sheffield, and William T. Brewster of Columbia; each represents not merely a great university but a distinct line of thought, culture and the classics, science and efficiency, history, and the English language. The volumes so far issued, enable the reader to pursue an academic course under the most brilliant lecturers of the day in History and Geography, Philosophy and Religion, Sociology, Science, Literature and Art. The books are small, each volume contains about 250 pages and may be read in a few hours; they are written in popular style, bright and suggestive, avoiding the pitfalls of technicality and stodginess; indeed, they provide a brilliant illustration of the truth that only a master can handle his subject with a touch that is light and deft as well as controlling.

Some of us in these days of storm may have felt (in spite of all sheet-anchors), a sense of drifting; the daily papers are full of contradictions; it seems as if politics, economics, the whole social system were river asunder. Why not go in for a regular course of quiet reading and study on the history of Europe or the life and activities of the great British Empire to which we belong? Here are some titles:—

1. Mediaeval Europe, History of England, History of our Time, Short History of War and Peace, Master Mariners, Navy and Sea Power, French Revolution, Napoleon, Canada, Problems of India, Germany of to-day, Belgium, Poland.

2. Parliament, Conservatism, Liberalism, Socialist Movement, Political Economy, Agriculture, Problems of Village Life, Evolution of Industry, Unemployment, Co-partnership and Profit-sharing, Stock Exchange.

Or perhaps you would like to give definite aim and purpose to a taste for science; here are some titles:—

3. Astronomy, Making of the Earth, Origin and Nature of Life, Evolution, Evolution of Plants, Plant Life, Animal World, Human Body, Anthropology, Physiology, Psychology, Psychical Research.

Or maybe the hobby is belles letters:—

4. English Language, Writing of English, English Literature (Mediaeval), English Literature (modern), English Literature (Modern), Literature, Shakespeare, Milton, Dr. Johnson and his circle, Victorian Age, Shelley, Godwin and their circle, William Morris, his work and influence, Great writers of America, Landmarks in French Literature, Literature of Germany, Outline of Russian Literature.

Three hundred or more volumes include about a dozen on Religion and Philosophy. The rest are fairly equally distributed (a score or more of titles to each) among four great departments of knowledge, or Faculties, to use an academic term: History, Sociology, Science and Literature. In more ways than one they represent the last word in modern book-making; each volume contains an exhaustive index and a bibliography selected by the author as most useful, suggestive or authoritative on the subject under discussion. It is hoped that our readers will make use of these bibliographies or lists of supplementary books and ask at the Receiving desk whether any they fancy are on the shelves; if not, they might be entered in the Suggestion book. This would enable the Library Committee to chime with the wishes of the reading public in their monthly purchases of new books.

British Women Close Castles; Are Economizing

LONDON, Feb. 2.—A month ago the women's branch of the National War Savings Committee sent a questionaire to peeresses and the wives of members of parliament. About 200 replies have been received. A number of them show that the women are at least endeavoring to cut down expenses. One peeress writes that she and her husband are:

"Cutting down indoors, dispensing with all luxury, doing without a maid or valet, tobacco, spirits, chocolates, theatres, motoring, travelling in the holidays, visiting, entertaining, shooting, horses, economizing in the matter of clothing and evening dress."

CASTLE IS CLOSED.

The writer continues that their castle is closed, only a few rooms in one corner of the building being occupied.

"We have moved into small rooms, and dismissed all our staff except a few loyal women, thus making drastic reductions possible in every direction. All the fireplaces are being rearranged with fire bricks and coal savers. Outdoors no men eligible for military service are kept on the place.

The wages of our work people have been raised to meet the higher cost of living. Our cottagers pay no rent, and get large supplies of wood and coal besides. Girls have been employed in place of men in the gardens.

"Potatoes are grown in the flower beds and the grass from the lawns is used for hay. The number of deer in the park have been systematically reduced to save the food supply."

NO BEDROOM FIRE.

The wife of a member of parliament writes:

"Personally, I have economised in every way I can. I have now only three servants, have given up my own maid and motor car, never eat more than once a day, have no bedroom fire, buy no clothes.

"I have put every penny in war loan exchequer bonds, and have sold all my American securities, but I do not find that my example makes the slightest effect upon my surroundings. We have held meetings in my husband's constituency, but the people hated them, as they are having the time of their lives."

Policemen Take To the Woods

BRANTFORD, Feb. 3.—Following a talk on enlisting from the chief of police, Chas. Slemin, it is stated two of the members of the force have resigned, and others are contemplating a similar action. It is said that the chief called the men together and pointed out to them the nation's peril and their duty. As a result P. C. Teehan turned in his uniform, and another man, about to resign, consented to remain until his place was filled. Others are said to be looking for work in munition factories.

Chief of Police Slemin was granted a salary increase of $250.

SHADOWS

By Canadian Overseas

Children are often afraid of shadows. He remembered perfectly, when a small boy, that in the evening and at night shadows followed him everywhere. In his bedroom the cord of the blind cast a long wavering shadow on the ceiling, that in the uncertain light looked like a spider's lanky moving legs. They used to frighten him horribly and no amount of light and reasoning could comfort him, when he woke and saw the awful little threatening line. But, that in these later years, when he was grown up, a shadow should have power over him to frighten him was absurd.

But it was true. He had an uneasy feeling that he was being watched and that this crooked thing that counterfeited his form and sidled about him wherever he went was the watcher, the sentinel always on duty. Even in a darkened room or in the middle of the night, he felt it there, only awaiting light to resume its visible guard.

In the diffused light of a cloudy day it lured, a dingy blur at his feet, in direct sunlight it defied him boldly; if he paused to glance at a dimly illuminated shop window, he was conscious of it, extended and distorted, its head lost in obscurity behind him.

He told no one of this persistent sensation, partly because he disliked admitting such childish fear and partly because he felt it was due to nerves. His period of convalescence drew to its close, he had no good reason for prolonging it and was rather glad when the business of preparing for the return to his men at the front, caused this ridiculous worry to recede.

As he sat in his dug-out one evening not far from the front line writing a letter, the flicker of his candle flame threw a grotesque silhouette of himself on the boxes which lined the wall beside him and the uncanny sense of being watched by it, again took hold of him. In turn he watched the shadow, it seemed to be watching him and wrote when he wrote. It was all very annoying.

At that moment the doctor came in. They greeted each other, and as the two shook hands he saw with the tail of his eye, his shadow shake hands with the doctor's. The doctor passed on to an advance dressing station where much work awaited him. Left alone, he finished his letter and then blowing out the candle went through the communication trench, leading to the firing line to see his men who were to help him that night on a dangerous bit of work. It was dark and quiet; they moved to and fro in the gloom like shadows themselves, and he felt very high-strung as he and his comrades climbed over the parapet and began to stumble slowly forward on the wet, slushy ground. He felt the shadow again, yet without light there could be no shadow. For some distance he crept onward alone, then up shot a star-shell and he went flat. But the opposite trench was suspicious and began straffing "No Man's Land" with machine guns. He heard bullets whipping the mud about him. He was on a slight elevation, and in the brilliance of successive star shells, afraid to move. In the light glow he saw the earth all around him, cold and pitted, like a human landscape mine craters, chains of holes stretching into the distance, full of darkness.

He wondered where the other fellows were—that whinnying wave of bullets whissed about him.

A blow, like a severe punch caught him on the shoulder. He rolled into a slimy cavity, and lay still. An hour passed; two hours. He hoped the others had returned safely. How the shells, our shells howled overhead. It was very dark now.

Sounds of shouting, of heavy running feet came to him; it was the attack. He distinguished shadows that squelched past him, but he would not cry out; "let the men go on, he thought and good luck go with them." The shouting died away.

The sky grew palid, then grey, then flushed with rosy clouds. He closed his eyes for he felt very weary. Suddenly he was roused with, "there he is. Can you see us, sir? We've come to look for you, first chance. Those machine guns—we've got them now. And the heavies are straffing too far back; but there isn't much time to lose, Drink this Sir!" He tried to speak but could not. Something was congealed on his lips—his side hurt, and when they lifted him he fainted with the agony.

He was brought in and landed over to the doctor. As he lay there helpless he watched the doctor's shadow with which his own had shaken hands. It moved about; picked up other shadows, put them down; it seemed to watch him to grimace at him.

Presently he was under the anaesthetic and his spirit saw a multitude of shadows, and to each of them, he put the mystic question, "Are you good or evil." And they all answered. "When you stand in the light we come." What did that mean? Light was good, it caused shadow; can good cause evil? Cold and expressionless the spectres crowded past him; the light grew—he put out his head to touch them, they receded and the light became dazzling. He opened his eyes. The doctor was bending over him. Soon he fell asleep and in that deep slumber the shadowy watchers left him, for he had travelled through the Land of the Shadow and after that he was no longer afraid of the little phantom of himself when he stood in the light.—J.E.H. Kenilworth Onions.

Cut the peeled onions in slices and soak in milk ten minutes. Then dip in flour and immerse in boiling fat hot enough to brown instantly. You cannot keep the slices whole after they have fried six or seven minutes. Take out with a skimmer, lay on brown paper a few minutes to absorb all fat, and serve with steak or veal cutlets.

Bulgarians Hungry; Ally's Plight Worse

The Rev. Dr. Count Says Austria-Hungary Needs Food—Desire For Peace Now.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—The Rev. Dr. Elmer Ernest Count, of the Methodist Episcopal Board of Foreign Missions, who returned here on the Swedish-American liner Stockholm after spending four years at Sofia, said that the Bulgarian people were in favour of peace now, and were badly in need of food.

"They have sugar tickets and bread tickets," he said, "and also have meatless days. There is a shortage of soap, sugar, and salt throughout Bulgaria, which is felt very much by the peasants, but they are much better off than the peasants in Austria-Hungary.

"I have been through four wars in Bulgaria, the first and seconds wars with Turkey, the war with Serbia, and this one, which is by far the worst of them all.

"I realised a year ago what was going to happen in regard to food and general living conditions in Bulgaria, and took my family back to America and left them at Ellenville, N. Y., when I went back.

"Just before I left Sofia a high official of the Government informed me that Bulgaria had been forced into the war by the diplomatic blunders on the part of the Allies. The natural sentiment in Bulgaria, he said, was in favour of Russia, as her people are of the Slavic race. All that Bulgaria demanded was that the Treaty of London should be observed. Had the Allies sent to the assistance of Serbia one-half of the force they now have at Salonika, Bulgaria would have remained neutral.

"'We entered the war,' this official concluded, 'to regain Macedonia, and now that that has been accomplished Bulgaria does not wish further hostilities.'

"This is proved by the fact that the Bulgarian Government has refused to send any troops to aid the Teutonic forces or to take part in any campaign at the present time outside Bulgarian territory."

Dr. Count said that he had forty-eight hours' time allowance to pass through Austrian territory on the Balkan express and did not have any trouble. At Warnemunde, the frontier station from Germany into Denmark, where travellers have been stripped and subjected to all kinds of indignities, he was allowed to keep on his overcoat after he had piled the contents of his pockets on the table in the customs house.

NOT AFRAID OF SUBMARINE MENACE

LIVERPOOL, FEB. 3.—On being asked as to the general attitude of Liverpool ship owners in the face of the German threat to shipping, the manager of one of the largest shipping firms said:

"I do not think there will be any chance. Personally I should not hesitate to send a dozen ships to sea to-morrow at my own risk. For two years the Germans have done their worst. There is no cause for alarm. The Germans have made threats before which they have not been able to make good."

Other ship owners expressed the opinion that the new British mine fields would curb the operations of submarines, while patrols would do the rest. The underwriting business is going on as though nothing had happened.

AMERICANS RUSH FOR HOME.

London, Feb. 3.—The German note has resulted in a rush of Americans to procure passage to New York on the first available boat. Large numbers who expected to sail within a fortnight have decided to leave Saturday and before noon all the first-class accommodation on the steamers was booked.

Among those applying for passage are 120 persons who intended to sail on the Holland-America liner Nieuw Amsterdam, which was to have left Falmouth on Tuesday. This vessel, however, has been recalled to Rotterdam, whence she sailed two days ago.

Admiral Lacaze declared that the advantage held by the Germans in the submarine field could not, in his opinion, be maintained. "For the triumph and boast of being able thanks to their submarines, to turn the blockade against the allies. It is a colossal self-deception. They pretend to gain victory by terror, but they terrify no one, neither allies nor neutrals."

RED CROSS CONCERT AT VILLIERS A SUCCESS

A very enjoyable and successful concert under the auspices of the Red Cross Society, was held at Villiers last night. In spite of the extreme cold the attendance was large and the programme in which a number of Peterborough young people took part, was greatly enjoyed. Capt. Nelton and Lieut. Latimer of the 247th Battalion, and Sergt. Peter Victor of the 2nd Battalion, gave interesting addresses and were warmly applauded. The proceeds amounted to $35.00.

MUST MEET THE SUBMARINE PERIL

justified in using them. That would indeed be the true partition and the permanent partition, for it would dig a new gulf of blood and hate between the two races and the two creeds, and would therefore drive the sections of the population farther apart than ever.

But on the other hand, the first proposition, namely that the Orangemen could never be got to go to a parliament in Dublin, may require revision. I held to that opinion strongly—and even vehemently—and therefore I was strongly in favour of the Lloyd George proposals though there was such a strong hostility to these proposals in so many sections of Irish opinion. I was strengthened in this view by the fact that so much of the hostility—though by no means all—was due to dishonesty, to the spirit of faction, to the desire then widespread, and the hope then strongly held, that the Constitutional movement, the Irish Party and Home Rule could be destroyed under the mask of super-patriotism.

IRISH PARLIAMENT FEASIBLE.

I must avow that my views have been falsified by recent events, and that now it has become possible to regard as feasible the establishment of an Irish Parliament, not for a part of Ireland, but for all Ireland. It is difficult to trace all the many factors which have combined to bring about this extraordinary transformation in the Irish situation. The first factor, of course, in this as in everything else now in Great Britain is the war. Here America plays a part. All the really serious statesmen in the cabinet have recognised for a long time that so long as the Irish problem remained unsettled it was impossible to get the whole hearted support of America; and the same statesmen did not require recent events to bring home to their minds what an immense peril to the allies a hostile or semi-friendly America would be to them in the war, and equally what an immense addition to their strength would be their whole-hearted support. President Wilson's note, regarded universally here as a point for Germany—though nobody doubted the good will and the honesty of the President—helped to make people here realise the importance of America's part in the final result of the war.

Then there was the drying up of all recruiting in Ireland, especially since the rebellion. This was felt the more because recently the war correspondents have been allowed, indeed encouraged, to depart from the insane policy imposed on the press in the days of Lord Kitchener—the policy of giving as little mention as possible of the deeds of individual regiments.

That hushing up of the most heroic deeds of the Irish regiments was one of the many factors that went to make up the rebellion. Just you have in juxtaposition in the London papers some accounts of glowing deeds of arms by the Irish soldier, and the lament that this incomparable material has for the moment been lost to the British army. That is one of the reasons why Lloyd George has constantly insisted that the settlement of the Irish question was a great and necessary war measure.

How is the insoluble to be solved? How are the Orangemen to be got to do that which they have vowed so often they will never do? Here, curiously enough, a fact common to both North and South comes in. It was the weakness of the electoral arrangements under the existing Home Rule Act that representation was given in excess to the agricultural constituencies. It was another weakness that in the South, the Unionists, some quarter of a million in numbers, were left with only two members for the Irish House of Commons—the two members for the Dublin university. If the partition scheme had been carried out these Protestants would have been deprived of the immense support both in numbers and in quality, which they would have received from their co-religionists in the North. But nobody in Ireland wants an Irish Parliament dominated, monopolised by the farmers, or indeed by any other single class of the community. Farmers have very great virtues; they form the stable foundation of the state; but they have their weaknesses; and one is a certain unwillingness to open their purse strings for the benefit of other classes. And in Ireland, in particular, there are many classes outside the farmers who demand the immediate and the generous attention of an Irish parliament. Dublin is in parts a city of underpaid labour in slum dwellings; it was there that the anarchists who precipitated the recent rebellion were able to get their fiercest recruits. No Irish parliament which was not prepared to spend money on the housing problem of the Irish towns would be doing its duty.

LARGER REPRESENTATION.

This leads to the position that it would be desirable in the interests of all classes in Ireland, that there should be larger representation of the towns than is given in the Home Rule Act. But if that principle were applied it would enable the framers of the new Home Rule scheme to give much additional representation to Ulster. For Orange Ulster, though largely agricultural, is also the seat of a large number of towns; and in Belfast, with its huge and growing population, it has a claim for very large representation. By the application then to all Ireland of larger representation for the urban areas, it would be possible to give such enlarged representation to Orange Ulster as would give them many additional safeguards against that bogey of an overwhelming Catholic majority, which has been so potent a cause of their apprehension and their hostility.

Side by side with other movements towards a united Ireland, there is the growing opposition to it of the southern Unionists. Their leaders, who are sane and responsible have over and over again pronounced against partition. Among the prominent Unionist leaders who have done so, I may mention the Protestant Archbishop of Dublin, a man universally respected for his piety, his learning and his sterling Irish feeling. The Protestant Bishop of Tuam—always an avowed friend of the Roman Catholics and an ardent Irishman—has spoken again and again in favour of a united Ireland. One other factor I must add: It has always been a moot point whether the policy of partition was inspired from Belfast or from London. Belfast business men have never shown any particular affection for it; their ties with the rest of Ireland in business are too keen and too valuable. It was probably recommended to them by the Tory leaders in England as the most effective weapon in opposing Home Rule. But Home Rule is on the Statute Book, and cannot be recalled. It is possible that this may cause some reconsideration of the question.

It must be understood that I throw these things out not as representing a policy decided, even discussed, between political leaders. They are ideas in the air; up to the present no consultations have taken place.

Hamilton, Feb. 2.

Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Having enlisted in the 8th M. G. Battalion last year, I met with an accident which has kept me back. I have just started writing again and it is hard work. I was within two or three of forty-five and had to be vaccinated before I could join. I had given up my place of business. Three of my fellows also enlisted, Fred Rawsons who was wounded and is now making shells, Guy White, with the 120th, and Matt. Rimmer, now at the front having gone over with the 36th. It makes my blood boil to see the crowds walking around and taking in the shows instead of putting on the khaki. There is only one thing for them, and that is conscription.

W. A. Wilson.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir: Allow me space in your valuable paper. I would like to know should the trustees of a school be allowed to run it as they like, and have the children freezing every cold morning? I refer to school No. 17, Otonabee. It is a new school, built in 1913, had a new furnace put in by the trustees of that year, and the children attend to it. Is a child 8, 10 or 12 years old capable of looking after a furnace? I think not.

The children have to leave their lunch in the cloak room, and sometimes they find it frozen. We are very careful of our children's health at home, and I think that it is a crime to send them to such a school. What are we paying a school inspector for? Is it not his duty to look after such things?

I am not the only one to complain. Every parent who has a child going to this school has complained, but to no avail. Thanking you for this space, I am, yours, etc.,

H. Wheeler.

To the Editor of the Examiner.

Dear Sir,—What is the matter that Mrs. Godfrey of Gladstone Avenue, has not received her money from the Patriotic Fund since last December. She has three children and I know if it had not been for Mr. Hicks she would have frozen to death. She and her babies. That man went overseas to fight for his country. If that is the way the women have to live is it any wonder they can't get recruits. I have twelve relatives fighting in France. I, myself, am an Englishman and want to see what is right done to our soldiers' wives.

Mrs. Anne E. Godfrey of 100 Gladstone Avenue, received her cheque for January ($15.00), and signed the receipt for the same. She also received her December cheque. Your correspondent must be in error or is confusing Mrs. Anne E. Godfrey with some other case.

URGES LIMIT BE PLACED ON RACES

OLIVER WILCOCK OF ESSEX CLAIMS RACING FRATERNITY CANADA.

Legislated Out Of Their Own State

OTTAWA, Jan. 31.—In moving in the House this afternoon the second reading of the bill to cut horse racing to fourteen days in each county, Oliver Wilcock, Essex, spoke of the abolition of race track gambling in New York State, and pointed to the fact that C. E. Hughes, who had brought about that abolition, made it a plank of his Presidential platform. Previous to 1892, he said, it was a crime to make a bet on a race track. He quoted voluminously from various legal authorities to show that "the right to carry on race track gambling had a very narrow margin to start on."

MOVED INTO CANADA.

Dealing with the arguments that racing improved the speed stamina of horses, that numerous people looked on racing as their chief sport, he contrasted the benefits received with the evils resulting from continuous racing. When the Miller Bill was passed and racing was confined to fourteen days everybody in Windsor was satisfied. But by reason of limitations placed on racing in the State of New York and Michigan the whole organization had moved over into Canada.

COMPLAINTS OF CRITICISM.

"We have racing for 20,000 people every day of the summer. It is this condition I am asking Parliament to remedy," he said. He charged that Francis Nelson, sporting editor of the Toronto Globe, was a servant of the race tracks, and had criticized him unfairly. Mr. Nelson had said he did not complain of the business men who came over to Windsor from Detroit to invest their money. "I do not," said Mr. Wilcox, "but I refuse to have my constituency made the spot for a surplus of Americans who have been legislated out of a legal existence in their own state." And Hon. Robt. Rogers said "Hear, hear."

Greater liability to disease, insect and weed injury is one of the chief dangers from using seed of low vitality.

Peterboro' Choral Society

May I venture to trespass on your space in order to bring under the notice of the various teachers of music, the numerous singers, and the citizens generally of Peterborough, the desirability of furthering the interest of this Society, either by taking an active part vocally, or failing that, by permitting their names to be associated with a movement, which, despite conditions so adverse as at present prevail, gives such real promise of becoming a credit to our city.

It is not part of my function to dwell here upon the recent performance of "The Messiah," that may safely be left to the judgment of those who were privileged to take part in it. The only regret one felt, in so far as the performance itself is concerned, was that the size of the audience, as commented upon at the time by your musical critic, was not worthy either of the citizens of Peterborough, or of the effort the Society had put forth to produce the work.

In a previous issue of your paper, it has already been set forth that the aim of the Society was to foster and to encourage the art of choral singing. It was also stated that it confines itself to no denomination, further that its executive was entirely voluntary and subject to annual election. Surely, therefore, a body of singers so largely representative of the best in the various choirs of the city ought, and does deserve, the encouragement at least of those really interested in music of the better kind.

A good commencement was made last Tuesday with the first rehearsal of Mendelssohn's Oratorio, "Elijah," which, it is hoped, will be presented about January next, and several new members were enrolled but to successfully present a work of this magnitude, it is absolutely essential to have a body of singers sufficiently large enough to give proper effect to the work. The Society does not appeal for financial support; it has all along been self-sustaining, and this, despite the heavy expenses entailed by the executive in giving oratorios. It does however, desire the support of all good singers as well as the co-operation and patronage of every prominent citizen who is interested in good singing. The next rehearsal will be held in the Collegiate Hall at 8 p.m. on Tuesday the 6th inst. when I shall, on behalf of the Executive, be glad to welcome any new members, and shall also be very glad to acknowledge any letters from friends who feel they would like to become associated with the Society either as honorary members or as patrons.

Secretary,
16 Inverlea.

Kenora Cathedral Destroyed By Fire

Complete Loss, with Contents, including Pipe Organ—Estimated at $15,000.

KENORA, Ont., Feb. 3.—St. Alban's Protestant Cathedral was burned to the ground early yesterday morning. The fire is supposed to have originated in the furnace room in the basement, and the efforts of the fire brigade, who were early on the scene, to save the edifice were of little avail, owing to the wind which was blowing a gale at that time.

The first English church erected on the same site, of which Rev. Albert Stunden was rector, was destroyed by fire twenty-five years ago. The present rector is Rev. Canon Gibson. The contents of the Church, including a pipe organ, were completely destroyed. The loss is estimated at about $15,000. Insurance was carried.

DOCTORS ADVISE IRON FOR THE BLOOD

Anaemia, pale faces, nervousness, stomach troubles, watery blood, etc., are sure signs of thin blood. Dr. Malmprise says he can't take many of these cases and cure why one of them in ten days by giving Iron for the blood, and Phosphorus for the nerves, "called Bonised Phosphorus with Iron." I have found that 99 per cent. of all stomach, liver, kidney, bowel, nerve, etc., troubles are traced right back to the blood. Just as soon as Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is given it is almost immediately absorbed by the system the blood taking the iron while the nerves are supplied with the phosphorus, making you eat better, feel better, look better, digest better, and finally you will be made 100 per cent. stronger. Do not be taking all sorts of nasty medicines and laxatives which only ruin your system; go to the root of the trouble and start taking Iron and strengthen your blood, restore your nerves, and your digestion and will recharge your whole system with new life. Bonised Phosphorus with Iron is dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. C. Weber dispenses it for Peterboro.

It was while touring through Nova Scotia that she tried Gin Pills, and was so impressed with the relief and comfort afforded, she bought six boxes.

It is interesting to note what Mrs. Grant says, in writing us to mail her more Gin Pills: "I am having good results from them. The doctor says I have consumption of the bladder, and the pills seem to keep me comfortable. Greatly oblige me as soon as possible."

In such a case medicine can, at best, only ease the suffering, and everyone must realize the significance of the physician's attitude.

Gin Pills are the recognized medicine in all affections of the bladder and kidneys, such as pain in the back, swollen joints, derangements of the urinary system, and gravel. Take Gin Pills now, before your trouble becomes acute.

Don't Marry Women Who Call Dogs "Sweethearts"

The ideal woman — the woman who is married and answers willingly and intelligently when her husband says, "My dear, how does this proposition strike you?"

The impossible woman — the woman who is followed to the seashore by 11 dogs and calls one of them sweetheart."

There are two extremes of womankind as pictured Sunday night by the Rev. W. H. Wray Boyle, pastor of North Woodward Avenue Presbyterian Church, Woodward and Philadelphia avenue, Detroit, a former pastor of Knox church, St. Thomas.

Of the later type, Rev. Wray Boyle said: "She is not fit to be married and she ought not to be a mother."

Of the former type, the pastor said that, while many women are forced to have business relationships and go out into the world as wage earners and breadwinners, women nevertheless, preaches her highest sphere as ruler of the home and a real helpmeet to a husband.

In Rev. Wray Boyle's sermon, which was devoted largely to woman and was in the main a plea for marriages and happy wedded life through mutual adjustment and common sense some of the epigrams that most impressed a large audience were the following:

"While true marriages may be made in heaven, there are many counterfeits on earth."

"A woman's heart is in the safest place when the Lord has the right-of-way."

"It is right that a woman should strive to be beautiful, that she may make a better wife and helpmeet."

Happy marriages result from mutula concession, suppression of self love and common sense."

"I once knew a preacher who said he could not marry because marriage was a lottery and a clergyman could not participate in games of chance."

Rev. Wray Boyle declared that since he became a husband, he had always omitted the word "obey" from the marriage ritual because he found it superfluous.

"If a man loves by tender overtures, as he should, a woman will obey, not because she must, but because she wants to," said the pastor. "She will not obey under other circumstances."

Rev. Wray Boyle said he hoped to live to see the time when women would vote at least on all questions involving the welfare of children.

Believes She Was Saved From Stroke of Paralysis

All One Side Was Cold and Powerless, when She Began Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

A dead nerve cell can never be replaced. In this way it is different to other cells of the human body. But feeble, wasted nerve cells may be rebuilt and herein lies hope.

In this fact is also a warning to take note of such symptoms as sleeplessness and loss of energy and ambition, and restore the vitality to the nervous system, and thereby prevent serious developments.

Mrs. Merritt Nichols, R. R. No. 3, Dundalk, Ont., writes: "I take pleasure in writing to tell you the great benefit I have derived from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was so nervous I could not sleep, and found it hard to get my work done at all, but, having no help at the time, had to do the best I could. Finally my left arm became powerless and cold, and this continued to get worse until my whole side was affected, head and all. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the first box helped me so much that I used several, and believe that this treatment saved me from having a paralytic stroke. It has built me up wonderfully, and I can recommend it most heartily, believing that if more Nerve Food were used there would be much less sickness."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures in nature's way by nourishing the feeble, wasted nerves back to health and vigour. Fifty cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Big Advance in Wholesale Prices of Men's Furnishings Will Soon Affect Public

Local Tells of Higher Prices For Men's Gloves, Shirts, Socks, Overalls, in Fact Every Article in His Store Seemed to Be Moving Up the Price Scale—A List of Examples.

Some one with a bent for statistics recently estimated that the purchasing power of the dollar had declined to sixty-seven cents. If there was a present hope that the shrinkage would not be progressive, the average consumer would probably find comfort in the reflection that the limit had been reached. But the prospect is unpromising. While the cost of living is, in one sense, being paid with a priceless currency, the more obvious and material necessities are bought with a coinage that is being steadily strained to maintain the link between those ends the meeting of which is generally regarded as a symbol of financial security.

In a recent interview with the head of a local men's furnishing store, the prices he mentioned as having been recently paid for goods to be delivered next fall and winter suggest the possibility of the dollar fading to the homely and handy figure of thirty cents or "two bits." Of course that is something of an exaggeration, but there is no doubt whatever that prices, less than a year hence, will be materially advanced.

Future of Men's Gloves.

"Just for example," said the merchant, "here is a line of mocha fur-lined gloves that sold this winter at $2.25 a pair. I paid $36 a dozen for them yesterday. In other words they are now costing me $3.00 apiece. That speaks for itself. Here is another line of wash chamois and wash cape gloves. The former sold at $1.50 and the cape at $2.00 a pair. Next winter we will have to get $3 for this same line we ordered yesterday. The reason for these higher prices is the scarcity of leather, but there are other attendant causes. A manufacturer recently had in his warehouse a pile of sheepskins that had become extremely dry. In other days he would have probably wheeled them to the furnace. A buyer of hides recently visited him and seeing this pile asked him what he wanted for them. The manufacturer replied, without a thought that the price would be accepted, "fourteen cents a foot." "I'll take you," returned the buyer who said he would soften them and split three times for material for minor parts of certain grades of women's and children's shoes.

Men's Shirts.

"Flax cloth for shirtings is off the market," continued the merchant. "The British Government has either taken over the factories or their entire output. At any rate we have been advised that there are no more for the trade. These were an extra heavy shirt that many men demanded. Naming several prominent citizens, the merchant stated that they had recently called to buy one or two of these shirts and, finding that their particular sizes were practically out, took the entire remainder. And one man who could find a size larger than his own, tried to have three of these shirts made over to fit him.

Gray, blue and army flannel shirts favoured by men engaged in outdoor work are considerably higher. They formerly sold at $1.50. But a traveller this week quoted $24 a dozen for the army shirt. Black drill and other working shirts that sold around fifty cents are now worth sixty cents and higher. And in practically all those lines there was a question as to whether the quality would be exactly as good as that of the garments bought a year ago. Linen starched shirts for office men that have been selling at $1.50 are now at $2.00. That was the price paid in the 1916 fall orders.

Socks Up Too.

Socks was the next article singled out. "A traveller this week showed be a line of 'craftana' socks," said the merchant, "that formerly cost me $4.25 and $4.50 a dozen. They are now $7.00 a dozen. Woollen shirts have advanced materially. Coming down to the ordinary fleeced lined that sold at 50 cents a garment, these will have to bring 75c or $1.00 if the present conditions remain. Jeager all-wool unions are from $5.75 a suit up. It isn't pleasant to record these prices, but there they are. We have to either take them or leave them, and the public will have to do likewise. And as far as I am concerned I'm mighty glad to be able to restock.

Even the Humble Overall.

The man who labours has been paying $1.25 for a pair of overalls, as this particular "union suit" is termed. The wholesale price is now $16.50 a dozen for sizes up to 42. Over that they are $18.50 a dozen. That means we have to sell them at $1.75 for all sizes. If a man calls for a No. 44 we don't ask him to pay a proportional extra. Every body loves a fat man, and besides it is a custom of the trade. I don't mind quoting these wholesale figures. I have nothing to hide from the buying public. If they will appreciate the fact that the retail trade is confronted with higher prices they should be prepared for higher prices to themselves when our present stocks are sold out, and the goods on the shelves.

Sweaters and Coat Sweaters.

"Sweaters we sold at $2.00 this winter will be $3.50 when the snow comes again, and sweater coats now worth $5.50 we will have to sell at $7.00.

Some lines of felt hats, soft and hard, we formerly bought at $16.50, $16.50 and $18.00 a dozen. They sold at from $2.00 to $2.50 each. We have been informed that there is no quality less than $18.00 this year. Even straw hats are up from 20 to 30 per cent.

Suspenders have suffered the same effects of the present combination of scarce material, labour, etc. It is impossible to get the web for boys' suspenders. For men's widths the prices are advanced 1½c to 3¼c a yard. Web the manufacturers paid 4½c for in December are now 8c, and the best grade has jumped from 7¾c to 11c a yard.

Ties Dearer Too.

Our best ties are coming from Switzerland now. Any kind of a silk tie of that material is worth 75c. Of course you can purchase 50c ties, but the good ties are all 75c right now, and if Switzerland is drawn into the war we will have to depend entirely upon the United States. Uncle Sam appears to be seriously involved right now."

The Dye Situation.

Reverting to the question of gloves, the retailer started a Canadian manufacturer of grey suede gloves is now paying $20 a pound for the dye that used to cost him 40c a pound. And that man has been forced to protect himself by engaging a high salaried chemist to assure himself that he is actually receiving the quality of dye for which he is paying the exorbitant price of $20 a pound.

Finally in regard to clothes, the merchant stated that this was a big question in itself. Difficulties innumerable beset the trade. Recently he bought two suits for himself. He is beyond the khaki age limit, and simply desired to protect himself. Suits can be purchased at prices close to those that obtained before the war, but the observing customer will undoubtedly notice that in many cases the material lacks the fine finish of the goods that were made previous to the last year or thereabouts. Under the circumstances there is good value in the clothes, but there is no question that cloth, generally speaking, has suffered in quality and finish under the effects of the war.

Such are a few of the experiences of one men's clothing dealer in recent purchases for next fall and winter delivery. They indicate the grounds for apprehension of the dollar holding the line at the 67c mark. But the advances are inescapable as far as the retailer is concerned unless he proposes to close the shutters of his store until the war is over and a condition of normality returns to the trade.

ASSEMBLY HALL

The special meetings in the above hall have been continued during the week with interest, and will be closed with to-morrow's meetings. Doubtless the severity of the weather towards the latter end of the week affected the attendance a little, but like the preacher of Eccl. 12, 10, who "sought to find out acceptable words," the word of the Lord was enjoyed by all who attended the meetings. It has been decided instead of the regular Sunday School, to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, that Mr. McGeachy shall address a special meeting, to which all the Lord's people in the city are cordially invited. The Gospel will be preached at 7 in the evening and all are especially invited to this meeting. First floor, old Opera House Building, on George Street.

TAKE A GLASS OF SALTS TO FLUSH THE KIDNEYS IF YOUR BACK HURTS

Advises folks to overcome Kidney and Bladder trouble while it is only trouble

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then get fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

SOCIAL EVENING WAS HELD IN ST. JAMES' CHURCH

Interesting Addresses By Mrs. E. D. Lewis and Mr. E. E. Ingall—Presentation to Sunday School Superintendents

The teachers and officers of the Sunday School of St. James' church were the guests at a social evening that was held last night. Interesting and instructive addresses were given by Mrs. E. D. Lewis and Mr. E. E. Ingall. The former dealt with the subject of primary work while Mr. Ingall gave a splendid exposition of teacher training. An address and presentation was made to Mr. A. E. Prest, Superintendent of the Sunday School, and Miss M. Collins, Superintendent of the Primary Department, respectively. Mr. Prest was presented with a set of books on Sunday School work, while Miss Collins received a teacher's Bible. The following joint address accompanied the presentation:

The Presentation.

To Mr. A. E. Prest and Miss Mary Collins, our Superintendents.

We, the teachers and officers of St. James' Methodist Church S. S. desire to avail ourselves of this social gathering to convey to you our deep appreciation of the valuable services which you have, and are now rendering in your respective departments. It is somewhat difficult in a joint address to make mention of those special qualities of mind and heart, which, as individuals, you possess. There are gifts and graces which you possess in common and there are traits that are somewhat dissimilar. You are born leaders in your respective departments, endowed with a large measure of common sense, a none too common asset among people who sometimes aspire to leadership; tactful, patient considerate, animated by a supreme purpose to lead the young life of our church into definite relation to Jesus Christ and to develop that type of character and so fortify it that it shall prove invulnerable alike to the world's charms or attacks that would despoil it of moral beauty on the one hand or weaken it in moral fibre on the other.

Your fidelity, you Christian courtesy, your unfaltering devotion to the best interest of the school, is an inspiration to the whole staff, and a splendid example to every member of the same. That you may know that we are not blind to the excellent qualities you possess, or unmindful of the valuable services you are rendering, we ask you to accept as a slight token of our appreciation, affection and esteem in which you are held, this Bible and book—God's lamp to guide, God's love to reveal, God's promise to cheer, God's hope to inspire; and these books, which are simply tools placed in the hands of the skillful workman, to enable him to become more and more a workman that needeth not to be ashamed.

Signed on behalf of the staff,
Mrs. Thos. Brown,
Mrs. John Welbourn.

Work is Growing.

The recipients replied briefly. Rev. Mr. Greatrix, Pastor of St. James' church, during the course of an address, referred to the splendid growth of the Sunday School work of the church. The address to the superintendents was read by Mrs. J. N. Welbourn, teacher of the Cheerful Workers' Class, and the presentation was made by Miss Pearl Eakins, teacher in the Primary Department.

A musical programme was provided during the evening.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

The Soldiers' Add Another Victory To Their Long List of Triumphs

247th Speed Boys Decisively Trim Fast Nobel Aggregation by 13 Goals to 5 in Clever Exhibition Last Night.

WERE ALWAYS IN FRONT

The 247th team kept up their winning streak last night when they tackled the speedy Nobel seven at Brank Street Rink and beat the Northerners 13 goals to 5, thereby wiping out the defeat sustained at the hands of the Dynamiters in Perry Sound, at the beginning of the season. The Soldiers were always in front, in fact, were leading, five goals to nothing, at the end of the first period, and six to two in front at the close of the second, but the game was an interesting one nevertheless, as the red-shirted boys from the North never stopped trying for an instant, and were battling for the whole sixty minutes. A fairly good crowd braved the 20 below zero atmosphere and were rewarded by a clever exhibition. The game should put the Soldiers in the best of condition for their hard battle against the Depot Batteries of Kingston in the O. H. A. semi-finals, next Wednesday night.

The 247th showed a lot of class last night, with the defence especially shining. The Nobel team broke fast and gave the Petes forward line a lot of trouble, both with their back checking and also with their rushing. The Northerners included two or three speed boys who checked back like lightning, and the Soldier forward line had to work harder for their goals than they have had in any previous game, while at the same time the local defence had a lot of work to do, and they performed superbly. Grover Halpin had with him as a defence mate Pat Flanagan, brother of the forward player, and the two midgets took the eye of the crowd. They used good judgment in their defence methods and the fast Nobel forwards, although they broke away from the local forward line time after time, found the rear guard a tough proposition and generally wound up in the corner, or had to shoot from outside. This was especially true of the second period, when the visitors played their best hockey of the night. Back of the little defence pair Legros was in great form, and the long-distance shooting of the Northerners was of little use.

The local forward line played great hockey individually, the only fault being a tendency to roam from their positions and bunch too much. The fast back-checking of McMenemy and the two Arbour boys kept the Soldier advance guard going their best all the time, and they had to work for all they got. Adams was the leading goal getter for the night, but all the forwards shared in the scoring and all did some great work.

For the visitors McMenemy, who started at right wing and then shifted to rover, was the speediest, skating like lightning, but Ty. Arbour, the youngster playing centre, who is a cousin of Armour Arbour of the 226th N. H. S. team, was probably the most effective. He did some beautiful stick-handling and was decidedly dangerous going in on the nets, getting the first three goals for the visitors. The defence pair, Flesher and Taylor were both good, especially in rushing.

A double official system was in vogue, Lieut. Shaw of the 247th acting as referee with A. Breckin of Nobel, as judge-of-play. The latter exceeded his authority by calling offsides whenever he felt like it, disregarding the rule that the judge-of-play is responsible only for the detection of rough play. However, no serious damage was done.

The teams lined up as follows:

Nobel		247th
Brothers	Goal	Legros
Flesher	Defence	P. Flanagan
Taylor		Halpin
McMenemy	Rover	Evans
Ty. Arbour	Centre	Armstrong
Johns	R. Wing	Adams
J. Arbour	L. Wing	A. Flanagan

Nobel opened out at a fast clip and Legros had several shots to handle in the first few minutes. They were from outside, however, and were easily turned off. Finally Grover Halpin broke away and passed to A. Flanagan, who beat Brothers with a nice shot from the side, in four minutes.

Halpin drew a penalty for chopping Arbour's stick and while he was off Adams scooped in a goal after a long rush.

Halpin returned and then A. Flanagan drew a penalty. The Soldiers added their third counter when Halpin started a nice rush, passed to Adams, who returned, and the little Captain scored from close in.

Before the end of the period Adams found the nets twice, bringing the rubber around from behind the nets on the first occasion. The Petes left the ice 5 to 2 in front.

At the beginning of the second period Alf. Flanagan was benched and while he was off Nobel scored their first goal, Ty Arbour doing the trick with a quick shot from a scrimmage.

Flanagan was hardly back when he was chased for an accidental trip. The 247th had half a dozen chances to score, but failed by inches, Adams, Evans and Armstrong all hitting the post.

The Nobel team was working hard at this stage and tearing down the ice at a rate that kept the Petes busy heading them off. Legros made several pretty saves, but finally tripped when he came out to clear, and Ty Arbour shoved the rubber into the empty net, making the figures, 247th, 5; Nobel, 2.

The Soldiers soon got it back when Halpin broke away and passed to Adams, who scored on a swift shot from the side. The Petes got another goal just as the period ended, but it was not counted.

The Soldiers opened the last period auspiciously. Adams scoring in less than a minute when he checked a Nobel player near the nets and beat Brothers. The homesters were pressing hard at this stage. Armstrong made it 5 to 2 on a repetition of Adams' feat.

Then Nobel took a hand when Ty. Arbour checked Evans as he started a rush and beat Legros with a good shot.

Evans broke into the scoring column when he hooked a speedy one by Brothers from well out, and then Armstrong made it 10 to 3 by fast following in. Adams had broken away with a pretty rush, but was checked in front of the nets. Armstrong was trailing and hammered the rubber through like a flash.

The same two players were responsible for the next counter. Armstrong passing out from behind the net to Adams, who registered.

That left it 13 to 3. Jones got one back from Nobel when he scored on a side shot, but Evans came right back with a beautiful goal on a pass from Armstrong.

The summary:

1—247th, Flanagan (assisted by Halpin) 4 mins.

Monday's Battle The Game of Season

Fast Kingston Juniors Will Meet Peterboro' Youngsters in O. H. A. Semi-final Fixture—Biggest Crowd of the Year Will Be Out to See Junior Teams Battle For Supremacy of Eastern Ontario.

The Peterborough Juniors finished their training for the semi-final series with Kingston by a lively practice before last night's exhibition game, and should be in the best of shape for the big battle Monday night. Reports from the East say that "Senator" Powell's Kingston youngsters have been working out every night and they will be right on edge for Monday night, so that with both teams in good condition and fast ice assured the game should be about the best exhibition of the season. The local youngsters are expected to show greatly improved form over their showing against Oshawa and with combination added to their speed and stick-handling ability should give the Limestone City quartette a merry argument all the way.

Judging by the talk around town there will be a big crowd out to root for the local youngsters. It is the first junior semi-final staged here for five years and added interest is given by the fact that it is the first appearance here of the Kingston Juniors for a number of years. The Peterborough team will line up as follows:

Goal—Murray.
Rover—Cherrett.
Centre—Bartley.

KINGSTON JUNIORS IN GOOD SHAPE SAYS A REPORT FROM EAST

Have Been Practising Hard For Monday Night's Game With Petes and Will Have a Number of Followers With Them Although It is Hardly Likely an Excursion Will Be Run.

The Kingston Standard says:

While nothing definite has been decided regarding the return date for the Kingston Junior-Peterboro game, it is likely that it will be played here one week from to-night, but then one can never tell what Secretary Mewitt's directions may bring forth. It is hardly likely, however, at this stage of the season and the fact that Peterborough and Kingston are not congenially connected by rail, that a Wednesday night return would be played, but were it towards the end of the season anything might happen in the line of dates for it is only two years ago that one Western Ontario semi-finalist was called upon to play four games in eight days and collapsed with exhaustion.

It is hardly likely that an excursion will be run to "Oatsville" for the Monday game, but the team will not go away without some followers. Train connections are such that one has to leave here early Monday, and get back Tuesday at noon, which is somewhat inconvenient.

The local youngsters will be in good shape for the battle. They are working out at the rink every night, which, coupled with the victory over the sturdy Belleville youngsters, has made them worthy foes for the best of the junior lot. Peterborough is hard stuff on its own ice and the locals are assured of a stiff argument. The line-up will probably be the same as that which smothered the Belleville invasion as "Senator" Powell thinks that the present septette will take some beating barring casualties.

Show Your Practical Sympathy with Slave-Raided Belgium

If ever Belgium needed sympathy—OUR sympathy—she needs it now! To the ravages of fire, sword and a savage, brutish soldiery, Germany has added deliberate, cold-blooded slave-raiding.

Over 100,000 Belgian workmen have already been snatched from their homes and taken into slavery in unknown places. The mothers, wives and children who beg for their release are driven back by the Huns in utter despair. Neutral protests have failed to change Germany's inhuman purpose, nor can the Allies free Belgian manhood until the Teutons are crushed.

But we can save the women and children through the neutral Belgian Relief Commission, which is feeding three million of them. We can express our indignation, and our sympathy with our Ally's wrongs, in a practical way, by giving more liberally than ever to the Belgian Relief Fund.

Make this a personal matter! Decide what you can afford to give, and send your subscriptions weekly, monthly or in one lump sum to Local or Provincial Committees, or

SUNDAY AFTERNOON MEETING AT THE "Y"

Senior Collegiate Club Held a Big Meeting Last Evening—Y. M. C. A. News

For the meeting Sunday afternoon, February 4th, no speaker being available, a programme of sacred music will be the feature, thanks to the loan of a phonograph by the Cressman Company. Every young man is invited to be present.

One of the largest meetings of the Senior Collegiate Club was held Friday night when Mr. A. D. Hone conducted a discussion of a Young Man's Attitude Towards Work. Next Friday night will be a social night and will be devoted to outdoor sports early in the evening followed by a supper and indoor games at the Y. M. C. A. building. On February 16th Mr. John Crane will talk to the club on Banking and Insurance, and on the 23rd, Mr. Hone will speak on the subject "What Is a Chemical Engineer."

National Council.

The annual meeting of the Y. M. C. A. National Council will be held in Toronto Wednesday and Thursday, February 7th and 8th. The Peterborough Board of Directors will be represented at this gathering by Mr. J. E. Smith and Mr. C. N. Meserve.

The Y. M. C. A. together with other organizations is urging public bathing places, and is very much pleased with the probability that they will be provided this year. The needs of such provision are well known to Y. M. C. A. men and we believe that progressive citizens of Peterborough will see to it that their Council formulate a welfare policy for the young people of our community, as fast as possible making provision for Playgrounds, supervised bathing places beautifying public parks, etc., thus making Peterborough an ideal city for manufacturers who will have the assurance that their employees and families will have all the advantages here that are provided by other cities.

TO-DAY'S WAR NEWS

NEW YORK, February 3.—The American liner St. Louis will not sail for Liverpool at noon to-day as scheduled. The officials of the line announced that the liner would not leave port until word was received from the State Department.

WASHINGTON, February 3.—(By Robt. J. Pender.)—President Wilson has decided to break relations with Germany. He will notify Congress in a joint session at two o'clock this afternoon, of the course he has adopted. Ambassador Gerard at Berlin, has been ordered home. German Ambassador Von Bernstorff either has already or will immediately be given his passports. Friendly relations between Germany and the United States are definitely at an end. Whether or not there is an actual declaration of war following the President's action, depends upon Germany.

The United States has made all preparations for any eventuality.

The Deutschland's Cargo in Flames

Special to The Examiner:

NEW LONDON, Conn., February 3.—The cargo intended for the submarine Deutschland is in flames.

Bernstorff May Have Trouble Getting Home

Examiner Special:

WASHINGTON, February 3.—An interesting question has arisen as to how Von Bernstorff will get back to Germany, or whether he can get back there at all. There is no means of transportation between British ports and Germany through Trieste. Von Bernstorff might go to Cuba, or more likely, South America.

Dutch and British Steamers Are Sunk

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, February 3.—Two ships were officially reported victims today of Germany's unlimited submarine order, the Dutch steamer Gamma and the British steamer Essonite.

On the latter vessel ten of the crew were lost by drowning.

United States Is Preparing For War

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, February 3.—Senator Thomas, of Colorado introduced a resolution authorizing the issue of 500 millions in bonds to enable the Government to put the country in a state of military and naval preparedness. The action of Senator Thomas points clearly to the fact that there is a general sentiment in favour of getting the nation ready for war if the complications continue to get worse.

Interned Ship Appam Seized By the U.S.

Special to The Examiner.

NORFOLK, Va., February 3.—United States officials consisting of a dozen representatives of the Customs Bureau and the Navy Department today boarded the interned ship Appam brought into port by a German prize crew and formally took possession.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3. —The White Star liner 'Adriatic,' the largest British ship now in trans-Atlantic service, sailed for Liverpool this afternoon. 44 passengers were aboard.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—Immediately upon returning to the White House from the Capital, President Wilson called Secretary of War Baker and Secretary of the Navy Daniels into his office for a conference.

MADRID, Feb. 3. — The Spanish German situation reached an acute stage this afternoon when it became known that two Spanish citizens had been lost when a German submarine sunk the Greek steamer Helicon and the Spanish steamer Butron.

When Dr. Fowler finds that a patient's eyes have a deeper trouble than any he can correct with his "Peblo" glasses, he does not make any attempt to prescribe, or give the patron unnecessary expense in experimenting, but at once advises the party to go to an oculist for treatment. This only occurs on rare occasions, but proves that Dr. Fowler has his patrons' best interests always in mind.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—Airbrake 132, 129 1-4; Atchinson 100 5-8, 102 5-8; B. & O., 53 1-2, 53 3-8; C.P.R., 154 5-8, 156; N.Y.C., 91, 94 5-8; Erie, 25 1-8, 26 1-4; Penns., 54 1-8, 54 3-8; Reading 90 1-4, 91 7-8; St. Paul 83 1-2, 85; U.P., 134; Beth Steel 365, 400; Rep. Steel 66 3-4, 74; U.S. Steel, 101, 104; Anaconda 72 1-4, 73 1-8; International Nickel 38, 41.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3. — The stock market received news of the decision to break with Germany with less excitement to-day than the original submarine orders caused, initial breaks being confined to 10 to 3 points. There was a flurry of nervousness and excitement, after which Short, who sold yesterday in anticipation of a break, began to buy. This buying temporarily steadied the market and there were recoveries.

CHICAGO, Feb. 3. — May wheat broke 4 1-4 cents to-day on news that the German ambassador would be handed his passports. July wheat fell 2 1-2 cents and September 2 cents.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—In wonderful demonstration of patriotic exportation and concerted pool action by the big interests the Stock Market was turned upward and becoming a booming war market to-day. It was reported on the best of authority in the street that the big German houses, which have been selling short in anticipation of a break on the news of the submarine crisis, were caught by the upturn.

After dropping 1 to 5 points on the news of the break with Germany the Stock Market turned upward, closing strong with gains of 1 to 9 points in many quarters. U. S. Steel closed at 104, UP, 3-8.

WHAT THE NEW YORK PAPERS ARE SAYING

N. Y. World — There is neither merit nor self respect in further negotiations with the German Government. Further warnings are worse than worthless.

N. Y. Times—With one voice the Country proclaims its will and resolve not to put up with the restraints Germany decrees against our commerce and the measures it threatens to put into execution against the safety and the lives of our citizens.

Wall Street Journal—It seemed to be accepted as a foregone conclusion that severance of diplomatic relations with Germany is bound to come. This view was borne out by the reports from Washington that Secretary Lansing will send a note to Germany warning her that if the new submarine blockade is put into effect such a result will be inevitable.

Annual Meeting Held Yesterday

The annual meeting of the Peter Robinson Chapter, I.O.D.E. was held yesterday at the Public Library for the reading of reports and election of officers.

Treasurer—Miss Celia Dunsford.

The last two were elected by acclamation.

It was decided to hold a tea and dansant on Saturday, Feb. 10th. This, through the courtesy of Mr. Graham, to be held at the Empress.

Germany Promises To Modify Submarine Decree

TENSE SITUATION ALL OVER UNITED STATES

British Gain Five Hundred Yards of German Trenches

Swiss Minister Will Take Over German Embassy

Special to The Examiner.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5. — Count Von Bernstorff has arranged with the Swiss minister, Dr. Paul Ritter, to take over the German embassy.

The details of the transfer will be arranged when the German ambassador says good-bye to Secretary Lansing. Count Von Bernstorff said he did not know the manner of his leaving the United States or what steps would have to be taken. "This is my first experience of the kind," he said, "and I will have to inform myself."

It is thought doubtful by some if the entente allies will grant any such safe passage as was granted to the Austrian ambassador. In that event the German ambassador might choose to go to South America or to Mexico. After Count Von Bernstorff had called the Swiss minister on the 'phone and asked him to take charge of the embassy, Dr. Ritter hurried over to the German embassy building and the two men conferred. After that Count Von Bernstorff declined to answer questions. "Ask the Swiss minister," he said. "I am only a private citizen now."

HOW THE NEWS WAS RECEIVED IN BERLIN

Extras Were Issued on Sunday—Pro-German Correspondent Forecasts a Gigantic Explosion in a Military Sense—Americans May Have Difficulty Getting Out of Germany

WEATHER IS VERY SEVERE

Examiner Special:

(By Carl W. Ackerman, to the United Press.)

BERLIN, February 5.—(Delayed)—Every American in Berlin is preparing for war between the United States and Germany.

The news of the break in diplomatic relations was first printed in extra issues at noon to-day, Sunday, by the Berliner, Zeitung and Ammittag.

The report spread like wildfire through Berlin.

Up to 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, Ambassador Gerard had not received official notification of the break.

To observers here any drawing back by Germany from her announcement of unlimited submarininga would be the greatest surprise of the war.

Germany has now mobilized every ounce of her energy for the expected —and decisive— campaigns. The public is steeled up to further sacrifices.

The feeling here is that Germany is a gigantic powder magazine, preparing for an explosion in a military sense—and that this explosion will shake the universe.

The question everybody in Berlin asked was how American officials, correspondents, Red Cross doctors and citizens will reach America—with all European liners stopped. The present indication is that hundreds of Americans will be stranded. Neutral ship lines are refusing to book any passage. Spain appears to be the only open route. On Saturday the Ambassador received a telegram from the American embassy in Madrid, notifying him what liners were scheduled from there.

German newspapers have been pointing out daily since the announcement of Germany's new policy that the small European nations, Denmark, Holland, Norway and Sweden, are not expected to oppose the submarines, because of the fear of military invasion forthwith by the German army.

No comment from American newspapers has yet been printed here.

The weather is very severe throughout Northern and Central Germany. Intense suffering in many places.

Bursts Into Applause Hearing Declaration

Cheers and Handclapping on Both Sides When President Wilson Delivered His Address on the War Situation

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 5.— There was an unusual attendance of diplomats to hear the president's address, and the gravity of the occasion was further pictured by the presence of the justices of the Supreme Court upon the floor. Members of the cabinet were also present. The assemblage burst into applause when the President declared he had directed the Secretary of State to announce "to his excellency the German ambassador that all diplomatic relations between the United States and the German Empire are severed."

There were cheers and handclapping on both sides of the chamber during the delivery of the address, Republicans and Democrats joining in the demonstration. When the President concluded, congress rose again and cheered and remained standing while the president left the chamber. The senate returnd immediately to its own wing of the capitol, and the house resumed its routine work. The President hurried back to the White House, where he went into conference with Secretary of War Baker and Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

Beyond saying that various precautionary measures were being taken, Secretaries Baker and Daniels refused to make any statement after their conference with the President.

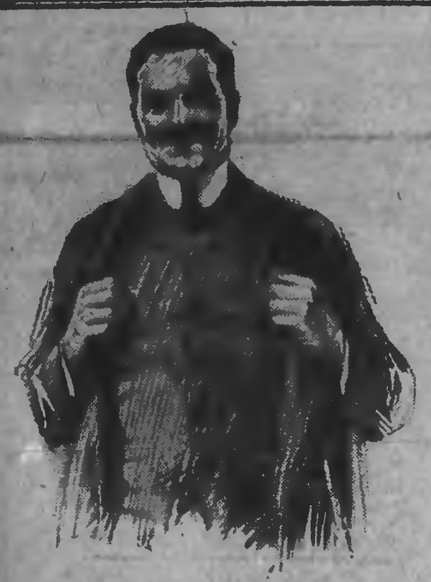
The gates at the White House were locked and special precautions taken to keep unidentified persons away from the executive mansion.

U. S. FORMALLY DEMANDS RELEASE OF PRISONERS

WASHINGTON, February 5.—The United States has formally demanded of Germany the immediate release of the Americans who were taken prisoner on prize ships by the raiders in the South Atlantic.

A coastguard cutter has gone alongside the German prize ship Appam at Newport News, and it is thought the German prize crew will be taken off immediately. Two torpedo boat destroyers joined the super-dreadnought Arkansas off the Virginia Capes on emergency duty.

In an experiment carried out at the Iowa station several stalks of corn were cut and placed in an artificial ice machine, so that they were solidly frozen for 12 days. They were then thawed out, chopped and ensiled as usual. The consequent evolution of carbonic acid gas, and the formation of acid and alcohol were about the same in amount as in the normal corn silage. The appearance and odor were normal and good. Of course after corn is frozen the plant cells are killed, and after thawing, will spoil. Therefore the corn should be ensiled as soon as possible thereafter.



The Man Who Puts The "Deal" Through

must be ready physically and mentally.

This readiness depends to a great degree on sound nourishment—food that includes those "vital phosphates" so essential to sturdy energy, but which are often lacking in the usual dietary.

The famous food—

Grape-Nuts

made of wheat and malted barley, retains and supplies, as does no other food in such splendid proportions, all the nourishment of the grains. It includes potash for brain and nerves, iron for the blood, lime for the bones, and other most necessary mineral elements.

Grape-Nuts has a wonderfully delicious flavor, is easily digested, and comes ready for the table. With cream or milk it makes a splendidly balanced ration.

Are You Intoxicated? The question is not as impertinent as it sounds. You may be a real teetotaler and yet be "intoxicated"—that is, poisoned by the gases that come from imperfect digestion. The products of food putrefaction are taken up by the blood and often poison the entire system. Cut out meats and starchy foods for a while. Can a Pastor Be Fearless And Still Remain in His Pulpit?

Percival H. Parker, writes in the New York Tribune: Can a preacher to-day be independent and fearless, and make good? Can he, Billy Sundaylike, stand in his pulpit unafraid, and unmuzzled and hold his job?

These questions came most forcibly to New York clergymen as a result of a startling confession by a well-known local clergyman.

"A minister of to-day dare not be brave unless he has money," exclaimed this heart-broken preacher, whose speech struck the note of unspeakable tragedy. "My officers applaud when I fire hot shot into the ethical irregularities of Noah, Hophni, Phinehas and other ancient sinners who have been a long time dead; but they threaten to withdraw their subscriptions when I denounce modern sinners who follow the path of intemperance and worldliness, and at the same time continue to be 'leading men' of the church. I have often thought of making public the social conditions which are grinding down my people, but I fear the result. Soon after I began my pastorate these leading men of my parish reminded me that a large part of my salary came from the friends of John Barleycorn, and, therefore, I should silent on such themes. I am convinced that I would be compelled to resign if I were to condemn the saloon or insist that my officers show by their example that they are in favour of the American Sabbath as a day for spiritual restoration and soul culture. I did sacrifice my position once and I would speak out again, but there are my wife and children. I wish I had a trade to fall back upon, for then I would tell my congregation the truth and take the consequences. Oh, I wish I were free!"

MANY MINISTERS SHOW COURAGE.

"The experience of this minister is an exception," according to the Rev. Dr. J. F. Carson, ex-Moderator of the General Assembly and pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn. "It is true that in some churches to-day there are folks who make it uncomfortable for a faithful and fearless minister, but in the average church a preacher of to-day can be independent and courageous, and can make good.

"There is a peril, especially among the younger men in the ministry, to confuse "Billy Sundayism" and moral courage. No preacher can "Billy Sundaylike" stand in his pulpit unafraid and unmuzzled and hold his job, that is, after the manner of Billy Sunday. Mr. Sunday is a great original, and any imitation of him makes a mighty poor copy. I believe that the preacher who tries to be "Billy Sundaylike" ought to lose his job. It requires no great courage for Billy Sunday to speak as he does. He is in a community but a few months; he has no intimate relation with the people, and when he speaks he has no personal responsibility for the community movements or institutions. He has a great crowd about him that is most pleased when he is radical. No courage is demanded under such conditions. But courage is in every fibre of the being of that pastor who, knowing intimately his people, being related to them by tenderest ties, knowing their aversion to radical views, yet denounces their sins and condemns their sins and condemns their habits. That takes courage, and ministers show that courage every Sunday. And if they are not offensive they will be upheld by their congregations. No minister has a right to take advantage of his position and become a common scold. Ever minister that is true to Christ will proclaim the truth as it applies to the conditions of the people to whom he ministers, and he will do it without fear or favour."

PREACHER MUST BE FEARLESS

"My conviction is that a preacher to-day cannot possibly make good unless he is independent and fearless," was the answer of the Rev. Dr. Charles A. Eaton as he sat in his study at the wealthy and aristocratic Madison Avenue Baptist Church and reviewed his coming sermon on "The Question of the Moral Snob." "The pussy-footing," time-serving minister, when occasionally he appears, is a melancholy spectacle," continued Dr. Eaton. "The greatest blessing that could happen to the Christian religion would be a wholesale shaking up of the dry bones in pulpit and pew alike. If we ministers would declare our willingness to take any punishment or pay any price rather than play the part of hirelings, it would usher in the greatest revival known since Pentecost."

Dr. Eaton maintains that the greatest calamity that ever fell upon the Church was when the idea lodged itself in the minds of ministers that they must refrain from speaking the truth for fear of disturbing the peace of their congregations.

"The fact is that that is what a minister is for," said Dr. Eaton. "His job is to be a disturber of the peace. He comes not to bring peace but a sword. He is a soldier first, last and always. He cannot be a soldier without facing the fortunes of war. If he does his duty he will be insulted, wounded and sometimes in danger of starvation, but he will command the respect even of his enemies, and he will count for something as a positive force of righteousness.

WHERE POWER LIES.

"If he does his duty God will take care of him. He has greater resources than any millionaire in the world. His power lies in his fidelity to truth, his high code of honour, his simple manhood, his courage, and his belief in his proposition.

"God is no respector of persons. The minister who is ought to get out of the pulpit and become a butler, or get some safe job which requires small courage. I would utter one warning; the minister who speaks with authority must know what he is talking about. If he has been reared in a cloister, petted and flattered, fed with technical religiosity, his words fall either upon deaf ears or else they grieve the judicious. If, however, he knows by actual experience and contact what he must face every day in the market, and in the struggle for existence; if he understands what it is to be tempted, to be beaten as well as to be victorious; if he believes in the broad, fundamental principles of morality and spirituality which underlie the individual, the church, the nation, and mankind, then when he speaks he may evoke criticism, antagonism and hate, but he will win his fight every time. The real minister of Jesus Christ knows that the disciple is not above his Master, and that if they crucified the Lord they will also crucify the minister. This however, does not mean that the minister has not made good. For there is no failure in life but moral failure, and there is no success but moral achievement."

DR. REISNER'S COMMENT.

"If I were this minister," said Dr. Christian F. Reisner, of the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, "I would leave my denomination and find a church permitting liberty to express my convictions." Dr. Reisner, who is known in his community as "Reisner the Unafraid," preaches every Sunday to one of the largest audiences in Manhattan, was very emphatic in his summary of this case. "God is not dead," continued Dr. Reisner, "his promises are true, and as sincere and unselfish proclaimer of truth will draw financial aid from unexpected sources and will surely be fed.

"As a rule, ministers who run into officials of the church and charge that they are cursed, crippled and mouth-closed by these officials are fanatical, illogical, extreme and impatient beyond their Master, who did not expect to reform the world in a decade or a century. In twenty one years' experience I have spoken straight from the shoulder all that I believe and sometimes have been extreme in my position and yet, while official men have given me advice, and uttered disagreements strongly they have never suggested a threat nor offered a word that could be interpreted as a warning or that infringed on my liberty."

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is mussy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire a more youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Want Blockade Raised— Some Relief is Likely.

LONDON, Feb. 3.—A request has been made for the raising of the Greek blockade on the ground that the demands of the entente allies, including in great measure the transfer of troops to the south, have been complied with. No reply has been sent, but some arrangement may be made to relieve the immediate necessities of the poorer classes without actually raising the blockade.

LORD DECIES FINDS ERIN PROSPEROUS

LORD DECIES BUSY

DUBLIN—In a plainly furnished office on the third floor of a Grafton street building in Dublin I found Lord Decies, who for some time has been acting as press censor for Ireland. He has been greatly praised by the newspapers for the efficiency of his efforts, and even those opposed to England recommended him as a man who could give a fair interview on the conditions of the country.

He and Lady Decies — who was Miss Vivien Gould, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould — have travelled a great deal in Ireland and are therefore authorities on the subject of Erin.

"This land is a paradise—you might call it a holy of holies," said Lord Decies. "It never was so prosperous and the banks at no time have been so stocked with money. Certain Irish charities have to thank America for $800,000 last Christmas.

"The Irish have their race meets, no conscription and little to fear because of the war. We must give the country a chance and let it alone. Personally I think we have been foolish in our relations with America. America should be in our confidence. American men are as fine as one would hope to meet on the face of the earth. They are the same as our people, with the same ideals. The two countries should work hand in glove There was a rebellion here and it was stopped in the speediest and the most humane way possible. Of course we all regret the unfortunate shooting at Portabello barracks. However, these yarns of poverty, of distress, are best dispelled by any person who comes to Ireland.

Just then Lord Decies walked to a window and boys were shouting evening news.

"That does not sound much like the city of the dead—very much alive I should think. Then look at the shops. Their business in these places has been phenomenal and these Irish of the Irish, the truest blood of the country, are appalled at the evidence of what took place, and incidentally scowl at rebels for a bad week's business last spring. Go anywhere in the country and you will find Ireland a glad and happy country. Slums are in every city and the utmost is being done to relieve poverty in them here as it is in all the capitals of the world."

Lady Decies, looking more beautiful than ever, garbed in a brown walking suit, furs and a tri-coloured hat, here interrupted the interview. She has been in farmers' cottages in different sections of the country. Asked what she thought, she said:

"From what I have seen and heard, Ireland is a most contented country. Americans have an absurd impression of what's going on here. Now the trouble of the spring of last year has been ended the people seem to look upon it as an unfortunate thing which might have made Ireland unhappy in the hands of a tyrant. I have talked with farmers' wives and know that whatever they may say against England they are contented. They wish the troublesome elements would take up the burdens of some other country, even if they fear to tell the Sinn Feiners so.

"I like the Irish women exceedingly. In Connemara, where I was recently, I had long talks with them in their cottages. They were happy, busy and comfortable. They were prosperous enough to have cows—all of them. Ireland is a much maligned country, I'm living here and I enjoy it."

Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast a Splendid Habit

Open sluices of the system each morning and wash away the poisonous, stagnant matter.

Those of us who are accustomed to feel dull and heavy when we arise; splitting headache, stuffy from cold, foul tongue, nasty breath, acid stomach, lame back, can, instead, both look and feel as fresh as a daisy always by washing the poisons and toxins from the body with phosphated hot water each morning.

We should drink, before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to flush from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and poisonous toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract before putting more food into the stomach.

The action of limestone phosphate and hot water on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases, waste and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast and it is said to be but a little while until the roses begin to appear in the cheeks. A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store, but is sufficient to make anyone who is bothered with biliousness, constipation, stomach trouble or rheumatism a real enthusiast on the subject of internal sanitation. Try it and you are assured that you will look better and feel better in every way shortly.

FANCIES OF LITERARY MEN.

The Philadelphia Inquirer has made the interesting discovery that:

Dickens was fond of wearing jewelry.

Keats liked red pepper on his toast.

Edgar Allan Poe slept with his cat and was inordinately proud of his feet.

Longfellow enjoyed walking only at sunrise and sunset, as he said his sublimest moods came upon him at these times.

Daudet wore his glasses when he slept.

Alexander Dumas, the younger, always bought a new painting every time he had a new book published.

Robert Louis Stevenson's favorite recreation was playing the flute, in order, as he said, to tune up his ideas.

Hawthorne always washed his hands before reading a letter from his wife. He delighted in poring over old advertisements in the newspaper files.

Oliver Wendell Holmes used to carry a horsechestnut in one pocket and a potato in the other to ward off rheumatism.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

THE TOWN OF HENRIETTA

By F. A. MITCHEL

If one desires to see how fast the world is moving on let him spend a few weeks in a town that has stood still. In Henrietta—named for the Queen of Charles I. of England—the same social forms are in vogue that were current in 1860. And even then there was a semblance of the formality that existed in Baltimore when Miss Patterson married a brother of the great Napoleon. In introducing a friend to another the introducer would say, "I have the honor of presenting my friend Miss So-and-so of the old Virginia family of So-and-so's, who were prominent in the colony during the reign of Charles II." Indeed, there was no one in the place whose ancestors were not loyal subjects of one of the Stuart kings except a family of Stackpoles, who were tabooed because the founder of the family in America had been a fugitive regicide.

One morning a young couple arrived in Henrietta, evidently a bride and groom, and within an hour after their arrival had rented one of the houses that had been long vacant owing to the shrinkage of the population. The groom, nineteen years old, was a dignified young fellow for his age, the bride a rosebud three years his junior. He said very little, she a great deal. She was a regular chatterbox. She appeared to consider every one on earth her bosom friend. She would speak to any one on the slightest provocation and not trouble the person addressed to do any of the talking. So smiling, so unaffected, indeed, so charming was she that it is difficult to understand how, even in Henrietta, she could have been snubbed. But she was.

To such a person, outspoken in friendliness, a snub is like Jack Frost touching the petal of a flower. At first the little woman did not understand it, but when she had been frozen by several Henrietta ladies she began to wilt—that is, when she came in contact with any more of them she curled up like the sensitive plant.

Now, the Stackpole family, whose ancestor had been instrumental in cutting off the head of its sovereign, had always lived outside the charmed circle of Henrietta society. Consequently they could sympathize with one whose refinement entitled her to be in it, but who was not permitted to take her place there. At any rate, they called on the bride and invited her to tea. Then she fell ill, and they carried dainty things to her. They even insisted on taking her and her husband to their home, where they could make them more comfortable.

The little bride gladly accepted the invitation, and her husband was pleased to have her do so, especially since he dreaded to have her remain in such dilapidated quarters. As for himself, he remained where he was except when in attendance upon his wife. Of course everything the couple did was known and discussed. When it was learned that the groom had declined for himself the Stackpole invitation the most aristocratic lady in Henrietta remarked, "I believe that young man has royal blood in his veins."

One day a letter came for the bride and groom, and as soon after the young wife was able to travel the birds flew away. Many speculations had been rife as to where they had come from, and as soon as it was known that they had gone inquiries were made at the postoffice by one of the social magnates as to the postmark. When told that it was the seat of the federal government a tremor passed over the town.

For some time after the war Washington was tabooed by Henrietta as unworthy of notice. But when the first families of the south began to send their prominent sons to congress, the cabinet, the supreme court and other important positions Henrietta began to hunger for Washington. What if that young couple were the children of—perhaps a congressman? But the announcement that the letter was from the capital was a ripple beside a tidal wave when one of the Stackpole family was known to have received an engraved card stating that the Secretary of State and Mrs. —— would be pleased to see certain members of the Stackpole family at their residence in —— circle on a specified evening. There had been no such upheaval in Henrietta since the beheading of Charles I., when the town was a settlement in the primaeval forest, as took place at this invitation. Nor was it lessened at Mrs. Stackpole senior's declaring that the groom who had lately been with them was the son of a senator and the bride the daughter of a cabinet officer. The youngsters had stolen away—almost from the nursery—to run away and be married.

The Stackpoles' attendance at a function at the house of the secretary of state wiped away the stain of regicidal blood. All Henrietta besieged them on their return to hear an account of the festivities, and the ice having been after three centuries broken, it did not again congeal.

Henrietta's last aristocratic maidan citizen died a few years ago, and the place has the appearance of the first settlement in America—Jamestown. A part of the church remains and some of the houses, but they are occupied by citizens of African descent. The bride and groom who sojourned there have settled down as elderly persons of social prominence in the capital.

Refugees Caravan Carry All Their Possessions

Mormons, Chinese and Natives Seek Asylum in America—Army Goes Unhindered.

EL PASO, Texas, Feb. 2.—More than 1,500 refugees, carrying such of their personal possessions as could be transported, followed the American expeditionary force when the troops began the march out of Mexico, it was said to-day by a gentleman arriving from the interior. Stretched out for more than five miles behind General Pershing's column, enveloped in a great cloud of dust, they are proceeding on foot toward the border, and some are in prairie schooners and automobiles.

Following the American refugees, most of whom are Mormon colonists in vehicles, are walking hundreds of Chinese and Mexicans who have no means of transportation to the United States. Many are driving milk cows ahead of them in their flight from the beautiful Casas Grandes Valley, which they fear will be ravaged by bandits when the American troops are out of the way.

The head of the troop column was expected to reach Ojo Federico to-night and camp near the waterholes there, forty miles north of Colonia Dublan. From Ojo Federico to Tres Papelotes (Three Windmills) is considered the worst part of the journey to the harbour. There is no water in this stretch of twenty miles. Many of the refugees on foot are expected to suffer on this part of the trip out.

National Guard encampments here which have been abandoned since the troops went home, will be used to house the refugees. A large number of vascant tent houses and mess shacks at the camp of the Pennsylvania troops have been offered to the Mormon leaders.

General Pershing's column is expected to reach Laguna de Palomas by Friday. A review will be held there Sunday, and the march into Columbus, a distance of seven miles, is expected to take place Monday.

A WORD OF GRATITUDE.

"In justice to humanity I want to tell you that I was a great sufferer from itching piles, and have found Dr. Chase's Ointment the best treatment obtainable," writes Mr. Fred Hins, Brodhagen, Ont. "It gives instant relief and I can recommend it to any sufferer from this dreadful disease."

WOMEN IN HEAVEN.

Philadelphia Ledger: The Rev. Mr. David Winters, without disclosing the source of his information, tells the Presbyterian Ministers' Association that the proportion of women to men in heaven is about three to one, possibly five to one. "If popular elections were held in heaven," he adds, "and if there were women suffrage, I am sure the women would win in the elections." The preponderance of women is undoubtedly the reason why it is heaven. If they had their way on earth it might be more like heaven. Their political ambitions have been frustrated because "most men are as lasy as they dare to be" and it is easier to accept the social scheme and the government system as they are than to reform them. Most salutary changes come because women grow restive under imperfect living conditions for their families. They want a place for the baby to play and breathe fresh air. They want a little room for flowers to grow. They want to get rid of needless noises and smells, of rubbish, of strong drink, of disreputable idleness. The modern woman of the right sort is not satisfied to be a mere picture of prettiness; she wants to make her life count for its full value.

WHEN YOU CAN'T SLEEP

YOU SHOULD USE
MILBURN'S HEART and NERVE PILLS

Sleeplessness is caused by the nervous system becoming deranged. Perhaps too much worry has gotten on your nerves, perhaps you have overworked yourself, or have been excessive in your use of tobacco, but whatever the cause, the nervous system must be built up again before restful sleep can be assured.

Those whose rest is broken into by frightful dreams, nightmares, sinking and smothering sensations, who wake up in the morning as tired as they went to bed can have their old, peaceful, undisturbed, refreshing sleep back again by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. John Sloan, Haley Station, Ont., writes: "Over a year ago I was very nervous. I could not sleep at night, and I would faint at the slightest fright. I tried several doctors, but they did me practically no good. I noticed your advertisement, and immediately tried Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am proud to say they cured me."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box or three for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A Nebraska farmer joined a cow-testing association and tested his 17 cows. Then he sold seven and afterwards gained more profit from the remaining ten than from the whole herd.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

NEVER TAKE SUBSTITUTES

ELIJAH AND THE ANGELS.

Far in the wilderness, wild, waste, and dreary,
Distant from kindred, friends, and native home,
With the long journey, faint, footsore and weary,
His rest, the cold earth, 'neath the starry dome;
Zeal for the truth has wrought but dire disaster,
The altars of the Lord are overthrown,
His priests are slain, and servant of the Master
Sadly he deems, that he survives alone.

Seeking a shelter from the tyrant's anger,
For duty bravely done, compelled to fly,
Thirsty and weak, with aching pangs of hunger,
He only longs to lay him down and die.
Blind with his grief, he wists not of the splendor
Of angel pinions, hovering o'er his bed,
Till wakened by sweet ministrations tender
He sees the light of heaven around him shed.

Blest ministering spirits, ever willing,
On lightsome wings, swift speeding to, and fro,
Their Lord's behests, obediently fulfilling,
Defending mortals from the unseen foe;
They come to cheer our school days of probation;
To guide and guard, frail feet, that else might stray;
To aid the struggling seekers of Salvation,
And shield them from the perils of the way.

So, when our eyes are dim with bitter weeping,
Temptations, trials, doubts, beset us sore,
Adversity's rude storms around us sweeping,
And we are are fain to give the conflict o'er;
Striving to tread the narrow path of duty,
Lonely, discouraged, none to help, or cheer,
Lord, open Thou, our eyes to see the beauty
Of visitants celestial lingering near.

And when our life's brief day, death's night is closing,
Grant them, dear Lord, that on their pinions bright
To where upon Thy bosom loved ones are reposing,
They bear us safely to Thy home of light.

—Mrs. A. F. Calder.

ZERO WEATHER HARD ON TENDER HANDS AND FACES

This is the star season for chapped hands, cracked lips, and roughened faces, and it is a wise woman who protects herself against the damages of wind and frost, or at least lays up a store of remedies against their ravages.

If more of our Canadian women would take the time to don a chiffon veil before going outdoors in zero weather, they would require fewer cosmetics to keep their skin soft and smooth. Apart from this, the best way to protect the skin is to apply some vanishing cream, then a coating of powder, before venturing forth. The powder need not be applied so thickly as to be noticeable and hence, to a great many people, offensive. If women exercised more judgment in the quantity to use and the tinge best suited to their particular complexion—fair, medium or brunette—the use of powder would not have been so universally condemned.

With cold cream some women hesitate to use it, fearing a growth of superfluous hair as a result. Scores of others, however, use it regularly, and having found one certain brand suited to their flesh, adopt it, and "will have no other." Again, there are devotees numerous to home-made cold cream. A very good formula for a home-made preparation is this: Half ounce white wax, half-ounce spermaceti, half-ounce lanolin, one ounce cocoanut oil, two ounces oil sweet almond, one ounce orange-flower water, 30 drops tincture benzoin, five drops oil of rose. Heat first five in a double boiler. Beat until cold. Mix liquids and slowly cream, a few drops at a time.

Cleansing Necessary.

Where cream and powder are used on the face, the 'wearer' should never retire without first cleansing the face well. Otherwise, the pores get clogged with the cream and powder, and an unwelcome crop of blackheads will result. Good warm water should be applied first, and the skin scrubbed vigorously with mild soap, and a facecloth not too rough. Rinse the flesh, cooling the water gradually until quite cold, then dry thoroughly. In the morning cold water only should be dashed well over face and neck. This closes the pores and prevents taking cold.

Protect the Hands.

Many various remedies are resorted to for keeping the hands "in decent order" during the winter months. Especially for the women who tend their own fires, wash the dishes, and perform the thousand-and-one tasks about the household are smooth, dainty hands a next to impossibility. The wearing of rubber gloves has partially at least solved the problem for hundreds of women, especially in tasks where the hands are in water. For dry tasks, makeshifts are many. One woman always wears an old pair of gloves when blackening her range. Another uses a clean paper bag each time, slipping her hand inside and grasping the handle of the brush through the paper. For emptying ashes and work of a similar nature, a pair of loose mits or canvas work gloves are admirable. They slip on easily, and do not confine the hand too much. Of hand lotions there are legion. Some favour the old-fashioned one of an ounce each of rosewater and glycerine, and ten drops of carbolic. Occasionally the juice of half a lemon is substituted for the carbolic. A witch-hazel preparation is found healing by many who may not like glycerine.

Severe Headaches And Pains in the Back

It is in vain to try to regulate and restore the healthful action of the kidneys until the liver and bowels are set right.

And just here is where so many kidney medicines fail. Kidney derangements almost invariably begin with constipation and torpidity of the liver. The whole work of filtering the blood is thrown on the kidneys, and in time they fail to stand the strain. The poison in the system gives rise to severe headaches, pains in the back and tired, depressed feelings.

Because they act directly on the liver and bowels, as well as on the kidneys, Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are eminently successful in the treatment of kidney derangements.

Mr. William Loney, Marysville, N. B., writes:—"I am glad to recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anybody who is suffering from kidney trouble or constipation. I suffered for a long time from kidney disease and pains in the back, but have found that by using one pill a week the kidneys and bowels are kept in good order, and I do not have any more pains in the back or head like I used to have. I was also a great sufferer from piles, and could get no relief until I used Dr. Chase's Ointment. This ailment is entirely cured now, and we always keep both the pills and the ointment in the house for use when they are needed."

This statement is endorsed by Mr. F. Saunders, Town Marshal, who writes that Mr. Loney's letter is true and correct.

EXPENSE RATIO AND INTEREST RATE

The ratio of expense to total income has again fallen while the rate of interest earned has risen, both facts being favorable to the payment of liberal dividends.

HIGH QUALITY OF THE BUSINESS

During the year there has been a remarkable decrease in the number of policies lapsed and surrendered, showing the increased value placed upon life insurance, and the conspicuous persistency of our business.

NET INCREASE IN BUSINESS

The increase in business in force after allowing for all terminations was 55% of the new business written—a notable record—bringing the business now in force up to nearly $110,000,000.

THE SURPLUS EARNED

It is a subject for congratulation that in spite of the extra death losses due to the war the surplus earnings were so satisfactory that we are able to continue the payment of dividends to policyholders on the generous scale they have enjoyed heretofore.

A glance at the following statement will show how rapid yet substantial has been the growth of the Company's business.

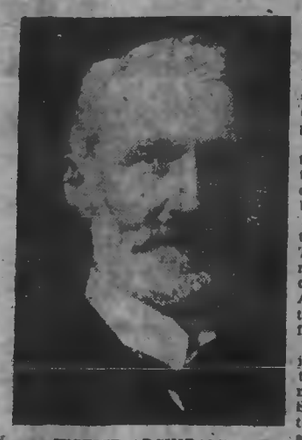
Legal Aspects of Church Union

By CHIEF JUSTICE ARCHIBALD of Montreal



JUSTICE ARCHIBALD.

There are only two assumptions on which anti-unionists can base their action:

(1) that the act of the ASSEMBLY, in voting for Union, is injudicious and will not promote the objects which the Assembly professed to have in mind.

Of that, the Assembly was by the Constitution of the Church, the sole judge. Minorities must yield to the will of the majority. Each one of the minority was bound by solemn promise to do so. To do otherwise is to revolt against the authority he promised to obey.

(2) that the act of the Assembly, in passing the resolution for Union was outside of its jurisdiction.

I assume that the action of Dr. Campbell and his associates in protesting against the jurisdiction of the Assembly to pass the Act in question was founded upon two cases:

First, upon the case of DOBIE VS. THE TEMPORALITIES BOARD reported in the 7 H.L. and P.C. cases at page 136;

Second, upon the case of the FREE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND VS. LORD OVERTOUN, which referred to the Union of the Free Church of Scotland and The United Presbyterian Church of Scotland, under the name of the UNITED FREE CHURCH of SCOTLAND, which took place some twelve years ago. The judgment in this case is reported in the Law Reports, H.L. and P.C., 1914, at pages 575 and following.

In Dobie's case, two questions were raised, viz: Whether the act regulating the Temporalities Board of the Presbyterian Church in Canada could be modified by an act of the Provincial legislatures after Confederation.

The second question was as to whether a church which decides by a majority of its church courts to go into union with another church of a different name, remains the church which it was before; or whether those who dissent from that course remain in the church. This question was not decided by the Privy Council, but they did decide that the provinces had no jurisdiction to amend or alter the act of the Province of Canada which authorized the Temporalities Fund to be administered in a manner other than that provided for by this previous statute. This was cured by the 45 Victoria, chapter 124, which confirmed in all practical respects the provision made by the Synod of the Presbyterian Church in Canada in connection with the Church of Scotland for dealing with the said funds after the union of the churches. That ended that dispute.

The case to which I have referred, viz: the case of OVERTOUN and the GENERAL ASSEMBLY of the FREE CHURCH OF SCOTLAND and others, the holding in the House of Lords was that "the identity of a religious community described as a church consists in the identity of its doctrine, creeds, confessions, formularies and tests. The bond of union of a Christian association may contain a power in some recognized body to control, alter or modify the tenets or principles at one time professed by the association, but the existence of such a power must be proved."

This case concerned the union of the Free Church of Scotland with the United Presbyterian Church under the name of the United Free Church of Scotland, and referred to the money and funds with which Lord Overtoun and others were invested as trustees in connection with the Free Church of Scotland, Lord Overtoun being a consentient to the union.

The Court held that the action of the Free Church of Scotland in entering the Union, could not have the effect of diverting moneys and funds belonging to it to the united church and that the dissidents were entitled to the control of such moneys. This judgment reversed judgments rendered unanimously by the court of first instance and the Court of Appeals in Scotland. There were two dissents in the House of Lords, five judges giving the judgment.

The principal ground of this judgment was that the doctrine of the Free Church included the connection of the Church with the State, whereas the United Presbyterian Church rejected that doctrine, and also the Court held that the standards of the church had been modified by the Union by relaxing the binding effect of the Westminster Confession of Faith.

With regard to this case it is to be considered that the Free Church of Scotland, having been formed by the disruption from the Established Church of Scotland on the ground of the abuse of patronage but still professing to hold the principles of connection between the Church and the State, had not proved that there was any authority in that church by which that doctrine could be altered or that such change had been made in any authorized manner, and therefore held that the identity of the church had not been preserved by the Union.

But it is to be observed that these churches were governed by statutory authority as to their doctrine and practice. Here again this decision was immediately followed by legislation of the Imperial Parliament appointing commissioners whose duty it was to examine and take evidence of all the circumstances of the case and to allocate the property of the Free Church of Scotland to the dissidents and to those who entered the Union, in fair proportion.

It is at once seen that this case does not at all help the anti-Unionists in the present case, because the Act of Union provides for precisely the same action as was followed by the Parliament in both of the above cases, and no union can be effected until Parliament has given its consent to the terms of the union so far as financial matters are concerned.

In this country, churches are merely voluntary associations. They have not and never have had for a long period, even those which belong to the Established Church of Scotland, any connection with the State. The courts will interfere as between individual members of churches and the churches themselves, but only for the purpose of carrying out the laws and ordinances which the church makes for the government of its members. There is no authority, outside of the established church courts, which can interfere for the purpose of making any rule to govern church matters. There is no question but that the church courts can, as the result of advancing criticism and advancing knowledge, give new interpretations of standards and adopt new forms considered to be more efficient for the promotion of church work. Indeed, the constitution of the church specifies the procedure to be followed for that purpose. Members cannot object to that course; nor in either of the cases above-cited, even where the church is governed by statutory provisions, has there been any denial that the church courts possess such legislative authority. There is absolutely no ground upon which the anti-Unionists can rely to support their claim that the action of the Assembly at Winnipeg last year was outside of its jurisdiction. As a matter of fact, the Assembly might have taken the ground that all the congregations were obliged to abide by the action of the Assembly. It did not do so. It left open for those who are dissatisfied to remain out and to retain their property. This was completely within its jurisdiction and precisely in harmony with the course followed in both the cases above mentioned.

J. S. ARCHIBALD.

WERE HEROES TILL THE END

EXPLOSIONS ON THE LAURENTIC JUST BEFORE 6 P.M., LESS THAN AN HOUR AFTER THE AUXILIARY CRUISER HAD LEFT PORT.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—Capt. R. A. Norton, who was in command of the Laurentic, told the story of the loss of the ship at the coroner's inquest over the bodies of seventy-four men of the crew, held at an unnamed city. He said:

"The vessel left port at 5 o'clock on the afternoon of Jan. 25, carrying a complement of 470. At 5.55 I was on the bridge, when a violent explosion occurred abreast the foremast on the port side, followed 20 seconds later by a similar explosion abreast the engine-room on the port side. Nothing was seen in the water prior to the explosion. The ship was steaming at full speed ahead. No lights were showing. I ordered full speed astern, fired a rocket, gave the order to turn out the boats, and tried to send a wireless call for help, but found that the second explosion had stopped the dynamos."

HEROES TO THE END.

The coroner asked how many survivors there were. "One hundred and twenty," Capt. Norton replied. "To the best of my knowledge, all the men got safely into the boats. The best of order prevailed after the explosion. The officers and men lived up to the best traditions of the navy.

"At about 45 minutes after the explosion, prior to leaving the ship, I went around the vessel below with an electric torch and satisfied myself there were no more men in the ship. The vessel was then very low in the water. When at last I entered a waiting lifeboat, bumping dangerously along, the ship was sinking, but owing to the darkness and rough weather we did not actually see her sink."

DEATH FROM EXPOSURE.

"Were there any people killed aboard?" asked the coroner.

"Possibly some were killed in the engine-room, but I have been unable to ascertain that owing to the fact that no survivors are left of the men on watch. I know that all the men got up from the stokehold. The deaths were all due to exposure, owing to the coldness of the night. My own boat was almost full of water when we were picked up by a trawler the next morning."

One boat, picked up at three o'clock in the afternoon, contained five survivors and fifteen frozen bodies. They had been exposed to the bitter cold for over twenty hours.

TRIBUTE TO GALLANTRY.

Trawlers had arrived within two hours after signals had been given. No one was asleep on the boat, he added, and there was plenty of time, but some men did not wait to don proper attire. Medical evidence showed that death was due in every case to shock and exposure.

The jury returned a verdict that the deceased had come to their death as a result of shock and exposure, and expressed sympathy and sorrow "for the loss of such gallant lives in the service of their King and Country," and admiration of the conduct of the captain and officers.

THE WOMEN OF THE WAR.

Afar amid war's darkness, they suffer and grow strong,
For courage is their garment, and hope their even-song;
They hide the pain of parting with "till we meet again,"
Or greet with tender welcome their bruised and broken men.

They give their all ungrudging, nor think it much to give;
They see their lives in ruin, then face the years, and live.

O heart of selfish sorrows and unavailing fears!
One day of their devotion were worth my idle years.
With uncomplaining patience their sacrifice is made—
So, tho' in lesser service, my debt of love were paid.
Take thou, beloved country, the little all I give,
Who am not born to greatness, and yet would greatly live.

CONFERENCE TO EYE MIGRATION OF NEGROES NORTH

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE, Ala.—Feb. 2—Much of the discussion at the next session of the Tuskegee Negro conference to be held in 1917, will quite logically swing towards the subject of the migration of the colored people from the southern to northern communities.

No such group of white and colored people, who always have the best interests of the colored people close to their hearts, could assemble without a frank discussion of this subject which, within the last few months has gripped the attention of the northern and southern press, and focused the sympathetic interest of the nation upon the question of the Negro's adjustment to the economic life of the country.

Many reasons have been advanced for the rapidly changing conditions which now prevail in the south.

SUPPLY AND DEMAND.

"The southern states have not provided ample educational advantages for the Negroes," says the Atlanta Constitution.

"Lawlessness on the part of the whites," say a number of the leading southern white daily papers.

Whatever may have been the indirect cause of the present exodus, the direct cause has undoubtedly been the law of supply and demand in the labour market. Influenced by the war, the factories have been experiencing an unusual shortage of unskilled labour and they have naturally turned to the Negroes of the south.

There are undoubtedly many reasons for the Negroe's ready response to the call of the north and west, but undoubtedly last year's disastrous crop shortage caused by the floods and the boll weevil have played no small part. In many instances the colored farm tenants have been reduced to destitution and they have had no choice between starvation in the south and $2.50 per day in some northern factory.

HAVE GONE FOR GOOD.

The real problem in connection with the migration is best summed up in the following extract from an editorial in the Montgomery, Ala., Advertiser:

"Quite a number of the Negroes who went early in the exodus have already returned, in one way or another, sick of their experiences and declaring they are back in Alabama to stay. It would be foolish to think, however, that all the Negroes who have gone north or who are going north will come back. In truth, nearly all of those who have gone are gone for good."

Here then is a new problem. The Negroes who have gone north for good must be helped in adjusting themselves to their new conditions.

The Negro churches and fraternal organizations like the National League on Urban Conditions Among Negroes, the Young Men's Christian Association, and the National Negro Health Week which will be conducted by the National Negro Business league next spring, all will contribute something in the way of helping the Negro to fit efficiently into the new relationship.

NEW ECONOMIC CONDITIONS

To those colored people who remain in the south there are the problems of diversification of crops and cattle raising which are incorporated into the scheme of readjustment that has been advanced by the south's most earnest thinkers as the best method of meeting the new economic conditions. In connection with this thought Dr. Moton, principal of the Tuskegee Institute, said in a speech at Montgomery, Ala., recently:

"Sooner or later the farmers, business men, and scientists are going to get together very seriously and the boll weevil is bound to be exterminating the fly which causes the 'sleeping sickness'; they have practically wiped out yellow fever in the canal zone, and eventually they will overcome the boll weevil.

COTTON TO CONTINUE KING

"Then cotton will continue as 'king' and the Negro who remains and helps to fight the boll weevil pest will share richly in the production of cotton and other forms of prosperity which are sure to come in the south. We must make up our minds that our chances for work, for home making, and for development are just as good in Alabama as anywhere else in the world."

NOTHING LIKE IT FOR COLDS

Mrs. Holland Ferguson, Sheffield, N. B., writes: "Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine has cured my children and myself of severe colds. We are never without it in the house. There is nothing like it for colds and throat troubles and it is so soothing and pleasant to take, my children would drink a whole bottle if they were permitted."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

BOY'S RUSSIAN SUIT.

By Anabel Worthington.

The Russian style, so long the favorite with mothers and with Fashion, continues triumphant among the models offered for the small boy. It is, of course, decidedly boyish and when made like the suit shown by this drawing is sure to create interest.

The blouse, cut with smart closing outline, has a neat round collar of the goods or of material in different weave and opposing color; full length sleeves are cuffed to match. At a lowered waistline the fulness is neatly drawn in with a patent leather belt or one of the material in the suit.

A pocket is a little thing, but when a boy of six years is concerned it looms very large, so it will be to advantage to add a pocket to the left side, using self material or contrasting goods, according to the fabric that contributes the collar and cuffs. Any little fellow will feel proud and grown up if straight trousers complete the suit.

In most cases this type of suit is developed in St. Nicholas cloth, gingham, linen or galatea, but one may choose wool mixtures, serge or like weave for a kindergarten suit. There is very little work to copying the design and no worry at all, for the pattern is in pictures for your convenience.

The suit pattern, No. 8,133, cuts in sizes, two, four and six years.

To make in the medium size requires two yards thirty-six inch material; one-quarter yard thirty-two inch contrasting goods.

To obtain the pattern send [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Hair Often Ruined By Careless Washing

If you want to keep your hair looking its best, be careful what you wash it with. Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

FORMER SLAVE NOW FOREMOST IN NEGRO RACE

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 31.—John D. Rockefeller comes to Augusta one or twice a year to hear the gospel preached by a negro, born a slave. The richest man in the world sits in one of the front pews reserved for the white people, and the congregation sings the old hymns as only negroes can sing them.

This meeting house is the largest negro edifice in the world. It is 91 feet wide by 158 feet long and will have cost when completed $100,000. It is known as the Tabernacle Institutional Baptist church, and the Rev. T. C. Walker, D.D., is the pastor.

The institutional department occupies the entire first floor. Here is taught cooking, sewing, hat making, dressmaking, laundering, and there are also a carpenter shop and a broom factory and rooms for a night school. The second story forms a large auditorium, a part of which is used for the Sunday school and the prayer meeting departments, and which will accommodate when both are used 4,000 people.

PARSON MOVING SPIRIT.

The best citizens of Augusta have given substantially towards the erection of this church, which has the constructive sympathy of the entire community. But the ex-slave preacher is the moving spirit in the enterprise, and it is through his efforts, with the aid of his white friends that the edifice was made possible.

Now that Booker T. Washington is dead, Walker is considered the most remarkable negro in the south, if not in the world. He was born in 1858 as the property of Dr. W. A. Clark, who lived in Augusta.

He was just a pickaninny when the slaves were emancipated, and he does not remember anything about those times, but he vividly recalls his struggles for an education, and how at last he found a place at the Atlanta Baptist College. He was trained there as a preacher, and even as a young man became known for his eloquence.

WORK NEARING COMPLETION.

Twice he went to Europe, both times to attend the world's Baptist alliance. In London he met Dr. Spurgeon, who called him "the preacher from the soil." In New York he came to know John D Rockefeller, who contributed to the educational and religious work the preacher was supporting.

Finally Charles Walker began the effort to build an institutional church for Negroes in Augusta which shall teach not only religion but work. The work is now nearing completion; sections of the church being already in use.

We wish to apologize to Mrs. Orlando Overlook. In our paper last week he had as a heading "Mrs. Overlook's Big Feet." The word we had ought to have used is a French word pronounced the same way but spelled fete. It means a celebration and is considered a very tony word.—Williamsville Item.

HAD INDIGESTION
COULD KEEP NOTHING ON STOMACH

Indigestion is one of the worst forms of stomach trouble. The stomach becomes upset and you have a raw, debilitated feeling in it.

After a meal you feel that you must get rid of that nasty, bilious, burning sensation; that souring and rising of the food which is so unpleasant and in many cases very painful.

It is not necessary for you to be troubled with indigestion when Burdock Blood Bitters may be so easily obtained. This old and well-known remedy, which is a combination of nature's best roots, herbs, barks and berries will cure indigestion and all stomach troubles.

Mr. Lazare Savoy, Pokemouche, N. B., writes: "About two years ago I was troubled with indigestion that bad I could keep nothing on my stomach. I was sorely disappointed in everything I tried to relieve me. At last a friend advised me to try Burdock Blood Bitters. I took four bottles and can now eat anything that is set in front of me."

That grand old medicine, B.B.B., has been on the market for the past forty years, and we claim, without any fear of contradiction, that it is the best cure for all stomach troubles.

WILSON ENDEAVOURS TO LINE UP ALL NEUTRAL COUNTRIES

Suggests to Other Neutrals That They Break off Diplomatic Relations With Germans, as the States Has Done

AMBASSADORS ACTING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4. — Besides breaking off diplomatic relations with Germany, President Wilson has made a bold stroke to range the moral forces of all other neutral countries along with that of the United States in the interest of peace.

The President has suggested to all the other neutrals that they break off diplomatic relations with Germany as the United States has done, and has instructed all American diplomats in those countries to report immediately how the suggestion is received. The opinion in diplomatic quarters here is that European neutrals, at the very doorstep of Germany, threatened by her military power, will hesitate to take such a step. The effect of the suggestion in other countries is being eagerly awaited. This was the only known development of first importance which came out of a day of tense waiting which followed the actual announcement yesterday of the break with Germany.

The President's invitation to neutrals to follow his action was contained in instructions to American diplomats to announce the break with Germany to the Governments to which they are accredited. It was contained in the following note:

"You will immediately notify the Government to which you are accredited that the United States because of the German Government's recent announcement of its intention to renew unrestricted submarine warfare, has no choice but to follow the course laid down in its note of April 18, 1916 (the Sussex note).

"It has, therefore, recalled the American Ambassador to Berlin and has delivered passports to the German Ambassador to the United States.

"Say, also, that the President is reluctant to believe Germany actually will carry out her threat against neutral commerce, but if it be done the President will ask Congress to authorize use of the national power to protect American citizens engaged in their peaceful and lawful errands on the seas.

"The course taken is in the President's view entirely in conformity with the principles enunciated in his address to the Senate January 12. (The address proposing a world league for peace.)

"He believes it will make for the peace of the world if other neutral powers can find it possible to take similar action.

"Report fully and immediately on the reception of this announcement and upon the suggestion as to similar action."

Thus it becomes apparent that in the shadow of war the President has not abandoned his efforts for peace, and as the first step has moved to direct the moral force of the neutral world to compel Germany's return to an observance of international law at sea.

Should it eventuate that all other neutrals accepted the President's suggestion that they sever diplomatic relations with Germany, the choice of a peace mediator would have to come from the Vatican.

LAST CHANCE FOR THE SMALL MEN TO JOIN 216th BANTAMS

Lance-Corp. Mazerkoff in Peterboro' to Round Up Little Fellows For the Well Known Unit Which is Going Overseas Within a Short Time---Kingston District Leads Dominion by a Wide Margin in Recruiting For Last Part of January---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

The small man in Peterborough who wants to do his bit for the Empire is being given his last opportunity just now to join the colours with the 216th Bantams' Battalion. Lance-Corp. Mazerkoff, of the Bantams, has arrived in Peterborough to recruit for this unit and will be here for about a month. The Bantams' Battalion is nearly up to strength and will go overseas in March, so that there is but a short time left. There are already some fifteen or twenty men from Peterborough and district in the ranks of the Bantams, and Lance-Corp. Mazerkoff is anxious to supplement their numbers. He will be found at the Recruiting Station, Simcoe street, where all necessary information may be secured. The pay and allowances are the same as for other units in the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and the only difference is the physical standard, the Bantams' maximum height being set at 5 ft. 3 inches.

OTTAWA, Feb. 4.—Recruiting figures issued for the last two weeks of January show an improvement in the rate of enlistment for the first part of the month. The total for the last fortnight was 4,029, as compared with 3,561 during the first two weeks. The total number of Canadians on active service is therefore now 396,898.

The Ottawa-Kingston military district leads all others in recruiting, having 1,317 to its credit. Next comes Toronto with 581; Montreal district with 469; the Maritime Provinces with 375; British Columbia with 365; Saskatchewan with 183; Alberta with 145, and Quebec with 49.

Lieut. Harriman of the Canadian Army Dental Corps has been posted to the 247th Battalion and will look after the teeth of the local recruits.

A discharge paper bearing the name of Elmer Chesney, late of the 74th Battery, C.F.A., has been found by a member of the 247th and may be secured from Lieut. A. E. Brittain, adjutant of the battalion, at the armouries.

Mr. "Dick" Knox, of 315 Elias avenue, has enlisted with the 253rd Highland Battalion, Queen's University, Kingston. Since his acceptance he has been authorized as a recruiting agent for this district. He arrived in Peterborough Saturday and may be reached by 'phone 1705.

DEATH'S CALL CAME SUDDENLY

S. H. Baker, Well Known Barber, Passed Away Yesterday Morning

The news of the sudden death, on Sunday morning, Feb. 4th, of Samuel Herbert Baker, the well-known and popular proprietor of a tonsorial business at 396 Water Street, will come as a shock to his many friends and the members of his large clientele. For some time Mr. Baker had not been in good health; he was suffering from rheumatism that involved the heart, but of late his condition indicated improvement. He was, however, able to attend to business; and on Saturday night was in his shop as late as ten o'clock. On Sunday morning, about 7 o'clock, he rose, as usual, and looked after his stoves, and retiring to bed, died a few minutes after.

Deceased was a native of Peterborough, son of Mr. Robert Baker, 438 Mark Street, East City, and was 44 years of age. For many years he has conducted a successful barbering business on Water street. His satisfactory services and attention to business won him a large patronage, while his geniality and obliging disposition and he interest in the welfare and pastimes of his many friends made him exceedingly popular. He was largely interested in sports and, personally, fond of river life, he and his launch being a familiar figure on the river in summer evenings. In religion he was a Methodist; he was also a member of the Orange Order.

He leaves behind him to mourn his loss, a widow, formerly Miss Annie Anderson, and five small children; his father, Mr. Robert Baker, city; one brother, Mr. Geo. A. Baker of Winnipeg; and two sisters, Mrs. John Biggs, city, and Mrs. C. H. James, Toronto.

The funeral will take place to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence, 466 Aylmer street, to the Little Lake cemetery.

USED AUTOMOBILES.

Parliament Is Slated To Adjourn On Wednesday

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER.

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—Sir Robert Borden is expected to leave on his imperial mission at an early date. An impression created from the conference between the leaders on Saturday was that Sir Wilfrid's assistance was being requested in connection with situations which may arise in the Premier's absence. One rumor is that the Premier will be offered and will accept a peerage and a seat in the House of Lords while he is in England.

The situation is decidedly complicated, and uncertain. Parliament is slated to adjourn on Wednesday, but the question of the length of the adjournment may bring to a head, certain matters now pending.

Received Regularly Patriotic Money and Has No Complaint

Mrs. John C. Godfrey, 100 Gladstone Avenue, stated to the Examiner that the letter in Saturday's Examiner signed by Mr. C. Simmons, was untrue. She had received her allowance from the Patriotic Fund regularly and had no complaint whatever to make. In fact Mrs. Godfrey spoke appreciatively of the Fund and Mr. Dobbin. Mrs. Godfrey like many other citizens was close to the end of her coal supply, which was misunderstood by Mr. Simmons, who wrote the letter on the apparent, but happily not the actual facts.

BIRTH.

MONTGOMERY — On Feb. 1st, to Mr. and Mrs. B. J. B. Montgomery of New Lakeard, formerly of Peterborough, Ont., a son DIED.

PEARSE—Died at her home on February 3rd, Annie S. Pearse, widow of the late Edgecombe Pearse, and daughter of the late Rev. John Shilton.

The funeral will leave the family residence, 538 Rubidge Street on Tuesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock and proceed to St. John's Church, where service will be held.

Five Hundred Club Formed in the City

PASTORAL LETTER URGES OBSERVANCE OF JUST LAWS

Applies Particularly to the School Question in Dioceses where English-French Schools Exist—Read at Saint Peter's Yesterday

RESULT OF CONFERENCE

A pastoral letter conveying to the clergy and laity the conclusions of the Bishops of Ontario who recently met at Ottawa for the purpose of promoting harmony in the operation of the law respecting English-French schools was read in most of the Catholic churches of the province. It was intended for the particular counsel of the clergy and congregations in those districts of Ontario where English-French schools exist. In Peterborough it was read only at St. Peter's Cathedral, and in a formal way for the reason that it had no specific local application.

The letter in full follows:

To the Clergy, Secular and Regular, the Religious Communities, and the Catholic Laity of the Province of Ontario:

Dearly Beloved in the Lord:—The undersigned Archbishops and Bishops, exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction in Ontario, at a meeting held in Ottawa on the 24th of January, 1917, after careful study, mature deliberation, and fervent prayer, arrived unanimously at the following conclusions:

That we view with sorrow and alarm the divisions and dissensions existing in this Province because of the bilingual controversy, and being earnestly desirous of promoting civil and religious peace and harmony, we solemnly exhort and enjoin the laity of our respective dioceses to obey all the just laws and regulations enacted from time to time by the civil authorities; and we respectfully ask the majority in this Province to consider sympathetically the aspirations and requests of their French-Canadian fellow-citizens in the matter of the establishment and operation of English-French schools, facilitating an equitable teaching of the French language together with a thorough acquisition of English.

That we are confident there is no desire or intention on the part of the Government or the majority of the people of Ontario to proscribe the French language. This is set forth in the official statement of the policy of the Government of Ontario issued on the 14th day of March, 1916, as expressed in the following words:

"Regulation 17 applies only to the list of schools annually designated by the Minister as English-French. In the case of schools not on the list, but containing French-speaking pupils, or in the case of new schools organized since the adoption of Regulaion 17, in 1913, the use and study of the French language are provided for by Section 84 (b) of the Public Schools act, and by Section 12 (2) of the Regulations for Public and Separate Schools. These enactments, which have for many years defined the place of the French language in Ontario schools, have not been amended or rescinded."

Misunderstanding of Regulation 17.

That we are also confident there is no ill-will on the part of the French-Canadian people towards the Government or the majority of the people of Ontario, and are of the opinion that much of the agitation

Peterboro's Answer to Germany's New Submarine Campaign—Inspiring Addresses by His Honour Judge Huycke and Mr. E. A. Peck

MEETING LAST NIGHT

Recruiting in this city and in the surrounding districts should within the next few weeks, receive an unequalled impulse, as a result of the organization of a Five Hundred Club which was undertaken at the Grand Opera House last night. The enthusiasm which marked its organization last night, leaves no doubt as to what the results of the effort will be. Following out the plans of those most interested in bringing the 247th Battalion up to strength as soon as possible this week will be devoted to the securing of members for the Five Hundred Club which had its inception last night. Next week it will be the duty of the members of the Club to get in touch with every eligible young man available to put before him the dire need of men at this time in the ranks of the Canadian and Allied forces, and to report on each individual case the result reported. It is estimated that no less than fourteen hundred young men in this vicinity are in a position to don khaki if they would but make the decision, and Peterborough's answer to the submarine campaign of the Huns will be made in the form of a superhuman effort to augment the ranks of our local battalion and to do it at once. Physical disability is the only answer that will be accepted as a reason by the workers of the new organization, and the young men of Peterborough will be confronted with the task of justifying their stay-at-home attitude at this time.

Last Night's Meeting.

The meeting last night was presided over by Mr. E. A. Peck. In a brief address he carried his hearers back to the days immediately before the conflict and exposed again the true cause of the war, that desire on the part of German and her military aristocracy "for a place in the sun." It was true that even now the Germans were no nearer their ultimate object than at the outset of hostilities, and yet, progress toward victory could not be made by the Allies unless all branches of the Empire furnished more money, more supplies, more munitions and above all, more men. The people must be prepared to adopt an attitude of self sacrifice and if all will fall in line, then, and then only, could victory be won. He then called upon Lieutenant-Colonel Ackerman.

Lieut.-Col. Ackerman.

In his address, Lieutenant-Colonel Ackerman dealt with the purpose of the Five Hundred Club and the details of the plan by which it is hoped this purpose will be accomplished. Above all else, the main object and aim of the Club and its members was that of obtaining recruits for the battalions now under organization in Peterborough. The workers to be connected with the Club were to work in two divisions. Class A members must pledge themselves to obtain recruits

PROSPEROUS INSURANCE COMPANY.

It is a remarkable fact that the general prosperity that has attended the war extends to the business of life insurance. Among others, the Mutual Life, of Canada, has had a year of unusual increase of business. This is probably due to the fact that in this period of stress and strain, and a feeling that the bottom seemed dropping out of things, the public has been imbued with the wisdom of building on the safe rock of life insurance—in a safe company. Then, doubtless, the terrible slaughter of the war has more deeply impressed the sense of the uncertainty of life; as the tremendous material demands of the war has taught the wisdom of preparedness.

The annual statement of the Mutual Life appears in another column. Its main general feature is the evidence it gives of the steady increase in both the size and the strength of the company. It shows new business during the year of $1,618,390. The net increase in the amount of insurance in force over the total of the previous year, was $8,558,551, indicating the permanency of the previously existing business and emphasising the large volume of new business written. The touchstone of insurance activity, surplus earnings, representing the balance of actual profit, after the year's business is concluded, is revealed by the fact the year's net profits, in spite of the drain on resources, represented by the extraordinary death rate to be met by the war, amount to $1,158,931. This enables the company to maintain the liberal level of dividend payments for which it is noted. Remunerative investments and economical management account ofr the Mutual Life's satisfactory interest earnings, and the satisfactory ratio of expense to income. Altogether the business of the year indicates marked progress in all departments. The business of the Mutual Life at the close of the year totalled $109,645,581; the assets amounted to $29,361,963, and the surplus of assets over all liabilities to $4,595,151. The excellent showing made places the Mutual Life among the most stable of the financial institutions of the country.

SWIMMING AND BATHING.

It seems inevitable that the City Fathers will be effectively influenced by the big deputation that will wait upon them to-night—that they must succumb and cry "Kamerad" in face of the attack in massed formation. The programme printed indicates that the deputation in the behalf of the provision of regulated and properly equipped bathing facilities for the public, represents almost every conceivable interest of the city. It further indicates that the popular demand, as voiced, is not a mere matter of functional routine, but an earnest and decided appeal to the City Council to take action.

That the City Fathers recognise the necessity of supervised bathing places is an obvious tribute to their sense of responsibility and sense of the need; to their desire to remove the reproach implied in the fact that a city of 20,000, with a magnificent water front of nearly two miles, within the city limits, is without anything like proper bathing and swimming facilities. We have parks bordering on beautiful water, which is at present a reminder of the Ancient Mariner's plaint—"water, water everywhere", but not a place to swim or bathe in. And the provision of bathing facilities would add immensely to the pleasures our parks afford. Every mile of our four miles of water front—counting both sides, for East City is to be looked after as well as the west side—furnishes opportunities for bathing places. Winter is with us now, but the torrid, broiling weather is not far away, when the sweltering population naturally looks with longing to the cool ripple of running waters, where men, and women, too, could derive infinite comfort from the action of the council that will permit them to counteract the depression of the sweltering heat and enjoy the refreshing, invigorating, and health-giving, combined necessity and luxury of a comfortable dip in cool waters under proper conditions.

One can't very well see how the council can avoid taking action. No proposal like that that will be presented them to-night has ever been submitted that has public opinion so strongly behind it and public desire so strongly in evidence, and public determination so sharply defined.

RECRUITING.

There are many reasons given why recruiting in Canada is at a comparative standstill. Some attribute it to the prevalent prosperity—men earn too "good money" to sacrifice it to the $1.10 a day soldier's pay, and the necessity of every available man keeping busy at making munitions. Dr. Edwards, M. P., of Frontenac, says Sir Wilfred Laurier is to blame, since some years ago he made a speech in Boston to the effect that Britain and Canada had not taken the right attitude towards the United States in the Civil War, fifty years ago. Mr. Burnham, M.P., in a speech made in the House a few days ago, intimates that it is due to little things; among others, a druggist's customer becoming "infuriated" because he sees a war tax stamp of 4 cents go upon a bottle of patent medicine, for "his little child at home who needs it," while no tax goes upon a box of sweets bought by a young man who "has a young lady with him."

But all of these things are mere excuses and do not at all touch the root of the reason for the decay of recruiting. They do not deal with the fact that the slump in recruiting is due to two chief reasons—lack of leadership, and wrong leadership. It is known that the government, from the beginning, has not given a definite, organised official lead to recruiting; it has been left to the operation of the voluntary spirit—till the material so animated, has become exhausted — and to the patriotic work of private individuals and organisations. There has been lack of leadership and system. The splendid recruiting that has been done has been largely automatic. The other chief reason has been wrong leadership, that has placed and left in the Dominion Cabinet three or four ministers hostile to the idea of Canada helping Britain in this war or any war. This spirit has been operating in Quebec, where it has practically killed recruiting from the beginning. For years, in the form of the Nationalist propaganda,, it has put the virus of indifference in the mass of the people and made them lukewarm, if not hostile, to recruiting. They listened the more readily to the anti-British orators of the Nationalist cult, because these orators had the official stamp of approval of the Borden government, which ever since its formation has had three or four of these anti-British Nationalists in the Cabinet.

One succeeded another as fat places were found for Nationalist ministers who, not satisfied with the price of a Cabinet portfolio — $7,000 a year — wanted an addition to the price for their support of the government. The object of the official encouragement of Nationalism was to "kill Laurier"—it has not killed Laurier, but it has killed recruiting in Quebec. It has also had a reflex action in other parts of Canada. Appeals to enlist by a government that was composed in part of members opposed to recruiting—opposed to Canada taking part in the war—had a tendency to make Canadians "infuriated" after the manner of Mr. Burnham's patent medicine purchaser.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier's Message to Canadians

In a message to the people of Canada on the war Sir Wilfrid Laurier says.

"While we claim, and with just cause claim to have done much, our efforts pale almost to nothing when compared with the exertions, the almost inconceivable exertions of Great Britain, of France, of Russia, and of Italy.

"In those countries there has been a constant effort towards concentration in the one object of bringing the war to a triumphant conclusion. This has produced in France especially not only a growing union of all the forces of the nation, but also a union of souls. Antagonisms which before the war seemed irreconcilable have now well night disappeared, and opinions, even the most heterogeneous are now embraced in the sacred union.

"Let us imitate this noble example. Let us here and now sink passions, prejudices, vain and idle recriminations. Let us when criticism is needed, criticise without bitterness ,only by appeals to reason, and above all let us bend all our energies towards making Canada an effective factor in the struggle.

"The heart of the nation must beat with one accord and one desire. Thus and thus only can Canada attain the full standard of what she owes to herself and her future and with such an inspiration, the people will rise to a consciousness of national power and national character which will be enduring and permanent for the welfare and grandeur of our Dominion

"Whether victory and peace be near or distant, our resolve will not falter. We will continue to the end, calmly, firmly and grimly determined to do our share so that this terrible scourge of war may forever pass away from us. And there is hope—hope not founded merely on desires aspirations but on appreciable facts—that victory will bring us measurably near to an era when war will have become so odious, that the nation which would attempt it, would have to face the majesty and combined strength of the whole civilized world."

AN EX-PRESIDENT INTERPRETS THE SPIRIT OF THE UNITED STATES

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 2. — William H. Taft prefaced a prepared speech to the League to Enforce Peace here to-night with a reference to the new German crisis, declaring that if the United States were drawn into war Germany would force it by "her defiance of plain principles of justice and humanity, which should obtain between civilized nations."

"The responsibility which now rests on the President and Congress is very heavy," said Mr. Taft. "They should know and do know that the American people will back them to the end in their decision. May God give them good deliverance."

Mr. Taft was speaking before the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, answering particularly criticisms by Theodore Roosevelt, William J. Bryan, Senator Borah and other of the League to Enforce Peace idea.

"I had prepared my address," he said, "before Germany startled this country and all neutrals by her last note. The actual dangers with which it brings us face to face may seem to make what I have been discussing theoretical, tame and inappropriate. The truth is, however, that this great crisis only emphasizes the importance of the purpose of the league in the future history of this country.

"Of all things, we would avoid war. We are not prepared for it. Its awful consequences we know from Europe's suffering. Our prayer is for some escape from it in this critical hour, if consistent without our national honour, but we must face the facts.

"In her campaign against her enemies Germany proposes ruthlessly to wage war upon the property and lives of neutrals in flagrant violation of their rights. She began with Belgium. She now includes them all. Our national conscience is void of offence against her. Her cruel and indefensible drowning without warning of more than one hundred innocondoned in view of her pledge against a repetition. That pledge now is withdrawn and she avows her purpose to resume her shocking course.

"If war is to come between us she will be the unprovoked aggressor. We would avoid being drawn into the European vortex by every honourable concession. If she forces us into it she will do so by her defiance of plain principles of justice and humanity, which should obtain between civilized nations.

"In spite of her great strength and marvellous efficiency. Germany's manifest weakness has been in a failure to understand other peoples and to appreciate the moral forces working in them. She may not know the spirit of the good natured, tolerant, war hating giant she now challenges. She may overestimate, as she has done before in the case of other nations, the influence of sordid motives, of the inertia of comfort and dissentient elements among us, which she may expect to paralyze our action. She may stir an active patriotism in our people which she does not suspect. She may shock us into a real preparation for war and the sacrifice it involves as nothing else might.

"She may push us at once into a league to enforce a just peace. She may force into an organization of our potential military strength on the one hand, and into a moral leadership in the maintenance of international justice on the other. Thenceforth our isolation from the wars and welfare of the rest of the world would be at an end. When peace would come the eyes of our people, in spite of warnings of statesmen who are looking backward, would be opened not only to the wisdom but to the necessity of our leading the nations into a permanent world's league to enforce peace."—New York Herald.

THE PRIVATION IN GERMANY REACHES UNEXAMPLED DEGREE

AMSTERDAM, February 5.—Germany's difficulties have been increased by the paralysis of coal transport. There is abundant indication that the frost is occasioning intense suffering and inconvenience. There is plenty of coal, but a deficiency of railway, river and road transport. The Munich military authorities ordered all schools closed owing to the difficulty of supplying coal. Also the university, technical school, theatres, meetings and recreation halls.

German rivers are frozen and transport on the Rhine is at a standstill.

Many Dutchmen are returning to Holland, being unable to exist in Gemany. From one I hear the situation is very bad. Rhine barge smuggling, until lately a valuable source of food supply, has stopped though large quantities of provisions are still smuggled by hand.

The Telegraaf learns from the eastern frontier of Holland as a result of information furnished by Germans of various social positions living in different parts of Germany that privation has reached an unexampled degree. Taxation has enormously increased, especially in Cologne, Hamburg, Berlin and Frankfurt.

Lecturing Wednesday at Berlin Dr. August Moellor, member of the Committee on War Provision Offices, estimated that a full ration was available for only thirty-nine of the fifty millions of the population not serving in the field. This report, published in the German press, obviously did not magnify the seriousness of the situation. The Telegraaf's correspondent says 50 per cent. of the population in the large towns are suffering from cramp in the stomach and jam disease, which reveals itself by a skin eruption, due to the large quantity of jam consumed in default of other food.

THE PHRASE BOOK

By Canadian Overseas

Everyone who travels buys a copy of a phrase book and they find they have a collection of things they never want to say.

A traveller goes to his hotel porter and says, "at what o'clock do you keep your dinner?" He is told, "keep a place for me." He takes his place punctually and begins according to his phrase book:

"Waiter bring me a meat soup." The soup is brought and his troubles begin. For following this is:

"This plate is not clean."

"Take away this plate."

"This knife does not cut well."

"Give me some new bread."

He is provided with a fresh plate, a sharp knife and new bread; but he is not satisfied.

Then in desperation he bursts out, "this soup is cold."

Nor is the next course more successful. It is the fish course and the phrase book has very little to say about this course; but in blind faith he again throws himself upon its mercy and blusts out the one remark it has to offer:

"This fish stinks."

Next morning he is early for breakfast, for he is very hungry after the night before. He feels happier for the phrase book, seems to have a great deal to say about breakfast. "A cup of coffee, milk, chocolate, bread and butter, some rolls, a cup of tea" he tells the waiter in great haste. Soon after he says "Fetch a good physician, I feel myself unwell." He is more successful with the doctor for the next thing the phrase book has to offer is:

"I feel myself better this evening."

Some phrase books have gone to a great deal of trouble instructing one how to ask for a boot-jack and a night cap before going to bed; how to bargain for a carriage in which to take a "long journey;" how to scold the postillion for laziness.

The section dealing with railway travelling is most instructive. The conversation is supposed to pass between two travellers, "Are you married or single?" "I am married. I have a large family. They are very well, my dog is well, too.

"Do you understand locomotives?" "Yes, it is a machine with four or six wheels, a furnace, a funnel, a boiler and steam cylinders with pistons, which cause the wheels to go round."

After this has been said silence must needs follow for the faithful little phrase book has no more to say.

"Conversation in the cafe," will include this mild protest to the waiter, "Kindly tell me why it takes twenty minutes to serve me with a cup of coffee."

"At the Railway Station"—"Porter are you a good pugilist and football player? If you are not you will never be able to serve me a seat in the train."

"To the laundress,"—"Will you leave off kissing my hand and tell me why you charge 2s 6d for washing pyjamas.

"To a cabman,"—"I should be extremely obliged, Sir, if you would take me a short distance, allowing me to pay you three times your legal fare."

"At the tailors,"—"If I must pay £12 for a suit of clothes, I hope you will make them fit."

"To the newspaper seller,"—"Are all your papers published to-dav dated to-morrow and filled with the news of the day before yesterday? If so I do not want any."

And so the little book continues, helping the eager traveller into myriads of pitfalls.—J.E.H. Canadian Overseas.

COMPLAINTS AGAINST GARBAGE COLLECTION

Meeting of the Property Committee Was Held on Saturday Evening

A meeting of the Property Committee of the City Council was held on Saturday evening to hear and consider complaints against the present garbage collecting system. A letter was read from Fire Chief Howard, stating that the refuse was not being removed from 170-184 Simcoe street.

E. Tighe complained that the ashes had not been taken from 513 Dongal street in January or so far in February.

H. Fair was heard. He complained that on many occasions the ashes had been left at his store.

Another complaint was received from 160-162 Simcoe street.

H. F. Doig was heard in regard to complaints which had been made respecting night soil removal.

At the close of considerable discussion Sanitary Inspector Cooper was instructed to see that the work is carried out to better advantage than it has.

Mayor Duffus threatened to cancel the present contract and call for new tenders unless conditions improve.

Presentation Was Made

Veteran Choir Members Honoured by St. Paul's Choir

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mein, members of St. Paul's choir for thirty-five years, were honoured at an entertainment under the auspices of the Choir, on Friday night, when they were presented with an illuminated address and a silver water kettle. Mr. John Crane made the presentation, and Mr. Logan read the address.

Rev. R. Pogue was unable to be present through illness. Speeches wer made by Messrs J. Connal, D. H. Moore, H. O. Fiske, A. Mowat, W. Madill, W. F. Nelson, R. McEwan and Sheriff Hall, while an enjoyable musical programme was given by Miss Dorothy Allan, Miss Georgie Davidson, Miss Gertie Stevens, Mr. Mitson, Mr. Douglas Carlisle and Mr. John Crane.

Refreshments were served during the evening.

Superstitious Belief Regarding Stones

Various Stones Regarded as Being Able to Ward off Different ills.

Most precious stones have some superstitious belief attached to them. A piece of agate worn on the person is supposed to be a safeguard against lightning. The beryl was formerly held to promote happiness between man and wife. The turquoise is said to be a protection against falls and sudden injuries.

The topaz was highly prized on account of its supposed magical powers of dispoiling enchantments and calming frenzy. The green emerald is held in high esteem by the Peruvians, many of whom believe that the mines whence emeralds are extracted are guarded by terrible giants and dragons.

Perhaps more superatition attaches itself to the opal nowadays than to any other stone. On the other hand, the people of long ago considered that this fiery gem had the power of rendering its owner lovable and of bestowing on him or her the gift of invisibility.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

BIG CROWD FOR TO-NIGHT'S BATTLE

Kingston Hockey Club Junior, Will Clash With Peterborough Youngsters in O. H. A. Semi-final Game—Ice is in Good Shape and Fixture Should be one of the Season's Best.

There promises to be the biggest crowd of the season at Brock street rink to-night when the Kingston Hockey Club, champions of Group No. 2, will clash in the first round of the Junior O.H.A. semi-finals. The game is called for 8.15 o'clock and will get away on time as the Kingston Club with a number of supporters will arrive in the city at 5.30 this evening. The game should outrival the Oshawa-Peterborough clash of two weeks ago in interest and excitement. The Easterners have a fast, clever team, while the Petes are a greatly improved outfit since their last appearance here. They have been practising faithfully and if they carry out their promise of substituting team work for the one-man stuff it will be a merry battle. As will be seen from the line-up given below, the forward line has been shifted. According to a local paper there is some criticism of the change. The shake-up has been made for reasons that need not be discussed here, but it is expected to add speed along the boards and scoring ability in the centre, and in answer to the criticism it may said that Graham is no stranger to left wing, where he played for the Electrics in the intermediate series last season, while Bartley played in centre ice last year for the City League champions, so that neither boy is appearing in a new role to-night. The shift has worked well in practice and should not disappoint the fans to-night.

No real hockey fan would think of missing to-night's battle, which should be the best exhibition of the season The ice is in perfect condition and everything is ready for the big game.

The Peterborough line-up will be as follows:

Goal—Murray.
Right defence—McIntyre.
Rover—Cherrett.
Centre—Bartley.

SERGT. VAIR, WAR HERO WILL REFEREE TO-NIGHT'S CONTEST

Sergt. Steve Vair, well-known both as an amateur and professional hockey player, will referee to-night's big game between Kingston and Peterborough Juniors. Sergt. Vair is a veteran of the present war, and was wounded and invalided home after many months' service at the front going over with the first contingent. He is now connected with the Bombing School at Toronto, and still doing his bit for the Empire. Vair was not only a good hockey player, but he was there in the pinches as a man when his country needed men, and he should get a hearty reception from the fans to-night.

HOCKEY GOSSIP

To-night is the first appearance of the Kingston juniors in Peterborough since the season of 1913. The Peterborough team on that occasion lined up as follows: Goal, Darling; defence, Cavanah, Long; rover, Halpin; centre, Ray Rose; right wing, Knapman; left wing, Richardson. Of that team, Knapman and Cavanah are now in France and Long has joined the Canadian Army Dental Corps, while Halpin is captain of the 247th intermediates.

In six games, two O.H.A. fixtures away from home and two O. H. A. and two exhibition games at home, the 247th team have scored exactly 100 goals—an average of almost 17 a game, which is some scoring. The highest figure was 23 against Cobourg and their lowest 9 against T. R. and A. A., the only occasion in six games when they failed to reach double figures in the scoring column.

The Depot Batteries team of Kingston, who meet the 247th team here on Wednesday night, is composed entirely of Ottawa players. Tobin, the goal keeper, is a brother of Billy Tobin, who was with the Electrics at the beginning of last season.

Jerry Coughlin, of the Toronto N. H.A. team, is home for the week end. He was on a scouting trip up north for the Torontos and arrived back too late to accompany the team to Quebec, so came home for Sunday. Jerry says Torontos should win the second section of the N.H.A. race and earn a play off with the Canadiens, who won the first half of the schedule.

This is a big week for Peterborough hockey teams. To-night the juniors clash with Kingston Hockey Club, on Wednesday night the 247th will entertain the Depot Batteries and on Friday the juniors invade Kingston. The 247th do not play their return game in Kingston until a week from to-night.

The Expressmen challenge the C.P. R. hockey team of the freight sheds to a game of hockey to be played as soon as possible at the Brock street rink. See Capt. Dunford.

Line-up:
Goal—Shannon.
R. defence—Sutherland.
L. defence—Dunford.
Rover—Rex.
Centre—Graham.
R. wing—Davey.
L. wing—Spencley.

BOWLING

This week will find the Peterborough Bowling League well on its way to the end and also some hard games to be played by all teams. As it stands now the Printers and the Business Men are fighting it out for first place and it looks like a very close finish. There is no team in the League that does not try to beat the team they play and who knows but what some of these back teams will be the means of putting the top teams out of the race. Never the less the week will see some great bowling at the Water Street Alleys by all the players, especially the Printers and B. M., who cannot afford to lose a game; but then the other teams have something to say about that. This week's games and next will end the League and a good crowd should be out to see the finish, as there is sure to be some good scores hung up by all teams. Mr. Solomon is putting up a beautiful silver shield for the player who makes the highest score in three consecutive games. This contest will be for the next two weeks. This prize is worth going after by any bowler and it is open to all comers. This competition will cause great excitement at the Alleys, as it is worth going over to the Alleys to try and win. The Shield can be seen in Warne Bros. window on George street. Owing to Mr. Solomon being called away to Ottawa Sunday morning he will be absent from the Alleys for a few days. His place will be taken by Mr. Bob Stewart till he returns. League dates will be announced later for this week

WEDNESDAY'S GAME WILL BE A HARD ONE FOR 247th TEAM

The 247th team, who won their group race with ridiculous ease, will have their first big O.H.A. test on Wednesday night when they clash with the crack Depot Batteries team from Kingston at Brock street rink in a second round game. The return game will be played in Kingston a week from to-night and the winner of the round will meet the victors of the Oshawa-Brampton clash.

Wednesday's game should be a hummer. The Depot Batteries team, composed of overseas artillerymen from th C.F.A. brigade at Kingston, were all strangers to the O. H. A. previous to this season, gaining their hockey experience in Ottawa, but the manner in which they disposed of the Kingston Frontenacs, Queen's University and the strong Belleville team, which went to the finals last year, shows their class, and Manager O'Flynn's infantrymen will have to be at their best Wednesday to stave off the assaults of the Kingston gunners. It should be one grand game of hockey.

WITH THE CURLERS

Campbellford Bonspiel.

The annual bonspiel at Campbellford will be held to-morrow. Two rinks from the Peterborough Club are going with Skips JJ. E. A. Fitzgerald and R. G. Sturgeon, and it may be that they will once more bring home the Seymour Power trophies.

To-night's Games.

To-night's scheduled games are as follows:
Dr. Greer vs. Ferguson.
Hicks vs. Kay.
Best vs. Taylor.

Five Hundred Club Formed in the City

for the 247th Battalion and Class B members must give their word to do everything in their power towards the same end. The city, he said, has been divided into five districts and each district would be the field of operations for one committee of the Club, each under a captain. Immediately upon the completion of the organization of the Club itself, the members would receive cards bearing the names of the young men of the city who should enlist and containing the answers given by them previously to recruiting officers as to why they were not found in the ranks. Some of the excuses received on these cards were read by Colonel Ackerman, as follows:

Waiting For Conscription.

"Mother objected," "Do not know the cause of the war," "Waiting for conscription, "Single men should go first." Colonel Ackerman emphasized the fact that the Club membership did not exclude women and paid a tribute to the splendid results that had attended the efforts of the women of this country and Allied nations in connection with the prosecution of the war. Concluding, he urged the sincere co-operation of all.

Judge Huycke.

"I am going to speak to Peterborough people from a Peterborough standpoint to-night," said Judge Huycke in opening his address. "And if, in the course of my remarks, I offend anyone, I have no apology to offer. I believe that the time is here when we must call a spade a spade, and that is my intention this evening." Judge Huycke denounced the men of this city who have deceived recruiting officers in the past, thus excusing themselves and rendering it more difficult for the officers in their efforts to bring local battalions up to strength. There were, it is true, many who are unjustly blamed for not enlisting because, though apparently eligible, they were physically unfit. He strongly recommended that every man who is rejected should get an A. R. button and wear this button at all times. If this were done it would give the people an opportunity to judge and to know that the wearer had made an effort to do his bit. The men who could not wear these buttons must be hiding under filmy excuses and though a poor excuse is better than none, no excuse should be recognized at this crisis.

The honour and dignity of Peterborough and its citizens were at stake, their loyalty was now being tested as it had never been tested before. We must maintain our dignity and our reputation for loyalty at this critical period in the course of the world's greatest war. The immediate future seemed to be filled with coming events of great import. The crisis seemed to be at hand and must pass either favourably to our cause or otherwise. The wild beast of Europe was running unrestrained over the earth and if he succeeded in his effort at world domination, Canadians could not look forward to anything but a posterity, with all true freedom sacrificed. At the present moment we are looking towards the United States, and yet, whatever course our neighbours to the south of us determine upon, it should not alter our duty or our determination to discharge it. At any rate the United States could not possibly be of any material assistance for some time to come.

We should remember that the Dominion of Canada has promised the Motherland half a million men. It was doubtful ,if to-day, there were 200,000 of them on duty in the trenches. It was surprising to know that over 50,000 Americans had voluntarily joined the British ranks. They went to show that the better class of the American citizens is with us in protecting the rights of humanity which the Kaiser has assailed. Outraged Christendom was calling for more men, and to-night Colonel Ackerman, as commander of the 247th Battalion, was calling for more men and still more men. It was a call for men to do a man's work, not for men to content themselves with spending their time just now in the pursuits and occupations that women could well take care of. Peterborough men had made a splendid record at the front. How proud the people of this city are in the achievements of the 2nd, the 21st, the 39th, 80th and 93rd Battalions, and the 12th, 26th, 33rd, 52nd and 74th Batteries. Peterborough was largely represented in all these units, all having served splendidly in them and some winning very high military awards.

Last year the city, through its City Council and the Board of Trade, had asked permission of the Minister of Militia to raise a battalion here. This had been authorized and we must see to it that our promise to fill the battalion is not broken. At our request the 247th Battalion has been organized. Are we filling it? Are we doing our duty? Not one member of the City Council or the Board of Trade has contributed a single man. They had all stepped aside and let the officers bear the burden. It was not fair. Suggestions amounting almost to promises have been given of a Business Men's Company in the 247th Battalion .Where is it? A short time ago a deputation from this city waited on the Government to have them carry out their promise with regard to the completion of the Trent Canal. Should we then call upon the Government to fulfil their promises and go on meantime forgetting our own?

Concluding, Judge Huycke appealed to the ladies to refuse to dance with a man who was not in khaki, or, who could not prove that he had been rejected. He suggested that they refuse to deal with merchants who employed men to do work that women could be doing. The young women and girls could do more for recruiting than a man.

Miss Etta Kemp sang very beautifully a splendid new patriotic solo, "Carry On," and the singing of the National Anthem by all present followed.

TIRED TO ESCAPE FROM FT. HENRY

Special to The Examiner:

KINGSTON, Feb. 5.—That the prisoners of war interned in Fort Henry were making a plan for a get-away was discovered to-day it was found that work on a tunnel had been commenced. This tunnel was intended to lead out to the Moat. Considerable work had been done. An officer making his rounds found where the Huns had been at work.

Pastoral Letter Urges Observance Of Just Laws

against the educational measures of the Government has been caused by the misunderstanding of Regulation 17. Nor is this surprising, since the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in delivering its formal judgment on this Regulation, expresses itself as follows:

"Unfortunately it (the Regulation) is couched in obscure language, and it is not easy to ascertain its true effect."

Meanwhile we exhort our priests and people to pray for harmony and to do nothing that could tend to disturb it.

This letter shall be read without comment on the first Sunday after its receipt at all the Masses in each church and chapel of the Province, and on the first convenient opportunity in the chapels of the religious communities. And we humbly beseech Almighty God to bestow His most abundant graces and blessings upon you all: C. H. Gauthier, Archbishop of Ottawa; N. McNeil, Archbishop of Toronto; M. J. Spratt, Archbishop of Kingston; Arthur Beliveau, Archbishop of St. Boniface; D. J. Scollard, Bishop of Sault Ste. Marie; W. A. Macdonell, Bishop of Alexandria; M. F. Fallon, Bishop of London; M. J. Voice of The People

Correspondence under this heading, containing or involving attacks on individuals or violent or extreme statements, must to secure insertion, be signed with writer's real name, the owner of which thus assumes the responsibility.

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—It is to be hoped that the deputation, which waits on the Council to-night will be strong enough to impress the town fathers with the urgent need of proper bathing facilities for the coming summer and every summer following. These facilities are needed for the preservation of: (1) LIFE. With a river flowing through the city and lakes in abundance in the immediate vicinity, it is almost criminal to neglect to make provision for the youth of both sexes to learn to swim. If men or women get into the water and cannot swim there is absolutely no chance. If they can swim there is some chance anyhow. There is a duty imposed on the Council to give the boys and the girls of the city a chance to learn something, which may mean life in the days to come. (2) HEALTH. Cleanliness is essential to good health. Big cities are deciding that baths are a big preventative of disease and that it pays to encourage the cleansing of the body. We have the evidence of Dr. Neal, that frequent bathing is productive of good health. With proper facilities hundreds will bathe in the river, every day during the warm weather.

(3) DECENCY. The time has come when decency demands that buildings of some sort be provided for those who will use the river in summer, in spite of police or bylaw. It is up to the citizens to see to it, that the river may be used for swimming, without forcing those who use it to dress behind trees or in the shelter of a friendly bush.

The cost of two buildings with adequate facilities for dressing, etc., has been worked out by Mr. Meserve and shown to be comparatively small. This city can stand the cost quite easily. The result will more than pay.

If public opinion shows itself sufficiently strong the Council will act.

Yours truly,
JOSEPH WEARING.

Annual Meeting of the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E. Was Held On Saturday

Officers Elected For the Ensuing Year--Mrs. Huycke is Hon. Vice-Regent-- he Secretary's Report--Autograph Quilt Will Be Sent to Major Davidson in France.

The annual meeting of the Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held in the Green Room of the Y. W. C. A. on Saturday afternoon, 3rd of February, with a very large attendance. The Regent, Mrs. Huycke, was in the chair. There were also present the Regent and officers of the Peter Robinson Chapter, whose reports were presented.

After the opening ceremonies the minutes of the last monthly and annual meetings were read and approved; also the reports of the Secretary-Treasurer and the Convenor of the Sock Committee.

The Convenor of the autograph quilt committee reported that the quilt, which had been undertaken some weeks ago, was nearing completion. It was decided that this should be sent to Major Davidson, in France.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The balloting for officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:

Hon. Regent—Mrs. Wallace Nesbitt.
Hon. Vice Regent—Mrs. Huycke.
Regent—Mrs. R. R. Hall.
1st Vice Regent—Mrs. R. Harstone
2nd Vice-Regent—Mrs. A. E. Coulthard.
Secretary—Miss Helen Denison.
Treasurer—Mrs. Aylmer.
"Echoes" Secretary — Mrs. Sherwood.
Standard Bearer—Miss Elizabeth Irwin.
Councillors—Mrs. Fessenden, Mrs. Dunsford, Mrs. Stapleton, Mrs. Porter, Mrs. Widdifs, Mrs. Morphet, Mrs. Spence, Miss Nan Hall, Mrs. Stratton, Mrs. Buchanan.

Mrs. Spalding and Mrs. Wilson kindly acted as scrutineers at the election. Very hearty votes of thanks were tendered to the retiring officers for their services during the past year.

Both the new Regent and Mrs. Allan, who moved the vote of thanks to the retiring Regent, spoke most warmly of the work which Mrs. Huycke had done for the Chapter since its infancy, and the untiring interest which she had always displayed in its work.

This motion was carried by a standing vote.

The meeting closed with the usual forms and the singing of the National Anthem.

REPORTS RECEIVED.

The following reports were received:

The second annual report of the Otonabee Chapter I.O.D.E. contained the following:

The past year has been one of great activity for our Chapter and contains a record of valuable work done.

Five executive meetings have been held and twelve general meetings, with an average attendance of 18 members. We have added 19 new members to our roll, and now have a membership of 97. We have this year sustained the loss of one of our original members, Mrs. W. H. Moore, who passed away in September.

This year the Chapter decided to adopt the proper forms for the opening and closing of the general meetings, and these, with the proper display of our standard, have proved very useful in lending dignity to the proceedings.

On February 26th, one of the Festival days of our Order, the three chapters of the city united to hold a very enjoyable tea in the Tea Room of the 57th Chapter, which was kindly lent for the occasion.

Early in the year two prisoners of war were adopted by the Chapter, the money being forwarded to Mrs. Rivers Bulkley. In November a Christmas box was packed and sent to each of these men direct from the Chapter, the contents of which were most kindly donated by various members. These boxes, we hope will be received in good order, and will do a little to help "to turn the very dark clouds inside out" for these poor men.

A Christmas box was also sent to Petty Officer A. Miller, H.M.S. Niobe.

As Miss Doble found it impossible to act any longer as Convener of the Wool Committee, Mrs. Widdess was appointed for this work, a hearty vote of thanks being tendered to Miss Doble for her services. Owing to the fact that Mrs. Campbell has been living in Toronto this winter, Mrs. Spence kindly offered to take her place in helping to pack and send off the socks.

During Lent, knitting Teas were held at the houses of different members on Saturday afternoons. Five of these were held and a number of socks were brought in. We have been able to send off 263 pairs of socks this year. Most of these have gone direct to the trenches, and have been gratefully acknowledged. 33 pairs were sent to Mrs. W. H. Hall to assist in the Sock Shower for the 93rd Battalion; 4 pairs were sent to our prisoners at Christmas time, and the Chapter most kindly allowed the Secretary to buy eight pairs at cost price for the prisoners adopted by the Business Girls' Club for their Christmas boxes.

In May the Regent attended the annual meeting of the Order held in Toronto and upon her return, gave a most interesting report of the proceedings.

Prior to the departure of the 93rd Battalion, a Field Day was held in Exhibition Park for the benefit of the Battalion Fund. Four of the different Women's Societies of the city took charge of booths for the sale of all sorts of refreshments. Our Chapter was privileged to be one of these and although the day was a strenuous one for the workers, it was most enjoyable and profitable, as nearly $400 was taken in by these booths.

One of the events of the year for our Chapter was the Garden Fete held at Engleburn by kind permission of His Honour Judge Huycke and our Regent, on June 23rd. With the beautiful surroundings and the various tents and stalls, the scene was most attractive. One of the prettiest features was the Maypole dance, performed by a number of children during both afternoon and evening, and arranged by Miss English. The proceeds from this Fete amounted to over $200. Part of this was used to purchase a gramaphone and records for the 93rd Batt., and the remainder is to be expended in comforts for the men of that Battalion.

On the 13th of July the Chapter assisted a committee of ladies in conducting a refreshment booth, the proceeds of which were used in providing a gramophone and records for the 52nd Battery.

As evidence of the fact that we have not confined our efforts only to our own city, I might mention that $25.00 has been donated to the Secours Nationale, $15.00 to the British Red Cross Society and $100 to the British Sailors' Relief Fund.

On November 13th the Chapter took the important step of opening a workroom, in which to do active work for the Red Cross Society. The use of this room was most generously offered to us by Mr. James Lynch, who is also supplying light and heat. On the opening day the Regent kindly served tea to those present, the 1st Vice Regent acting as hostess the following week. A great deal of work is being turned out in this room under the capable supervision of Mrs. Stapleton and her assistants, viz., 144 sheets, 156 pillow-slips, 301 towels.

Machines have been loaned by some of the members of the Chapter. The thanks of the Chapter are due to the committee in charge of the room, of which Mrs. Porter is convenor, for the way in which they have carried out their work.

Mrs. Spalding and Mrs. R. Harstone are in charge of the autograph quilt which has been undertaken from which it is hoped, a substantial sum will be derived.

Two recitals were given through the kindness of Mr. Frank Whitehouse on the Aeolian Vocalion, one at the Collegiate Institute and the other at the residence of Mrs. R. R. Hall.

On January 8th a recital was given in St. Paul's church by Mrs. Helen Davies Sherry, assisted by Mrs. and Miss Logan and Mr. John Allan, which was a most delightful musical treat, and also raised a substantial sum for the funds of the Chapter. Our very hearty thanks are due to these artists who so kindly offered their services.

One of the most successful entertainments undertaken this year, was the banquet tendered to the returned soldiers on the 14th of January. This was held, by kind permission of Lt.-Col. Ackerman, in the recreation room of the Armouries. There were about 50 officers and men present and a most enjoyable evening was spent. Judge Huycke performed the duties of chairman in his usual happy manner. The speeches given, and the programme of songs and recitations, which was provided by our guests, were highly appreciated. The committee in charge, under the convenorship of Mrs. Fessenden, are to be congratulated upon the success of their efforts. Their warmest thanks are extended to all those who in any way assisted the Chapter in this work of love, and gratitude to these heroes who have been fighting for us.

On January 20th a sock shower was held at the residence of Mrs. Thompson, who very kindly offered the use of her house for this occasion. 156 pairs of socks were received and will be shipped to the Secours Nationale for the benefit of the French soldiers.

The thanks of the Chapter are due to all those who have so kindly assisted us in any work which we have undertaken throughout the year, the list of our kind friends is quite too long to enter in detail, but we must mention especially the members of the Peter Robinson Chapter, who have so willingly and effectually helped us at all times. Also the Press of the city, who have done all in their power to aid us in any of our undertakings.

At the January meeting we had the pleasure of again having with us our standard bearer, Mrs. A. H. Stratton, who has recently returned from England. Our warmest congratulations are offered to her and to Mrs. Fessenden and Mrs. Greer, for the honours conferred on their sons, which were so nobly deserved. To all those mothers in our Chapter who have given their sons to serve the Empire and us, we offer our warmest admiration, and feel that we are honoured by being allowed to do our small share of service side by side with these "mothers of men," all of which is respectfully submitted.

HELEN DENISON,
Secretary Otonabee Chapter, I.O.D.E.

REGENT'S ADDRESS.

Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E.

The Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. has now been in existence 15 months. Properly speaking, this is then our first Annual Meeting and I would like to say a few words about the aims and objects of the Order, what we have accomplished and the possibilities that lie before us. First I would draw your attention to the pledge which all members assume:

"Members are pledged to promote unity between the Motherland, the Sister Colonies and themselves; to promote loyalty to King and Country; to forward every good work for the betterment of their country and people; to assist in the progress of Art and Literature; to draw women's influence to the bettering of all things connected with our great Empire, and to instil into the youth of our country patriotism in its fullest sense."

Coming into existence as we did during the war, our energies and attentions have been directed to War Work, and this is as it should be.

The objects for which we have raised money during the past year were the 93rd Battalion and the Prisoners of War.

The 93rd Battalion have gone to France to re-inforce the men who have been holding the line for 2 1-2 years. Many casualties have been reported in their ranks and I feel that some recognition should be sent from this Chapter to the friends of those brave men who have given their lives that we may enjoy unmolested freedom, perhaps a note of sympathy to mother or wife to show our appreciation.

We were very proud of our 93rd. We should be no less proud of our 247th, now less interested. We should endeavour to assist Col. Ackerman to fill the ranks. It is not always easy for a man to sign up, but our personal interest, influence and appreciation may do much to help.

Our Prisoners of War though in Germany, are in our keeping. If we do not care for them they starve. They are realising as we never can what home and freedom really mean realising it under the stern masters of Exile and Imprisonment. We must never fail to provide for these men we have pledged ourselves to keep. At first $2.50 per month kept a man but now approximately $10.00 per month is required. This means constant effort on our part, for we are pledged for four prisoners. In raising money for these various objects we have met with the most cordial support of the public.

Our parent Chapter, the Otonabee, has always supported us most loyally, and we feel much of our success is due not only to the general interest of the Chapter, but also to the interest of the individual members, and I would like to express our very sincere appreciation of this. We hope that in the years to come we may give such a good account of ourselves that the Otonabee Chapter may feel proud of their daughter.

Now the Pledge of our Order calls for more than raising money. We are called upon to forward every good work for the betterment of things connected with our Empire and to instil true patriotism into the youth of our Country. It is for us now, both individually and collectively to ask ourselves if we are keeping true to our Pledge and to determine that during the coming year we formulate some plan to make this part of our work more effective.

The Local Council of Women, of which we are now an intregal part, are asking that all affiliated Societies take up the slogan of THRIFT. This Chapter might very profitably carry on this idea; also something might be done among the children. These are but suggestions.

Before closing these remarks, I would like to pay a tribute to our former Regent, Miss Jean Harstone, who had the energy and ability to undertake the forming of this Chapter and launch it on the high road to success. We owe her a debt of gratitude in that she opened up this opportunity for us to learn in some degree to live and work for others and through this work to realize the duty of self-sacrifice for our Country, and that we may not be ashamed on the day of Peace when our men return.

GEORGIE STEVENSON,
Regent.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The first annual report of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E. includes the months of October, November, December, 1915; and January of 1916, as owing to the short organization of the Chapter no report was given in February last.

A meeting was held October 25th, to organize the Junior Branch of the Otonabee Chapter of the I.O.D.E. Miss Jean Harstone presided. The following officers were elected.

Regent—Miss Jean Harstone.
Vice Regent—Mrs. R. Widdifield.
Secretary—Miss Hatton.
Treasurer—Miss A. Hill.
Standard Bearer—Miss Cumming.

We applied for our charter under the name of the Peter Robinson Chapter and adopted as a motto "Do Noble Things Not Dream Them All Day Long."

During our year fifteen general meetings and four executive meetings were held. There was a membership of fifty and the meetings were well attended.

The Chapter supplied ushers and assisted at various patriotic entertainments. Twenty-five kit bags were made during the winter of 1916; surgical supplies were made in the Red Cross Rooms.

Field Day, May 24th. The Chapter co-operated with the other Chapters for the benefit of the 93rd Battalion.

We assisted at a Crisco Demonstration at which our first money was earned.

In March a table cloth donated by Mrs. Crane was raffled; the proceeds of which were very gratifying.

A tea and sale of cake was held at the Golf Links.

The profits from several small teas held in the Public Library enable us to send Sergt. Field, a Prisoner of War, reading matter monthly.

The Chapter assisted the Otonabee and 57th Chapters at a Paardeburg Tea, the profits of which were shared.

The sum of $94.00 was realized at a wax works entertainment. With this money at Colonel Johnson's request tables for the 93rd battalion were bought.

Our Regent left us in March last for overseas duties, and we regret the loss of her valuable services. Miss Georgie Stevenson was made Regent in her stead.

Miss Saunders came from Toronto in June and addressed a meeting on the League of Honour.

Four prisoners at a cost of $36.00 per month are supported by the Chapter.

Owing to Doctor F. L. Robinson's kindness and generosity the Chapter made on October 18th, from the Empire Theatre, the sum of Forty-five dollars, and this was applied to the expenses of the Prisoners of War.

As still more money was required for the upkeep of the prisoners, Mr. Graham, having offered the use of the Empress Grill Room for the purpose of holding teas, arrangements were made and advantage was taken of his generosity.

The Chapter wish to extend their thanks to the Otonabee Chapter for colours; Mr. Graham for tea, coffee and sugar on the Opening Days; Mr. Percy Hooper for urns and Mr. W. H. Hamilton for donations of tea, coffee and sugar.

In November a motion was carried to the effect that we affiliate with the National Council of Women.

M. C. HATTON.
Secretary.

SHACKLETON PARTY HAD MANY ESCAPES

Perhaps not until hostilities in Europe have ended will the full story of Sir Ernest Shackleton's South Pole Expedition, his party's many narrow escapes from disaster, the sinking of the "Endurance" in an ocean of ice and his rescue of twenty-two of his men from death and starvation be told. Ending at a time when the whole world was interested in a titanic conflict between the nations, the expedition did not receive the attention that would under other circumstances have been the case. Yet when facts are made known, when history gives it its due, the Shackleton enterprise will rank with the greatest and most hazardous of those so far attempted, and survived, by man.

That any lived to tell of their experiences on board the battered "Endurance" is the surprising feature of the whole expedition. For two months before she went down the gallant ship was the centre of an ice pressure. Frequently, she was caught between two immense ice-floes and on more than one occasion the crew almost gave up hope of ever getting her free again.

THREATENED FOR MONTHS.

For twelve months the ship and camp on the drifting floe were threatened by this gigantic mass of ice, one of the bergs especially, named by the Expedition the "Rampart Berg" being the greatest menace. This hostile pillar drifted north with the ship and often threatened to plough through the pack ice and crush the "Endurance" in its path. Referring to this Sir Ernest Shackleton reported by cable, "In mid-April we had a moment of grave anxiety. The pack drove the ship toward a great stranded berg, and we were saved only by a sudden change in the drift."

Then, at last after weeks of buffeting against what at times seemed certain destruction, the good ship "Endurance" came to grief. After the pressure on its side was released, the vessel sank, between the ice floes. The floes came together again, sheared off the masts and top below the ice into the waters of Waddell Sea.

ESCAPED TO ISLAND.

Followed the escape to Elephant Island which prevented the loss of the entire party. On a drifting floe which he dubbed "Patience Camp" Sir Ernest Shackleton pitched his camp and established his headquarters. Cooking was done on a stove improvised from an old oil drum, blubber and penguin skins being utilized as fuel.

On this inhospitable spot the members of the expedition dwelt until rescued later on by the Shackleton Relief party. During all this time the pack ice choked the bay and in the rear of the little camp were glaciers from which avalanches continually threatened to fall and, by the waves thus created, sweep the explores, twenty-two of them in all, from their refuge. For four and a half months the little party underwent this experience, Gento Penguins, which they skinned, forming their principal food through all these long, dreary weeks.

For their safety the Shackleton adventurers owe a great deal to Mr. Frank Wild, the second in command, and to this gallant gentleman, Sir Ernest paid a splendid tribute when in cabling to the King from Elephant Island, following the rescue, he said, that "the safety and well-being of the party was primarily due to his qualities of leadership, tact and force of character."

THREE ATTEMPTS AT RESCUE.

Came then the great day, August 30, 1916, when help arived and with it thoughts of home. Three attempts Sir Ernest made to reach his stranded men and thrice were his efforts rendered fruitless and set at naught by the conditions under which he labored. On the fourth occasion success crowned his perseverance and after an absence of four months, the leader was united with his men. In a row boat lowered by the steamer "Yelecho" the dauntless explorer sailed into the little bay and the work of rescue was successfully accomplished.

Physical hardships his men had suffered and weeks of anxiety and suspense they had undergone, but the rescued were none the worse off for their experience. Th chieftain found them in good health and better spirits, and it was his good fortune to escort from danger the brave little band of whose safety the world had been given cause to despair.

By a Clever Stratagem Armoured Cars Won Out

(By Rubino Bishkoff)

Petrograd. — Reports reaching me give further particulars of the recent engagement of the British naval armoured car squadron against the German - Turco - Bulgarian armies in the Dobrudja. The few details available show that under heavy fire and at great risk two squadrons of the armoured cars forced a passage through the enemy lines, whereby a large force of the enemy was cut off. All the cars advanced far beyond the enemy lines, and, notwithstanding assertions to the contrary, everyone succeeded in getting back. This was, however, not accomplished without loss, as, in order to save the cars, one officer and six men left the motors, and as a result were made prisoners by the Germans.

The Czar has conferred the Cross of St. George upon nine members of the unit. As already announced, the appearance of the British force in Rumania came as a dramatic surprise, as when last heard of the squadron had made a record journey tant theatres. In one month the squadrons ad made a record journey from Turkey. Two of the squadrons after considerable difficulty, joined up with our army operating in Turkish Armenia.

In this section it was that the greatest adventures took place. Impediments of transport made the supply of petrol and even food very difficult, and the officers and men of the squadrons had to hunt down Turkish cattle. A great day was the capture of two oxen up in the hills, for the squadrons had for many weeks been without meat.

CONSUMED MUCH PETROL.

As for petrol, the great distance involved considerable consumption and when the squadrons actually reached our armies they had exhausted their supply. It would take them a matter of three days before they could get any more, and it was only by a big bluff that they saved the situation. Just when this shortage became apparent news of a contemplated Turkish attack reached the squadrons. They could not advance or retire, and they only saved themselves by collecting all the petrol left in the cars, and put it in their best car, which was sent forward deliberately, as though to reconnoitre, and the ground was openly surveyed as though an attack was to be made.

This deception was kept up for two days until the petrol arrived and it completely deluded the Turks. When the petrol had arrived the armored cars undertook an attack upon the village of Norshen. The Turks had been allowed to infer that the armored cars were going away, and their surprise was great.

The distance separating the armored car position and the Turkish village was traversed by the armored cars before any reinforcements could come up, and the village was surrounded. One shot alone from one of the guns on the armored cars destroyed a Turkish magazine at the base, killing over 300 Turks. This engagement was one of many similar skirmishes in this region.

The Kurds proved a brutal enemy. They captured two Cossacks attached to the armored car squadron and carried them up to the hills. The day following they came with their knives, rolled up the sleeves of their captives' right arm and sharpened their knives upon it. They did the same the day following upon their left arm. The third day they came to kill them, only to find that the prisoners had escaped, and were back again with their squadrons. The value of armored cars in dealing with enemies like this was very great. Not only was guerilla warfare with the Kurds kept under, but the capture of villages like Norshen destroyed bases of corn and food supplies which were vital for winter supplies.

A NEW TYPE OF MACHINE G

There is great activity just no the development of machine g and particularly of the type w because of its light weight, ca carried forward by troops in ma a rush at the enemy. A very re gun of this type weighs about tw five pounds and to a short whil can be used as a shoulder gu The magazine, which holds two h of cartridges, slips into place rapidly. This is one of the good tures of this gun, and we are that during a recent official te was found that the magazine c be adjusted as quickly in the d as in the daylight.

The gun is of what is known the gas operated type—that is to a small portion of the gases of charge pass out of the gun thro a hole in the bottom of the b near the muzzle, and acting o piston, serves automatically to form the work of loading, firing, The maximum possible rate of is stated by the manufacturers t 600 shots per minute.

Perhaps the most notable nov in this gun is the attempt to ap the water-cooled principle to a l gun, thereby combining the g points of the heavy Maxim, w might be called a machine-gun position, with the light weight the Lewis gun. The method of c ing it as follows:

The barrel is encased in a ja of such diameter as to provid water space entirely around the rel. The supply of cooling wate contained in a rubber bag, and culation is secured by pressing bag, either under the arm o the foot, and forcing a certain mount of water through the coo chamber and out through a t near the muzzle. At the outer of this tube is a sponge, wh will condense any steam formed contact with the hot barrel, t preventing discovery of the g position.

The Corset Should Vary---

NOT ONLY fashion, but comfort demands that the Corset should vary with the requirements of the occasion, just as the gown varies.

If a firm corset, which holds the figure in place, is used for general day-time wear, it is then possible to choose a lighter, more comfortable model for the evening—especially, if dancing is to be an event of the evening. The same is true in regard to a sport corset. It may be a shorter, more flexible affair than that for general use. School Board Estimates Will Be Investigated By The City Council

Desperate Effort Will Be Made to Keep the Tax Rate Down --Meeting of the Finance Committee---A Man Who Has Given His Four Sons to the Cause and Has Lost Two of Them, Is Compelled to Seek a Pedlar's License in Order to Keep the Wolf From the Door.

The request of the Board of Education for an appropriation of $60,000, and also that of the Peterborough Public Library for $4,800 will be subject to a microscopic examination before they are passed upon by the City Council. That the two appropriations will be finally provided for goes without saying, as in the case of the School Board the Council has no option in the matter. As for the Public Library Board, an appropriation up to one half mill can be demanded. The School Board's estimates are nearly ten thousand dollars higher, due to a number of additional rooms that have been opened up and other contigencies that have to be provided for. The Public Library estimates are about three hundred dollars over last year's estimates. It is nothing new for the City Council to challenge the estimates of the School Board, and it will be nothing new if the City Council should be defeated in their purpose to have them reduced.

On Saturday afternoon the Finance Committee gave the estimates a once over and decided to pay both the School Board and the Public Library enough money to keep them going until the oratory is all over and the thirty-mill tax rate is struck.

Salary Increases.

The Committee will recommend that the salary of City Relief Officer Miller be increased from $700 to $800 a year. The present salary of Mr. Miller works out at the rate of a little over thirteen dollars a week. The Committee agreed that an increase was in order. The salary of Mr. L. Ingram, clerk in the City Clerk's Office, will be increased from $600 to $900 a year if the recommendation of the Committe passes the City Council. The increases will be dated from January the first. The above were conceded to be deserving cases and the Committee made it plain that requests for salary increases from any other source would be opposed.

Opinions Varied.

The City Trust Commission will be asked for an opinion as to the relative value of instalment and sinking fund debentures. A number of letters from different bond houses received by the Committee expressed varied opinions on this subject.

Alderman Stratton, chairman of the Committee, was in favour of referring the matter to the City Trust Commission for an expression of opinion.

"This is the only city in Canada that has a commission," said His Worship Mayor Duffus. All the debentures of the city are cared for by the Trust Commission. Sinking fund debentures are more in favour by the brokerage houses. They are more easily negotiated and usually net a higher price to the city.

Will Return Policy.

At the request of Alderman Taylor, who represents a number of insurance companies in the city, a small policy covering the Fire Chief's buggy will be returned so as not to interfere with the legality of his election to the City Council. It is doubtful if the policy will be renewed in another company, as it is the intention of the Council to provide the Fire Chief with something more in keeping with the necessities of his department. This will take the form of a piece of motor-driven apparatus. The matter was left in the hands of Alderman Dobbin, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee. The munificent sum of twenty-five dollars was granted to the Sick Children's Hospital, Toronto. Alderman F. H. Dobbin wanted to pass it up, but the other aldermen were opposed.

Alderman Stratton was deputed to deal with the issuance of sixty thousand dollars' worth of debentures for the Patriotic Fund. The debentures may be issued in two bites, and if possible will be sold locally.

1917 Estimates.

The chairman of each committee will be asked to prepare and submit the estimates respecting their departments so as to facilitate the striking of the tax rate. This ordeal will commence in the course of a week or two.

Opposed to System.

A bill for one hundred and seventy-three dollars and eighty-four cents, being the city's share of the cost of maintaining the office of district officer of health, was passed by the Committee. A number of municipalities, including Peterborough, have sent a resolution to the Provincial Government protesting against the system. The district officer of health for Peterborough City and County is Dr. George Clinton, with headquarters in Belleville.

Bill Too Large.

The Committee will ask for further information concerning a bill for fifty dollars presented by Dr. L. J. Rogers, of Toronto, for an analysis in connection with an inquest that was held some weeks ago. The City Solicitor is of the opinion that the bill is twenty-five dollars too much, as Dr. Rogers did not perform a post mortem examination.

"Arrangements will be made to enable William Parrott, vendor in notions, to obtain more comfortable quarters. At present, Parrott, who is a cripple, is located in a lane on Hunter street. The case of Robert Elliott, who wants to secure a pedlar's license, will also be dealt with by the same Committee. Elliott fell off a building at the Quaker Oats Company's plant last summer and has been incapacitated ever since. One of his soldier sons was shot by a sentry at Kingston, and another died of wounds while serving his King and country. Another boy is in the trenches, and a fourth boy, who was unable to pass the medical examination, is working on munitions in the Old Land, where four dollars a day and upward is the exception and not the rule.

Why Public Bathing Places Should Be Heartily Supported

Two Facts That Must Be Borne in Mind as Public Welfare Movements Are Considered

We heartily approve of a quotation regarding the use of public funds made by Attorney G. W. Hatton in his letter published this week regarding the new Court House. We believe that this quotation also applies to the expenditure of public money for the welfare of the youth of our city. There are two facts also that should be borne in mind as we endeavour to solve the public bathing question.

The first is: It is a Patriotic movement. Patriotism drew us into the War in defence of our home and the defence of a little country that has been outraged. Bearing the burdens of Canada's part in the War is the Canadian home. The home has produced the boys who are now bravely fighting in her defence and the home is their inspiration to continue to fight until a final victory is obtained. The home pays the war bill in money and men, and it is on the young people now being nurtured in the home that Canada's future will depend. It is a patriotic duty to aid the home in developing and training strong youth for the future. Peterborough performs a patriotic duty by providing public library, schools, church and playgrounds, and it is no less a patriotic duty to guard the lives and morals of our young people by providing supervised bathing places on the banks of the Otonabee. Captain George Richardson, of Kingston, who gave his life at the front left $8,000 in his will to improve the public bathing places of his home city. The glory of victory in the war will be greatly dimmed if the youth at home have been neglected. Common sense impels us to care for our youth, therefore, the movement for public bathing places becomes a

A CIVIC ENTERPRISE:

Every city that publishes a prospectus of any kind advertises for factories and citizens by featuring the public welfare facilities provided for the children of its citizens.

Two real estate advertisements clipped from the same city paper on January 20th based their pulling power on the following which is an exact quotation. "Maximum sunlight; a real neighbourhood community with a Playground." "The children, it is not too early to think about them for next summer, before you buy anywhere, see "Brightwaters," a children's paradise."

The question before us now is: Is not Peterborough as progressive as Orillia, Kingston, Brockville, Sherbrooke, Fort William, and a score of other small Canadian cities that have provided public bathing facilities? Cannot Peterborough assure the manufacturer that his employees may contentedly enjoy the safe welfare privileges here as in other cities.

The citizens of Peterborough are confident that our Council will rightly answer this question TO-NIGHT.

THE PLAYGROUNDS COMMITTEE ON BATHING HOUSES.

REV. T. ALBERT MOORE, D.D. AT GEORGE STREET CHURCH

Secretary of the Department of Moral Reform Tells of the Work Accomplished By the Department---A Definition of a Christian.

A very large congregation heard the Rev. T. Albert Moore, D.D., of Toronto, Secretary of the Department of Social Service and Moral Reform of the Methodist church, at the George street Methodist church last night. In an interesting sermon Dr. Moore told what this department of the church had accomplished, and recited 800, some of the problems with which it was attempting to cope at the present time. He recounted the successes of the church in "bringing the laws of the land more nearly up to the laws of God," and mentioned various forms of vice, including gambling, which were now greatly restricted and heavily punished by laws, for the enactment of which the church was largely responsible. He characterized as "a farce" the present law which upholds gambling within the fence of a race course as respectable and permissable, but which makes it a crime and entirely illegal outside of the fence. He appealed to the congregation that something might be done to remedy this condition.

The Text.

Dr. Moore took for his text two passages, the first from Matthew, and the second from Luke which read as follows: "For the Son of Man is come to save that which was lost."

Matthew uses these words in speaking of a little innocent child, and Luke used them in speaking of a man of maturity and who has sunk so low that there was no other work for him than that of collecting the taxes—a despised position at that time. We must be careful lest by our teaching and influence a little child should be led from the path of innocence and purity and righteousness. "Oh let us be cautious that no child shall take a wrong step because of us." But Matthew tells us that if a little child is led astray that he can be brought back to the fold again through Jesus. Look at the great circumference—from a little child who has gone astray to the despised tax collector. There is no soul walking the pathway of life today between the child and the despised man who is not eligible for the love of Jesus Christ. Men may be lost in a physical ,social or moral sense, but this test includes them both. "For the son of man came to save that which was lost."

Written Definitions.

The speaker taught a Sunday school class of thirteen youngsters one Sunday and asked them for written definitions of "A Christian." They arrived in due time and in the definitions were 19 "doesn'ts" and not a single "does." This represented many people's ideas of Christianity. But they were far astray. A Christian is one who does something and is continually doing something—he constructs the Kingdom of God and builds the Temple of the Lord upon this earth.

Continuing Dr. Moore turned to the history of his department in the Methodist church. It had been organized with the object in view that the church as an organization should approach the authorities with regard to the laws of this land and their administration; that the church as an organized force should realize results by changing our social life from despicable and that lead men and women astray. The representatives of this department of the church have interviewed the Prime Minister of Canada and the Premiers of every Province in Canada with regard to laws of sanitation, hygiene and conduct, and as a result law had been passed with reference to gambling, the use and sale of drugs and the traffic in young girls in this Dominion that were far in advance of what they had formally been.

A Chance to Live.

The speaker told of what the church was doing in the line of giving children from immoral and destitute surroundings a chance to live and related some incidents which brought tears to the eyes of the congregation. There are nine foster children of the Methodist church in Methodist homes in Peterborough County and over five hundred children throughout the Dominion. It was the object of the Social Service Department of the church to bring the laws of the land more nearly up to the laws of God. Concluding he made an eloquent appeal for assistance, financial and spiritual, in the work that is to be done in the future.

She Killed Her Child.

Notwithstanding the fact that measures have been taken in France that mothers may turn their illegitimate children with German fathers over to the State without revealing their own names Josephine Barthelmy killed her child and was brought to trial.

The Paris jury decided that it is not a crime for a mother to kill a child born as a result of the mother's being violated by Germans.

"I killed my child because its father was a German," said the young mother. She said she was a servant at the military hospital at Chambly —which is in the invaded regions. All the orderlies there were German soldiers. In December, 1915, eight of these orderlies attacked her in the chapel of the hospital. Last January she was repatriated and got a place as a servant at Genevilliers, where her sister lived.

SMALL BLAZE ON PERRY STREET

A fire at the home of Mr. Walter Radley, 228 Perry street, gave the fire department a run yesterday evening about six-fifteen o'clock. The fire was located on the second floor. It required about five tanks of chemicals before the blaze was extinguished. The damage may amount to about one hundred dollars. The property is owned by Mr. J. J. McBain.

MR. M. K. COWAN'S BILL FOR SERVICES RENDERED THE CITY

Solicitor in the Arbitration Proceedings Received One Hundred Iron Men a Day —Accounts Will be Chargeable to the Property

Five thousand, three hundred and forty-nine dollars and twenty-six cents! Not so very much if you say it quickly, but enough to chill the enthusiasm of the Finance Committee of the City Council, which met on Saturday afternoon, and for the first time gazed upon the bill of M. K. Cowan, solicitor for the city in the arbitration between this city and the Peterborough Light and Power Company. City Solicitor G. N. Gordon came to the rescue with the assurance that the above amount is chargeable to the property acquired by the city from the power company, so that it will not figure in this year's tax rate, which, despite all efforts to apply the soft pedal, promises to be nearer thirty than twenty-five mills.

$100 A DAY.

"The bill," said Mr. Gordon, "is for three or four years' work performed by Mr. M. K. Cowan of Toronto. Mr. Cowan was retained by Mr. E. H. D. Hall, during the latter's tenure of office as City Solicitor. Mr. Cowan was paid at the rate of one hundred dollars a day, a salary that even a munition worker would envy. Mr. Gordon said he had spent some considerable time checking over the account and had found every item correct.

The bill was accepted by the Finance Committee.

Hub: "Look here, Mary. It was only last month I paid a dressmaker's bill of $74, and here is another one for $90."

Wife: "Well, dear, doesn't that show that I am beginning to spend less?"

THE COAL SITUATION

It is No Worse Now Than At Any Time This Winter—Better Than Anything

From reports received from the coal dealers today it would appear that the difficulty between the United States and Germany had the effect of making everybody want to stock up with coal, sufficient to do the balance of the winter, fearing no doubt, that if war is declared the United States would commandeer all the coal for their navy.

The United States navy burns smokeless coal, the using of which, would not affect domestic conditions at all. It is admitted that their may not be sufficient smokeless coal for the requirements. In that case steam coal would have to be used. This would make the manufacturer short and he would have to fall back on steam sizes of anthracite coal; but by the time the domestic sizes of anthracite coal would be called on, the burning season of hard coal would be over.

Mr. Hicks gives the above statement and he feels that if householders will only size up the situation as they have up to the present time, and order only for their immediate needs that everybody will be served with coal this winter. It can't be done if distribution is not equal.

A very grave situation has been tided over so far, by the citizens and dealers co-operating, and with the slipping away of the winter it only needs continued co-operation to see the difficulties cleared away to the end of the winter.

THE THIRTIETH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE MANUFACTURERS' LIFE DISCLOSES A YEAR OF WONDERFUL PROGRESS

The Thirteenth Annual Report of the Manufacturers' Life Insurance Company is one that should occasion general satisfaction to its thousands of policyholders.

The insurance issued and revived amounted to the large sum of $13,-620,213, making the total insurance in force $89,118,369, a net increase of $5,572,167. The Premium Income showed an increase of $141,980, and amounted to $3,373,598, while the income from investments was $1,-286,043, an increase of $130,517, making the total income $4,659,641, an increase of $271,877. The payments to policyholders amounted to $1,782,390, in addition to which there was set aside a further sum of $2,007,703 for reserves and dividends to policyholders.

The mortality experienced was very favorable, being 30 per cent. less than the amount provided for.

The assets of the Company were valued on the stringent basis laid down by the Dominion Insurance Department, and amount to $22,694,-436, an increase of $1,940,757, while the policy reserves are now $18,659,-352.

After setting aside a special Contingency Reserve of $220,000, the surplus is shown as $3,527,895. As an indication of the conservative method adopted in preparing the balance sheet, it may be pointed out that had the Company complied with the Canadian Government requirements only, a surplus of $6,436,943 would have been disclosed.

The annual statement shows substantial growth in every respect.

Fore-runners of A New Music

Famous Cherniavskys Will Appear in the Conservatory Hall Next Monday

Leo, Jan and Mischel Cherniavskys, Russian violinist, pianist and 'cellist, who will appear here on Monday 12th February at the Conservatory Hall, are, as it were, the forerunners of a new and more expansive music. The Cherniavsky's propaganda says: "So few are the opportunities of receiving inspiration, that every chance should be hugged for; in truth, these are golden chances and we should watch and embrace them, for thereby will individual and national progress be made. The development of Music and Art means the acceleration of spiritual, intellectual, emotional and material advancement. The conditions here physchologically are conducive to quick development and there is no reason whatsoever why Art should not be more advanced. Countries possessing wonderful scenery and music and set go hand in hand, the former inspiring the latter. The conditions are very favourable; the divine inspiration is waiting and aching to pour itself out; but be its vessel, it wants you to be; listen for its music, "Peace, Joy," and carry out its mission. Show your strong desire for national service and the knowledge will be at hand and the glorious realisation will follow. This is the advice of a dreamer you will say. Perhaps, but a practical one. Recollect the dreams of your desires always precede their realisation. This is a natural law. Achievement is purely a dream manifested."

It is hoped that no stone will be left unturned to make the visit of these great Russians a huge success.

R. W. Bradshaw, the well known rancher of Magrath, Alta., was recently offered $12 per head for 2,000 cows by the Prince Rupert meat market.

Top of Quaker Oats Elevator Was Blown Off

With a resounding report that reverberated over the centre of the city and across Ashburnham a gas explosion in the south east silo of the big Quaker Oats grain elevator blew the heavy iron top off into the river and a hole apparently as big as a wash tub out of the cement wall a few yards below the top. It occurred this afternoon about 2:30 o'clock, and was immediately followed by a rush of smoke from that particular cylinder, indicating the presence of a fire that has apparently been slowly burning, probably since the fire on December 11th.

Workmen loading grain in the cars at the very foot of the elevator jumped at the first noise and scrampered away across the piles of debris, expecting the whole structure was about to tumble down on top of them. The fire department was called out, but the problem of reaching the top of the elevator seemed manifestly beyond its power. Wreaths of smoke curled in considerable volume from the opened elevator. The whole in the concrete is on the south-west side and can be seen from Hunter street. The silo is filled with corn.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.— A burst of bull activity on the Stock Exchange, which started with the patriotic demonstration Saturday, continued at the opening to-day, prices generally showing advances ranging from fractions to more than three points.

There were several individual cases where losses were marked up. U. S. Steel advances 2 points to 106.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—The severance of diplomatic arrangements does not necessarily mean war. President Wilson has hesitated taking drastic action in the German issue until he can advise fully with his counsellors. This does not mean that the President will not take every step which the situation demands. The American people are confident that he will not permit himself to be swerved from the path of duty. In this situation there is no partisanship, no thought of party. As Mr. Hughes has so aptly said: "We are all Americans, standing loyally behind the President upon whom the responsibility rests." Serene in their belief that the President's decision can be no other than for the good side of kepeing the nation's faith, that it will be a decision for right and not for wrong, American people are waiting it with confidence and with calmness. The present is a good time for coolheadedness, don't be stampeded. The Government at Washington still lives. Our country is prosperous and war or no war our industries will continue to strive. Be counselled accordingly, Crucible Steel is getting down to bed-rock bottom. U. S. Steel days hence will be ex. three p.c. dividend. Morgan factions stand ready to support this stock. The surest and safest way to make money is to buy on panicky days. Recoveries must follow.

Street Hates Suspense.

Wall Street hates suspense, and there may be some who figure that it is better to pay more for stocks on Monday if necessary than to carry them over. However, selling many stocks now is like giving away something that has been earned but has not yet been arranged to be paid out to shareholders. Beet sugar does arrange to pay some of its profits. If all industrial concerns should decide to do as well relatively we would have some scurrying by bears. However, that is not to be expected and we must look for wild selling in leading stocks making for a traders' paradise. Professionals will watch Steel as bears try to break it through Thursday's low. There seem to be many shorts in this stock and the list for that matter. Every drive should be bought greedily. Cuban cane sugar is splendidly bought and will double and more in time, probably this year. The war stocks should be bought and held and added to on drives. We expect them to soar as soon as things are settled one way or the other, for we are to have preparedness if not war. So the steel, copper, iron and coal stocks are well worth picking up while others throw them away. Utah's sturdy resistance to pressure suggests important buying continues that was wiling to take stock much higher and only is able now to secure its line without bidding up much. Cheap issues should appeal, like Cal. Pete, Enameling, A.C.M., Corn Products. The rails can't do much until the foreign selling is over. They are bargains anyway we look at it. Buy Cotton and Wheat on good drops.

Mother Loses Fight for Child

JUDGE DECIDES THAT GIRL WILL BE SAFER WITH FAMILY WHO ADOPTED HER.

An unhappy mother's fight for the custody of her two-and-half years' old daughter ended in failure at Osgoode Hall on Saturday when Mr. Justice Masten decided that it would be in the best interests of the girl were she to be allowed to remain in the foster home arranged for her by the father. The mother, Mrs. John Nairn in pleading that she was better able to care for her own offspring than any foster-mother, said that when she married John Nairn, the father, he was already married. She was now in domestic service, and her employers were willing that she bring up the child at her house. Nairn denied the story of the earlier marriage, and said he took the child from its mother when the latter was ill. He fears that if his wife were to lose her situation the child might suffer. Mr. Justice Masten, in deciding that the child should remain with the foster-parents, pointed out the precarious nature of the ability of the mother to support and provide a home for her.

The above item is of local interest, in view of the fact that the Children's Aid Society of Peterborough, has been threatened with two attempts to recover children who have been made wards of the Society. Whether they are successful depends upon the parents' ability to provide a suitable home for the children.

Kind words make his wife happy, and no decent man ought to withhold them, and he will find that the general run of affairs in his household will be smoother all around.

Dairy Interests Want Ban Sustained

Suggestion to Introduce Margarine Received With Indignation.

A protest against the removal of the embargo on oleomargarine was made to the Hon. Martin Burrell and Sir George Foster by J. B. Dargavel, M.P.P., J. H. Padgett, M. P. P., and D. A. Dempsey, who spoke for a delegation of dairymen of Ontario. Mr. J. A. M. Armstrong, M. P. for York, also protested against the introduction of the substitute for butter, saying that the suggestion of a removal of the embargo was received with indignation by the dairying interests of the whole province.

Berlin Public and Press Expect War With the United States

Germany May Declare War On United States

Germany's Answer to President Wilson's Notice of a Diplomatic Break is Expected Within Twenty-four Hours—German Foreign Minister Zimmerman Says "There is No Step Backward."

STATES PREPARING FOR WAR

Special to The Examiner.

WASHINGTON, February 6.—(By Robert J. Bender)—Germany's answer to President Wilson's notice of a diplomatic break is expected within twenty-four hours.

It may be a declaration of war.

The belief is rapidly crystallizing among officials that this final step is inevitable, and it would cause no surprise if Germany took it now.

This belief was strengthened by the receipt of Berlin press despatches quoting Foreign Minister Zimmerman as saying: "There is no step backward" contemplated, following President Wilson's action.

Possible action of this kind by Germany took precedence in the discussion of officials to-day.

Should Germany make the war declaration some officials believe she will base her declaration on President Wilson's active effort to align all neutral governments in a break.

Some officials, however, in spite of the German declarations to the contrary, believe she may modify her U-boat campaign before a greater crash results.

Meanwhile the Government moved rapidly on inauguration, completing and perfecting details of war preparation in all parts of the country, especially on the Atlantic and Pacific seacoasts.

Wheat Market Develops Strength

Wheat market has developed considerable strength since the break of the United States with Germany. Shipments, it is said, will go on uninterrupted at the seaboard, and with extreme cold weather over the wheat belt, the situation is regarded as strongly favouring the bull side of the market. Cash prices have advanced sharply.

Manitoba wheat— No. 1 northern, $1.93 1-2, track, bay ports; No. 2, $1.89 1-2; No. 3, $1.84 1-2; No. 4, $1.75 3-4; old crop, 4c. above new crop.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C.W., 66 1-2c.; No. 3, 64 1-2c.; extra No. 1 feed, 66 1-2c.; No. 1 feed 63 1-2c., all rail delivered.

American corn—No. 3, 64 1-2c., subject to embargo.

Ontario oats—No. 2 white, 62c. to 64c.; No. 3 white, 61c. to 63c.

Ontario wheat—No. 2 winter per car lot, $1.68 to $1.70; No. 3, $1.66 to $1.68.

Ontario flour—New winter, $7.00 to $7.30, in bags, track, Toronto, prompt shipment, $6.90, bulk, seaboard, export grade.

Millfeed—Car lots, delivered, Montreal; shorts, $39; bran, $43; feed flour, per bag, $2.80.

Hay—Baled, No. 1, track, Toronto, best grade new hay, car lots, $13; No. 2, $12 to $12.50; mixed, $10 to $11.50; straw, $9.

Cattle Markets.

Union Stock Yards—Receipts yesterday—75 cars with 1,463 cattle, 183 calves, 379 hogs, and 77 sheep and lambs.

Market was very firm, owing to the very light run. The difficulty seems to have been with the railways and the cold weather. Many cars of cattle and small stock were reported held up at different railroad points and unable to get to market. Prices as a result were rather better than steady, and averaged 15c. to 25c. higher than last Monday. Sheep and lambs, steady. Hogs steady.

A GOOD WINTER HABIT

Many people dread winter because the sudden climatic changes bring colds, grippe, rheumatism, tonsilitis or bronchitis. But thousands of well-informed men and women today avoid much sickness for themselves and their children by taking a few bottles of Scott's Emulsion to make richer blood, fortify the membranes of the throat and chest and create body-warmth to resist sickness. Soldiers at war receive cod liver oil; it will also strengthen you.

PUT STOMACH IN FINE CONDITION

Says Indigestion Results From An Excess of Hydrochloric Acid

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that indigestion is caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydro-chloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest, we belch up gas, we regurgitate sour food or have heart-burn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts, and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescing and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

Housatonic Sunk By a Submarine

American Liner Bound For London Attacked Near Scilly Islands

U. S. Merely Have Claim For Damages if Warning Was Given.

LONDON, Feb. 5.—The Housatonic sailed from Galveston on Jan. 6 and from Newport News on Jan. 16 for London. She was formerly the Hamburg-American line steamer Georgia and of American registry, which was granted to her in April, 1915. Prior to that time she had been laid up at New Orleans since the beginning of the war. It was then announced the vessel had been bought by the Housatonic Steamship Company, of which Edward F. Greer of New York was president. The Housatonic was 3,143 tons gross and was built in Glasgow in 1890. She was 238 feet long, 40 feet wide and 20 feet deep.

Later information confirmed the report that Housatonic was sunk near the Scilly Islands. She carried 144,200 bushels of wheat from Galveston.

At the offices of the Texas Transport and Terminal Co., agents for the Housatonic, it was stated that there were approximately 15 Americans in the crew, and 24 of other nationalities.

The ship was carrying contraband, and if she was destroyed, after proper warning and provision for safety of her crew, or in attempt to escape, the United States merely would have a claim for damages, as in the Fry case.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.— American Consul at Plymouth cables that the American steamer "Housatonic" was given full warning and the crew given ample time to escape.

Turkish Time Very Confusing to European

The Turks count their day from sunset (12 o'clock) to the next sunset, dividing the twenty-four hours into twelves, as we do. This is plain sailing, but unfortunately sunset does not fall on the same hour day after day, and there ensue horrible complications to the innocent European.

By way, presumably, of jest, the Turkish steamers follow Turkish and their railways Frankish time. Probably many a good man has ended his life in a lunatic asylum after a frantic attempt to reconcile the two. The pampered rich have watches specially constructed with two dials, one showing each time.

Apparently some enterprising Osmanli thought that the Turkish calendar erred on the side of simplicity and kindly invented a new complication. The Mohammedan year dates from the flight of the prophet in the seventeenth century; each year the first month, Mahairan, comes eleven days earlier so the months do not mark the season like ours.

There is one more section for the benefit of the Turkish peasant, who in his rural retreats knows nothing of months. For him the year is composed of two seasons: Hidrallis beginning on May 6, and Kasuin, beginning Nov. 7 so to him April 10 is the seoah dof fof go iso jrFoL otw 164th day of Kasuin.

New Belgian Army Has Guns Taken From Germans

Added to These Are Heavy Artillery From France and England—The Belgian Army Has Been Reorganized to a Point of Splendid Efficiency—The King Remains in Command.

MORALE AT ITS BEST

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, February 6.—Protected by more than a mile of water flooding the battlefield, between their lines and those of the Germans, the army of King Albert of Belgium has been reorganized to a point of splendid efficiency. The King remains in command of his forces, holding what is left of the soil of his kingdom, and daily goes about the fighting front, often accompanied by the Queen.

King Albert and the Queen have lived on Belgian soil since the beginning of the war—he with his troops, she engaged in hospital work. Often they are seen together, chatting with the soldiers as they return from duty at the front.

In England, Princess Marie Jose is doing her share. Though grieved by her exile and the separation from her mother and father, the little Princess is busily engaged in relief work.

She raised a large sum for the Belgian soldiers' Christmas fund by presenting contributors with her photographs, each signed by herself. She not only has been the object of deep sympathy in England, but is very popular there among all classes because of her bright personality.

England, France, America and even Germany have contributed to the work of reorganizing the Belgian fighting forces after their retreat from Antwerp—The Germans, of course, because they could not help themselves. A military observer stated recently that the Belgian army now can boast of the most formidable artillery strength of any army of its size in the world, and the artillery includes a large number of Prussian guns.

The Germans lost this ordnance in the early fighting of 1914, when the Belgians opened the floodgates and inundated a large section of their country. Many of the big guns used to batter down the Belgian forts had to be abandoned then by the Germans, and later the Belgians by perfecting a system of flood control, were able to let off sufficient water to enable them to recover this artillery.

Added to these are the contributions of heavy artillery made by France and England to the Belgian army and several batteries obtained by King Albert from the Portuguese. All in all the present Belgian army can perhaps boast of the most formidable artillery strength of any army in the world.

MORALE AT ITS BEST.

The Belgian cavalry, who played such a big part in the early stages of the war, has been entirely remounted, mostly with horses purchased in Texas. Because of the nature of the terrain which the Belgian army holds, the opportunities for cavalry drill were restricted so that regiments have been sent in turn to the drill ground in France and have been developed again to their old efficiency. When the "big push" of the Entente troops in France develops in the spring, the Belgian cavalry is counted upon to perform good service.

So successful has been the army reorganization that King Albert has relaxed the severe discipline it was found necessary to enforce in the first stages. Heavy sentence once were meted out for slight infractions. Now the King is exercising clemency as far as possible, and those soldiers who received heavy sentences are being released and returned to the ranks.

The Belgians also developed great factories on the remnant of Belgium still remaining to them and in sections of France near the border, where clothing, blankets and other supplies are being turned out in great quantities. Thousands of Belgian refugees who otherwise would be out of work are thius given imploymena

President Wilson's Chance Lost; King Alfonso May Be Peacemaker, View in Spain

MADRID, Feb. 5.—Nowhere is President Wilson's peace campaign being watched more attentively than here. The general conviction of all shades of political opinion in Spain is that he is putting himself forward in vain.

When the real moment comes, whoever may be peacemaker, it is fairly certain it will not be poor Mr. Wilson, whose flounderings to avoid committing himself on either side have resulted in compromising himself on all sides.

Germany has overridden his notes; the Allies have politely declined his unsought aid; Spain courteously evades his transparent effort to entangle her and enroll her as a follower.

Spain will not follow in peace negotiations. She will lead.

This is foreshadowed in the speeches of the Spanish Premier and Senor Dato. The fact is that the political leaders have come to an agreement regarding the necessity of avoiding precipitate action in order to leave Spain in the best position for action later.

President Wilson has put himself out of court by irritating offers of services. Spain, on the contrary, has maintained an attitude that is appreciated by both groups of belligerents, and this makes her young ruler most acceptable to both when the opportune moment for talk about peace arrives.

President Wilson's perpetual candidacy for the post of peace dictator, was bound to end in his discomfiture. This was foreseen here, since the government's refusal to join Mr. Wilson's untimely efforts. The Spanish ruler's unobtrusive humanitarianism will undoubtedly prove more efficacious than President Wilson's demonstrative meddling.

INSURANCE ON U. S. SHIPS ADVANCED.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—For the first time since the beginning of the war marine insurance rates on American ships were yesterday placed on a level with those of the Entente Allies. The rates were advanced from the average of 2 to 3 per cent. prevailing last week to 10 per cent., the same rate which has been in force for some time on ships of Great Britain and France.

LOAN OFFICERS TO U. S.

Returned Canadians Could Be of Great Assistance in Case of War.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 6.— In the event of the United States declaring war, it is probable that a number of Canadian officers will be loaned to assist in the organization of the forces. There are many who have returned from active service at the front, whose experiences would be of great assistance to the Americans in quick mobilization and equipment.

British Troops Captured Three Lines of Trenches

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, Feb. 6. — British troops captured three successive lines of enemy trenches on a six hundred and thirty yard front to a depth of four hundred yards, and inflicted severe losses on the Turks west of the Tigris Junction near Kut.

Sugar Declined Another Ten Cents

The following comment on the market situation as regards foodstuffs appeared in Canadian Grocer:

Sugar declined 10c per hundred during the week and is still in a weak market. Further declines are anticipated in this commodity within the next two months, when production of raw sugar on the Island of Cuba will reach its maximum. Conditions in Cuba continue favorable for a big crop. Flour also recorded a decline of 40c per barrel for Manitoba during the week. Demand for flour is still light. Molasses is in firm market and advances have taken place on all case goods with a strong probability that the bulk molasses will also record an advance in the near future.

Cheese Advanced.

Dressed hogs were firmer in price and advances were made effective. Meat products were accordingly in firm market with advances recorded in some lines. Butter and eggs are still in weak tone. Supplies of storage eggs are being rapidly depleted and prices are firmer. Cheese advanced in price owing to the continued heavy export demand. Fish products in many lines recorded advances owing to the increased demand for fish as a food for the armies. Potatoes are still in firm market with higher prices recorded. Seed potatoes from all appearances will be a scarce article in the spring.

Condensed and evaporated milk and prepared coffee have advanced in price. One brand of pickles has also been increased in price. Teas are in a firm market. Coffee stocks being carried are slightly heavier than usual in anticipation of higher prices. Business during the week has continued fairly good. Travelers are experiencing some difficulty in covering their territories owing to the curtailment of the passenger train service.

New high records for cordage were reached this week when Manila rope advanced 2 1-2c per lb. and sisal rope advanced 3 1-2c lb. Rope is now far above the high records of pre-war periods. Binder twine will in all probability be quoted at exceedingly high prices during the coming season.

All baseball supplies, including mitts, gloves, balls, etc., have advanced all the way from 10 to 100 per cent. The heaviest advances are on the cheaper lines of mitts and gloves.

Lumbering tools have all taken a sudden jump upwards, and advances in price have been recorded all the way from 50 to 100 per cent. Prices on washing machines have been withdrawn, and higher prices will probably be issued in the near future.

Among many other important price changes this week are advances in the prices of scales, wringers, glue, emery and emery paper, hatchets, razor strops, blind and bed staples, tinned spoons and forks, gimlets, linseed oil, grindstones, oil grindstones, oil stoves, silver-plated ware. There has been a general advance in the prices being made in oldmetals. All wire products are very firm and further advances would not come as a surprise.

Ingot metals have shown additional strength this week. The demand for iron and steel is as insistent as ever and steel companies are well booked up for 1917. Prices on domestic pig-iron are still withdrawn.

The freight situation is still very serious. Embargoes are becoming more numerous. Business has been good during the week. Collections are satisfactory.

FOURTEEN YEARS AFTER

In the days of the South African War Hilaire Belloc wrote cleverly about the way in which millionaire mine-owners were luxuriating in Cape Town while Britishers were fighting. He panned, in a famous poem:

"We also know the sacred height
Upon Tugela side
Where those three hundred fought with Bolt
And fair young Wernher died;
The river banks where Eckstein stood."

The names Wernher and Eckstein were then joined in a rhyme. They are now joined in death. Second-Lieutenant A. P. Wernher was killed in 1916. Next was announced the death in action of Lieutenant Ludwig A. Eckstein, of the King's African Rifles. Both were sons of the millionaires Belloc wrote about.

RE-BORN BELGIAN ARMY

German Guns Abandoned in Floods Now In Use

Thanks in part to the help extended by the allies and in part to the indomitable spirit and industry of the Belgian people, King Albert's army, still valiantly defending all that remains unconquered of its national territory, is not obliged to suffer all the hardships and privations that fell to its lot during the first two years of the war. The army has been completely re-equipped with much the same outfit as the French have, including the steel helmets, heavy waterproof shoes, warm overcoats, blanket, and winter clothing generally. A portion of this equipment has been furnished by the Belgians themselves. They have established factories not only on the Belgian soil they hold but also in France, where they are now manufacturing much clothing and other supplies. This gives employment to thousands of Belgian refugees.

The Belgian system of inundation defences creates an even more impassable barrier than the wire entanglements on the rest of the front. On its entire fron tthe Belgian army is separated from the Germans by over a mile of water, including the River Yser and the Yser Canal. This readers close contact quite impossible, obviating the danger of infantry attacks and leaving the Belgians subject only to artillery bombardments, to which they are now able to reply effectively.

The artillery branch has been rearmed. No small contribution was made by the Germans themselves when in the early fighting of 1914 the Belgians inundated great portions of their soil them occupied by the Germans; the latter were unable in the hasty retreat to take with them their heavy and even much of their lighter field artillery. This was all caught in the inundation and abandoned. To their original artillery the Belgians were able to add a number of batteries secured from Portuguese factories, and to these France has added types of all her heavy guns and England of all hers. It has been possible for the Belgians to draw off enough water to recover the German guns caught in the floods. These have all been repaired and many are now being used.

The same year he won the University Pairs and Sculls at Oxford, also the Diamond Sculls a second time, and helped Leander to win the Grand Challenge Cup at Henley. He wen the Wingfield Sculls and Amateur Championship of the Thames on the only occasion on which he entered, and assisted Leander to win the Grand in the two following years, and also the Stewards' Cup in 1906.

He made a new time "record" when he won the Diamond Sculls again in 1905, and this "record" has not been equalled since. His last appearance in a racing boat was in 1908, when he was a member of the magnificent crew of Leander veterans which won the Eights a tthe Olympic Regatta.

Lieut. Kelly was also a brilliant pianist and a composer, and after study under Continental masters gave several recitals at London concert halls. He volunteered for service with the R.N.V.R. directly war broke out, and served in the Gallipoli campaign, being wounded in the foot. He was one of the three officers who remained at the observation post in the front trenches during the final evacuation, and was one of the last men to leave the peninsula. For his services there he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross.

ORIGIN OF THE BAYONET

Weapon First Used by Troops Out of Ammunition

The bayonet, which the quidnuncs before the war said was an obsolete weapon, has proved its great value in the movements of the British. Its name comes from that of Bayonne, a little town in the Basque country in France, but cheek by jowl with Spain, down in the far corner of the Biscay. There it was first manufactured.

The story of its invention illustrates the old proverb about the motherhood of necessity. A Basque regiment, having run out of ammunition and wishing to sell their lives dearly, took the suggestion of one of their number that they should fix their long belt knives to the ends of their muskets and charge therewith and try to break through the ranks of their enemies.

This they did—the first bayonet charge in history—and their success in extricating themselves from a very warm corner showed the value of the new weapon and led to its manufacture and adoption by every country and army in the world.

Gen. Nivelle's Eulogy

A touching ceremony took place at the French General Headquarters when General Joffre handed over during the morning to General Nivelle his duties as Commander-in-Chief of the armies of the north and north-east. In a little speech he congratulated General Nivelle on his promotion and presented to him the heads of the various services, in whom, he said, he would find able and devoted collaborators. General Nivelle paid homage to the glorious conqueror of the Marne.

Colonel Alfred H. Sturdee, Australian A.M.C., who was invested with the C.M.G. by the King, is the only brother of Vice-Admiral Sir Doveton Sturdee.

RATIONS OF SERBIANS

Stew and Bread Are Mainstays—No Luxuries

The standard ration of the Serbian soldier is stew and bread. Paprika almost always enters into the stew in some major or minor portion. On the best days two stews are sometimes served, each well peppered. They eat a tremendous quantity of bread, as do all the Balkan peoples, and though it is coarse it is of very good quality.

The morning meal is coffee and bread, or sometimes hot sugared milk and bread, when luck is with the commissariat. At noon there is a rich and sustaining stew, made with potato, rice or flour thickening and at night something else of the same sort. Here and there one sees an epicure having his meal apart. He will cook his ration over a tiny fire, combining it with what he may have been able to buy during the day. Back of the fire, if he has been lucky, is a little rack of sticks on which strips of beef are being smoke dried. It is an excellent addition to the meat and a fine emergency ration.

In all the army luxuries have been sacrificed and only necessities are carried. That is what remains of an army of strong, tough, enduring peasants, accustomed to common fare and hardships, and now animated by a spirit which is compounded of fury and desperation and of a stubborn disbelief that in the end they can fail in their fight.

A Rank Pro-German

Lord R. Cecil said in Parliament that Dr. Mrs. Scarlett Synge (who had circulated a report describing the "comfort" at Wittenberg and other prison camps) fraternized with the invaders of Serbia and apparently obtained permission to visit German prison camps.

Every Women's Ambition For Rosy Cheeks Now Easily Satisfied

Hollow cheeks with dark lines under the eyes, how a woman hates them!

But rosy cheeks, clear skin, and bright eyes, give them to a woman and she is happy.

The woman who attracts, whose fresh, dainty complexion compels admiration, is always careful of her health, particularly of her blood condition. Bad complexion always means bad blood.

Girls, don't let your blood grow thin or watery. To do so brings on haggard looks and declining strength.

Many a woman who has allowed herself to run down, to develop that tired, worried look has built up again in this simple way. Why don't you try it?

At the close of every meal, just take two small chocolate-coated Ferrozone Tablets — any person can do this in a minute. The action of Ferrozone is apparent at once. It sets you up, makes you feel good, starts up your appetite, aids digestion, brings that old-time feeling of youth into the system again.

Ferrozone puts you on the right road—the one leading to health.

Not a man, woman or child needing blood, vigour, endurance —not a person who is weak, nervous or sickly, not a person in ill-health who won't relieve immediate help from Ferrozone.

As a tonic and restorative, as a health-bringer and body-builder, Ferrozone is unrivalled. It cures because it feeds and nourishes, because it contains the elements that build up and strengthen. For better looks and better health try Ferrozone yourself, sold everywhere, 50c. per box, 6 boxes for $2.50, or by mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

TRENCH SUPERSTITIONS

Of all the superstitions in the British army—and they are many—the most popular has to do with the jar that contains the ration of rum. German bullets, the men have it, swerve instinctively towards the nearest rum jar. A few stray shots have helped to strengthen the superstition, and the conviction holds firm that the man who carries the rum jar runs a double risk of being hit.

Mascots and talismans hold an important place in the soldier's life. One lad used to carry in his pack a rosary that he had picked up in one of the streets of Ypres. One day his jar was [illegible] by a large piece of a trench mortar bomb, but in spite of his suffering he refused to be taken down to the dressing station until his rosary had been produced. "If I don't take it with me," he said, "I'd get hit again on the way down."

Nearly every man at the front has a mascot of some sort—a rosary, a black cat, a German button, a lucky elephant, or a weird sign—which is supposed to keep him safe. Their superstitions, too, are many in number. One man is convinced that he will be killed on a Friday; another man would rather waste a dry—and therefore valuable—match than light three cigarettes; another will think himself lucky if he can see a cow as he marches up to the trenches.

Russian Envoy to Britain

COUNT SERGIUS SAZONOFF

former Foreign Secretary of the Russian Empire, was later appointed Ambassador of the Czar to the Court of St. James upon the death of Count Benckendorff. Sazanoff was in charge of Russia's foreign policy prior to and during the memorable crisis of July and August, 1914.

FRANCE AS A MOTHER

War-Burdened Land Cares Magnificently For Million Refugees

Henry Wood, correspondent of the United Press of America, says that France has solved the problem of looking after nearly 1,000,000 war refugees in a remarkable manner. The bulk of these homeless victims of the war come from the invaded and occupied districts of France, but many of them are Belgians and Serbians. As far as possible the refugees have been grouped into little colonies or cities in which they enjoy a sort of municipal life of their own. France's army barracks have been adapted to this end. Most of them are empty, as the entire French army is at the front.

In the province of which Nancy is the capital there are 30,000 refugees and each barracks represents a little city providing homes now for about 5,000 war victims. The authorities guarded against the separation of families, and even of neighbors and residents of the same towns and villages.

The bulk of the refugees are women and children, and schools have been established for the latter. A special feature of these are the classes in manual training for boys over twelve. They are taught a practical trade and the pupils are already making the chairs, tables, desks, and other articles of furniture with which to refurnish their homes and schools.

There is a course in domestic economy for girls over 12, and the earnings from the sewing classes can be used to buy little personal luxuries and comforts. It is not obligatory for the adults, but the children must take their meals in the municipal dining rooms. A common social room serves for the aged grandmothers to work and talk together. They are a brave lot, nearly all with grandsons, if not also with sons, at the front. The organization of each refugees' city includes vast municipal kitchens and hospitals and entertainment halls where moving pictures and so on are given several times in the week.

Remarkable War Record

A war record to be proud of is that of Mr. and Mrs. Myles Kennedy, of Stone Cross, Tiverton, who have over fifty relatives and family connections fighting on land and sea, and one a prisoner of war in Norway. The family luck remained unbroken, until Mr. Kennedy's youngest brother died of wounds, a prisoner in Germany, and subsequently a nephew of Mrs. Kennedy died of his wounds.

Threat of Retaliation Useful

A threat from the Russian Government to introduce flogging as a disciplinary measure for German prisoners if the torture called "suspension" was not abolished has had the desired effect.

The germs causing tuberculosis in cattle are usually taken into the system by means of the respiratory and digestive passages.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The Result of a Friendly Game

By EDWARD J. STEWART

One night a number of men in a mining camp sat around a table playing cards for money. A man in a white cravat and other clerical indications entered and said:

"My friends, you're making a great mistake."

"How do you make that out, parson?"

"Drop your game for a few minutes and I will tell you."

The players assented, and the clergyman told the following story:

"Do you see this white necktie? Well, the reason I'm wearing it is because of playing for money with a friend. What occurred turned my attention to using what gifts I possess to fighting evil.

"Young fellows from eighteen to twenty-one are apt to play these little games with each other to pass the time. At that age they have to learn by experience that since no one of them wishes to quit loser the game is endless. When they get older they find it doesn't pay and usually give it up.

"When I was twenty years old I was one of a set of young fellows who played poker in one another's rooms. At first none of us was ever out more than a few dollars at a sitting. But our sittings grew longer and longer. There was always some one of the gang that was loser, and he would invariably oppose breaking up, no matter how late the hour. Not only did our sittings grow longer, but our stakes, our winnings, our losings grew larger.

"On one occasion we came together at 8 o'clock in the evening, and at 6 in the morning we adjourned till 9 o'clock the same evening. One of the party, Dick Collins, was out $30. He seemed quite upset over the loss, for he was a bank clerk on a thousand dollars a year, and his mother needed most of his salary. I was the principal winner and readily assented to giving him a chance to recoup as soon as the day was done. We played all the next night, and, though I gave Dick every chance to get even, my cards ran so strong and he bet so high that instead of winning he lost. At 6 o'clock in the morning he owed me about $600.

"I didn't want his money, and I didn't wish to spend my nights giving him a chance to win it back. I offered to give back all I had won. This made him very angry, and he asked me if I thought him a child to make such a proposition. So I consented that after one night's sleep I would continue the game. I was getting anxious to have him regain what he had lost, for he seemed to be very badly shaken up. So I made up my mind when we came together again to bet high on my low hands and low on my high hands.

"The next time we sat down to play the rest of the party had dropped out. They seemed to think that the game was getting too stiff for them. Dick produced a lot of bills and insisted on playing for cash instead of on tab, as we had been playing thus far. I was surprised, but had enough money to start in with, so I assented. Somehow the cash on the table seemed more tangible than I O U's, and, though I didn't try to win, I didn't try to lose. The luck continued with me, and Dick was so anxious to win that whenever he had a fair hand he would bet very high, and I was sure to overtop him by one or two points. Once he held three nines to my three tens. Another time I held a pair of queens on three fours, he a pair of kings on three deuces.

"At 3 o'clock in the morning I had won all the cash he had brought with him. He was the worst broken up man I ever saw. His nerves were all on edge.

"'Go home, Dick,' I said, 'and go to sleep. Tomorrow evening we'll dine together, and we'll fix this matter up somehow to your satisfaction. I don't want your money, and I only wish to find out how I can return it to you without trying to lose it to you through the cards.'

"'Oh, that's what you have been playing—trying to lose?' he said angrily. 'If you don't want my money I don't want your generosity.'

"He was so hot that I feared he would strike me. I endeavored to soothe him, but failed.

"'Generosity be hanged!' he kept on bitterly. 'More likely the reason I've lost so heavily to you is that you've been mauly—'

"If I hadn't been so young I suppose I might have endured the insult that was coming. I certainly should have done so without resentment, for he and I were intimate friends, and it was the devil speaking through the cards and not Dick. My right arm went out, and Dick went over.

"No sooner had I struck him than I was sorry for what I had done. He rose and was coming for me like a fury when I slipped out through a door behind me and, darting into my bedroom, locked the door. He followed me and after calling me coward and other names went downstairs, and I heard the house door close behind him.

"I went to bed and tried to sleep, but failed. At 6 o'clock I heard the telephone bell ring and on answering the call was informed by Dick's mother that he had shot himself through the heart.

"It turned out that the cash I had won from him he had taken from the bank where he was employed."

The clergyman stepped to the table, took the cards from it and threw them into the fire. Not a hand was raised to prevent him.

Muddled Thinking.

It would be foolish to say that a dynamo and an electric light are the same thing, that green apples is a term synonymous with indigestion, that an architect's plans are the same thing as a completed building or that sex attraction is but another name for the social institution called the family. In the same way it is an evidence of muddled thinking to maintain that being good is the same thing as being religious.—Bernard I. Bell in Atlantic.

Important Question.

"George, dear," began a bride while on the way to the station for the honeymoon, "I want you to answer me just one question, and then I shall feel sure of you. "What is it, darling?" "If you knew that I loved you as much as you love me would you love me as much as I love you?"—Exchange.

INSECTS AND WAR.

One of the Troubles Faced by the Fighting Men.

The insects which prove such a nuisance to the fighter in time of war are the insects which equally affect man in times of peace. But owing to the different circumstances which arise when men are at war, their effects are more concentrated and more persistent. Roughly speaking, we can divide these insect pests into two categories — (1) those which pierce the skin of men or of animals on which the soldier is to a great extent dependent, for instance, the horse; and (2) those which interfere with the soldiers' food supplies. The latter again fall into two categories —(a) those which materially and substantially diminish that food supply, and by leaving their larvae behind in the diminished stock render the food unpalatable; and (b) those which infect the food with pathogenic germs, such as the germs of enteric fever.

We may here describe a series of insects which affect the food of soldiers and sailors. One is the flour-moth, whose larva burrows through the soldiers' biscuit, and not only consumes a considerable portion of it, but renders it so unpalatable that Sergeant Daniel Nicol, of the 92nd Gordon Highlanders, tells us that, during the expedition to Egypt in 1801, "some vessels were despatched to Masri Bay for bullocks, and others to Smyrna and Aleppo for bread, which was furnished to us by the Turks—a kind of hard, dry husk. We were glad to get this, as we were then put on full rations, and our biscuits were bad and full of worms; many of our men could only eat them in the dark."

Biscuits become infected during the cooling which takes place between the baking and the packing. The adult insect is a perfect nuisance in flour-mills. So persistent and so numerous are these moths at times that they clog the rollers with their cocoons, and sometimes completely stop them. The webbing of the elevators in the mills often becomes covered with them and with their silky skeins, and then the elevators stop working. They mat together the flour and meal with their silken excreta, and so uniform is the temperature of the mill, and so favorable to the life of the insect, that they complete their life-cycle in this country in two months, and in the warmer parts of America even more rapidly. In well-heated mills the proceeding is continuous, so that six generations at least may be produced each year.

Now that the war is spreading in the Near East, a word or two should also be said about an allied species of insect, which infests at times 50 per cent. of the figs of the East. It is a moth which is spread all over the world, and is universal in its taste, since it flourishes on rice, bran, dried apples, maize, and a great many more or less nutritious foods. In Asia Minor it lays its eggs in the figs whilst they are being dried in the sun. From the egg a small maggot emerges, and whoever eats dried figs must at times come across them. These larvae, which emerge when September melts into October, render a voyage on a figladen ship very unpleasant, as they crawl about the ship before pupating.

Finally, we must not forget the biscuit "weevil," so familiar to us in Marryat's novels. And the first thing to notice is that it is not a weevil at all. It is in truth known as Anobium paniceum, and is closely allied to A. striatum, which makes the little round holes in worm-eaten furniture so cleverly imitated by second-hand furniture dealers. There is hardly anything the larva of this insect will not eat, from cayenne pepper to opium, from tablets of compressed meat to Arabic manuscripts. It is, however, to-day, far less common than in the past, through the invention of the biscuit-tin, a comparatively modern discovery, which has done much to interfere with its plans.

Got His Answer.

An inquisitive gentleman, riding in a Bell Line car in Toronto, noticed that a man opposite him carried upon his knees a small black box of somewhat peculiar construction.

The inquisitive one eyed it furtively for a brief while, then, unable to restrain his curiosity, he leaned forward and remarked:

"You seem to take great care of that box, sir. May I ask what it contains?"

"Certainly. It contains a mongoose," was the reply.

"Oh, indeed," exclaimed the other, his curiosity still unsatisfied. "A mongoose! And pray what is that, sir?"

"Well, the fact is," explained the owner of the box, lowering his voice, "I have got a friend who has got delirium tremens, and he fancies he sees snakes. Now, the mongoose, you know, kills snakes, so I am taking it to him."

"Dear me!" cried the surprised recipient of this piece of information. "But—but"—here he thought hard for several seconds—"but surely you do not want a real mongoose to kill imaginary snakes?"

"Of course not," was the reply. "This is only an imaginary mongoose."

No Trust.

"Then you won't sell me the place on time?"

"No."

Old Mexican Legend.

The early Tarascans, a Mexican tribe, once possessed the art, now lost, of tempering copper. One of their legends is not far removed from the Bible story of Noah. According to them, Trespi—their Noah—escaped an all destroying flood in a great boat laden with animals. Even the story of the dove is closely followed, for Trespi sent forth first a vulture and then a humming bird, and so ascertained that dry land existed.

Helping Out.

"And has your daughter's course in domestic science interested her any in the housework?"

"To some extent. Occasionally she condescends to show her mother where in old fashioned methods are all wrong."—Kansas City Journal.

Dubious Outlook.

"I understand you have a new neighbor. Do you expect to be friendly with him?"

"I hope for the best, but he has five little boys, and my library windows are in an exposed position."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

TOO MUCH FOR HIM.

He Admits He Can't Grasp His Wife's Ideas of Economy.

"I can understand," remarked the office philosopher to the visitor to his sanctum, "most of the feminine traits and characteristics that puzzle the ordinary man, but when a woman begins to practice economy she leaves me lashed to the mast and quivering with helpless astonishment.

"Of course, the whole sex is economical. You have to admit that, because every woman says she is economical, and no gentleman would undertake to dispute a lady's statement—at least, no gentleman of any argumentative would undertake to dispute it in his own house. What—in only a vulgarian—gets my goat is the method they employ.

"Take my wife, for example. Whenever she tells me she is going to economize I don't make a single spiritual shriek, and then leap for the tall timber. Other men do that, but I don't. My wife designs the dress of a season and the cost of the article that, having been accumulated in samples, she is always prepared to prove she has struck much misery in the process.

"There is no answer, or no answer worth making. 'On occasions like this,' I tell my customs to pass, for, without unbuckling at my hand, I know I can neither trump nor follow suit.'"

Shark Stories.

A shark is very tenacious of life, and Dr. Gunther, the ichthyologist, pointed out in one of his contributions to the literature of his subject that "wounds affect fishes generally much less than higher vertebrates. A Greenland shark continues to feed while his heart is pierced by a harpoon or by a knife so long as the nervous centre is not touched."

A Norwegian antarctic explorer, H. J. Bull, gives a startling word picture of a shark's tenacity of life. This man-eating type caught on the Scotland drift-factory. Ribs bone, chest and internal arrangements were removed so as to put a period to his career, and the thus mutilated body was then cast into the sea. He simply gave an leisurely wag of his tail and swam rapidly out of sight.—Chambers' Journal.

A Lament From Japan.

The opening of Japan has brought many new trades, but it has driven others out of existence. One handicraft which is making a long but a losing fight is that of making fude or writing brushes. It might have been expected to increase, seeing that education is ten times as prevalent as in the old days, but the steel pen and the lead pencil are formidable competitors and, with their vulgar efficiency, are gradually making the use of fude obsolete. In the primary schools young Japan is taught to wield the brush, but in the middle schools they care but little for the elegance of the Chinese style of writing, and the modern steel pen is much in evidence.—Japan Society Bulletin.

Dogwood Dye.

Dogwood was the source of the famous "Indian red" with which the vain warriors dyed their capes, leggins and buckskin clothes. They secured the dye from the roots of the tree. This is probably the most brilliant dye to be procured from American trees.

No Wonder.

Mrs. Crabshaw—Don't cry, Willie. I'm not going to punish you this time, for you hurried when I called you. Willie—Boo-hoo, mamma! I ran every step!—New York Times.

Was Anaemic
FOR OVER A YEAR

Anaemia, or blood turning to water, is caused by the heart becoming deranged, and if the heart becomes weakened it cannot pump the blood as it should. As a result the blood becomes impoverished, and it loses its nourishing qualities. The face becomes pale and thin, and the lips bloodless. There is a weakness, tiredness and loss of weight.

When those suffering from thin or watery blood start taking Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills they can see a change from the outset.

Every dose introduces into the blood those vital elements necessary to make it rich and red. The pale cheeks take on the rosy hue of health, the weight increases, and the whole being thrills with a new life.

Mrs. R. J. Grey, Fredericton, N. B., writes: "When I was a girl working at general house work I overtaxed my strength and became completely run down. For over a year I was very bad with anaemia. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills so I got a box and when it was done I decided to get six more. When I had taken them I gained not only in strength, but in flesh and colour, and best of all was good health."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c. a box; three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Two Cases of Eczema and How They Were Cured

Further Proof That Dr. Chase's Ointment is a Positive Cure For Chronic Eczema

If you read these letters you will find that Dr. Chase's Ointment is not to be classed among ordinary salves and ointments.

By actual curing itching, stinging eczema in many thousands of cases it has stood the most severe test to which any ointment can be put.

Mr. J. Brice, Temperance road, Parry Sound, Ont., writes: "Just a line to praise Dr. Chase's Ointment for what it has done for my wife. She has been suffering from eczema in her head for two years, and has spent no end of money with doctors and for ointments, which did her no good. She had about given up hope of ever being cured, when someone told her to try Dr. Chase's Ointment. By the use of this Ointment the trouble has left her entirely, so we have unbounded faith in it. I have told several people about the Ointment."

Mrs. W. G. Dowden, Greenspond, Bonavista Bay, Nfld., writes: "I suffered with eczema on my hands, and for eighteen months was so bad that I could not use a needle to sew or do anything. I could scarcely dress myself. Though I had lots of salves from doctors, I could never get much benefit from them. Then I sent for a sample of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and found it very different in action. It was not long before my hands began to heal, and four 60c. boxes made them well. I cannot praise Dr. Chase's Ointment too highly, and frequently give some to others to get them using it, for I know that it will cure."

In the home Dr. Chase's Ointment is of almost daily usefulness, for by relieving chafing and irritation of the skin it prevents eczema and similar itching skin diseases. Applied to all cuts and wounds, it prevents blood poisoning and heals the skin. Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

Blind WITH ECZEMA

For three years the little son of G. Romanuk, of Edenbridge, suffered with a bad attack of eczema, which everything failed to cure until they used Zam-Buk. The father, writing to the Zam-Buk Co., says:

"For three years my little son suffered with a severe attack of eczema, which many doctors pronounced incurable. For two years the sores on his eyes and forehead were so bad that he was unable to see. We tried everything, but without any benefit and he was in a shocking condition when Rabbi Shalitt recommended Zam-Buk. This wonderful ointment has entirely cured my boy, and I cannot express my gratitude for his marvellous recovery."

Zam-Buk is also unequalled for ringworm, scalp sores, salt rheum, old wounds, blood-poisoning, piles, burns, cuts, scalds, and all skin injuries. 50c. box, 3 for $1.25. All druggists and stores, or Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Send 1c. stamp for postage on FREE trial box.

The Food of the Cod.

The cod has the reputation of being as omnivorous as the goat, whose appetite for posters and old tin cans is the subject of frequent jests. The varied nature of what the cod swallows is not more remarkable than the enormous quantity. According to a writer in the Scotsman, such articles as silver brooches, clasp knives, books and rubber balls have been found in its stomach. One fisherman of Aberdeen has a stone that weighs more than a pound, taken from a cod that had swallowed it for the sea anemones with which it was covered. The same fisherman has also found specimens of almost all the stalk eyed crustaceans that frequent the northern coast of Scotland and of every kind of fish that a cod can master, including its own young. Cod have been known to swallow partridges guillemots and hares.

Alder Dye.

For the purpose of making dyes the common alder appears to have been unnoticed by the pioneers of this country, who made use of so many barks and roots. However, it was well known to the Indians, who used it to good effect. It dyes a reddish color, and down to a few years ago was employed by natives of the northwest Pacific coast in coloring their fish nets. Alder dye, used for the same purpose, is said to be the oldest recorded dye in the world. It is mentioned in the Kalevala of Finland, supposed to date nearly 3,000 years ago.

FREAK TREES.

Heavy Snowstorms Often Cause Bent and Twisted Trunks.

To the person who is not versed in forest lore the grotesquely bent tree trunks that are to be found in almost all woods are mystifying, and wonder is often aroused as to the cause.

Foresters will tell questioners that in the case of trees in mountainous country and other sections where the snowfall is heavy the weight of snow is responsible in most instances for the queer twists they assume.

When a tree is young the weight of snow that falls on its branches often bends the trunk over until it is flattened to the ground. Sometimes it is buried under six or eight feet of snow and held in that position so long that when warm weather comes the tree fails to spring back into its normal position.

The summer sun causes the tip of the young tree to turn upward, and if it manages to withstand the weight of the snow of the next winter that portion of the tree will, as a general rule, continue to grow in a normal way. "Hairpin" bends and other odd shapes result.

A curious tree stands on the top of Tunnel hill, Johnstown, Pa., about four miles from town. It is a sugar maple about 100 years old, which has prolonged its own life by grafting a branch into a much younger tree.—Popular Science Monthly.

VAMPIRE BATS OF PERU.

These Bloodsucking Animals Have Bulldog Heads.

On the morning after our arrival at San Miguel bridge (Peru) the pack mules nearly all showed blood blotches on their withers and backs, where they had been attacked during the night by vampire bats which had fed on their blood. This bat, Desmodus rotundus, is plentifully distributed throughout Peru in altitudes below 10,000 feet.

It is one of the most highly specialized species of existing bats. The lower jaw is decidedly undershot, and the head, with its short cropped ears and broad muzzle, has a strikingly bulldog appearance. The legs are well developed and rather heavy, enabling the animal to move fairly rapidly on the ground, in which situation it is by no means the shuffling, helpless creature like many other bats. If molested when thrown to the ground it will turn and bite savagely.

The teeth are a highly modified cutting apparatus for making incisions in the skins of mammals and birds.

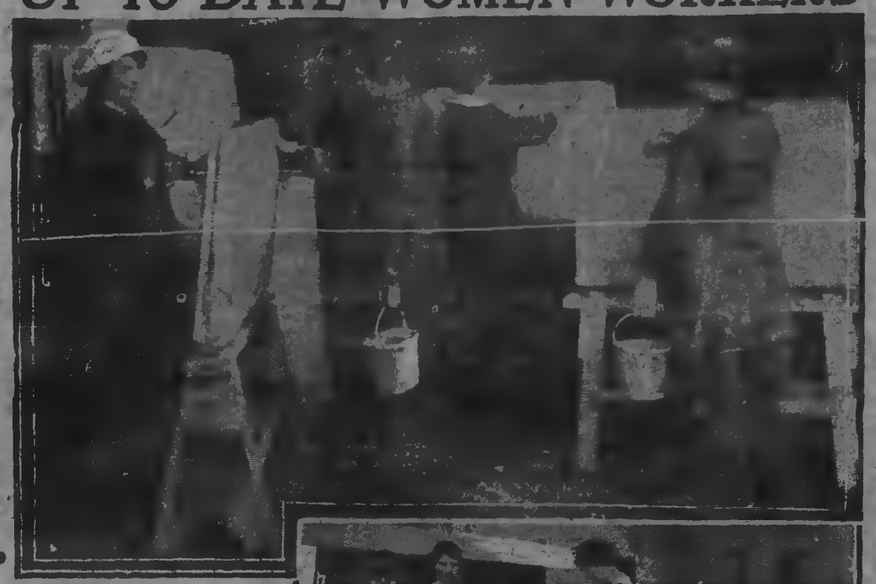
In habits they are sociable and are commonly found living in caves or tunnels, suspended from the ceiling in clusters often of immense size.—National Geographic Magazine.

Substitutes for Vodka.

The three substitutes for vodka which are most widely used in Russia are eau de cologne, furniture polish, and denatured alcohol. In the first place it is very expensive just now, and secondly, no matter what flavoring extras are added to it, it is impossible to disguise the taste of the perfume. Furniture polish is more popular, but is much harder to obtain. It is impossible to buy it at present unless one presents a warrant from the police stating that the buyer really is a cabinet-maker or a carpenter. The polish is distilled so as to separate the alcohol; sometimes it is merely stirred with a flat stick until the shellac adheres to the latter.

Far more widely used and far more deleterious in its effect is the denatured spirit. This is not wood-alcohol, but pure spirit (95 per cent. proof), with an admixture of wood-alcohol, acetone, ketone, and a dash of dye. The admixture amounts to about five per cent. of the fluid volume, and is supposed to render it impossible of use for drinking purposes. The inventive Russians, however, gets around this very cleverly. —Robert P. Blake, in the December Atlantic.

UP TO DATE WOMEN WORKERS



CANADIAN women of to-day are demonstrating their keen patriotism in a great many ways, but the latest and most up-to-date is the donning of man's overalls and playing a most important part in the workshops of the Dominion. It was at their own instigation that they exhibited a desire to take the places of the men who had gone to the war. The women of England are making munitions and replacing those at the front in almost every kind of trade, and it is nowadays considered to be abreast of the times for the women of Canada to do a similar work and their little bit to help the country in times of need.

A shortage of man labor has given the women every opportunity, and they have risen to the occasion. In the C. P. R. Angus Shops at Montreal the women have been first with the ambition of emulating their sisters in England who are now wearing overalls just like men, and now they also "wear the breeches." They are glad of the change, for the skirts often hampered their work. The overall gives them much comfort and has been found of considerable convenience, particularly in the paint shop. The overall gives them more confidence in carrying out the work. Without the women the Empire cannot win the war.

New Device Beats X-Ray.

The inventor is James Shearer, a Scotchman, 20 years old, a sergeant in the medical corps and working at the casualty station.

The new discovery, the Journal says, appears to succeed just where X-ray photography fails. It produces pictures of structures hidden far below the surface of the body just at the point where X-ray photography ceases to perform effectively. In other words, the new work attempts a delineation, not of dense structures such as bones but of living soft organs.

By means of this discovery it is possible in broad daylight to obtain detailed pictures of any organ or body, brain, liver, kidneys, and spleen, and to see at a glance by what gross lesions they are affected. Thus it is possible to see blood vessels in the brain, to observe a blood clot on that organ, to detect abscesses in the liver and wounds or cuts in any organ. In one case a concretion in the appendix was seen clearly when the picture was complete.

The actual finished photos are remarkable and show blood vessels in the brain in detail, also wounds, but not the actual brain substance. In other words, differences, such as diseased areas, are shown.

The apparatus works as long as the body is alive, and even until molecular death has occurred. After that it does not work.

Had Severe Cold

PAIN IN CHEST SPASMODIC COUGHING

Many people when they contract a cold do not pay any attention to it, thinking perhaps it will pass away in a day or two. This is a mistake for before they know it, it has settled on the lungs.

Too much stress cannot be laid on the fact that on the first sign of a cough or cold it must be gotten rid of immediately, otherwise it may cause years of suffering from some serious lung trouble.

Mr. A. George, 39 Blevin's Place, Toronto, Ont., writes: "Having greatly benefitted from your remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, I take the liberty to write you a few words about the effect of that wonderful syrup. Two years ago I caught a severe cold followed by a spasmodic cough and pain in my chest. I was treated by many doctors but without any benefit, and also took many proprietory medicines which all failed to cure. One of my friends recommended Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after using three bottles I was completely cured. I recommend it to anyone as a God-sent remedy."

"Dr. Wood's" is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark, price 25c and 50c.

BRITISH ARE THRIFTY

ONE OF THE BIG CHANGES CAUSED BY WAR.

Arthur Gleason Finds in This New Habit the Clearest Single Proof That the English Nation as a Whole is in the Struggle and Will Not Stop Fighting Short of Victory.

ENGLAND is at war en masse, writes Arthur Gleason in the New York Tribune. And the proof of it is not that she has raised an army. Any country can raise an army, if it has to. The proof of it is that she has changed a cherished habit. That means a spiritual change. It is a lot harder to break up a habit than it is to fight an enemy. The fact that two million persons are saving money to give to the Government for carrying on the war is the clearest single proof that the English nation is at war. By temperament the English are a colonising, adventurous people. That means they are an open-handed people, to whom the careful ways of thrift are distasteful. Then, too, they are a race of individualists, doing what they like with their own—a race to whom collective effort is a bore. But they violated their instinct in order to win this war. For the English were free spenders, and it revealed more devotion in them to raise a hundred million dollars in individual subscriptions than it did to raise five million men in recruiting.

The heart of the war savings scheme is this: You buy a "War Service Certificate" for fifteen shillings and sixpence. In five years the Government will give you a pound for it. Less than $4 has become $5. Of course, the worker cannot make an investment of fifteen shillings and sixpence at one time. So he joins an association in his school, factory, store, or club, and subscribes his penny or sixpence each week. These associations are like our fraternal organizations. They appeal to the social sense of the group. There are other forms of war saving, such as exchequer bonds, but this system of certificate is the popular way. It is co-operative investment, if the individual does not belong to an association he receives a war savings card with $1 spaces on it, each for a sixpenny stamp. He buys the stamps at the post-office as often as he can. When the card is full he hands it in and receives a certificate worth fifteen shillings and sixpence, and good for a pound at the end of five years.

The secret of the success which has attended this evangelistic campaign is the personal appeal, friend speaking to friend. And the motive for giving is rendered in the headlines of the pamphlets and posters —"Save for England," "Save for Your Country." In North Nibley, one of the smallest villages in Gloucestershire, the inhabitants subscribed $30 in a fortnight. Wigston Magna, in Leicestershire, is in the centre of the hosiery and boot-making district. One of the factories has between three hundred and four hundred operatives. That factory purchased two hundred certificates in one week. Yarmouth has fifty associations and four thousand members, and has subscribed $10,000. This city lies on the east coast, where the zeppelins have stimulated the civilian consciousness. It was out from Grimsby where the fishing trawlers have been lost by mines and submarine. The answer of Grimsby was made by seventy-three war savings associations. In one week four thousand six hundred certificates were purchased. At an East End factory in London one hundred and twenty-three girls joined the savings crusade in a single week. Only two girls are not members. In three months the girls saved over $250. They did it by chipping in their three-penny and six-penny bit each week. Norwich paid into the post-office $75,000 in six weeks.

"The thing that irritates us about England," says Mr. Gleason, "is the same thing that offends us at home. Here is no well-oiled autocracy that runs on a single track to a visible goal. Instead of that clean, smooth, organized, docile affair, it is a democracy, with an immense, rich variety of life, sprawling all over the place. The air is full of voices, because everyone is allowed to speak. If you don't like it, remember what it is that you don't like: it is a free people, choosing to make its own mistakes, living its own life, and just now out on the warpath to chase some trespassers off from the premises. Doubtless, if the critics were running the performance, they would give a more unified and polished proceeding. But no group of persons are running this war. The people are running it. So, instead of losing strength as the pressure increases, they gather force and momentum with each mistake. They teach themselves by failure. The will of the great German general staff can be snapped by defeat, because the staff is a handful of men. But the will of 45,000,000 people cannot be broken, because it is the will of these schoolboys and working girls, of domestic servants and munition workers, of a democracy whose sense of pity and justice has been touched."

The English are a "sentimental nation." An appeal to cold reason, to personal aggrandizement, to a rainy day or a shadowy future, does not move them in the slightest. But something that concerns the welfare of helpless children, or of persons whom they love, releases all that is best in the English race. I know this, because I worked in a Red Cross London office in the early weeks of the war, and I found that the smallest appeal to the English public for help in clothing Belgians brought in a large response—a response, in fact, so overwhelming that it stuffed the office rooms with supplies. Personally, I have never dealt with a public that is so swiftly generous.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S ONE PIECE HOUSE DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

A top notch house dress design that may be called by another name when we think of wool checked material for developing, with trimming of satin or similar weave. Serge, gabardine or the like would give a trim little frock that would hold its own with any model intended for general wear.

It is of the one-piece variety and fashioned along the lines of the popular models of the season for street wear. The diagonal closing makes the plain waist attractive; a feature of the skirt section is the broad panel effect gained by making a plait in each half of the back and in each front. The fulness is drawn to the sides and held there under a partial belt of contrasting color goods. The open neck is attractively finished with a well cut collar of the belt material and sleeves with a puffed fulness below the elbow are neatly cuffed to match. Small buttons will increase the decorative value.

For the house, such fabrics as gingham, linen, chambray, seersucker or percale will be suitable. For out of the confines of the home, serge, gabardine and like materials are greatly favored. If you have ever made a one-piece dress you need not be told that it is the simplest of tasks—if you haven't done so, this is a fine opportunity to learn what an improvement to-day's pattern is over the one of other days. Every step of the development is pictured.

WITH THE ROAST.

How to Dress Up Your Meats Most Appetizingly.

The proper accompaniments for various roasts as laid down by one well known cook are as follows:

Roast beef should be garnished simply with sprigs of parsley and with freshly scraped horseradish. A more elaborate garnishing would include small baked tomatoes, whole mushrooms and braised vegetables, such as celery, button onions, salsify and the like. A rich brown gravy should be served with it, and small, neat squares of Yorkshire pudding garnished with sprigs of parsley and either mushrooms or horseradish.

Roast mutton should be garnished with daintily cooked tomatoes or mushrooms, or both, arranged alternately with a sprig of parsley between each, and red currant jelly should be served as an accompaniment.

Roast lamb should have a properly prepared cucumber garnish and should be served with a good brown gravy and cucumber sauce. Another and more elaborate garnish would include fried potato croquettes, cauliflower sprigs dipped in hot butter and lightly sprinkled with salt, pepper and finely minced parsley. Of course the simplest of all dressings is the traditional mint sauce.

Butter Squares.

To cut butter in small, even squares for the table use a coarse, wet thread a this leaves no ragged edge.

Switzerland And Holland May Not Break

Killing Of American Sailor is Confirmed

GERMAN EDITORS BELIEVE GERMAN-AMERICANS WILL DESERT WILSON

Huns Never Expected a Severance of Relations According to One Leading Newspaper Man--Another British Steamer Has Been Sunk---Sixteen of the Crew Saved---Holland and Switzerland Fear Germany's Military Power and May Decline to Break With the Huns.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

BERLIN, February 6.—Severance of relations between America and Germany came as a distinct surprise to German newspaper editors, and now, with this action accomplished, some of them do not believe the German-Americans will support President Wilson.

This belief was expressed to-day by one of Berlin's leading editors.

"I never expected a severance of relations," he detlared. We had hoped that Wilson would realize that Germany is fighting for her existence.

"I do not believe the German-Americans will support President Wilson.

"The war will proceed—and Germany will win."

BERLIN, February 6.—"We regret this measure taken by President Wilson all the more since it is against all tradition and all international law that we are cut off from all direct communication and regular intercourse with the Trans-Atlantic world," declared Secretary for Foreign Affairs Zimmerman to-day.

"While to a certain extent we think we can see by what reasons the United States Government was prompted to arrive at its present attitude, on the other hand we expect that Presiden Wilson to the same extent, may recognise the reason which prompted us to take our decision."

LONDON, February 6.—The British steamer Floridian, 4,777 tons, has been sunk. Sixteen of her crew were saved.

LONDON, February 6.—Wireless despatches from Berne to-day declare that Switzerland, in a note to the United States, will decline to break relations with Germany as suggested by President Wilson. Holland also fears Germany's military power in this matter.

BERLIN, February 6.—The formation of a new Turkish Cabinet was announced by the official press bureal to-day. The Turkish Grand Vizier Said Halim Pasha resigned on account of ill-health, and Minister of the Interior Talat Bey was charged with the formation of a new cabinet.

WASHINGTON, February 6.—The confirmation of the killing of Richard Wallace, negro seaman and United States citizen, reached the State Department to-day in a cablegram from Consul Frost at Queenstown, in the report on the submarining of the British steamer Eavestone when the crew was shelled in lifeboats.

LONDON, Eng., February 6.—A Central News despatch from the continent to-day said it was understood there that American Ambassador Gerard had already departed from Berlin and was expected in Switzerland today.

WASHINGTON, February 6.—Danger of trouble with Japan puts a more serious crisis before the country than that growing out of the break with Germany, Senator Poindexter declared in the Senate this afternoon.

LONDON, February 6.—Lloyd George and others of Britain's Governmental leaders, were united in speeches at Central Hall to-day in expressing their belief that Germany's latest "frightfulness" was actuated by desperation and knowledge of her impending defeat."

Premier Lloyd-George declared to a vast audience, assembled to further the work of the National Service plan, that Germany's treatment of war prisoners and civilians in France and Belgium "coupled with the sinking of merchantmen on sight, was organized, studied savagery of the most dangerous form."

"We are starting by making a voluntary appeal," the Premier continued, outlining the purposes and objects of National Service, "and I am sanguine it will succeed. The Government is entitled to ask every class to contribute all aid to a State which is fighting for life—for civilization's life."

WASHINGTON, February 6.—Consul-General Dennison, of Christiania, Norway, to-day cabled that all sailings from Norway to the United States have been temporarily suspended.

HALIFAX, N.S., February 6.—People at Clam Harbour, on the east shore, report having seen two boat loads of men land on Long Island off the harbour. These are doubtless the crew of the missing steamer Retlaw, reported yesterday in distress and believed to have sunk. A Government steamer has gone to Long Island to get the men.

HALIFAX, N.S., February 6.—Fears that the crew of the S.S. Retlaw, had been lost, were increased here today when no word was received through ships that have been sent to her assistance.

NEW YORK, February 6.—News dealers and newsboys in New York to-day were forbidden by the police to cry the headlines of publications. They may shout the name of the paper only.

WASHINGTON, February 6.—The Dutch Government, after negotiations with England and France, has agreed to take over the Belgian relief work.

LONDON, February 6.—The German submarine U-45 stopped the American steamer Westwego and only permitted her to proceed without sinking when that vessel acceded to the German commander's demand for three barrels of lubricating oil.

LONDON, February 6.—The British steamer Wartenfels, 4,511 tons, was sunk to-day.

Health Association Asks Council To Contribute $1,200

Rev. Fr. C. J. Phelan and Dr. G. S. Cameron were the speakers of a deputation from the Peterborough Health Association which asked the Council last night to contribute $1,200 for the Association's work this year. Father Phelan detailed the assistance that had been given to deserving persons during the past and in previous years. He stated that approximately $2,400 would be required this year, of which sum the Association offered to raise $1,200 if the Council would provide an equal amount. Dr. Cameron endorsed Father Phelan's appeal and requested the Council to assist the Association in its efforts. Mr. E. B. Hall also spoke at some length, stressing the importance of the work of the Association among certain citizens who were unable to provide proper nursing, medical attendance and necessary food. Like the other requests this will be considered by the Council when the year's estimates are being whittled.

Ackerman's battalion.

Three recruits were taken on the strength of the 247th Battalion this morning in the persons of Pte. Harry E. Taylor, Coe Hill; Pte. Wm. J. Saltern, Havelock, and Pte. Wilfred I. Gunter, Coe Hill.

Mr. Geo. Laing, 480 Cedar Street, has received from his son, Norman, at the front, a copy of the Christmas menu of No. 1 Section, 6th Field Company, of the Canadian Engineers. The menu, which was designed by Pte. Laing, is a very artistic one. There was plenty to eat, as the following shows:

KINGSTON, Feb. 5. — It was announced at headquarters to-day that a new Field Ambulance has been authorized which will be known as No 15 Queen's Field Ambulance. No. 5 Queen's Field Ambulance, which is stationed in the Old Collegiate instead of being a Depot Unit, will be absorbed in the new ambulance and become an overseas unit while the draft which No. 5 were preparing will be cancelled as far as the N.C.O.'s are concerned and form a basis for No. 15. A lieutenant-colonel and two majors are to be nominated by Queen's authorities and will be taken from the officers of the Q.F.A. now overseas. Three officers from No. 5 will be sent over to take their places.

The orders to-day recommend that more use be made of boxing gloves and "United Service Pads" by soldiers in training, pointing out that boxing is valuable not only as a sport but as a basis for bayonet fighting. Arrangements are to be made for the C.E.F. Eastern and Western Canada championships and a Canadian C. E. F. championship in the spring.

RETURNED SOLDIERS' CLUB.

A social meeting will be held tonight at 8 o'clock, in the new quarters of the club, adjoining the Victoria Hall. Arrangements will also be made for the opening of the reading and writing room.

Japan Thinks China Should At Once Join the Allies in War

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

TOKIO, February 6.—Influential persons here are of the opinion that the rupture of relations between the United States and Germany should be followed by making China join the Entente and co-operate with Japan so as not to allow the Germans a base of operation in the Far East.

Japanese newspapers in their editorial comment on the severance of diplomatic relations by the United States with Germany compare Germany to a wild beast which has turned savagely against the whole world, which must unite to crush her for the good of the world.

Some of the newspapers express the belief that Germany's aim is to terrorize neutrals in an endeavour to bring about a quick peace, which they say is now imperative to her. They foresee that the rupture in relations will be followed by the entry of the United States into the war for the sake of "honour and humanity."

The Nichi Nichi says a declaration of war by the United States "would be a noble contribution to world civilization and justice beside which Lincoln's war of liberation would shrink into significance."

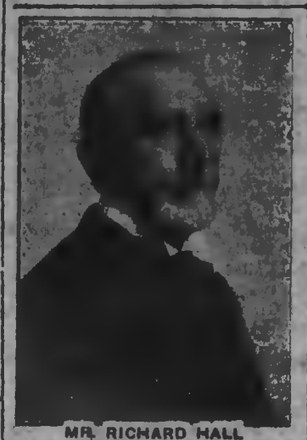
15,000 Japanese Reservists For United States Service

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

HONOLULU, H.I., Feb. 6.—Japanese leaders are preparing in the event of a declaration of war to offer the services of fifteen thousand trained reservists and youths more than twenty years old to America. The Hawaii Hochi editorially says:—"Forgetting whatever minor differences there may have been the Japanese of Hawaii stand ready to serve loyally the flag under which they live."

Regular troops here are moving to protect the harbour. Reinforcing Fort Armstrong a troop of cavalry is moving from Schofield camp to the Capitol grounds. The militia has been ordered out company by company to guard the armoury. It is suggested here in the event of war that Hawaiian militia, five thousand strong, be sent by the seized German ships to guard the Tehuantepec railroad in Mexico in the event of the closing of the Panama Canal.

Big Deputation Urges Swimming Facilities



MR. RICHARD HALL

Reappointed by the Council to a Five Year Term as a member of the City Trust Commission.

Council Defers Action Until it is Dealing With the Estimates for 1917 — Over 900 Names on Petition.

COST PLACED AT $2,000

The movement for supervised public swimming places with adequate dressing quarters reached its height when a large deputation petitioned the Council to set apart for that purpose $2,000 when the 1917 estimates are under consideration. Seldom has a more representative, earnest and public-spirited deputation approached the City Council. Their interest was in the physical and moral welfare of the children of to-day, tomorrow's men and women, and their arguments were irrefragable. The case for public bathing facilities has been presented in the local press on numerous occasions, and scarcely demands the review of last night's addresses that might be otherwise necessary.

Mr. W. G. Morrow, president of the Playgrounds Association introduced the deputation. He first presented the credentials of the Playgrounds people. The Association was formed in 1915 when the Central School grounds were equipped for children's play and exercise. Last year the work was extended to the King Edward School grounds, and a feature of the instruction of the children was the swimming lessons under the guidance of the supervisors. It was now desired and regarded as an absolute need that the city provide during the coming summer one, two or three bathing houses, that promiscuous bathing be forbidden and that the Council undertake as early as possible the plans for the desired facilities.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION'S SUPPORT.

Rev. W. H. White, representing the Ministerial Association, submitted the following resolution adopted by the Association on January 15th, 1917.

Moved by Rev. R. A. Whattam, seconded by Rev. D. Brown, that having noted with approving interest the agitation in the press concerning the building of public bathing houses in our city, we, The Ministerial Association of Peterborough heartily commend the proposal believing that it is in the interest of the "safety and morality of our citizens," especially our boys and girls. Signed

R. B. Grobb, M.A., President
R. A. Whattam, Secretary.

ENDORSED BY MOTHERS' CLUB

The views of the Mothers' Club were set forth by Mrs. Scadding in a statement signed by Mrs. Edna L. Meserve, President of the Y.M.C.A. Mothers' Club, Mrs. Augie D. Adair, President of the Queen Mary's School Circle, Mrs. Carrie M. Sabine, President of the King Edward School Circle, Mrs. Rose A. Hay, President of King George School Circle, and Mrs. Harritt B. Scadding, President of the South Central School.

The statement in part was as follows:

As the result of our observations we condemn the present summer practise of promiscuous bathing on the part of our boys and girls, men and women in public places where no dressing conveniences are provided except weeds and an occasional tree.

It is a well known fact, which we are sure has been noted by your honourable body, that nude individuals of both sexes may be seen in large numbers during the summer season along

MUNICIPALITIES TO RECEIVE BACK HALF OF CRIMINAL FINES

Rental Will Be Charged for Street Encroachments—Hydro Electric May Pay Taxes

SHORT-WEIGHT BREAD

A number of resolutions of interest to Peterborough for the consideration of the Government was submitted by the executive of the Ontario Municipal Union on Friday last. The Government promised to refund to the municipalities half the fines collected under the criminal code. This will mean a large addition to the revenues of the city. Arrears in taxes were dealt with on Friday last and the Government decided to amend the act to allow ten per cent. interest, to be charged annually, and put on the rolls each year. Under the present method interest cannot be added for three years.

OTHER QUESTIONS.

The question of allowing municipalities to charge a rental for city streets, used in part by owners of buildings, was considered, and the Government is disposed to grant this request.

The application that the control of street railways be placed in the hands of the municipalities, not the Ontario Railway Board, was heard, but there were difficulties in the way of this. Mr. Baker, City Clerk of London pointed out that the London Street Railway operated under an agreement with the city. The Ontario Railway Board took charge of the railway nearly thirty years after the franchise, with the result that the municipality had no power to enforce the agreements. The company had all the privileges of the agreement but none of the obligations. An answer to this will be given shortly.

MAY PAY TAXES

The Government seemed favorable to the suggestion that the hydro and other utilities pay local improvement and land taxes. It is expected that amendments to the municipal act to provide for that will be passed at the coming session.

Strong pressure was brought to bear upon the Government to amend the bread sales act, to increase the penalty for selling short-weight bread for $5 to $20, and to allow the municipality to publish the names of bakers selling short-weight bread. No answer was given to this, but it was taken under advisement.

Revival Services Held in Hastings

Revival services in the Methodist church, Hastings, continue each night. The services last Sunday were interesting and helpful. A number decided for the better life. The interest is growing. Miss Morton's subjects for Sunday, Feb. 11th, are: Morning, "A Weak But Mighty Man." Evening, "John's Vision in the Isle of Patmos."

BEARING FALSE WITNESS.

Under the glaring heading, "More Glaring Falsehoods," the Review breaks the Commandment against bearing false witness against one's neighbour — "a misguided and hide bound contemporary"—to wit the Examiner—it says, "springs a new one when it asserts that potatoes are being shipped out of this country to Cuba, in spite of the scarcity." Then it adds:

The story that they (potatoes) are being sent to Cuba, is a silly falsehood, a fabrication that lacks either originality or plausibility.

This statement is not a statement; it is a misstatement; it is not true. The Examiner in pursuit of its fixed policy and constant desire to try to protect the public interests, wrote an article a few days ago calling upon the government to forbid the exportation of potatoes at a time of scarcity, indicated by potatoes at $3 per bby or $2 per bushel, and quoting from the Globe's market report, cited the exportation of Canadian potatoes to Cuba as an outrage upon the people, that should be ended. This is the fact the Review declares "a silly falsehood" and "a fabrication." Further evidence that the Examiner is right as usual, and the Review is wrong, as usual, is found in the news columns of to-day's Examiner, in the form of documentary evidence in proof of the fact that at least 10,000 bushels of Canadian potatoes have been recently shipped to Cuba.

Not content with this display of ignorance or perversion of fact, our contemporary sins again. It says:

"It is twaddle like this that makes the Liberal party look ridiculous to-day. It is of a piece with the allegation that eligible young men are flitting to the United States to escape military duty. Has any one heard of such a case in Peterborough, a city that is not without its slackers?"

Yes; someone has heard of such cases in this very town of Peterborough, and but for disgracing the friends left behind, names could be given; and almost daily, press reports record the departure at border points of eligible young Canadians for the United States.

And the Liberal party has nothing to do with "twaddle like the potato story." The Examiner hasn't a divine commission to regenerate its party, and there are no party considerations in its desire to stand by the people and try to protect their interests. It is no partisan hostility or party friendship, but a real desire to bring the government to the point of dealing with public interests in the public interest, to try to bring to and end trifling with the food question, by permitting export of a staple article of food at a time of exertme scarcity. It is a well known fact that there is a scarcity of potatoes, and that finding potatoes for seed is a desperate problem. It is also a fact that Canadian potatoes are being, or have recently been, shipped to Cuba. It is no partizanship to demand that such an outrage should not be permitted. It is only patriotism and decent citizenship that demand improvement, and it is only patriotism and decent regard for Canadian interests, that at a time when Canada's borders may be subject to raids, demand an ending of the exodus of eligible young Canadians from this country. We live in strenuous and perilous times; in times when petty ward politics and petty striving for party gain should be subordinated to the initiation and toleration of measures to protect our interests, such as, for instance, forbidding the export of potatoes and preventing dealers holding potatoes till they rot, or allowing them to freeze by the carload, to keep up the price; and such measures as preventing the exodus of young men eligible to fight. If, under such circumstances, public journals and patriotic public men should hold their peace, the very stones would cry out.

IS IT WAR OR WIND?

The spade of war has shifted. The fighting is being done on this side of the Atlantic and, so far, on paper. There are evidences, however, that an actual declaration of war may follow some overt act of sea outrage upon American shipping or citizens that will precipitate a declaration of war against Germany. It is evident that the United States has reached the limit of the phenomenal patience with which it has submitted to German insult and outrage; and the official and popular pulse seems to beat in tune; and it is not probable that popular feeling will be much longer submissive. After the significantly decided action Uncle Sam has in these latter days taken in regard to Germany, by breaking off diplomatic relations—a step further than the United States has officially gone before—it has gone too far to recede, without compromising the nation's good faith and dignity to a point the people will not tolerate. In his note to Germany of April 19th, 1916, President Wilson used this semi-ultimatumistic language:

Unless the Imperial Government (of Germany) should now declare and effect an abandonment of its present methods of submarine warfare against passenger and freight-carrying vessels, the Government of the United States can have no choice but to sever diplomatic relations with the German Empire altogether."

Now that Germany has outraged the conditions of this ultimatum, the severance of diplomatic relations has followed, and war will naturally follow, if Germany offends again. The tinder has been prepared, and a spark may kindle the red flame of war. The United States is preparing for this eventuality, as a certainty, unless Germany gives some assurance that can be relied upon, that she will modify her lately declared programme of frightfulness. And this assurance Germany cannot give. She has so thoroughly and completely lied away every ground for trusting her that she cannot be believed. It is quite possible, though not at all probable, that Germany will take the hint. All through this war, and antecedent to the war, Germany has acted upon the impulse of a fatal infatuation. All her plans so skillfully concocted and so effectively prepared for, have gone wrong, and her latest move is another that has belied German expectation. Germany doubtless felt that the desperate resolve to win implied in launching another programme of frightfulness, would bring the United States to make more urgent efforts for peace. Instead of that it has brought war potentially and very probably. This time the President can't back down; the best elements of the nation are aroused, and are ready to even go to the extent of war to keep the national faith and maintain the national honour. The United States navy is clearing its decks for action, and the army is under mobilization. We shall soon see whether Germany will take the hint to recede, or whether she will persevere in the fatal obstinacy that has marked her for the past three years, and further act so as to alienate the respect and ipeur the hostility of the whole world in belligerent fact, as she has done morally.

PRACTICAL EDUCATION.

With very proper solicitude, we try to provide for the health of our school children. We examine their teeth—good digestion being one of the foundation stones of healthy we provide for ventilation, and take other means to insure healthy bodies for our school children. But, in another way, we practice some things that tend to the most serious impairment of health. Home work for pupils of our public schools is an established matter. It seems to be regarded as a necessity if the over-loaded curriculum is to be lived up to.

It might be construed into incitation to breach of discipline, to condemn "home work" specifically, but it may not be amiss to discuss the abstract question as to whether, in the main it is good for the child. We are a city of working people, and we work hard. The average office employee if he is required to take his work home with him, considers himself hardly used in being deprived of a night to rest, after the fulfilment of a regular day's labour. School children have to do this, and it is not good for them any more than it is for their elders. Five and a half hours' confinement in a school room seems enough for the unformed physique of a child. On top of this is piled a mass of home work that keeps the child occupied till late at night long after he or she should be tucked up in bed, getting the full amount of sleep that childhood, especially, needs, if the child's health or its chances of growing up robust and strong are not to be impaired.

There must be a radical change in educational methods before the home work, of which so many persons complain, and so many children complain, not of the work altogether, but of all, seems that have their significance, before desirable conditions come. It cannot be said that teachers are to blame; their pupils must pass the piled up examinations or they will lose their "jobs"; to pass the examinations there must be "home work," and as "Hennessy" says, "There y'are!"

It is for educationists and philanthropists to solve the problem — the educationists to devise a system of education that, while being practical and efficient, will not involve study and application injurious to the health and impairation of childhood's stamina; and the philanthropists' work should be to help promote development of robust manhood and womanhood.

There must be a simpler, a directer, way to practical education that will fit the average citizen for usefulness in the national economy. The Ottawa Journal hints at it in its reference to an address given in Ottawa by Dr. John P. Wirt, superintendent of the Gary School system, who Tells of educating the young and the old in a different way. His system has captured that childish enthusiasm with which the average youngster rushes out of school when the day's session is over and has put it to work as a force in educating and training him. At Gary, Illinois, the United States Steel Corporation has a skilled labour farm, and the brightest business minds of this continent have made the school system practical and efficient. All kinds of useful, profitable training and play are provided in that little Paradise of educational sanity. It is one of the few cases in our American desert of obsolete inefficiency in the care of the young during school life.

It would be interesting to know more details of this system, which claims to be able to practically fit children for practical life. From the hints given in the above extract, the system is an amplified application of the Kindergarten system—combining learning with play and the gaining of useful knowledge.

STILL ANOTHER "SCRAP OF PAPER" INCIDENT

It is a significant coincidence that the United States has broken with Germany for the very reason that Great Britain went to war with her, namely, because Germany has treated as a mere scrap of paper a solemn agreement into which she had entered. The parallel is a most extraordinary one. Germany solemnly bound herself to be a party to preserving the neutrality of Belgium, and under cover of that agreement, planned and plotted the invasion of that country. When the time was considered ripe, that is to say, when Germany's war machine was ready, the treaty obligating her covenant was contemptuously flung aside as "a mere scrap of paper," and Belgium was given over to the sword. In the case of the United States, Germany gave the following pledge, after the destruction of the Sussex:

In accordance with the general principles of visit and search and the destruction of merchant vessels recognised by international law, such vessels, both within and without the area declared a naval war zone, shall not be sunk without warning and without saving human lives unless the ships attempt to escape or offer resistance.

This pledge was given on May 4 of last year. Was Germany sincere when she gave that pledge? Not at all. In fact Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg has gone out of his way to proclaim to the world the inherent treachery of German diplomacy. In his announcement of unrestricted submarine warfare last week, he said that he opposed it in March and May last year. (May being the time when the promise was given to the United States) because "according to the unanimous judgment of the political and military authorities the question was not considered ripe for decision." Then he went on to tell what has happened in the interval. He said:

Where has there been any change in the situation? In the first place, the most important fact of all is that the number of our submarines has been very considerably increased as compared with last spring, and thereby a firm basis for success has been established.

The man who uttered this damning pronouncement of himself and his Government is the same man as stood up in the Reichstag in August, 1914, and announced that Germany was doing wrong in invading Belgium, but was doing it because she considered she would be successful! "The leopard cannot change his spots, nor the Ethiopan his skin."

No change of heart has come to the German Chancellor or his co-conspirators. They have kept their pledge only until their preparations to break it were considered to be complete! He admits that from the moment they gave the United States that pledge until now they have been feverishly building up a new fleet of submarines under the shelter of a pledge they never intended to keep. Is it any wonder that the response to this brutal insult to the United States is the severance of diplomatic relations? Thus the identical form of treachery which brought Britain into the war has severed friendly relations with the United States. By this act Germany has finally and convincingly declared herself a traitor to all the world, friend and foe alike.—Montreal Herald.

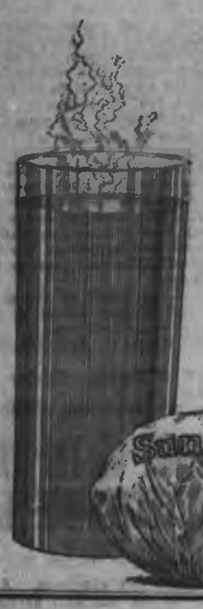
For Grippe, For Colds—

Hot Lemonade at Bedtime



MOST children can avoid colds and grippe if a few precautions are taken. In bad weather plenty of hot lemonade followed by a warm night's sleep is a valuable help. Good for grown folks, too.

Be sure the lemons are "Sunkist" and the water is piping hot.

California's

Sunkist

Uniformly Good Lemons

When you order lemons, ask for Sunkist, the uniformly good California lemons. Sunkist are waxy, tart and juicy. See that they reach you in the clean, crisp tissue wrappers stamped "Sunkist." They will stay fresh much longer if you leave them in these wrappers until you use them. Always have at least a half dozen in the house.

MILNER HAS A DELICATE TASK

GREAT RESULTS ARE EXPECTED AS A RESULT OF CONFERENCE OF ALLIES BEING HELD IN PETROGRAD.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—A cable to the Tribune from London says: The conference in Petrograd of the allied delegates is expected to result in great improvement in the Russian situation, in both a military and financial way, and to help to some extent in the economic re-organization which is going forward.

The political situation is another question. Protopopoff remains the dominating figure in Russia, and, as long as that is the case, the political outlook for the Empire must be considered most dubious. Protopopoff's reactionary tendencies are, moreover, rapidly increasing the complexity of the other problems with which Russia has to deal, because of the alienation of the Liberals, who are the most vigorous and able of the Russians.

MILNER'S MISSION.

The extreme delicacy of attempting any influence on the internal affairs of the Empire doubtless will prevent any open effort to relieve this situation, but it is hoped, nevertheless, that some change can be brought about indirectly. Lord Milner, the head of the British delegation, in the short time that he has been a member of the British Government, has won the confidence and respect of the French and Italians because of his keen power of analysis. He is expected to meet with similar success in Russia. As a member of the British triumvirate, he has unlimited power to deal with the perplexing question he has to face, and can decide the points that arise on the spot.

Lord Revelstoke, another member of the delegation, represents great financial interests, and comes of a family which for generations has had a part in all Anglo-Russian financing.

MILITARY OBJECTIVE

General Wilson, the third of the British envoys, is considered one of leaders. Wilson and Gen. Castelnau, of the French staff, who is also there to explain the plans and views of the western allies, will be in a position to reach a unity of military action with the Russian high command, such as has hitherto been impossible, because of the delays in communication. The effect this is expected to show as soon as the spring fighting gets under way.

CREWS FEAR PIRATES.

MADRID, Feb. 6.—There is a panic in the agricultural region of Catalonia as a result of a big fall in prices of certain articles for export. A large number of shipowners decided to continue sailings for France and Great Britain, but they are experiencing difficulty in obtaining crews, the men refusing to sign for the voyage.

KEEP THIS DATE OPEN

Patriotic Card Party and Dance, Under the Auspices of the Kitchener League in Oriental Hotel St. Valentine's Night

The general public are asked to lend their patronage to an informal social evening which is to be held here in the Oriental Hotel on the evening of St. Valentine's day, Wednesday, February 14th. This event is to be held under the auspices of the local Canadian Kitchener League, who have been so energetic in the past in furnishing winter comforts for our Peterborough boys in the trenches. "Send us more socks" is the cry that comes back after every new shipment which reaches our gallant lads in khaki. The gratitude expressed for the warm, woolly, home-made foot comforts and other suitable supplies keep stirring up the League to a renewal of their efforts in this direction. This informal evening, which is in preparation, is another evidence of the resourcefulness of the lady members of the League, and is deserving of generous encouragement. The proceedings will be varied by dancing, instrumental music, cards, etc., and everybody is invited to join in the mirth and pleasure of the evening. Tickets are for sale at the Peterborough Lumber Co., the Peterborough Creamery and at the banks.

You Can't Brush Or Wash Out Dandruff

The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this to-night, and by morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.

CANADA'S LOYALTY NO LONGER DOUBTED

LONDON, Feb. 6. — Horatio Bottomley, editor of John Bull, writing in the Sunday Pictorial on the help given the Mother Country from overseas, admits that he was not much of a friend to Canada, and had said all sorts of unkind things about the country and did his best to discourage emigration from Great Britain to the Dominion, but from to-day, he adds, let no man disparage the great Dominion in his hearing.

MILITARY BOOTS WERE DISCOVERED

LINDSAY, Feb. 6.—Chief Short was looking up a pair of stolen shoes on Thursday, and came upon a regular mine, so to speak, in a local second hand store. The constable was after a pair that was taken from a soldier, and on going to the second-hand dealer's place, he found ten pairs of military boots for sale. As this is contrary to law for any business house to deal in government uniforms or supplies of this kind, the Chief asked the dealer to withhold the sale of the footwear until such time as he could have the matter looked into. The shoes came to the second-hand dealer from Toronto, where they had possibly been sold or pawned by soldiers and then shipped to this town for sale.

THE COST OF THE DAVIS CASE

LINDSAY, Feb. 6. — The total cost to the County of Victoria in the carrying out of justice in the Davis manslaughter case at Kinmount, amounted to $428.14. Out of this amount the county received back $52.75. The County of Peterboro paid two-thirds of the cost of witness fees, which amounted to about $35, leaving net cost to the County of Victoria of $375.

COAL DEALERS CAN DELIVER ON SUNDAY

TORONTO, Feb. 5 — Do not be surprised if the coal man calls at your house on a Sunday and dumps a load of coal into his cellar. The coal dealers all over Toronto have permission from the mayor to continue deliveries all day Sunday, because of the serious scarcity of coal in a number of families who were unable to get delivery of fuel last week.

In announcing the decision Mayor took occasion to point out how the situation would be saved by hydro-radials. At the present time, he says, we are at the mercy of the American railroads. With a double track line to the border, Mayor Church says the hydro-radials could relieve the situation.

ST. LOUIS TO AWAIT OFFICIAL WORD.

ST. ALBAN'S PRESENTS CLOCK AND ADDRESS TO DEPARTING SUPT.

The members of St. Alban's Mission Brownton, met last night to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. D. Crawley and family who are leaving for England this week. The following address was read by Mr. Spence and the presentation made by Mr. Whiteside.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Crawley:—

We, the members of the congregation of St. Alban's Mission, desire to express our great regret that you are obliged through ill-health to sever your connection with us and to leave for England.

You, Mr. Crawley, have worked faithfully and conscientiously as Superintendent of the Sunday School, and you are leaving a gap which will be hard to fill. You will be long remembered with affection by the scholars, and you, Mrs. Crawley, will not soon be forgotten for your cheerful willingness to assist in all our little functions.

We ask you to accept this mantel clock as a mark of the esteem and affection we have for you, and we pray that God may bless you and your family, and bestow upon you many years of health and happiness. We bid you Godspeed and a safe journey to your new home.

Signed on behalf of the congregation and Sunday School of St. Alban's Mission, Brownton.

The pallbearers were Mr. W. H. Moore, Mr. D. W. Dumble, Mr. W. H. Grubbe, Dr. Greer, Mr. F. D. Kerr and Mr. Fred Clementi.

The late Mrs. Pearson is survived by three children, Mrs. A. E. Sherwood and Miss Lillian Pearse of this city and Mr. T. E. E. Pearse, City Engineer of Newport News, Virginia, U.S.A.

The Victims of La Grippe

Every winter la grippe sweeps over Canada like a scourge leavng behind hundreds of health-wrecked victims. Ask any of those who have been attacked by la grippe what their present condition of health is and most of them will answer: "Since I had the grip I have never been well." This trouble leaves behind a persistent weakness of the limbs, bad digestion, shortness of breath, and palpitation of the heart, caused by the thin-blooded condition in which grip almost always leaves its victims after the fever and influenza have subsided. They are at the mercy of relapses and complications, often very serious. This condition will continues until the blood is built up again, and for this purpose nothing can equal a fair treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. From first to last dose these pills make new, rich, red blood, which reaches every organ and every nerve in the body. Thus the lingering germs are driven from the body, and the weak, despondent, victims of la grippe are transformed into cheerful, healthy, happy men and women.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medi-

Evidence of Heavy Exports Of Potatoes to Cuba and U.S.

The Examiner's news item and editorial statement that Canadian potatoes have been exported, in spite of the home scarcity, has been disbelieved and discredited by the Review.

The Examiner obtained the news from Mr. Walter J. Oke, wholesale fruit dealer, who showed a reporter a letter dated Jan. 11th, 1917, from A. Mallinson, of Toronto, sales manager for the New Brunswick Potato Exchange Limited, containing this statement, referring to Canadian potato sales:

"Boston bought heavily at a price equal to $2.45 in bulk, Toronto basis, and Woodstock (N.B.) wires that Cuba has paid for 8,000 bags at a price equal to $2.50 per 90 lbs. in bulk Toronto freight basis.

Another Letter.

Mr. C. Fred Fawcett, manager of the Pioneer Farm, Upper Sackville, N.B., writing Mr. Oke under date of Jan. 10th, 1917, says in his letter: "I have shipped twenty cars to New York and these chaps wire the funds even before I will start loading the car."

Further Proof of Export.

These letters refer to only two very recent sales of potatoes for export and going back to November Mr. Oke received a letter from W. W. Hubbard, superintendent of the Canadian Government Experimental Station for New Brunswick, including the following:

"I am informed that shippers realized last week over $5 a barrel for 10,000 barrels sent to Cuba, so I do not know what you can buy at."

There has been no labouring to secure this evidence, which clearly indicates that not only have potatoes been exported recently, but that there has been no period since last summer's crop during which potatoes have not been shipped from this country.

In local stores to-day grocers are doling out potatoes in peck limits at 55 to 65 cents a peck.

City Asked To Grant $6000 To British Sailors' Relief Fund

The Peterborough Branch of the British Sailors' Relief Fund made a request to the Council last night for a grant of $6,000, the city's share of $10,000 which it was felt this county should contribute to the sum of $500,000 the Montreal Harbour Board had set out to raise as a gift from Canada for the assistance of the dependents of the British sailors killed in action. The speakers of the deputation were Mr. F. D. Kerr, Judge Huycke, Mr. Vincent Eastwood, Mr. W. H. Dunsford and Mr. Walter Stocker.

Mr. Kerr's Address.

Mr. Kerr recalled the organization of the Peterborough branch of this Fund following the visit of Mr. Scammell in November. He was appointed chairman, Mr. Eastwood secretary and Mr. Dunaford treasurer. It was felt that the city and county of Peterborough should together contribute $10,000 in the proportion of $6,000 from the city and $4,000 from the County Council. The latter had at their January session contributed their share of the sum. It now remained for the city to complete the subscription from Peterborough's municipalities. Mr. Kerr referred to the unceasing, unending vigilance of the British Navy by which Germany was being gradually beaten down. In this work trawlers and other vessels were being lost daily, bringing sorrow and loss to many homes in the old land. The effective work of the navy was evidenced in the fact that all the Canadian troops had been transported in safety.

The other speakers paid brief tributes to the men of the fleet and made a plea to the Council to grant the $6,000.

The Council decided to defer action until the question of grants is being considered when the 1917 estimates are drawn up.

DOES NOT KNOW OF WAR THOUGH SHE LIVES NEAR IT

By Carl Gabe.

One of the most tragic stories of the last century is recalled by the statement that the ex-Empress Charlotte widow of the late Emperor Maxmilian of Mexico, whom she married in 1857, when she was but 17 years of age, still resides in the Castle of Bonchant, near Brussels. The castle and the park have not been touched by the Germans, and soldiers are forbidden to enter the grounds.

During the rebellion in Mexico over fifty years ago, when her husband was captured by the insurgents, the Empress hurried to Europe to seek aid from Napoleon III. of France He was unable to give any, and when the news arrived that Maximilian had been foully murdered, the shock was too great for the young girl to bear, and she went raving mad.

She has never been informed of the war, but often asks why King Albert and Queen Elizabeth do not visit her any more.

Councils Seek More Control of Boards That Spend Money

That the City Council have greater control in the spending Boards, such as School Board, Public Library, Public Utilities, was the idea embodied in a motion passed by the London (Ont.) Council and endorsed by the Peterborough Council last night on motion of Ald. Stratton, seconded by Ald. Weir.

At present these Boards submit their estimates of requirements and the Council has no recourse but to include them in the tax rate.

Patriotic Fund's Need.

Mr. Joseph Wearing, Secretary of the Speakers' Patriotic League, wrote asking the Council to donate $300 to assist in covering the League's expenses this year. There are thirty or forty members. The aggregate of their $5 memberships is inadequate to meet the expenses of the work undertaken during the year. Referred to Committee of the Whole on motion of Ald. Duncan, seconded by Ald. Worth, and will be considered later with other requests for money.

Provincial War Tax.

By-law No. 2,000 provided for the inclusion of the Provincial War Tax of one mill in the 1917 rate.

Poultry Association's Grant.

The Poultry Association wrote for the payment of the city's grant.

Ald. Stratton explained that the Council had previously overlooked passing a resolution authorizing the payment of this money, and moved, seconded by Ald. Dobbin, that it be paid.

Continues with City Trust.

Mr. Richard Hall was reappointed by by-law, member of the City Trust for five years.

THIS HUSBAND IS A WINNER

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—In the Police Court J. A. White charged Ross Charlton with trespass in his home. Charlton, he said, was an old school chum of Mrs. White's, and had been boarding with the Whites for the past six months. Mrs. White appeared to desire his presence there, but Mr. White was opposed to it.

Magistrate Kingsford supported the husband's objection to Charlton's invasion by binding that gentleman over in the sum of $50, or six months imprisonment, to keep clear of the White home. A constable will see about the removal of several things Charlton claims he owns at the White house.

The case was an outcome of an action brought by Mrs. White to obtain an order of protection against her husband.

The following sums were received from patients:
Nicholls Hospital $26

Comparisons of Totals.

The total cost of indigent patients to the city during the past two years was as follows:

CITY COUNCIL JOINS 500 CLUB

Col. Ackerman Requested that City Engage No Man Who Is Fit For Military Duty

Last night the Council unanimously decided to become members of the "500 Club," the new recruiting organization formed to assist in filling up the 247th Battalion.

Col. Ackerman and Major O'Flynn waited on the Council the former explaining the purpose and aims of the "500 Club." As Commanding Officer of the new Peterborough Battalion, Col. Ackerman had been striving to enlist the support and co-operation of various societies, clubs, and other bodies in Peterborough, to reach as many people as possible, and interest them in the 247th. He had met some opposition, and had also found that although Peterborough had done splendidly there were thousands, not hundreds, of persons who were not doing their bit. He had gone to the manufacturers and appealed to them to engage, whenever possible, only those men who were physically unfit for overseas service. Col. Ackerman requested the Council to adopt a similar policy in all the municipal departments, unless the men were absolutely indispensible. He followed this by another request that the Council join in a body the "500 Club," pledging themselves respectively to secure one recruit for the 247th, or any branch of the service.

In the subsequent discussion Ald. Duncan suggested that the Council take the steps desired by Col. Ackerman without any delay.

He moved, seconded by Ald. Dobbin, that every member of the Council join the "500 Club."

That Judge Huycke's interest in the new battalion is a constant presence with him was then indicated. He reminded the Council that Col. Ackerman had requested that physically fit men be refused employment in all civic departments.

Ald. Stratton—"Will the Police Commission do the same?"

Judge Huycke—"We have refused absolutely to appoint any man who was eligible for military service.

SUFFOCATED BY GAS.

MIMICO, Feb. 6.—Mr. Andrew T. Orr, of Albert Avenue, who has been a resident of Mimico for five or six years, and formerly lived at Clarkson, where he had a fruit farm, was found in a collapsed condition in his garage, a few days ago, and before a doctor arrived he had died. Mr. Orr had left his house at two o'clock with the intention of repairing the two cars that were at the garage, and when he was found by his daughter, who had become alarmed at his long absence, the engines of the cars were running. Dr. Ricker, who was called immediately, and found life extinct, and Dr. Serson, who arrived later, declared that death was due to asphyxiation from gas that was produced in the engines.

NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF PETERBORO' FIRE DEPARTMENT

One Hundred and Forty-two Alarms Were Responded to During the Year---The Apparatus Travelled Two Hundred and Twelve Miles---Peterborough's "Horse and Buggy" Fire Department Had a Busy Year--More Alarm Boxes.

The report of Fire Chief Howard covering the work of the Peterborough Fire Department for the past year was submitted at last night's meeting of the City Council. It is one of the most comprehensive reports issued in connection with any one department of the civic administration. A careful perusal will show the manner in which the work of the department is carried out. What might have been the result had the department been properly equipped with rolling stock is left to the imagination. There is every reason to believe that the next annual report issued from this department will have to deal with the operation of motor driven fire apparatus and that the present "horse and buggy" fire department will have passed into history.

The Report.

The report contains the following:

To His Worship the Mayor, and Aldermen of the City Council:

Gentlemen,—I have the honour to submit herewith the ninth annual report of the Fire Department for the year ending December 31st, 1916, which is as follows:

During the year, the Fire Department responded to 142 alarms of fire, and in doing so, the apparatus travelled 212 miles, used 36,750 feet of two and one-half inch Standard fire hose, raised 1,616 feet of ladders, and used 300 gallons of chemicals.

The total damage by fire as near as can be ascertained (apart from the million dollar disaster at the Quaker Oats plant) for the year 1916, was $13,206.00, some nine thousand dollars less than the preceding year.

The damage is classified as follows:

Damage to buildings	$6,916.00
Damage to contents	6,350.00
Total damage	$13,206.00

The alarms of fire were received in the following manner:

102 by telephone.
31 by alarm boxes.
9 verbal or still alarms.

The general health of the members of your Fire Department has been excelled with one exception. Fireman Frank Kelly was taken ill on April 7th and died May 2nd. He was a valued and respected fireman.

Accidents.

During the year, two of the firemen met with an accident. Fireman Jos. Burkton broke a small bone in his foot which rendered him incapable for about one month.

Fireman John Drummond broke his leg Oct. 9th while on duty responding to an alarm of fire, and is still suffering from the effects.

July 14th one of the oldest horses on the department (Fred) died with acute indigestion.

During the year, owing to the war, labour and other conditions, the department lost several well trained men, and in consequence, I would respectfully request your committee in charge of this department to arrange the schedule of wages in such a way that it would be an inducement to good men to remain on the department for a term of years. Also increase the strength of the department in keeping with the size and importance of the city.

More Alarm Boxes.

The fire alarm system is in good shape for the size of it, but should be extended with more street boxes, one for each of the hospitals, one for every large school and the Old People's Home.

The number of fire hydrants should be considerably increased, especially in the neighbourhood of the manufacturing plants, schools and hospitals.

The disaster at the Quaker Oats plant with explosion and fire on December 11th, was attended with serious loss of life and the injury to many workmen. Some 22 persons lost their lives. The particulars in connection with the property loss are not available at present, but I understand will be somewhere around the million dollar mark.

You will please find attached to this report a stock sheet showing the amount of equipment and supplies on hand January 1st, 1917.

There is also a detailed report showing the number of alarms of fire, the name and address of the owner and occupants, how each alarm of fire was received, whether by fire alarm street box, by telephone, verbal or still alarm, the estimated damage resulting from fire, the apparatus travel, the equipment used, street lights reported out, and the number of telephone calls. A comparative tabulated statement of former years is also attached.

The matter of better equipment for this department was taken up by the 1916 Council which I trust will pave the way for the 1917 Council to motorize the Fire Department equipment.

There is five members of your Fire Department in the trenches and three others on active service overseas, while some others have applied and been rejected.

All of which is repectfully submitted.

I have the honours to be sirs,
Your obedient servant,
W. A. HOWARD,
Chief, Fire Department.

CHEERS FOR WILSON GIVEN IN MONTREAL.

MONTREAL, Feb. 6.—The publication in extra editions of the news of the severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany, created immense excitement here. The streets in the business section of the city were rapidly jammed with thousands of men struggling to buy papers, while the bulletin boards attracted crowds that blocked the traffic.

Cheers for President Wilson and the United States were given at intervals by the crowds.

Applying This Paste Actually Removes Hairs

(Beauty Notes)

Merely applying an inexpensive paste to a hairy surface, say beauty specialists, will dissolve the hairs. This paste is made by mixing a little water with some powdered delatone; after about 2 minutes it is rubbed off and the skin washed. This simple method not only removes every trace of hair, but leaves the skin free from blemish. To insure success with this treatment, be careful to get real delatone.

the Otonabee River. The adverse moral influence resulting from this unfortunate condition is most deplorable and especially so as this demoralising condition exists at the season of the year when custom allows the constructive influence of schools and churches to be largely suspended.

LACK OF SAFETY PROVISIONS

We also deplore the lack of safety provisions accorded our youth along our water ways which we believe should be as carefully patrolled as our streets.

The objectionable conditions heretofore mentioned can be largely obviated if publicly owned and properly supervised bathing houses are provided and if bathing is prohibited at other than the specified places.

We believe that swimming should be taught at public expense and would recommend this pastime not only to promote cleanliness but as one of the best body building exercises that may be provided.

Y.W.C.A. REPRESENTED.

Miss Martha Dickson, representing the Y.W.C.A. stated that she was in full sympathy with the idea.

For the Y.M.C.A., Mr. G. A. Gillespie heartily approved of the petition. The Y.M.C.A. used its swimming tank in summer, but he realized that every body was not a member of the Association, hence the public facilities were essential.

LONG LIST OF NAMES

Adjutant McElhiney spoke in behalf of five hundred children of the Salvation Army, many of whom, he knew, bathed in the river.

Mr. M. E. Ketcheson presented a long petition, signed by men of all the factories and by other citizens. The scroll he unrolled extended clean across the Council Chamber with its 900 names.

MANDATE FROM THE PEOPLE

Mrs. W. R. Morris proved a worthy and an able representative of the Council of Women. The request from the people was so generally endorsed that it became almost a mandate. Chosen because of their fitness for the position, the Council was expected to give the people what they wanted.

THE CONCRETE PROPOSAL.

Mr. C. N. Meserve, Secretary of the Y.M.C.A. and of the deputation included the following concrete suggestion in his address.

FIRST: The city representatives, our councilmen, should have a Standing Committee on Public Social Welfare. This Committee should seek to co-ordinate the efforts of existing societies, be a bureau of information regarding local social conditions, and prepared to bring expert advice to our citizens and lay workers.

This committee should take the leadership in making Peterborough a city of Culture, Health, Optimism and Good Morals. Under this leadership the citizens could co-operate in aiding our youth to live right and not wait for conditions to reach a stage where the police have the wreckage to gather up.

We believe that our council should give more attention to preventative measures that there may be less need to forcibly correct those whose morals have become diseased.

We have made something of a start in the right direction as we have, or are contemplating slides and skating rinks for the winter. Other places however have public courses of lectures on Public Health, Sanitation, Fire Prevention, etc. These movements financed at public expense. These Welfare movements are called a good investment for thy serve to attract and hold citizens of the best quality, and business men and employers are benefited.

Now if some of the things I have said seem visionary we will try to be practical and speak about Public Bathing Houses for this is a condition to be met and is not a theory.

SECOND: Public Bathing Places. We would suggest two bathing centres within walking distance for children, to be appointed by the Council and provided with life saving devices, suitable dressing facilities both private and public, each center to be under the supervision of a caretaker. As far as possible swimming instruction should be provided. The Playground supervisors could co-operate in this work.

THIRD: A City By Law is Needed. We would suggest that having appointed Public Bathing Centers that the Council pass a by-law prohibiting bathing at other points, except that permits should be issued to those who might apply, if they would provide themselves with private indoor dressing conveniences.

We would suggest that the public be invited to co-operate with the police in inforcing this by-law and that a nominal reward be paid to citizens who will bring information that will convict an offender.

FOURTH: For immediate action, we would suggest that a committee be appointed from the Council to confer, at a public meeting, with organizations and individuals regarding plans and methods. Also that an appropriation of two thousand dollars be made toward buildings, equipment and supervision, it being expected that revenues from suits and private dressing stalls be a refund on this appropriation.

ACTION DEFERRED.

After Dr. Neal and Mr. Joseph Wearing added their endorsations, the Council decided to defer action until a later meeting when the estimates are being decided.

William Fox at the Royal Theatre. Special for Wednesday and Thursday:

Wm. Fox presents in his supreme photoplay, Frederick Palmer and a distinguished cast of players in "THE FAMILY STRAIN" in six parts, also new Charlie Chaplin play "ONE, A.M.," in two parts.

Don't miss the matinee in the evening. A 50c show for only 10c.

Production of milk has shown a marked increase during the past few years, but the demand for dairy products has more than kept pace with it.

SIGNS OF KIDNEY TROUBLE.

In the early stages kidney troubles are known by backache and urinary disorders. Later come dropsy, stone, rheumatic pains and perhaps diabetes. But don't wait for these. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills will help you in a few hours. Their thorough action on the liver, kidneys and bowels will clear away the pains and the aches and make you well again.

Manager Fisk's Report.

Following is Manager Fisk's second annual report to the Utilities Commission:

During the year 1916 the Light and Power Department has enjoyed a steady growth. This is shown in the amount of power purchased, which cost $6,635.49 more in 1916 than that purchased in 1915.

We have added 233 domestic customers, 12 commercial and 5 power. The total power purchased was 9,384,635 K.W., or nearly one million more than was used in 1915. This heavy demand is largely from the munition factories.

Few Interruptions.

During the year we have had comparatively few interruptions to service. A lightning storm occurred on April 16th, causing a motor to break down in the Campbell Milling Co. On June 2nd, a severe lightning storm caused another break down in the same plant, power was off from this circuit from 8.33 till 9.55. A heavy storm occurred June 24th causing some damage to our Simcoe street substation, power was off entire system from 5.35 till 7.30 p.m. The cost of repairs to the sub-station and apparatus was $62.70. A severe lightning storm, accompanied by wind, occurred July 13th at 2.55 a.m. Power was off for 5 minutes. A heavy wind storm passed over the city September 7th, breaking down a lamp pole in East City. There was no interruption to power except that the voltage was down for a short time due to trouble on the Hydro transmission line outside of the city.

Street Lighting.

Our street lighting system has been considerably improved by shifting the unused magnetite lamps on George street and illuminating with them the four main approaches to the city, namely, Charlotte street from G.T.R. to Boundry; Hunter street from Rubidge to Rogers; George street from McDonnell north to Smith and south of C.P.R. on George street to Lake street; also Central Park and Water street from London to Brock. Three of these lamps have still to be erected, the delay being caused by the failure to receive the necessary lamps which have been on order for some considerable time.

On May 9th we put into service a motor truck. This was a McLaughlin D 4, 2,000 lb. truck, equipped with the same chassis and power as used in their Field Ambulances, which are doing such good work at the front. As extras this car was fitted with ladder hangers, reversible seat and search light for trouble work. This lamp, which is similar to one of the head lights, is so effective that our men have been able to take down a defective transformer at night and replace the same with a new one. The cost of operating this car for gasoline, oil and repairs was $23.26 per month, about one-half of what livery hire cost us in 1915. In addition the high speed has saved the time of one man.

168 meters have been installed, after having been duly tested by the Government Inspector, 613 meters have been revarified and 35 were found unfit for use and scrapped.

28 transformers were erected, costing $2,578.75, with a capacity of 320½ K.W. 16 were taken down and erected in other places, and 7 were burned out, representing a value of $589.50.

194 poles were erected, costing $561.00. 7,794 lbs. of copper, 16.8 miles, representing a value of $3,742.64 was strung.

All of the above mentioned work was covered by 4,606 work-orders.

Low Voltage Complaints.

When the overlap of the light and power load began to occur in the fall, numerous low voltage complaints came in. This trouble was taken up with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario at Toronto, from which we procure our power, and in due time the trouble was corrected by them.

On the 11th of December the burning of the Quaker Oats plant, the most disastrous fire in the history of Peterborough, destroyed several hundreds of line. This inconvenienced our East City customers for a few days, when it was fully repaired at a cost of approximately $100.00.

During the past year our staff has been completed by four. Gordon Hewson, one of the linemen, came in contact with live wires in February and lost his life. The inquest developed the fact that deceased was suffering from chronic appendicitis, undoubtedly his better judgment was momentarily suspended by intense pain, which caused him to place his hands on the wires, which at any other time he would have recognized as extremely dangerous.

Arthur Greer left us to serve his King at the front, making the 6th from our small band to enlist for overseas service.

Mr. Middleton, our meter inspector, left our service to take up the duties of Dominion Inspector of meters for this district.

In September, Mr. J. C. Anderson, our esteemed accountant was suddenly taken from us.

In conclusion I might say that owing to the abnormal cost of material, especially copper, which reached the enormous price of 44c. per lb., our activities have been confined to absolutely necessary work.

H. O. FISK.

PETERBORO JUNIORS FOUR GOALS BEHIND IN THE KINGSTON SERIES

Were Beaten 6 Goals to 2 in Hard-fought Struggle Last Night—Score Was 1-1 at End of Second Period But a Bad Break in Middle of Last Period Cost Homesters the Game.

WAS SPLENDID GAME

After a hard-fought battle, in which the score is absolutely no indication of the play, the Peterborough Juniors went down to defeat at the hands of the fast Kingston Hockey Club at Brock Street Rink, last night. The final count was 6 to 2. For two periods it was by far the most exciting and toughest argument of the year. Kingston scored first after nine minutes' play in the first period, and the teams battled exactly thirty minutes afterwards before the Petes tied it up, the figures at the end of the second session reading 1 to 1.

It looked anybody's battle at that stage with the odds rather favouring the Petes, who seemed in the better shape, as the teams skated off for their final rest. However, you never can tell about a hockey game. The Petes opened the last session at top speed and for the first few minutes had the visitors on the run. All at once the tide turned and Kingston again took the lead when they scored from a scrimmage. The next ten minutes' work was a nightmare, the visitors scoring four more counters on shots from scrimmages. Not one was registered on a clean rush and two or three were easy shots that drifted in between a tangle of legs and sticks. The Petes seemed unable to work the rubber clear and Murray had little chance to stop the shots with his players bunched in front of him. When the smoke had cleared away Kingston were leading 6 to 1, and although the local youngsters threw everybody up on the forward line and had the visitors on the defensive for the balance of the game, they could only find the nets once and the game ended 6 to 2.

It was a grand game of hockey, especially the first two periods, with speedy skating, nice stick handling, and good goal keeping, while both teams were out to the last link. The Petes have no reason to be ashamed of themselves. They were outweighed on an average of ten pounds, and had none of the breaks at any stage.

The Easterns have a heavy, fast team with a magnificent goal keeper, a sturdy defence and a speedy forward line, but they did not earn a four-goal margin on the play last night, and the Petes will give them a lively battle in the return game at Kingston on Friday. The red-shirted boys from the Limestone city have been well drilled in inside hockey, and were adepts in the use of the butt-end, invariably working it when the referee's back was turned. Graham took the count once from a jab in this way and all the Petes are carrying souvenirs as a result of the tactics. In Walsh the Kingston outfit have a crack goal keeper. They claim he is the best net guardian in the East, and he looked the goods last night, even if he did not resemble a junior player in either size or appearance. Hall, on the defence, has a world of speed, but the star of their outfit was undoubtedly Stenson, the Captain and centre who did most of the scoring, and was by far the most dangerous of the visitors. He showed both speed and science, and would be a valuable man on any team.

Montgomery, Cherrett and McIntyre were the best for Peterborough. Montgomery's performance was his best of the season and his rushes were a feature of the night. He outskated the speediest of the visitors in his dashes down the ice, and was always dangerous when he broke away. Cherrett especially in the first two periods, also played his best hockey of the season. He had all kinds of speed and stick-handled nicely, while his work on the defence in the second period, when Montgomery was in the penalty box for ten minutes, was very effective. Cherrett and Montgomery are both eligible for junior hockey for three seasons after this winter, and are two most promising youngsters. McIntyre, while not as brilliant as the other pair, did some fine checking on the defence and rushed nicely, showing some good stickhandling. Murray, in the nets, had a lot of work, and pulled off a host of good saves. While a couple of easy ones beat him in the last period, he had little chance to clear with his team mates bunched around him.

Where the Petes fell down was in their shooting. Their drives were both weak and inaccurate and a score of golden opportunities were lost by wild markmanship or by shots that hardly left the ice, and were pie for Walsh.

Referee Steve Vair was impartial and severe in his penalties, but at that he missed a lot. He opened out with a schedule of two minutes for the first penalty, and five for the second, and then in the second session, he changed to five minutes for all offences, except loafing. The result was that several players from each team were off for at least ten minutes. It is a poor system to work on, and players on both teams served five minutes for accidental trips. The Petes lost Montgomery for ten minutes and the visitors, Elmer, for the same time, and not one of the four cases looked deliberate.

The teams lined up as follows:

Kingston		Peterborough
	Goal
Walsh		Murray
	Defence
Evans		McIntyre
Hall		Montgomery
	Rover
Elmer		Cherrett
	Centre
Stinson		Bartley
	Right Wing
Shewell		McFee
	Left Wing
Grattan		Graham

The pace was lightning fast from the start with both teams rushing and back-checking like fiends. Combination was almost impossible, so close was the checking, but the individual dashes of Hall and Stinson for Kingston, and Montgomery, Cherrett and McIntyre for the Petes kept the fans on their toes. Both goal-keepers were called on early, and did excellent work. Early in the period Stinson was benched for tripping and started a long procession of offenders. McFee followed him to the bench and just after the two were back, Elmer was chased for slashing. Soon after Hall was benched for tripping Montgomery and the visitors were two men short. On a combination rush a shot from Battery found the nets, but the play was called back for an offside pass. Graham was put out of commission by a jab from a stick and Shewell was dropped with him. While the two were off, Kingston scored the first goal of the game, Stinson pushing the rubber into the nets from a scrimmage after Murray had been knocked over.

Evans was hurt and there was a delay. Elmer drew a second penalty for tripping and Hall followed him to the side and once again the visitors were two men short, but they managed to hold the Petes out near the end of the period. Shewell was hurt and Graham was dropped with him. The period ended 1 to 0 in favour of Kingston.

Only good goal-keeping by Walsh kept the Petes from tying it up in the first few minutes of the second period, when the big Kingston net guardian made three clever saves of close-range shots in as many minutes. Montgomery broke right inside but Walsh nailed the drive. Then Cherrett had a chance, but Walsh was once more in the road, and he was there a moment later when McFee drove one at him on a pass from Montgomery. The latter drew two penalties in succession for tripping, and while he was off Cherrett kept the Petes in the running, by his good work on the defence and speedy rushing. Stinson, of the visitors, was benched for loafing and then Bartley drew a penalty. Grattan was hurt and retired for a short time with McFee. Elmer tripped Graham and the latter had to retire, taking Sewell with him. With the Petes playing six men to five, Montgomery tied the score with one minute to play in the second period on the prettiest rush of the night. He went the length of the rink and beat Walsh with a bullet shot from close in.

All he players were out when the third period opened. The Petes threw away several beautiful chances in the first few minutes. Graham and Bartley both shot wide when close in. Montgomery was knocked out with a cross-check, but resumed after a short delay. Finally, after five minutes' play Kingston took the lead when Sewell followed in after Stinson had been checked, and slammed the rubber through. Gratin followed with another in a scrimmage, and Stinson got three in a row all in the same way through loose play on the Petes' part around their nets. That left it 6 to 1. The locals then rallied and had the best of the balance of the period, but it was too late. They threw everybody up on the line and gave the Kingston defence a busy ten minutes, but one goal was the best they could do. They had absolutely no luck. Montgomery once broke right inside on a beautiful rush and then got the rubber tangled up in his feet, and on another occasion missed the empty net. Half a dozen other chances were thrown away before Bartley hammered one through on a pass from behind the nets by McFee. There was no further scoring.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mr. Mayneord for the able manner in which he had performed the duties of his office.

To Mr. Mayneord in a very large manner is due the wonderful success of the operations of the last past year.

During which the club's financial standing was raised from a deficit of $220.00 to a clear sheet.

Mr. Mayneord replied to the vote of thanks in his usual happy style.

After a most pleasant evening the meeting adjourned to meet at the call of the new president, who will lay before the club his plan of campaign for the coming season.

A BIG BATTLE IN THE SECOND ROUND

Depot Batteries of Kingston and 247th Battalion Team Tomorrow Night at Brock St. Rink—The Most Sensational Game of the Year in Sight

Although one Kingston team succeeded in beating a Peterborough outfit last night in the junior series, the fans are looking forward to revenge to-morrow night when the Depot Batteries team of Kingston, winners of the Eastern Group will clash with the 247th at Brock Street Rink in what should be the season's most sensational game. Peterborough fans know what the local soldiers can do and according to all reports from the East the Kingston artillerymen will be worthy opponents of Major O'Flynn's speed boys. The game will start at 8.15 o'clock and the crowd will undoubtedly be the biggest of the year as the fans have been waiting for the second round to see the 247th in action against a real team. The 247th Band will be in attendance and it looks like a big night at the Brock Street ice box. The local soldiers have been practising faithfully and are in the best of shape. The team will line up the same as in the game against Nobel last Friday.

CREE HALF-BREED WON THE DOG RACE

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 6. — Albert Campbell, a Cree half-breed from the Hudson Bay district, won the longest dog race in history on Saturday, while Fred Hartman, the favorite, finished last in the field of the five competitors who completed the course, and collapsed as he crossed the line here early in the evening.

Albert Campbell crossed the finish line ten days, almost to the minute, after he had been sent away at Winnipeg. Next in order came Bill Grayson, Joe Metcalf and Gabriel Campbell, the last named a brother of the winner.

Hartman will profit from his arduous experience notwithstanding his failure to win. Purses aggregating more than $1,000 have been made up for him. A first prize of $500 and a number of other prizes go to Albert Campbell.

Eleven teams started. Six were eliminated by the fierceness of the competition. As originally mapped out, the course followed the old Pembina trail, 522 miles from Winnipeg up the Red River to St. Paul. A cut off followed by the racers reduced the distance to 509 1-2 miles.

Proposed Partnership Took Away His Breath

"Mr. Morgan wants to see you in his library at 3 o'clock" was the message received one day by the vice-president of a New York bank.

He hadn't the slightest idea what the veteran financier could want with him. He had met Mr. Morgan as most other financiers had, during the parlous days when the master mind of them all was trying to stem the 1907 panic, but had not seen anything of Mr. Morgan until the spring of the following year, when, with Senator Aldrich and other members of the monetary commission, he had spent a Sunday at Mr. Morgan's London home. Between then and the receipt of the above message in the fall of 1908, he had seldom spoken to Mr. Morgan.

Promptly at 3 o'clock the young banker, wondering what the matter could be, rang the bell of the famous Morgan library. On being ushered in he almost collided with Mr. Morgan at the entrance of the private room.

Mr. Morgan shook hands and bade the puzzled visitor to be seated.

"Do you realize it is pretty near the 1st of January?" he asked.

The young banker, very much at sea, agreed that it was. This was about the middle of November.

"Are you ready?" asked Mr. Morgan.

"Ready for what?" queried the astonished visitor.

"For what?" echoed Mr. Morgan. "You know I want you to come and join my firm on Jan. 1."

"You never said anything about it Mr. Morgan.

"I thought you knew by my expression what I thought of you," said Mr. Morgan.

"Mr. Morgan, have you ever fallen from an 18-storey building?"

It was Mr. Morgan's turn to be astonished.

"No," he replied, scrutinizing his visitor.

"Well, I never have before, and it will take me a minute or two to catch my breath."

Mr. Morgan laughed.

And that was how Henry P. Davison, then only 40, was notified of his selection as a partner in the greatest international banking firm in the

PEG O' MY HEART ON MONDAY NEXT

Miss Marion Dentler is one of the Most Popular of Younger American Actresses

A special company for a coast to coast tour of Peg O' My Heart will bring to The Grand Opera House, Monday February 12th, a cast unexcelled in the history of this wonderful comedy. Of all the Pegs under Mr. Morosco's banner, Miss Marion Dentler, who was the first to tour through Canada, is generally considered unequalled in this role. Her youth, beauty and undoubted histrionic ability which was first recognized by Mr. Henry Savage, who gave her an important part in "Everywoman" has made her one of the most popular of the younger American actresses. In addition to Miss Dentler as Peg, the cast of the present company contains Mr. William Sauter as Jerry. His record of three years with E. S. Willard, two years with Forbes Robertson and as leading man with Miss Eleanor Robson in "The Dawn of a To-morrow" is evidence of the effort made by the United Producing Company to make the farewell tour one that will remain long in the memory of the treatre-goers of our city.

BRITISH OCCUPY ELEVEN HUNDRED YDS. OF TRENCHES

Thirty Million Dollars Worth Of Machinery On Enemy Ships Wrecked in New York Harbour

Crews Were Ordered to Start on Their Campaign of Destruction Before German Ambassador Delivered Defiant Message to United States---Axe and Crowbar Used On Finest of Marine Machinery.

MESSENGERS OF DESTRUCTION

NEW YORK, February 7.—According to the Sun, engines in every German and Austrian ship imprisoned in New York Harbour by the British navy have been deliberately wrecked. Officers of German blood who know the truth, estimate that $30,000,000 worth of irreplaceable marine machinery was smashed or made useless in a few hours before Count von Bernstorff delivered to the Government of the United States the defiant message from Germany.

Sabotage an a scale so magnificent is without parallel in history. Without the slightest hesitation and with a mere hint from high officials whose hints are never slighted, the persons in authority delivered to axe and crow bar the finest products of the marine machine shops of Hamburg and Bremen. There was no questioning or reluctance. The destruction was ordered as a duty to be endured for the good of the Fatherland.

CONCEPTION OF PATRIOTISM.

The German conception of patriotism was the impelling motive for the frightful destructiveness that obtained in the engine room caverns while members of the United States neutrality squad and policemen patrolled the piers of Hoboken and Manhattan as unaware of what was going on as if they had been in Alaska.

The German powers that be glanced far ahead to the hour when a state of war might be declared to exist between the Central powers and the United States, when it might be possible their fleet would be used to carry supplies to England and they promptly did their best to make the big ships no better than hulks. The word of destruction was signalled and executed secretly, smoothly and effectively.

WERE WARNED IN ADVANCE.

Long before the telegraph flashed from Washington on January 31, the news that thrilled the nation, German shipping interests here were aware of the purport of what von Bernstorff was to hand to the Secretary of State and were under no illusions as to probable consequences. In apprehension of just such a situation—of a time when the engines had to be put out of commission if opportunity was not to be surrendered permanently—a code had been arranged. It was impossible to use the telephone. The persons with the authority to give orders were aware that the telephones to the steamships are under espionage. Wireless plants of course had been sealed or dismantled long before. It was necessary to convey the order directly and by voice.

MESSENGERS OF DESTRUCTION.

Last Wednesday, therefore, a German in street clothes stepped quietly aboard every Hamburg-American and North German-Lloyd liner in the port, chatted with officers a few minutes quite openly on deck, went below for a half litre of beer, drank to the health of the Kaiser, and as quietly re-appeared on deck and went ashore.

These quietly moving visitors that boarded the ships at Hoboken, the five ships tied up off 125th St. in the North River, the ships at South Brooklyn, were the messengers of destruction, each bearing a code word that meant scrapping $30,000,000 worth of splendid engines.

They had scarcely left the ships when the smashing commenced. The Sun has information from men of unquestionable veracity and honour as to the extent of the dismantling and as to the general methods employed.

HAVE BEEN DISABLED.

HONOLULU, February 7.—Engines and boilers of all nine German merchant vessels tied up in the Hawaiian Islands have been disabled by their crews. The crews of the North German Lloyd steamers Pommerian and Prince Atwaldamar have suddenly been taken into custody, and crews of the other seven vessels have been detained at the immigration depots. Other vessels' crews have been asking to be taken to the naval base at Pearl Island. The request has been referred to Washington.

BRUGES HARBOUR RAIDED, TORPEDO BOATS DAMAGED

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—A British naval aeroplane raid on Bruges was reported by the Admiralty yesterday.

"Naval aeroplanes attacked Bruges harbour on Friday," the statement said. "Bombs were dropped on torpedo craft in the harbour, on buildings, and on docks which were set afire.

"On the following night another successful raid was carried out."

HER SOCIAL EAR WAS CLOSED.

The Christian Herald: The minister knocked at the door. There were sounds of swift footsteps and splashing water, as though wash tubs were being cleared away. Thinking that he had not been heard, he knocked louder. Faster went the footsteps, and there was noise as of moving tables and chairs. Waiting a reasonable length of time he again knocked vigorously. In a few minutes a smiling woman came to the door and exclaimed: "Oh, I am so glad to see you, but you must excuse me. I did not hear you the first two times you knocked!"

CATTLE MARKETS.

Union Stock Yards: Receipts yesterday 36 cars, with 714 cattle, 34 calves, 241 hogs, and 67 sheep and lambs.

Whether the railroads are to blame, or not, which many think they are, the fact is that receipts of stock this week are almost alarmingly light, and buyers are beginning to regard the shortage as rather serious. While the market was good and strong yesterday prices were not advanced very materially over Monday's figures, for the reason that buyers held off a little, preferring to wait and see what the later week and receipt would bring. There was keen competition fo rthe few hogs in, however, and prices were up 25 cents and perhaps more, for dealers were reluctant to give out the prices they were paying.

TEN MILLIONS FOR THE NAVY

SIR SAM HUGHES CHARGES THAT GERMAN INTERESTS CONTROLLED LEE-ENFIELD RIFLE FACTORIES

Former Minister Loses His Temper and Talks of "Conspiracy"—Says Gen. Alderson Knew Nothing About Rifles and Attacks the British Military Control Over Canadians —The Hon. Frank Oliver Points to Awful Responsibility of the Government Regarding the Ross Rifle.

PROMPT ACTION IS NECESSARY

OTTAWA, February 6.—The issue was put squarely up to the Government last night in an animated debate in the Commons as to why, in the first place, prompt action had not been taken to substitute the manufacture of the Lee-Enfield for the manufacture of the Ross rifle as condemned by the British authorities in the summer of 1915, and as to why, in the second place, there was still hesitation and dallying in even now going ahead with the manufacture of the improved Lee-Enfield as recommended by the British authorities over eight months ago.

The debate was precipitated by a motion by Mr. W. F. Maclean, of South York, to strike out from the estimates for the war vote the item of $2,660,000 for 80,000 additional Ross rifles still to be completed with previous orders. Mr. Maclean was backed up by the Liberals in respect to his protest against the continued policy of the Government in delaying, when the facts are known, to remedy conditions by proceeding promptly to manufacture a new approved arm.

PROMPT ACTION IS NECESSARY.

From the Opposition side there came also the declaration that unless prompt action were taken, Canada would be practically out of the business of furnishing rifles at all, although there was available at Quebec a perfectly-equipped organization and plant. Nationalization of the factory at the earliest moment practical was suggested.

It was declared that there was no difficulty standing in the way of either because of contract obligations or because of Canadian inability to change within a very few months the plant so as to make the Lee-Enfield. The War Office had offered the necessary equipment and materials months ago. The need of rifles was urgent. The delay of the Government was inexcusable and criminal.

The Hon. Arthur Meighen sought to put all the blame for the troubles with the Ross rifle on the original contract made by the Laurier Government with Sir Charles Ross in 1902. He made the point, for instance, that the mark III Ross rifle had been authorized by order-in-Council on October 2, 1911, or just before the Borden administration came in. It was, of course, promptly pointed out that the actual order for the rifle had been given a month later by the Borden administration.

Mr. Meighen further elaborated the point that the Government was "bound by the contract, in regard to the necessity of giving a year's notice of any change in the rifle."

"Because we can break the contract," he said, "is no reason why we are not still bound by it." He declared that there were not sufficient facts for the Government to justify in 1915 lightly throwing away the only arm which, Canada could make, and he preferred to take the estimate of some British authorities to the effect that it would take over a year to make the change to the LeeEnfield, to the assurance given by Sir Charles Ross that the change could be made within almost seven months.

CHARACTERISTIC HUGHES OUTBURST.

Sir Sam Hughes interjected himself in the debate to make some decidedly sensational charges of conspiracy against the Ross Rifle, of inadequacy of the Lee-Enfield and of general British cussedness in over-riding Canadian equipment in favour of British manufactured goods. Sir Sam charged that German interests before the war had controlled the Lee-Enfield factories and had consequently conspired to keep the inferior arm in use and keep out the superior Ross rifle. He also intimated that the appointment of Sir George Perley had been made on the order of Sir Thomas White to the Premier, and had resulted in an extra cost of about six million dollars to the country, with decreased efficiency, and that everything which had gone wrong since he left the department, especially with regard to the breaking up of the overseas battalions, had been due to failure to follow his plans. Incidentally he made same caustic references regarding the Alderson letter and the "conspiracy" in his own department. General Alderson, he said, did not know the butt from the muzzle of a rifle, and General Gwatkins should have been "fired" long ago.

HAVE TERRIBLE RESPONSIBILITY.

The Hon. Frank Oliver said that the House had listened to the best Premier Borden and his Solicitor-General could say in defence of the proposal to spend a further three million dollars on rifles, not one of which would ever go to the front. This was all the more remarkable in view of the fact that already six million dollars had been spent on the arm which had no place in the firing line.

The Government endeavoured to blame it on a contract made fourteen years ago. It was trying to hold responsible men who for the past five years had not had anything to do with the direction of the affairs of the country. It demonstrated the last ditch to which the Government had been forced in its efforts to escape a terrible responsibility.

The Government was saved from a vote on the amendment by Mr. J. A. Rainville, Deputy Speaker, who declared the amendment to be out of order, although the Hon. George G. Graham pointed out that it had earlier in the evening been put to the House.

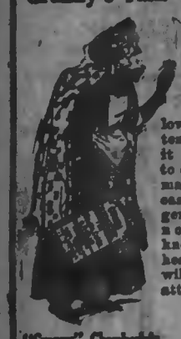
Granny's Talk to Young Mothers



"Few young mothers realize the extent to which a cold lowers the system and makes it susceptible to disease. The majority of diseases arise from germs, but it is not widely known that a healthy system will repel their attacks.

Mothers should never allow a cold to run for 24 hours without attention. If this is made a rule there will be less sickness for young mothers to worry over. A good reliable medicine for coughs, colds, croup and bronchitis should always be kept in the home. You may say that you have no confidence in cough medicines, but that is because you have never tried

THE STORY OF SNIPER BROWN

A True Tale of the Trenches, Written by a British Officer.

Charlie Brown was the despair of his drill sergeants.

One day after inadvertently bayoneting a comrade, and nearly blowing off the head of an officer, his rifle was taken away from him and he was relegated to janitor duty about the company billets.

Charlie was untidy and dirty, and his record of petty misdemeanours became long. Finally the colonel decided to have him discharged, but Charlie pleaded for another chance. His appeal was granted and he was sent to France. His reputation, however, had preceded him and he was heartily jeered by his new comrades. But Charlie did not mind.

The trenches interested him, and in a vague sort of way he understood that the business of a soldier in France is to shoot up the enemy, so he boldly poked his rifle over the parapet and shot at every target that offered. Yet, by a cunning more animal than human, he managed to elude the notice of watchful Germans. In fact Charlie was a born sniper. Exploits which the average soldier would have regarded as heroic were set down in Charlie's case as inherent idiocy. He was nicknamed "Sniper Brown."

One very dark night when the Germans were straffing the trenches with rifles and machine guns in fear of an attack, an officer of the sniper's brigade found Charlie perched high on a traverse busily engaged in building a sandbag barricade. A peremptory order brought Charlie sliding shamefacedly back into the trench.

"I thought I could pot the Germans better up there, sir," said Charlie, shrinking from an expected rebuke. But no rebuke came and the next day Charlie, much to the disgust of his comrades, was ordered to report to the sniping section.

On the first day Brown was able to snipe two Germans. His observer reported to his officer Charlie's almost daily success and thenceforth a constant stream of Germans were marked down to the credit of Sniper Brown. If a German cap appeared anywhere over the parapet Charlie sent it spinning.

The snipers—that highly exclusive unit of the British army—took Charlie to their hearts and he became an honoured member of the battalion. He lost his furtive, imbecile look and half defiant twist of his mouth soon changed into lines of character and resolution. The good feeding of the snipers' mess improved his physique and his frame became erect and his step sure. He talked about the girls he had "walked out" with and plans for improving his father's business after the war.

Only once did Charlie show signs of relapsing. At dawn of a misty day, Charlie and his officer were watching the German line. Through his telescopic periscope the officer saw an aged German, evidently a Landstormer, appear round the edge of a broken down farm house behind the German trenches. The officer hesitated to indicate the miserable old man to the sniper but Charlie had seen; his rifle cracked, and the German fell.

"I've shot an auld man, sir," he said. "He was awful like me feyther." There were tears in Charlie's eyes and his mouth quivered irresolutely. "He would not have looked like your 'feyther' if he had seen you first," the officer sharply responded. But Charlie refused to be comforted. The old imbecile look came into his eyes. All day he mooned about the trenches, leaving his observer to work alone.

The relapse was of short duration. That night, Charlie took another sniper and the officer stood looking toward the German trenches. Over there somewhere a rifle cracked, and the sniper slid down into the bottom of the trench by Charlie's side, with a hole in his head. "I'm glad I shot that auld blighter this morning," said Charlie.

Thenceforth many incidents showed Charlie's skill and daring and his general character steadily improved. At length one day German high explosive shrapnel began to burst right into the British front line trench. All the men sought shelter—all save one. When the shelling ceased they found him. He lay by his loophole, the back of his head crushed in. Sniper Brown had kept his last watch.

The snipers refused to let him be buried near the trenches. They carried him two miles behind the firing line and in a little churchyard they laid him to rest. A large white Maltese cross marks the grave. Below on the wooden base, a comrade has carved what is both a memorial and a recognition, the words, "Sniper Brown."

Steward Committed To Spring Assizes

WINDSOR, Feb. 3.—When arraigned in the Police Court here yesterday on a charge of murder, James S. Steward, slayer of Marshall Jackson, of Winnipeg, a deportation officer, on a C.P.R. train last Thursday, stood mute when asked to plead, and was committed for trial at the next court of competent jurisdiction, which will be the Spring Assizes held in Sandwich next month.

When the case was called the court room was packed with spectators anxious to get a glimpse of the prisoner, but Steward appeared utterly indifferent to the interest his appearance excited, and gazed calmly around the room while preliminaries were being gone through.

He admitted that his correct name is John Hogue, and that he is a native of Pennsylvania, but asked that his alias of Steward be permitted to stand in the court records.

After sufficient testimony has been adduced to warrant his commitment Magistrate Leggatt ordered that Steward be returned to the County jail at Sandwich until he is called for trial.

Swear a Submarine Shelled Lifeboats

CAPTAIN, CHIEF SURGEON, AND MEN OF CREW KILLED BY GUNSHOTS, SURVIVORS ASSERT.

In affidavits of the chief officer and second officer of the British merchant steamer Westminster, which was torpedoed by a German submarine off Malta on Dec. 14, 1916, those officers swear that the ship was torpedoed without warning, and that the lifeboats, containing officers and crews, subsequently were shelled by the submarine. The depositions were received in New York from official British sources yesterday.

The British Admiralty on Dec. 28 issued a statement announcing the destruction of the Westminster, and charging that she was sent down unwarned and that her crew was shelled as the men sought to save their lives. On Jan. 17 the German Admiralty, answering the charge, stated that the submarine fired only one torpedo, and that the report that the lifeboats were shelled was "an invention." The submarine, the German report added, "during the whole affair did not fire a single cannon shot."

The affidavits received in New York tell the story of the sinking of the Westminster in detail, and charge that not only were the lifeboats shelled, but the Captain, chief engineer, and several men of the crew were killed by gunfire.

The first affidavit, made by Chief Officer W. E. Willcocks, reads:

"At about 1:20 P.M. on Dec. 14 I was lying on my settee in my cabin when I heard a heavy explosion, followed immediately by another. I went on deck at once, going aft to see what had happened. I saw that the ship was sinking fast, and, meeting third officer, told him to clear away lifeboat. I heard the engine room telegraph ring twice for every one to come up from below. I met members of the crew running along and ordered them to the boats.

GUNNER MORTALLY WOUNDED

"I met W. Markham, gunner, bringing J. Tester, gunner along. Tester was evidently injured, for his head was all blood and one arm hung limp. I stopped and told them both to get along to the boats. Tester exclaimed, 'I'm done for.' I went along toward the starboard alleyway, meeting Fourth Officer and told him to hurry up. I found nobody in the starboard alleyway, so I made for the bridge.

"The Captain was then coming down and waved to me to get my boat away. I then went on the boat deck and found the third officer and fourth engineer lowering boat away. When she was afloat told them to jump and slide down into her. I ran across to starboard side and four second officers and third engineer had lowered away and the boat was afloat.

"I went back and slid down the after fall and was pulled in by the fourth engineer. A heavy sea coming along half filled the boat, and I called to the third officer to see that the plug was in. Myself, fourth engineer, and W. Markham, gunner, shoved off. I heard what I thought was a shell overhead and also another, and said that she was shelling us.

"The boat was drawn in toward the ship and managed to get clear as the ship sank. I then saw the second officer's boat floating bottom up, with a big hole in her, close aft. We went to her at once and managed to pick up seven Lascars and the second officer, I could see two or three others, but they disappeared before we got near them. We remained among the wreckage searching until 3:15 p.m. We rode to a sea anchor for a while to rig the sails and then made sail to eastward. Weather was squally and sea increasing. During the night we had three hours' heavy rain, thunder, and lightning.

"Just after leaving the vicinity of the wreckage we sighted a four-masted steamer to the south-southwest of us. We burned a red light, but made no more signals for fear of attracting attention to her. At about 4 p.m. next afternoon we sighted a transport and escort. We wore round and stood across his bows and burned two red lights and were picked up by H.M.S. Minstrel at 4:45 p.m., 18th December, and brought to Malta.

"W. E. WILLCOCKS."

TORPEDO KILLED FOUR.

The second affidavit, made by Second Officer John A. Ridley, reads:

"The steamship Westminster sailed from Terre Annunziate on Dec. 12 at about 10 a.m. for Port Said. On Dec. 14 it was blowing a stiff south-east breeze, force of wind being about six knots, with a heavy confused sea running. At about 12:30 p.m. I relieved Mr. Neel, third officer. At about 1 p.m. Captain Taylor came on the upper bridge, giving me instructions regarding the various courses to steer throughout the watch.

"At 1:20 p.m. Dec. 14, we were torpedoed without warning, the force of the explosion blowing up No. 3 hatches, the debris flying about forty feet into the air. Almost directly after the first explosion a second torpedo struck the vessel in wake of No. 4 hold, killing three Chinese seamen and John Tester, gunner. The lifeboats were immediately lowered away and manned, the steam whistle having previously been blown and engine room telegraph rang off.

"Previous to lowering away the lifeboats the ship was sinking fast by the stern. On the lifeboats getting clear of the ship the ours immediately commenced shelling boats, killing Captain Taylor and Chief Engineer John Cassap instantaneously and smashing starboard lifeboat. Myself and rest of crew were sucked under by the sinking ship.

"It seemed in eternity before I came to the surface more dead than alive, the remains of the lifeboat floating, a few yards from me, with which I managed to keep myself afloat until I was taken from the water half an hour afterward. For nearly two hours the chief officer cruised among the floating wreckage rescuing seven Lascars. On darkness setting in we hoisted sail and steered for Cape Matapan. After being twenty-six hours in the lifeboat we were rescued by H.M.S. Minstrel, in which we received every courtesy from both officers and crew. We arrived at Malto on Dec. 17.

"I wish to particularly mention the late third engineer. This man through his heroic conduct was the means of saving seven Lascars. It is with sincere regret I mention this, for undoubtedly his heroic conduct cost Robert Wright his life."

"JOHN A. RIDLEY."

Both affidavits were sworn to and signed in the presence of "the Crown Advocates and General Magistrate" at Malta.

Live Nerve Sown Into Man's Arm

LONDON, Feb. 6.—Sufficient time has now elapsed to assure complete success of one of the most striking surgical experiments resulting from the war, says the Mail.

The patient, a young officer at the Queen Alexandra Hospital for Officers at Highgate, had been severely wounded in the forearm, four inches of the ulnar nerve, one of the important nerves supplying the hand, being totally destroyed, thus rendering the hand practically useless.

"About one case in ten of ordinary nerve grafting with laboratory treated nerves succeeds," the surgeon who performed the operation told me, "so I decided to replace the destroyed nerve with another similar nerve as nearly alive as possible."

Search was therefore made at a number of London hospitals until the surgeon found what he wanted—a case of limb amputation, from which was obtained the required length of a practically living, healthy nerve of the same quality and size as the destroyed ulnar. This was sent to the officers' hospital by taxicab. On its arrival the officer was at once anaesthetised, the wound in his forearm was opened, and the section of nerve was sewn to the two ends of the injured ulnar, thus bridging the gap. The wound was then closed.

After some weeks faint sensation, and, later, power to move the muscles of the hand governed by the ulnar nerve, gradually returned, until a few weeks ago the officer was able to leave the hospital and take up light duties at a home station.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Colour and Lustre to Hair

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for 50 cents a large bottle, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous. This ready-to-use preparation is a delightful toilet requisite for those who desire dark hair and a youthful appearance. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

The presence of air or oxygen is fatal to the proper preservation of the silage, because the air permits the development of moulds, which are themselves sometimes poisonous, and which quickly destroy the acids, and thus allow the silage to spoil. The importance of air tight walls and the proper packing down of the silage to keep out the air is, therefore, at once apparent.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

How They Saved the Gunner

By F. A. MITCHEL

The ships had met in deadly contest. For hours they had pounded each other, rammed each other, torpedoed each other. Some had gone down with crews ranging from 500 to 1,000 men. Some had limped away from the shot and shell, but the bulk were afloat and still firing. At last one side gave in under the longer range of the other and steamed away.

When the fight was over the captain of the Terror was going about among the wounded, speaking a word of praise to one, encouragement to another and sympathy to the dying. While speaking hopefully to a tar who had lost an arm he heard a voice behind him:

"Cheer up, Tom; we're going to sail for home. Think how proud father will be of you when I tell him how you served that gun, how when every other man of the gun squad had been disabled you hung on and fired the final shot that sank that submarine and saved the ship from being blown sky high. I think I see mother and the girls and little Jim coming down the walk to meet us, mother putting her arm about you, weeping for joy at getting you home and a pride at your bravery.

"Steady, old man! You're going to pull through. The blood has stopped flowing. All you want is something of the grit you showed in sticking to your gun and saving us all by the cool pointing you did at that submarine. Brace up, my boy, and all will be well.

"Keep your mind fixed on Sallie. Think how she is waiting and watching for you to come back to her. You bet we'll have a rattlin' wedding. I think I see myself as best man propping you up, and I see Sallie tryin' to keep back some o' the smiles that crowd on to those pretty red lips of hers, her eyes dancin' with happiness and pride in the gunner that sank an enemy ship and saved his own from a sub."

The captain while listening to these words turned and saw two men, the one lying on the deck, pale and languid, the other kneeling beside him holding his hand. He had known that one of his guns had finished an enemy ship and that a gun had saved the Terror from an enemy submarine. Who fired the shot he had not known. Now he knew that one man had fired both shots and that he had stood by his gun when every other man at the piece had been stretched on the deck or blown to pieces.

"Tom," he said.

The hero's eyes were closed, and he did not open them. The man kneeling beside him was about to rise, salute and stand at attention when the officer placed his hand on his shoulder and prevented him.

"Brothers?" asked the captain.

"Yes, sir."

"Is there anything that you think will help to brace him?"

"He might be tided over, sir, if he heard a gun or a volley or if the marines would rattle a drum. He kept up till the fight ended, but when the firing ceased he fell away."

At this point an order was signaled from the admiral to give chase to one of the enemy's ships that was lagging behind the rest of the retreating fleet. The captain of the Terror transmitted the order to the proper officer and to man the forward guns. As soon as the Terror came within range of the vessel she pursued there was a loud boom.

Tom opened his eyes.

"We're at it again, Tom," said his brother. "Wouldn't you like to be at that gun? You can't do that, my boy—not just now, though you will in time. No doubt you'll fire many a shot after you've got your strength back."

There came from the forecastle the roll of a drum. The captain had ordered it. He had ordered the firing, too, not that he expected to damage the retreating vessel, but that he hoped the brave man who had saved his ship might be tided over the shoals of death and saved for his reward.

Another gun.

Tom made an effort to sit up. His brother gently held him down.

"Not yet, old man, not yet. You'll be in it again soon enough."

"What's goin' on?" asked Tom in a feeble voice. "I thought we'd whipped 'em."

"So we did. We knocked the smithereens out of 'em. One of 'em is trying to get away, and our men are trying to sink her."

"Are they doing it?"

"You bet! A few more shots will do the business. You're lookin' better old fellow. There's the light of life in your eye. You're going to get well and"—

"You're going to be an admiral some day," supplied the captain, who had returned from directing the operations against the enemy's ship to direct the saving of the hero of the fight. "You're to be mentioned in orders and promoted and sent home on leave, and at the next fight you'll probably command a fleet."

With this the captain went off to attend to other matters.

"Billy," said Tom, "get me some grog. I reckon I'm going to pull through."

Tom did pull through, and everything his brother had pictured came to pass. Some of the things the captain had promised were fulfilled too. Tom has not yet become an admiral, but he is an officer and in line of promotion.

Prison Records Improve.

The British prison commissioners' report, published lately for the year ending March last shows that the number of prisoners received under sentence was only 64,160, compared with 114,282 in 1914, a decrease of 50,122. Since the year 1904, which saw the largest number of sentenced criminals—197,941—the total per 100,000 of the population of England and Wales has fallen from 586 to 159. Three main causes seem, the report says, to have contributed to the great decrease in the prison population: (1) The enlistment of many habitual petty offenders, (2) the restrictive orders issued by the liquor control board and those made by the justices and military authorities, and (3) the great demand for labor, rendering employment easy and well paid and resulting in ability to pay fines. The number of prisoners received of military age fell from 61,729 in 1914 to 19,168 during the year under review.

The effect of the liquor control board's orders in the metropolis and English and Welsh boroughs is shown in the following convictions for drunkenness: Weekly average of convictions in 1914, 2,034; for four weeks following orders in 1915, 1071; for four weeks ended March 25, 1916, 940. In ascertaining the effect of the war upon women convicted for drunkenness, the lady inspector of prisons inquired respecting women sent to Holloway for drunkenness, and average convictions per individual rose from 2.6 for 1913 to slightly over 5 in 1915. On the other hand, the commissioners comment on the decline in the number of habitual drunkards committed to inebriate reformatories — 95 in 1913 and only nine in 1915. Though the figures are inconclusive as furnishing proof of any increase or otherwise in drinking amongst women at the present time, they show, if the same proportion holds as at Holloway, not only a considerable decrease in the total receptions into prison, but a decrease of over 60 per cent. in the individuals responsible for the convictions.

German Police Methods.

A light is thrown on German police methods by a story in the Vossische Zeitung, transmitted by Reuter from Amsterdam. A Berlin policeman was attempting to arrange into a queue a crowd of potato applicants, when he was attacked by an elderly woman. "The policeman drew his sword and wounded the woman, who with her husband was then arrested." Perhaps the husband ventured on a meek protest. Run her through first and run her in afterwards seems to be the German motto.

THE COMPOSER OF "GOOD-BYE."

Interesting Facts About Sir Francesco Paolo Tosti.

Sir Francesco Paolo Tosti, the Italian composer, better known the world over simply as Tosti, died in Rome on Sunday, Dec. 8. A picturesque figure in the musical world, this friend and instructor of royalty, and composer of "Good-bye," the song that achieved world-wide popularity, returned to his native land to die, although he had made his residence in London since 1880.

From the little town of Ortona in the Abruzzi, where Tosti was born on April 9, 1846, he was sent by his parents at the age of eleven to Naples to study the violin under Pinto, at the Royal College of St. Pietro a Majella. The lad also studied composition with Conti and Mercadate, who made him a pupil-teacher at a salary of sixty francs a month.

Life at the Royal College went hard with the young musician, for he was thrown upon his own resources and found his sixty francs scarcely sufficient for his needs. He went to Ancona to give music lessons, but this change proved little better, for he could get only the barest necessities of an existence. He became ill and returned to his native city, Ortona, where he composed two songs, "Non M'ama piu," and "L'amanto d'Amore," which he had published at his own expense in Rome. They sold rapidly and Tosti disposed of the copyrights for $160 each.

Here came a turn in Tosti's fortunes. He met Sgambati, guiding spirit of the new musical school in Rome, who arranged a special concert for Tosti at the Sala Dante. Tosti sang several of his own compositions and also Sgambati's "Stretti un Vecchio Seno," especially written for him. The Princess Margherita of Savoy, later Queen of Italy, appointed Tosti as her singing teacher after hearing him at this concert.

Later Tosti was made Keeper of the Musical Archives of the Italian Court. In 1875 he yielded to his desire to visit England and took with him several songs, among them "For Ever and Ever." He could not find a publisher for it, but managed to have it sung by Violet Cameron in an operetta at the Globe Theatre. The song at once became the rage and others, "That Day," "Good-bye," "Verrei Morire," "Aprile," and "Beauty's Eyes," immediately won the popular fancy. Several of these songs have run through a dozen editions and have been translated into eleven or more languages.

In 1880 Tosti was appointed music instructor to the English royal family, some of his pupils being Prince Leopold, Princess Mary of Battenberg, Princess Louise, the Duchess of Argyle, and the Princess of Wales, afterwards Queen Alexandra. The late Duchess of Cambridge, who was for many years an invalid, declared that Tosti's music and his sweet singing were more effective cures for her than all the medicines in the world. Queen Victoria was extremely fond of his music. In 1906 Tosti was made a Commander of the Victorian Order and in 1908 he was made a Knight Commander by the late King Edward.

Tosti had a vast number of friends in the art and social worlds. He was extremely modest and of a very kindly disposition. Many interesting anecdotes are related about him, among them, the following one, which throws a sidelight upon his character.

A fashionable lady called on Tosti and informed him that she was to sing two of his songs at a socially important concert. She wanted to try them over with the composer, she said. Tosti replied that he would gladly accept her as a pupil. The lady became indignant and declared that she would not sing the songs. Tosti thereupon said to her with a smile, "Madam, I thank you sincerely for that favor."

B. B. B. DROVE THEM AWAY

When the blood becomes impure the very first symptoms which manifest themselves are a breaking out of various forms of skin trouble such as boils, pimples, sores, etc., and to get rid of these troubles you must cleanse the blood thoroughly with a good blood remedy.

The best blood cleansing remedy on the market to-day is Burdock Blood Bitters.

Thousands of people from one end of Canada to the other have used it during the past forty years, and have nothing but words of praise for its cleansing properties.

Mr. Rufus Beers, Upper Main River, N.B., writes: "I want to say a few words about your medicine, Burdock Blood Bitters. I had boils for over six months and sometimes was so bad I could not work. I tried lots of cures but nothing would drive them away for good until I took B.B.B. In a short time I was all better. It is a dandy medicine. I keep it in the house all the time."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont., but so well and favourably is it known that there are many imitations on the market. See that our name appears on the wrapper.

ICE BREAKER WRECKED BY HEAVY EXPLOSION

Petrograd, Feb. 6.—An explosion occurred on board the ice breaker Tcheliouskine while the vessel was unloading at Archangel, according to an official announcement issued here. It is feared that about 30 persons lost their lives. Three hundred and forty-four persons were injured, 59 of them seriously. Fire spread to various parts of the wharf and damaged a number of the buildings.

IF FOOD DISAGREES
DRINK HOT WATER

When food lies like lead in the stomach and you have that uncomfortable, distressed feeling, it is because of insufficient blood supply to the stomach combined with acid and food fermentation. An easy way to try this plan now followed in many hospitals and advised by many eminent physicians of taking a teaspoonful of pure Bisurated Magnesia in half a glass of water, as hot as you can comfortably drink it. The hot water draws the blood to the stomach and the Bisurated Magnesia, as any physician can tell you, instantly neutralizes the acid and stops the food fermentation. Try this simple plan and you will be astonished at the immediate feeling of relief and comfort that always follows the restoration of the normal process of digestion. People who find it inconvenient at times to secure hot water and travelers who are frequently obliged to take their meals poorly prepared, should always take two or three five-grain tablets of Bisurated Magnesia after meals to prevent fermentation and neutralize the acid in their stomach.

The South Sea Islands.

Dr. Inazo Nitobe, the celebrated Japanese scholar, lecturer, and food expert, has recently returned from a trip among the islands of the South Seas, and lectured last month in Tokio before the Asiatic Society of Japan. He paid a high tribute to America's work in the Philippines which he had visited sixteen years ago—four years ago, and last spring. Marvellous changes have been made, he said. He praised America for theorizing the idea of independence among the nations, and prophesied that in time there would be either one very large South Sea Island power or a number of small island powers arise as the communities found themselves. He limits the group to the Philippines, Java, Borneo, Sumatra Celebes, New Guinea, the Malay Peninsula, and thousands of smaller islands.

Speaking of the agricultural possibilities of the islands, Dr. Nitobe said that the soil was quite fertile and that although the tropical heat encouraged the decay of organic matter, with plenty of rain and irrigation three rice crops could be raised in one year. He told of one place where he saw rice that was sprouting, some that had just been planted, and another crop that had been reaped. The crop may be started at any time of the year.

"The great opportunity for development which these islands afford may be seen from the statement that their total land area is 1,350,000 square miles," said Dr. Nitobe. "There are 62,000,000 souls who inhabit these islands. Of these, nearly one-half reside in Java alone, a small fraction of the entire area. The rest of the people, about 35,000,000—are scattered over a million square miles."

40,000,000 BIBLES.

Circulation in English Language Has Doubled Since War.

In connection with Bible Sunday, or annual Bible review day, Dec. 10, statistics compiled show that there has been a large increase in the circulation and study of the Bible since the war began. The issues of Bibles, in whole or in part, by the British and Foreign Bible Society last year were 11,059,000 copies, those of the American Bible Society over 7,000,000; those of the National Bible Society of Scotland and of the Continental Bible societies over 4,000,000. If to these are added the issues of the private Bible publishing houses there will be a total of more than 35,500,000 copies of the Scriptures, in whole or in part, published in the past year. This is seven million more than the total estimated issues in 1913. A remarkable feature is that the circulation in the English language has doubled since the outbreak of the war. The Bible, or portions of it, is now translated in 500 languages. 18 new languages having been added since the war by the British society. If the estimated number of Bibles issued by the Roman Catholic and Greek churches, and the Hebrew Scriptures among the Jews, be added to the foregoing totals, the aggregate of last year will be 40,000,000 copies, against 25,000,000 or 30,000,000 in 1913.

Wild Animals Were Friendly.

Close to the bodies of eight prospectors found near Matheson after the big fire was the body of a large bear with its paw up as if it had been clawing the air. Nearby a moose was found dead. A prospector who was able to escape from another part tells of a wildcat which came and rubbed up against his legs in friendly fashion and lay down beside him while it rested and took breath.

Gifted Poet Dead.

The son of Count Plunkett, Joseph Mary Plunkett, by whose death as a rebel Ireland has lost one of her first poets, was born in Dublin in 1887. He followed the two years' philosophy course at Stonyhurst, Catholic when he was eighteen, and this made a strong impression on him. He kept up the study of scholastic philosophy and was much influenced by mysticism. The writers who were his most constant companions were the great mystics, St. John of the Cross, St. Teresa, St. Francis, and John Tauler. Their mark on his poetry is very plain, and he constantly employed mystical symbolism, though he would have applied the term "mystic" to but a very small part of his own verse.

Best Nerve Specialist In England Was Consulted

But Nervous System Failed to Respond to Treatment Prescribed

Nervous disorders frequently result from injury to the nerves in accidents or because of the shock to the system.

The writer of this letter was injured in a mix-up with some colts, remained unconscious for three weeks, and in spite of continued treatment in hospital could not obtain restoration of the internal nerves which control the action of the digestive and other vital organs. He travelled to Europe and consulted England's greatest nerve specialist. Relief was only temporary, in spite of many treatments used.

His letter gives the facts briefly and tells how he was finally cured by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. Can you imagine any more severe test of this great nerve restorative?

Mr. Henry F. Venn, Cefu Ranch Malakwa, B. C., writes: "Dr. Chase's Nerve Food had restored my nervous system and given me new health. Having met with a severe accident seven years ago, from which I was unconscious and which left my nerves in a very sore plight. I was treated by doctors galore and consulted one of the greatest nerve specialists in England, but nothing seemed to do me much good. Hypophosphites and, in fact, all and every kind of nerve mixture in almost every form was used, but never with more than temporary benefit.

"But Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has acted very differently, for it has built up my nervous system until I feel like my old self again. If this medicine will do for others what it has done for me, I shall not regret having written this letter. I have recommended the Nerve Food personally to many, and shall always esteem its great restorative value."

SURPRISE FOR HUN. SUBS

British Have New Devices to Offset Hun Undersea Activity.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The London correspondent of the New York World cables that Great Britain is bringing into play newly invented devices, not only for the destruction of German submarines, but for the protection of sea-going vessels, which will foil the German plans of ruthlessness. In addition to these new methods, Great Britain's effective fleet has reached such a size and character that a system of convoying merchant ships can be adopted, if necessary, without disturbing or altering a single unit of that force.

It is regarded as certain that Germany will accompany her submarine ruthlessness by a violent, sustained offensive on the west, and talk of another terrific bid for Calais comes from Berlin through reliable sources in Holland.

The belief among naval experts here is that Germany has been doing her worst with her submarines already and that she can now only add the deliberate murder of non-combatants to the efforts she already has put forth; that if Germany could establish the blockade she now proclaims she would already have done so, but, it is contended, her failure to do that has driven her to add murder to her programme as the only expedient left.

HAD AWFUL ATTACKS OF HEART TROUBLE

For 5 or 6 Years

Diseases and disorders of the heart and nervous system have become frightfully prevalent of late years.

One can scarcely pick up a paper but he will find recorded instances of sudden deaths through heart failure, or of prominent men and women unable to prosecute their ordinary business or profession on account of a breaking down of the nervous system.

We do not desire to unnecessarily alarm anyone, but to sound a word of warning.

When the heart begins to beat irregularly, palpitates and throbs, has shooting pains through it, it is time to stop and think.

To all sufferers from heart and nerve troubles Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills can give prompt and permanent relief.

Mrs. Frank Arseneau, Newcastle, N. B., writes: "I had awful attacks of heart trouble for the past five or six years, and as I had tried many kinds of medicine without getting any better I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial, and to my surprise I found ease from the second dose. I continued taking them until I had used six boxes, and now I feel as well as can be.

"At the present time my sister is using them for nervousness and finds great comfort by their use."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c or three boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

C.P.R. Solicitor Killed in Action

LIEUT. JAS. MCNAUGHT.

THE Canadian Pacific Railway has lost another of its valued servants at the front. Lieut. Jas. McNaught, a Scotchman by birth, was one of the company's solicitors, with office in Montreal, and his death was recently reported in the casualty list. Lieut. McNaught was one of the most popular officials of the C. P. R. He was born at Walkerburn, Scotland, thirty-three years ago, and came to Canada in 1906, after qualifying as a solicitor in Edinburgh. Shortly after his arrival he joined the law department of the railway company. His abilities were quickly appreciated by those in higher authority, and his efforts were rewarded by a promotion as Assistant Solicitor on Jan. 1st, 1912. It was nearly three years afterwards that Lieut. McNaught was made one of the solicitors of the C. P. R., but when the war broke out, like many other Scotchmen, he had the fighting fever. He commenced his training with the McGill Battalion in the summer of 1915. On Nov 17th, the same year, he went back to Scotland and enlisted for active service in the Royal Scots as a private. He trained all through the winter until June, 1916, when he was selected to take an officer's training course. Lieut. McNaught had no difficulty in qualifying, and in October last he was appointed to the 2nd Batt. Royal Scots, and went to the front about the beginning of December. He was on the Somme front and was killed on January 7th.

POTATOES ROTTED WHILE PRICE WENT AEROPLANING

OTTAWA, Feb. 6—A case of a dealer buying potatoes in excess of his requirements and thereby allowing a large quantity of them to rot on his hands while the demand for the tubers was keen, was before Commissioner O'Connor at the City Hall and was severely censured.

Max Lithwick, Musgrove street, admitted, in his evidence, that he bought 1,700 bags of potatoes in December at $1.50 and under a bag and that since then he has sold only 700 bags. The price of the potatoes is now $2.50 a bag. In the meantime, he admitted, 25 per cent of the 1,000 bags which he has on hand have rotted.

This practice of unduly stocking such commodities to the extent that they are destroyed in storage the commissioner said was not right.

MUST HAVE LEGISLATION

"It is a rotten thing in itself that potatoes should be allowed to rot when people are wanting them," said the commissioner. "Something has got to be done to prevent it. I am going to endeavor to have legislation passed that will obviate the holding of potatoes till they rot." Nothing could be done in such cases now, he said.

SIT AGAIN TUESDAY.

Mr. O'Connor explained to Mr. Lithwick that his criticism was not directed at the witness personally, but at the practice. He knew of other dealers who did the same thing.

The next sitting of the inquiry will be to-night, when Mr. O'Connor expects to take evidence from Mr. Forbes, local agent of the New Brunswick Potato Exchange.

Women and Girls "Man" Engine; Save Oil Springs Buildings By Work at Pumps During Big Fire

OIL SPRINGS, Feb. 5.—Oil Springs has sent the majority of its men to the front, but its women and girls, of all ages and sizes, stand ready to do their "bit" in any case of emergency. For the second time in a year they proved their efficiency for their work in "manning" the pumps of the fire engine saved the town from heavy fire loss, and reduced a seeming conflagration which threatened to sweep out one section of the town to a one-building fire.

The old Sherman House, one of the landmarks of the town, is a ruin, but the fire which destroyed it was confined to the one structure, despite the high wind, which carried blazing brands for a quarter of a mile, and started many small blazes all over the town.

So threatening did the fire in the Sherman House, used as a store, and occupied by Isaac Abraham, appear that a call for help was sent to Petrolea. The whole fire department of that town responded, but by the time it arrived the blaze was under control. The total loss will be from $2,000 to $3,000, with insurance of approximately $800.

When the alarm was sounded everybody in town responded. While the men handled the hose the women and girls manned the big hand-pumps of the engine—ten to a side—and worked with a will to keep the pressure up. Blazing sparks were carried for more than a quarter of a mile, but the work of the volunteer firemen kept these incipient blazes down to mere trifles.

Th high wind at the time of the fire occurred was an added danger, and at one time it seemed inevitable that the buildings in the immediate vicinity, all of which were of frame construction, would be destroyed. It was then that the call was sent to Petrolea, and the ready response of the firemen of that responsibility was thankfully appreciated by the townsfolk here, although their services were not actually needed.

Adriatic Left Port With Munitions Valued at $10,000,000

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—The White Star liner Adriatic, largest British ship now in trans-Atlantic service, sailed for Liverpool Saturday afternoon. Her 40 passengers gave three cheers for the United States as she pulled away from her pier.

Seafaring men said that the Adriatic was lower in the water than at any time since she began her first attempt to dodge German submarines two years ago. A cargo of munitions, said to be valued at ten millions, was in her hold, and on her decks were heaps of auto trucks consigned to the French front. The Adriatic left port alone, the St. Louis of the American Line, and the Rochambeau, both of which were scheduled to leave during the day, delaying their sailings for various reasons.

Body Servant The Idol of the British Officer

LONDON, Feb. 2. — The British officer takes off his tin hat to his "bat man." Yes, and his tunic and his shirt, too, if necessary.

"Batman" means nothing else than body servant, but the batman is no less a fighting man than any other soldier in the trenches. Thousands of men are told off for duty as officers' attendants, to pack their grips, polish their high boots, shine their buttons and keep their dugouts in order.

Civilians began to hear of this and bitterly complained of the seeming waste of man power. Now the officer has had his turn in the rostrum, and has silenced all reproach about the batman.

PALS IN THE NEW ARMY.

The job of officer's servant makes double demands upon a soldier's time for slight additional pay. Their relation is not that of master and man; British officers of the new army are too democratic for that. Except for the gap between their ranks they are pals.

It is the officer's proud boast that the last person he thinks of is himself. The comfort and well being of the men come first. While he is making a mass of soldiers comfortable the batman gets in his work, putting in order the officer's quarters.

Letters home from the officers continually refer to the servant's adaptability, his skill in anticipating a fellow's needs, and his unselfishness. Sullenness common to servants in civil life is a missing trait in the army attendant.

Many an officer owes his life to the man who carried him back through the inferno of a barrage when he has been wounded in an attack.

Stretcher bearers know these fierce authoritative soldiers who come dodging through a curtain of pelting shells—scorning their own wounds, to yell: "For God's sake 'urry up: Lootenant Jones is 'it and I've stow'd 'im in a shell 'ole. Double up now, it's getting light."

FRIENDS GO LIKE MIST.

Many a lieutenant Jones has reached the hospital because of the batman's fearless devotion who otherwise would have lain there in the shell tortured No Man's Land, at the mercy of high explosives, grenades and the snipers, throughout the glaring day.

In former wars one batman attended an officer perhaps for years. In the great war the swift cycle of month may bring one batman several charges or one officer half a dozen servants. The casualties are so very heavy that all men see their friends disappear like mist.

An army chaplain, who attended a dying batman cherishes a scribbled card addressed to the officer, the last man in his thoughts.

"The cleaning polish is in your long boots, sir," it says. "Private Andrews can look after you, good, sir."

$20,000 Jewels Lost on a Train

Porter Arrested In Investigation of Woman's Report that Her Employer's Gems Were Stolen.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—A report of a $20,000 jewelry robbery was made public when Detective George Trojan and Joseph Fitzgerald of the Second Branch Detective Bureau, placed Frederick Saunders, a negro, of No. 140 West 139th street, a Pullman porter, under arrest as he left a train at the Pennsylvania Station. On January 21 last Mrs. Francis B. Strahan of No. 149 West Forty-fourth street, who is described as secretary to Frank Dillingham, a proprietary medicine manufacturer of Philadelphia, while on a train from Key West, Fla., to New York, missed the jewelry, which is the property of Mr. Dillingham.

Following the report of the loss the police began an investigation, which included the porters on the train on which Mrs. Strahan was travelling. Ten days ago Saunders was arrested in Newark, but was released. It was not stated on what charge he was arrested.

Detectives Trojan and Fitzgerald, after the arrest, said $10,000 worth of jewelry had been brought to New York and pawned for $300. Saunders was locked up at Police Headquarters.

It was stated that $10,000 worth of the gems are in the hands of the Chief of Police of Newark.

WHY PEOPLE FEEL DEPRESSED IN THE COLD WEATHER

Why is tiredness and langour so prevalent just now? A physician explained that the cold of winter drives blood from the surface of the body to the liver. Normally one-fourth of the whole blood supply is in the liver, and when more blood is accumulated in that organ everything goes wrong.

No better remedy exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills which are composed of such vegetable extracts as Mandrake and Butternut, and possess wonderful liver stimulating powers. It's a marvel the way Hamilton's Pills clear the blood of the poisonous humours. They put new life into worn out bodies, build up the appetite, bring back a reserve of nerve energy, tide folks over the cold days of winter and the depressing days of spring. For your health and body comfort get a 25c. box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills to-day.

SAY GERMANY CAN CONTINUE TO HOLD

BERLIN, Feb. 5.—The first editorial expressions on the submarine issue from the United States, which were eagerly awaited, were received here on Saturday. They included short excerpts from the leading New York papers. The Lokal Anzeiger, commenting on the despatches, says:

"It would seem that some circles believe that Germany can be affected by threats to change her course. This opinion is completely erroneous. It would certainly not be a matter of unconcern here if the only remaining neutral great power should join the league which is bent on the destruction of Germany, but Washington should not doubt that even this possibility, with all its consequences has been duly weighed and is considered as a lesser evil than the renunciation of our strongest weapon against the most unscrupulous of Germany's foes. On the other hand it would be wrong to accept this or that editorial opinion from the New York or Washington press as an adequate criterion of the Government's views." The Lokal Anzeiger concludes:

"Our entire attention should be turned now to the German submarines to which we have entrusted our fate."

The Frankfurter Zeitung, which hitherto has consistently urged a conciliatory course on American problems, now fairly supports the government's submarine decision. The newspaper says:

"Neither is a failure of the undertaking nor a renewed backing down before American protest even remotely to be thought of. Hence, it can only be assumed that the imperial government is convinced that German power will continue to hold its own against the onset of the world, even if America should join our enemies."

"LUSITANIA DAY;" LOWER SHIP FLAGS THROUGHOUT WORLD

At Wireless Signal Avenging Word "Remember" to be sent out.

PARIS, Feb. 6.—M. Guernier, president of the merchant marine committee of the chamber, has advanced the proposal that the anniversary of the torpedoing of the Cunard Line steamship Lusitania be declared a legal commemoration day and observed annually by vessels throughout the world half-masting their flags for victims of German submarines.

M. Guernier recommends that everywhere at the some moment after a signal by wireless all ships cease communication and send out the "avenging word, 'Remember!'"

The appeal is addressed to shipowners and captains and crews of vessels.

Cocoanut Oil Makes A Splendid Shampoo

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Just plain mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and entirely greaseless), is much better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at most any drug store. It is very cheap, and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

URGES EVERYONE TO QUICKLY GET ON WATER WAGON

Drink Glass of Hot Water Before Breakfast to Wash Out Poisons.

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside-bathing every morning for one week.

Before breakfast each day drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins;; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the blood and internal organs. Those who are subject to constipation, bilious attacks, acid stomach, rheumatism twinges, also those whose skin is sallow and complexion pallid, are assured that one week of inside-bathing will have them both looking and feeling better in every way.

PRAISING WIVES.

Apparently there are some men in the world who would not be likely to live long if by any possibility they should be betrayed into praising their wives, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The wife of this man is a woman whom no old maid should envy.

The man who never praises his wife will find fault with everything on all possible occasions.

Why cannot a man show his wife that he appreciates her efforts to please him? Why cannot he praise the pudding of his wife as well as the cooking of neighbor Smith?

Why cannot he speak kindly of her mince pie, and charitable of her sponge cake? Why cannot he say the new hat is becoming to the face of the woman who loves him?

Rose of Glenside, a dual purpose Shorthorn, has a record of 18,075 lbs. of milk containing 625 lbs. fat to her credit in a year.

UNSOLICITED ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Bruce, Alta., 15th January, 1917.

W. H. Hill, Esq.,
Mgr. Sun Life Assurance Co., of Canada,
Peterborough, Ontario.

Dear Sir:—I am in receipt of your favour of the 10th with policy No. 416089 for $1,000, and cheque for $557.25 covering policy No. 200807 which matured on the 1st of November last.

Allow me to thank you and your excellent Company for this very prompt and entirely satisfactory settlement. I have before me as I write the illustration or estimate given me the time the policy was taken out fifteeen years ago, showing what might be expected under the various options at maturity, and these have in every case been exceeded by the actual results. True the excess is not large, but this merely goes to emphasize the wonderful efficiency with which the business of the Company is conducted.

The new policy like the former one, is a model document—clear, concise and unmistakable.

Yours very truly,

"WM. CROSS."

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

BOY'S RUSSIAN SUIT.

By Anabel Worthington.

2054

Again and again fashion demonstrated that for the little lad up to six years of age no other style can quite take the place of the Russian suit. It enjoys popularity because the mothers have agreed that it always looks neat, is the easiest kind of suit to cut out and make, and with its plain lines and coat closing is very easy to launder when made of a tub fabric.

The illustration shows this distinctively boyish suit to be all that is correct and desirable for the small boy. At a lowered waistline the blouse is belted with self material, neatly confining the fulness. Banding in contrasting color gives a practical but pretty trimming touch to the low round collar, the pocket, belt and edge of the overlapping front. The sleeve is uncuffed, fitted at the lower part with box plaits. Either the straight or bloomer trousers may be chosen.

For a play garment St. Nicholas cloth, gingham, linen and the new cotton cord cloth are suitable weaves for selection. For kindergarten wear serge, homespun, cheviot and the wool mixtures are excellent materials. Of course, velvet and corduroy may be considered also. There is no difficulty to meet in copying the design—the illustration instructions make every step so clear that a school girl can successfully reproduce the design.

The suit pattern, No. 8,054, cuts in sizes 2, 4 and 6 years. To make in medium size requires 2½ yards 36 inch material, making either trousers; 4¾ yards of banding.

To obtain the pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

DENMARK WILL NOT BREAK WITH GERMANY

Officially Notifies United States of Decision

MORE THAN FORTY SHIPS HAVE BEEN SUNK SINCE BEGINNING OF NEW POLICY

Tonnage Represented in Vessels Destroyed Since February 1st Totals 90,000 Tons--Peruvian Sailing Ship Torpedoed in Spanish Waters and Four More British Steameas Are Sunk---Republican Senator Endorses President Wilson's Stand.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

AMSTERDAM, Holland, February 7.—Newspapers arriving here from Germany confirm by official statements the report that two hundred persons, mostly women, were killed and many injured in an explosion of dynamite works near Cologne, Germany.

Two More British Steamers Are Sunk

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, February 7.—The British steamers Vectra, 1,021 tons, and the Crown Point, 5,218 tons, were officially reported sunk to-day.

WASHINGTON, February 7.—Denmark has officially notified Washington that she will not sever diplomatic relations with Germany at present.

WINNIPEG, Man., February 7.—An entire company of reinforcements "240 men," each one of whom is a qualified officer, will be raised in Winnipeg.

WASHINGTON, February 7.—Because the Government has discovered evidence that the crews of German vessels, both in Manila Bay and Colon, Panama, were laying plans to sink these vessels, the Government has taken precautionary measures to prevent such action, it was learned to-day.

No German vessels were seized, however.

LONDON, February 7.—The Admiralty statement announced the sinking in Spanish waters on Sunday of the Peruvian sailing ship Lorton. She was submarined.

The Admiralty comments on these two attacks: "It is interesting to note simultaneously this dual affront to two neutral states in view of the German wireless boasting of the consideration shown the interests of neutrals.

NEW YORK, February 7.—The total of ships which have fallen victims to Germany's unbridled submarine campaign since February 1st was increased to more than forty to-day with the news that four more vessels had been sunk.

Sixteen lives have so far been lost in these sinkings.

The total of tonnage represented in ships destroyed by the Germans is now well over 90,000 since the first of February.

WASHINGTON, February 7.—Following the severe criticism by Senator Works, (Republican), California, of the President's action in severing diplomatic relations with Germany, Senator Stone, Missouri, called up his resolution asking Senate endorsement of the break.

In introducing the resolution to the Senate, Stone expressed the hope that the American people would not be swept off their feet by propaganda put forth to carry the United States into war. He presented his resolution, he said, to let the world know that the Senate supported President Wilson.

Senator Lodge, (Republican), who has persistently opposed the President in efforts to establish a "world peace tribunal," followed Senator Stone.

"In severing relations with Germany," said Lodge, "the President did what was demanded by the honour, the safety, and future security of the United States.

"When my country is in a controversy with a foreign country," said Lodge, "party lines, as far as I am concerned, are removed." Lodge upheld the President in refusing to place an embargo on arms and munitions.

Pledging support to the President, Lodge said:

"Let us show the people of the United States and the world that we are without division. To show division shows weakness.

"Let the world know the President has the people of the United States and the Congress of the United States back of him."

LONDON, February 7.—The flat declaration that Germany has no chance whatever to "starve out" England by her submarine warfare, was made in the House of Commons this afternoon by Chancellor of the Exchequer Andrew Bonar Law.

Leo, Jan and Mischel Cherniavsky

Give Wonderful Programme

The famous Russians, Leo, Jan and Mischel Cherniavsky, are to give a recital here on Monday, 12th February, in the Conservatory Hall.

Of all the great artists who have visited America during the past decade none have given the American public such wonderful programmes as are being presented by the Cherniavskys, who are creating a furore everywhere. They have the wonderful gift of constructing their programmes in such a manner as to produce in the collectively of their items a kind of music of its own; harmony that is immediately felt by the vast audiences who are thrilled by the genius of these wonderful young Russians.

Leo, Jan and Mischel Cherniavsky have undoubtedly three of the strongest personalities in the world of music, but, although they are brothers, they have quite distinctive individualities, and this is all the more remarkable on account of the marvellous way in which they sink their individualities into a unit when interpreting the trios given to us by the great old masters.

It must be remembered that the Cherniavskys are great soloists, firstly and secondly; that their trio work is an extension of their solo capacities. So much has been written about these young artists, and so glowing have been the reports of their work from all parts of the earth that it does not require much stretch of the imagination to believe that when they make their appearance here they will be greeted by a large house. Full details of their programme will be announced later.

Tickets $1.00, at Heintzman's Music Store, George street, and Studio of Music, 207 Brock street.

ADMIRALTY COURT AWARDS DAMAGES

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The sum of $11,250 was awarded to the owners of the Danish steamship Norma, by the Admiralty Court, against the steamer Rosedale, Hamilton, Ont., for salvaging services owing to the fact that the Rosedale broke away while being towed, but the Trinity Masters decided that the Norma had rendered important services.

Peterboro' Curlers In Tankard Finals 1st Time Since 1892

Defeated Queen City Club of Toronto This Afternoon and Play Off This Evening With Owen Sound

HERE'S HOPING

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Feb. 7.—Peterborough and Owen Sound are the contestants in the finals for the Ontario Tankard. This was decided this afternoon when after two hard fought games, the finest ever seen in curling, Peterborough defeated the Queen City by 36 to 34, after playing an extra end, and Owen Sound defeated Galt by 33 to 26. The finals will be played to-night, starting at 5 p.m.

The scores:

Peterborough	Queen City
Dr. Wightman	A. T. Cringan
H. F. Foote	T. W. Dale
S. Ray	Dr. J. H. Wickett
Wm. Lang	R. B. Rice
Skip—19	Skip—28
J. Brightman	G. J. Wilson
G. H. Logie	W. Phillip
D. Davidson	E. H. Brower
R. M. Waddell	F. E. Kerr
Skip—17	Skip—16
36	34

For the first time in twenty-five years, Peterborough curlers have drawn within striking distance of the Ontario Tankard championship as the result of defeating the Queen City curlers of Toronto this morning in the semi-finals of the Tankard games at the rink of the Toronto Granites.

It was back in 1892 that Peterborough was the runners-up, losing in the finals to the Toronto Granites. Since that year they have met varying fortunes in the preliminary Tankard rounds, but never had a better chance of bringing home the Tankard Cup than they have this afternoon in the final game with the Owen Sound rinks.

At that they may decide to leave the Cup in Toronto—if they succeed in winning it — for, on account of its value, the winners have to put up a $5,000 security deposit. So here's hoping Rollie Waddell and "Pete" Lang put Peterborough's name on the list of Tankard Cup winners for the first time in the long history of the Ontario Curling Association, dating back to 1875. The rinks are the same that defeated Lindsay here in the district round, with the exception of Sam Ray, who replaced Robt. Hicks as vice-skip for W. M. Lang.

A CHANCE TO HELP THE RETURNED MEN

The Returned Soldier's Club, which was quartered, temporarily at the Armouries, by the kind assistance of Lieutenant-Colonel Ackerman, has decided to move into other quarters. These are in the Victoria Hall block, on George street, and about opposite the C.P.R. City Office, upstairs, of course.

The position will be much more convenient and accessible in that men can drop in at any time without going to the Armouries. Then there will be a certain freedom in the use of the rooms, and this is apparent.

But these rooms need some furniture. Nothing costly but serviceable. All the better if things can be had that will give the place a sort of homelike and cheerful appearance.

So the men interested, and who cannot personally stand the expense, will be glad of a helping hand. The request is put forward that any one having some things that are not in immediate use will let the men have the use of them. It isn't much to ask. In fact a loan of such things as are not in use will be quite helpful.

Of course the needs are modest. Must be. The Club will be almost without financial assistance other than the fees of the members, which are only a trifle. So here is a time to help a little. What is needed is some sort of desk, a few chairs. If these latter look respectable so much the better for the renown of the Club. If a sort of couch is to be had, so much the better. Being on the scene the couch creates the idea of restfulness. This the returned man appreciates.

The chairs should be, if you will, capacious. Not that two men can sit in the chairs at once, but that a helpful and hospitable looking chair is always acceptable. A few pictures, those that you have at home, in the attic, with the faces turned to the wall, will be in order. Please mention these requests to your friends, and no doubt the things will be coming on in good shape.

Phone to No. 933, or to Sergeant Victor, at Singer Sewing Machine Co., George street. Sergeant Cooper is at 'phone 933. The things will be sent for, and thankfully. Now let us see how liberal the response will be. Due acknowledgement will be made.

It is earnestly requested that all returned men, those who have joined the Club and those who have not and should join, will meet in the rooms on Thursday night, at eight o'clock. To get things started again. All will be welcome. The interest taken will ensure the success of the movement, and which will grow into one of local importance.

But don't forget the bits of furniture. For Thursday night, of course, there will be standing room only, for the seats and chairs will not have arrived.

The above appeal is made to the public by Sergeant Cooper, Secretary of the Club, and the Club backs up what he says.

Seeking Recruits In Peterborough For The 2nd Battalion

Reinforcing Draft Will Be Sent Overseas in March--Sergt. Robbins Here to Secure Men For Iron Seconds---247th Band Goes to Port Hope To-morrow---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Recruits are being sought in Peterborough for the famous 2nd Canadian Battalion at the front. To-day Sergt. J. R. Robbins was in the city to arrange for opening a campaign for the 2nd Battalion Reinforcing Draft, the headquarters of which are at Kingston and the Commanding Officer of which is Capt. S. N. Dancey. One hundred men are wanted at once. They will go overseas next month and escape all the training in Canada, receiving their military education at the base in England, and then going directly to the 2nd Battalion, the Iron Seconds, at the front. Peterborough is vitally interested in the 2nd Battalion, in which all the members of the 57th Regiment's first quota fought at the front, and to which many of the Peterborough men who went over later were drafted. Sergt. Robbins goes to Ottawa to night, but will be back in Peterborough in a short time. In the meanwhile information can be secured at the recruiting station, Simcoe street.

Two new recruits were taken on the strength of the 247th Battalion today, in the persons of Pte. David H. Gunter of Coe Hill and Pte. Hugh Pilgrim. The strength of the 247th Battalion is now 170.

The band of the 247th Battalion will leave to-morrow morning for Port Hope, where they will take part in the recruiting campaign. They will return to Peterborough on Monday.

The big topic at the Armouries today is the game between the 247th and Depot Batteries to-night. The Soldiers will be out in force to cheer for the local outfit.

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—In the event of the United States declaring war, it is probable that a number of Canadian officers will be loaned to assist in the organization of the forces. There are many who have returned from active service at the front, whose experiences would be of great assistance to the Americans in quick mobilization and equipment.

Mrs. W. Stanley of the Soldiers Wives' and Mothers' Club has received the following letter from "Somewhere in France."

Dear Friend,—I just sit down to write a few lines to you all, thanking you for the parcel you sent and which I was very glad to get. I thank you with all my heart. Say, Mrs. Stanley, I wish you would thank the rest of the dear friends that sent me the socks, for we are all so busy that I have not time to write to them all as I would like to. I wish you could send the Peterborough paper once in a while.

G. H. F. MOORE, 5th C.M.R., Formerly 93rd Battalion.

Pte. Herbie Nicholls has sent a letter to his mother, Mrs. Maud Nicholls thanking the ladies of Knox Church for the splendid box of good things they sent him.

Toronto, Feb. 7.—Another crisis developed in the Canadian Army Medical Corps to-day, when Surgeon Lieut.-Col. Fred Marlow, who has been director of the medical services in this district since the war began, handed in his resignation to Major-General Logie, here. Colonel Marlow recently toured Canada, making an inspection and report of the army medical services in all the districts. It is understood that clashing with Hospital Association, which deals with returned soldiers, and alleged political interference caused his resignation.

NO POSSIBLE BASIS OF PEACE IN GERMAN OFFER

King George's Declaration at the opening of Parliament To-day "Threats of Further Outrages, Only Steel Our Determination"

AN IMPERIAL CONFERENCE

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, Feb. 7. — "No possible basis of peace" was contained in Germany's recent proffer, King George declared to-day in his speech in the House of Lords, marking the opening of Parliament.

"The enemy made certain overtures with a view to opening peace negotiations,' His Majesty asserted. 'Their tenor, however, indicated no possible basis of peace.'

'My people throughout the Empire, and our heroic allies remain steadfastly and unanimously resolved to secure just reparation, restitution for the past and guarantees for the future, which we regard as essential to the progress of civilization,' the King outlined.

'In response to the invitation of the President of the United States, we have outlined as far as possible, at present, our general objects and aims. Threats of further outrages of the public law of the common rights of humanity, will only serve to steel our determination.'

The King spoke of the great achievements of the allies armies and navies during the winter months and said:

"I trust their united efforts will carry the successes already won to a victorious conclusion." Speaking of the forthcoming imperial conference, he said: "I have invited representatives of the Dominions and the Indian Empire, which have borne so glorious a share in the struggle to confer with my ministers, which step, I trust, will result in re-establishment of closer relations in all parts of the Empire."

War puts its sombre touch on the proceedings.

The King and Queen journeyed to the Parliament opening, which took place at noon sharp, in a plain coach drawn by six black horses. There were the usual escorts but the war touch was furnished in squads of mounted officers representing the army of each of Britain's Dominions and colonies. Four hundred wounded colonial soldiers and officers, attended by uniformed nurses, occupied the whole of the Royal gallery.

Civilians and diplomats all were in mufti instead of the usual court regalia.

Germans Taken Thoroughly by Surprise by Invasion of Their Trenches in Daylight by Canadian Battalions.

PETERBORO' BOYS THERE

LONDON, Feb. 6—The following communication is issued by the Canadian War Records Office:

The very successful raid of the Canadians upon the German trenches before Lens on January 17 calls for a more extended description than it has hitherto received. It was one of the most brilliantly planned and executed of these operations, of which the Canadians are the inventors, and in which they peculiarly excel, and it possessed certain novel features in the manner in which the several forms of barrage smoke, gas, artillery and machine-gun fire were worked in combination. This barrage was continuous and in tremendous volume, and it effectually walled up all the intervals between the bursting of shells. It is perhaps not too much to say that the operation may be characterized as a special triumph for our machine gunners, though this, of course, in no way detracts from the praise due to all the other services involved.

For the ten days immediately preceding the operation our artillery and trench mortars had been steadily at work cutting the German wire in sections along a front of between three and four thousand yards. The actual raid was to be made on a front of some 700 or 800 yards, but the Germans were kept in tension all along the line, not knowing where the blow would fall. The wire here was very heavy and deep, but it was found everywhere completely blown to pieces, so well had our gunners done their work.

We exploded a mine and immediately put up a furious barrage behind it. Immediately our raiding parties, which had been waiting in their trenches for the result of this manoeuvre, sprang out and darted across their zone of 'No Man's Land' practically without opposition.

TAKEN BY SURPRISE

It was now 7:45 a.m. and broad daylight, but the Germans, who had been prevented from showing a head above their parapet by a continuous sheet of machine-gun fire, were thoroughly taken by surprise. Our men were into their trenches and around the doors of their dugouts with bayonet and hand grenade before they could organize any effective resistance. One hundred and one prisoners were gathered in, and our parties set themselves to the work of blowing up the trenches, dugouts and machine-gun emplacements. In this task they were not disturbed, as the area in which they were working was enclosed by the steady "barrumping" of our howitzers along the German communication trenches. The time allotted them for the job was just an hour, and it was sufficient. At 8:56 our men were all back in our own lines with their prisoners and their spoils.

The following incident of the raid will serve to illustrate how patient and indulgent our men can be toward their enemies once they have them well beaten: One of our officers with a handful of bombers stood at the mouth of a deep dugout crowded with Boches. In his best German, such as it was, he ordered them to come out and surrender, as he was going to blow up the dugout.

A voice replied, in excellent English: "Yes, we're coming."

He waited, but no one appearing, he repeated the order more emphatically. He got the answer: "Yes, yes, one minute please."

Again he waited and still no one came forth, but time was short and he had more work to do. Once again he summoned them, adding that his next summons would be a bomb in their midst. Then at last, and just in time, the Boches came clambering out, obviously much relieved and in a great hurry to surrender. Finally appeared their officer with dignity and deliberation.

"I had to wait to burn my papers," he explained apologetically. The Canadian glared at him indignantly, then his face relaxed in approval. "All right," said he "we'll call it square but two seconds more and you'd have been in kingdom come."

SERVE BY PRODUCING.

Though The Examiner anticipated Premier Hearst's appeal to the cultivation of every city garden, it heartily endorses and urges practical attention to his call. We do not generally appreciate the value of small contributions in national production. We think in terms of acres and hundreds of acres (having thought of the wide west), and fail to appreciate that greatly multiplied small plots of ground brought under some kind of crip, will in the aggregate contribute to a formidable total. A square rood of city garden intensively cultivated, will yield many dollars worth of domestic food in the form of vegetables. This multiplied by thousands in the form of vacant lots and gardens attached to homes, would represent a very important addition to the available food supply. There is need of this; production by our farmers will, this year more than last year, be attended with difficulties from the great scarcity of labour, and possible scarcity of seed.

Some may think that the little they can produce on the little home plot will not count much. But a little thought wil show their error. When one places a stamp on a letter, it is considered a small thing. Yet that little amount is a part of similar contributions that mount to a total postal revenue of between fourteen and fifteen millions of dollars a year.

On the same principle every available rood of ground cultivated will be a part of the grand aggregate that will come from a general regard of Premier Hearst's appeal to cultivate to the limit of its productive power every vacant spot in the urban communities of the province.

WAR NOT NECESSARILY INEVITABLE.

There seems to be no certainty of cause and effect, in the matter of breaking off diplomatic relations, leading to war, though there is a close connection between the two. According to precedent, it is stated on good authority, and partly borne out by fact, the United States in breaking off diplomatic intercourse with Germany is in a position to closely simulate a state of war by requisitioning all interned German shipping in United States ports, on the same principle Italy commandeered German ships in her ports and waters a year ago. Such action seems very like a war measure, but it is not war.

The United States has before broken off diplomatic relations with Mexico, Nicaragua and Brazil, without the sequence of a war declaration; and the present case may follow such precedent. Naturally, the United States hesitates to declare war upon Germany, for reasons that may have influenced President Wilson's course from the beginning. The German element in the United States is large and, from the exhibition of the German character that we have had demonstrated both in world relations and in the United States, the latter country, in case of a declaration of war, would experience fulfilment of the Scriptures, that "a man's foes shall be they of his own household." On this point, F. Cunliffe Owen, in the New York Herald says: "The danger that now confronts the United States, as the result of the rupture of its official relations with Germany, is that it may have the effect of encouraging Germans in this country to have recourse to still greater outrages than those of which they have already rendered themselves guilty here since the beginning of the war."

This condition may influence the United States to submitting to a great deal of outrage of one kind in order to avoid the danger of greater outrage at home. And this is a consideration that has an interest for Canada. If a declaration of war should free the German elements from the restraints the neutrality the United States heretofore has exercised, these elements would consider themselves unleashed and free to extend the outrages they are prepared to perpetrate at home, beyond the international border.

THE OUTLOOK IS NOT SO DARK.

The declaration by Germany of her intensified marine murder and piracy campaign, has not dismayed the Allies, especially Great Britain. In spite of Germany's expressed hope that it will bring her victory, the British authorities are full of confidence that the war will end in a victory for the Allies before the year is out. The evidence of this is presented by Germany's action, which is an action of desperation; and though she professes to expect much from it, it will represent another of the disappointments which Germany has steadily met since the war began. There may be an increase of submarine frightfulness; but it can have no decisive part in giving her victory.

The British public, military, naval and business, are not greatly perturbed over the situation. The German declaration has had no special effect in disturbing prices. The feeling of the British people is that Germany has done her worst, and that her renewed threats justify the application to nations as well as to individuals of the proverb that "threatened men live long." Still there is no rash overconfidence. The submarine threat is not taken lightly; but preparations have been made to meet it and deprive it of the terrors and extent of atrocity that might otherwise be expected. No doubt Germany's course was anticipated weeks ago, and special preparations made to counteract it. The arming of merchantships will greatly lessen the danger, as submarines succeed in sinking comparatively few armed vessels. On land the Allies are steadily succeeding, and the Central Allies steadily growing weaker. As in the case of all German frightfulness, the last threat only stiffens the determination of Britain and her Allies, and urges them to greater aggression.

We at home must continue to do our share. Lloyd George has issued a stirring appeal for united national support of the war—for money, and material and moral help—to help the success of the war loan, submit to food control, to help by the cultivation of every foot of soil, and by making every effort, and making every sacrifice to give every possible assistance. This advice touches us in Canada in an equally appealing way. We cannot, and must not, take any holiday till our work in winning the war is done.

A HINT TO THE PUBLIC.

The Bell Telephone Company has issued the following admonition, under the exasperating title, "Wait a Minute:"

You have answered your telephone, and have heard a feminine voice say, "Wait a minute; Mr. Blank wants to speak to you!"

You have waited twenty seconds, forty, a minute—perhaps two or three. Minutes seem like hours at such times.

And when Blank came to his telephone you felt more like assailing him for discourtesy, than having a pleasant chat with him.

What a world of exasperation would be avoided if this practice were stopped.

We suggest that: When you call a man to the 'phone, be ready to speak when he answers!

The person you call should not have to wait—his line is perhaps being reported "busy" to other callers while he waits for you.

Telephone courtesy demands that you stay on the line until your party answers!

And telephone courtesy in business is like oil to machinery—speeding it up and preventing friction.

We have in these lurid times enough annoyances without having added to them the discourtesies and, even, indecencies of telephone business and social intercourse. Offenders seem sometimes to justify themselves, by the reflection that telephone employees sometimes make annoying mistakes. But they are mistakes, and not deliberate indifference and overt neglect, the cause of the majority of offences in telephone intercourse. Somebody else's wrong doesn't make our wrong right, either in the matter of telephones or anything else. We can all, perhaps, do better if we reflect that the aggregation of the little annoyances of life, whose perpetration by ourselves we are so apt to ignore, are what help make life miserable; and everyone we can spare our neighbours and our associates, by living up to the Golden Rule a little, is a lightening of the aggregate load. Thinking of others is a moral duty, as well as a mark of decent consideration.

DEFINITION OF THE POWERS OF THE UNITED STATES PRESIDENT

Canadians who have given the matter the least reflection must be struck with the extreme powers which are vested in the President of the United States, and which have been displayed of late in his declaration that his country was prepared to break with its past traditions and join in a world's league of peace, and still more strikingly in his breaking off of diplomatic relations with Germany, without consulting congress.

The relationship, which the President occupies to congress is aptly described by Mr. Talcott Williams in The Review of Reviews for February in a timely article. He compares the senate to a board of directors, and the President as a general manager. The directors decide what final definite contracts shall be ratified, but they do not decide the policy, the negotiation, on the decision which brings contracts before it. This is done by the general manager. A wise manager keeps in touch with his board, and so does a wise President. Hence we have Mr. Wilson consulting the leaders of the senate (but not the senate itself) before the break with Germany.

Washington acted for himself and his country without asking counsel or senate or congress, in April, 1792, when he decided, in the face of the strongest treaty with France for common defensive action diplomats could draw, that the United States would be neutral as between France and England. From Washington down the decision, in every war, as to the neutrality or otherwise of the United States, has vested in the President, and in him alone. When the Louisiana purchase came it was Jefferson who decided on annexation and took all the responsibility of this step. When Polk ordered General Taylor to push to the Rio Grande and occupy disputed territory over which Mexico was ready to arbitrate he acted without authority from senate or congress. The annexation of Alaska came through executive initiative, ratified later by the senate. Grant, as president, placed the stars-and-stripes in Samoa, and Harrison hoisted it at Honolulu. Roosevelt created Panama and gave the United States control of the Canal zone. It was the President, no congress, who from 1901 to 1898 decided U. S. policy as to Cuba until Congress declared war at the request of the President. The Monroe doctrine itself was the formal and conclusive example of the President in initiating, controlling and conducting the international policy of the American people.

Mr. Williams gives the following bit of history:

When the federal consultution was drawn in Philadelphia, its members knew and were familiar with the powers of the English crown over foreign affairs. Benjamin Franklin knew Downing street, the short thoroughfare on which the English foreign office stood then, and stands now, as well as he did Fifth street in Philadelphia when our department of state opened for business. His colleagues had followed English diplomacy all over their active lives. Two powers of the English crown in foreign affairs they withdrew. The power to declare war they vested in congress; the power to advise the ratification of treaties they gave to a two-thirds majority of the senate Also the other powers of the crown over international relations they left to the President. This definition of the powers the supreme court has uniformity confirmed and acted upon. . . . These wide powers the constitution puts in the President's hands and every four years he has to account to the people. This is his duty, not the senate. . . . This wide and far-reaching constitutional power placed in the hands of the President is safe because it can only be exercised efficiently and to definite results when the policy has the support of the American people as a whole

A TALK WITH BOELCKE ON THE DAY OF HIS DEATH

The record of a talk with Captain Boelcke, champion aviator of the war, held on the morning of the day on which he plunged from the air to his death, has appeared in German newspapers over the signature of one of his comrades of the Germany Army Captain Walter Bloem, with whom the young airman talked on his last morning alive.

Boelcke, it will be remembered, was credited with having brought down forty allied aeroplanes. The interview with him took place on the Somme front on Oct. 28 last. An officer, a fellow-townsman of Boelcke, had promised to introduce Captain Bloem and another officer to the famous airman.

The little group made their way toward the shed where Boelcke kept his aeroplane through an expanse of mud that seemed like "a wide brook of chocolates." They found Boelcke quartered with seven other airmen, their machines all ready for a flight at an instant's notice. He was at the telephone, so they had leisure to look him over before he could greet them. Captain Bloem was struck by the boyishness of his face. When the telephone conversation was ended and Boelcke was introduced to his visitor, the latter was struck also by the "eagle eye" of the young airman. "No use; I must use that old expression," he writes, "it is the only way of describing Boelcke's glance."

On the desk before Boelcke was one lone picture in a gilt frame. It was the Kaiser, in his field-gray uniform, autographed as follows:

"Wilhelm I. R., to the brave airman Captain, in commemoration of the thirtieth aeroplane brought down by him."

Boelcke took his guests to the shed housing his aeroplane. A high wind was blowing.

"Are you going up in this storm?" asked one of the visitors.

"Yes, if an opponent shows up," answered the aviator. "In that case, no storm counts." Then he turned to his aeroplane and the eagle glance softened somewhat. Somebody pointed to the many patches on the machine.

"Bullet holes," remarked Boelcke. "Such things happen, you know."

Then he told Captain Bloem and the other visitors about the work of a war aviator in these words:

"We fighting airmen have the job of looking for enemy and attacking him wherever we find him. Others of our comrades have other duties, very difficult and important duties, which require the greatest devotion and self-sacrifice—among these are the flyers who must make observations for directing artillery fire, the flyers for the infantry, etc. It is too bad that all the publicity is for us fighting airmen.

"On account of this all young men wish to be fighting airmen; they wish to win the Pour le Merite medal and get a big reputation. Yet flying is done not only for the purpose of fighting and bringing down enemy aircraft, but also for other things, and these latter are in reality the real object of aviation. Fighting airmen simply have the role of protecting their really useful comrades, the men flying for other purposes, and of destroying enemy aviators by their skill in flying. People really should realize that there are extremely important classes of aviators who are permitted to fight only as a last resort, and for that reason have not the chance of being mentioned in army reports as often as we fighters."

Captain Boelcke was asked about fliers, who throw bombs and he replied:

"That is only a side issue and not an especially pleasing job."

He used to fly earlier in the war with one of his brothers, and both received the Iron Cross. He was glad, he told his visitors, that his brother had been removed from aviation and attached to the General Staff. Next he spoke of his comrades, the other airmen with whom he was serving.

"Young blood, every one of them," he said. "Every one full of zeal and enthusiasm."

All Boelcke's companions, according to Captain Bloem were devoted to him. "Everybody stood up straight when he approached," he writes. While Boelcke's visitors were with him, a young Lieutenant landed from his aeroplane and, with eyes shining with triumph, reported to the veteran of the air that he had just brought down his first opponent.

"Good," said Boelcke dryly. "Congratulations. Where is he lying? Did you yourself see him fall to earth?"

"No—not quite that, Captain."

"But you can tell more or less where he must be lying?"

"Directly north of Bapaume, just about a kilometer from the town."

"All right. I'll report at once so that he may be buried. Thanks." After attending to that piece of his duty Boelcke resumed his remarks about the work of a flier.

"When you have been flying an hour or an hour and a half and come to earth," he said, "you feel as if you had been pulled out of the water. That's because, here on the Somme, you are always being attacked by new opponents right and left or else getting after some of them yourself. That means that you keep every bone in your body pretty busy. But it's great fun. The rotten part of it all is that they keep shooting at you from below if you happen to get away for an instant from opponents in the air."

"We wanted to stay talking with Boelcke for hours," says Captain Bloem, "but we realized that an airman has not that amount of time on his hands." So he and the others took their leave.

That evening at staff headquarters they were told that Boelcke was dead.

NOT NECESSARILY WAR

Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Will you please decide a dispute between myself and another person, connected with the present situation of the United States breaking off of diplomatic relations with Germany? Is it necessarily an act of war when diplomatic relations are broken between two countries? Kindly give an answer in your next issue and oblige.

Subscriber

Actinolite, Ont., Feb. 6.

"Subscriber" is informed that a breach of diplomatic relations does not necessarily imply an act of war. In the past, there have been numerous instances of this fact. The United States at different times has broken off diplomatic relations with Brazil and Mexico, and no war followed. Britain at one time broke off diplomatic relations with Brazil and no war ensued. At the time of the Emperor Maximilia fiasco in Mexico, Austria broke off diplomatic relations with Mexico and this condition continued for years without war. War from the present break with Germany is conditioned on Germany committing some overt act against the citizens or interests of the United States.—Editor Examiner.

GREATEST GAME OF THE SEASON TO-NIGHT

Fans Are Excited Over Clash Between Kingston Artillerymen and 247th Battalion in Second Round of the Intermediate O. H. A. Series—Stan. Burgoyne Will Handle the Bell.

Stan Burgoyne of Toronto, will handle the bell in to-night's big battle at Brock street rink, which brings together the Depot Batteries of Kingston and the 247th Battalion. It looks like the best game and by far the biggest crowd of the year. The Kingston artillerymen are said to have a great team, and they will need to be to head off the 247th speed boys with their seventeen goals a game average. Harry Thornton has been declared eligible to play with the 247th and he will be on the Soldiers' defence to-night, while Pat Flanagan will be shifted up to rover, where he should shine all the way. The game is called for 8.15 o'clock and will start sharp on time. An old time crowd will be on hand for the season's hardest battle. The ice is in grand shape and the weather conditions ideal for spectators. The 247th will line-up as follows:

Goal—Legros.
Rover—P. Flanagan.
Centre—Armstrong.
Right wing—Adams.

PETERBOROUGH CURLERS WIN SEYMOUR POWER TROPHY FOR THIRD YEAR

Silver Cup of Campbellford Bonspiel Becomes Permanent Property of the Local Club—Personnel of the Winning Rinks

Yesterday eight rinks of curlers from the local club scattered in Campbellford, Orillia and Toronto, and the aggregate results of their work make mighty pleasing reading. George Giroux gave an example of good team work at Campbellford 'spiel. For two years back J. E. A. Fitzgerald has won the Seymour trophy emblematic of the bonspiel, but when Jack failed to come through in his round, Mr. Giroux delivered the goods, and the Seymour Power Cup is now the permanent property of the Peterborough Curling Club.

The Seymour Power Cup was won in 1913, the year it was first presented, by a Keene rink, skipped by Corp. J. J. Moore now overseas with the 93rd Battalion.

Peterborough won it in 1915 by the following rink:

A. W. Archibald.
R. P. Best.
H. F. Foote.
J. E. A. Fitzgerald, skip.

In 1916 Peterborough again won with the following rink's personnel inscribed on the pedestal of the trophy for that year.

Felix Brownscombe.
George Boucher.
H. F. Foote.
J. E. A. Fitzgerald, skip.

This years winning rink was as follows:

C. Seymour.
J. Wiley.
R. G. Sturgeon.
G. H. Giroux, skip.

According to reports of yesterday's game Giroux was down two on the way home. He needed two to win and wound up the game with a three end.

Peterborough won in the Consolation round last night but Skip Fitzgerald did not remain over to complete the round.

Local Curlers Reach The Semi-finals in the Tankard Games, the Curling Classic

Winning in both the first and second rounds of the Ontario Tankard games in Toronto yesterday, Peterborough curlers went into the semi-finals this morning against the Queen City Club representatives.

It was a splendid showing and brought a great deal of satisfaction to the home players when the news was received last night. To-day there was a stout hope around the rink that Skips R. M. Waddell and W. M. Lang would reach the finals and bring home the Tankard trophy for the first time in the history of the Peterborough Curling Club.

Defeated Dundas.

In the first round Peterborough defeated Dundas at the Queen City rink as follows:

At Queen City Rink.

Peterborough.	Dundas.
Dr. Wightman	L. Lawson
H. Foote	A. Broad
S. Ray	A. Stock
W. M. Lang	R. Donald
Skip 14	Skip 11
J. Brightman	Dr. Pirie
G. Logie	J. Lawson
D. Davideon	H. Powell

R. M. Waddell	A. C. Clark
Skip 22	Skip 12
Total 36	Total 23

Put Barrie Away.

Peterborough's next games were with Barrie, who had defeated the strong Brampton rinks by 7 shots.

Barrie gave the locals a close argument in the second round and won in an extra end. Rollie Waddell was down 7 at the finish, but "Pete" Lang pulled through with 11 shots, leaving Peterborough up four. The rinks were as follows:

Peterborough	Barrie
Dr. Wightman	J. Scott
H. Foote	A. Hubbick
S. Ray	A. Brownlee
W. M. Lang	W. Kennedy
Skip 22	Skip 11
J. Brightman	G. Malcolmson

Press Reports.

The Mail and Empire commented as follows on yesterday's play, paying a fine tribute to Sam Ray, who is "vicing" for "Pete" Lang:

The feature of the opening day's play was the many one-sided scores in the different matches, although Owen Sound had a margin of only two over Parry Sound, while Barrie beat Brampton by seven, and then fell before Peterborough by four. Perhaps never in the history of the Ontario Tankard has such an ancient warrior shown to such good advantage as the veteran Sam Ray, of Peterborough. This player, who is in his 67th year, is playing vice for A. M. Lang, and the latter, by the way, has the honour of winning the Ontario District Cup twice in succession. Ray played a clever game yesterday, both morning and afternoon, and old-timers who were present at Queen City recalled memories of when he was considered one of the best cricket players in Canada. He is a brother of Charlie Ray, of this city, and an uncle of Nat Ray, the well known horseman.

The Globe says:

An extra end had to be played in the Peterborough-Barrie game before the latter club won. President Thauburn of the O.C.A. skipped a rink of the Brampton team, but Brampton did not survive the first day. In their game against Barrie the A. D. Simon rink of Barrie met their first Tankard defeat in three seasons. President Thauburn breaking their record.

The games were played on four of the city rinks, and the best of ice was provided, in spite of the fact, that the temperature was higher than for several days prior to the opening of the Tankard matches.

It is noteworthy that not one of the four clubs from which this year's winner will come has ever taken home the Tankard in the more than forty years of its history, but three of them got as close as the position of last competing club.

HOW SEYMOUR TROPHY WAS WON.

Skip Giroux' rink played three games in the Campbellford bonspiel yesterday. In the first round it was Mayor Cairns' rink that fell to the score of 23 to 9, and the next game was with Ed. Tate, who had put out of the running the other Peterborough rink. Giroux won by 13 to 3 and took the final game in an extra end with 2 shots up from Skip Woodworth.

CHARLIE SEYMOUR GOOD.

It may not be amiss when the Curling Club is going strong to mention the work of Charlie Seymour, who, by a coincidence, played lead on the rink that won the Seymour Power Trophy. He put up a splendid game for Giroux, not to depreciate the work of the rest of the rink, wasted few stones and materially helped in bringing home the silverware. He is one of the younger curlers, and has shown in the local games this winter that he is as good at the big end of a rink as he is on the sweeping end.

Eight Down in Orillia.

Four local rinks played in Orillia yesterday in the first half of the series for the Neill-Sheppard trophy, finishing with a minus margin of eight points Orillia, as usual, proved good hosts and curlers. On the return games the locals may be able to overcome the Orillia lead and retain possession of the inter-rink trophy. The scores were as follows:

Orillia		Peterborough
Dr. A. H. McLean		W. G. Morrow
Skip	17	Skip	18
G. T. Madden		T. F. Matthews
Skip	23	Skip	15

BOWLING

There are times in the life of the bowlers when everything goes "dead wrong." He makes what he thinks are good "hits," but the pins will persist in standing up, and they are not at all particular about standing close together either. This is just what happened last night between the De Laval and the Left Overs on the Water street alleys. None of the players on either team was in anything like good trundling form, with the result that none one of the players succeeded in reaching a 500 triple.

The Left Overs captured the whole three games. Routley, for the Left Overs, was high for 3 games with a 490 count.

The Scores.

The scores are as follows:

De Laval—
Fitzgerald	152	164	127	443
Hill	117	119	141	377
Barrett	111	113	155	379

HOCKEY GOSSIP

The Peterborough juniors will practice to-morrow night at 7 o'clock in Brock street rink. A full turnout is expected in view of Friday's trip to Kingston.

VICTIMS OF "NEEDLE MEN."

Paris Children Poisoned by Men With Hypodermics.

PARIS, Feb. 5—Twenty-four children, victims of the "hands in the black gloves," are confined in the St. Louis Hospital here, suffering from a strange malady resulting from being pricked by an infected or poisoned needle concealed in the hands of two men, always wearing black gloves, who pretend to fondle the youngsters and then pierce the skin of the neck or arms.

The men wait outside the schools and then talk to the little boys and girls. After giving the child a penny or candy the men caress the children's faces, suddenly exerting pressure, when the needle inside of the black gloves pricks the youngster's skin.

The doctors believe a hypodermic needle is used, discharging the poison into the flesh, as the victim's face immediately swells and the skin breaks out in ulcers or boils.

The parents of the children assert the men are German spies, but the police believe they are a pair of degenerates. It is extremely dangerous for a man to wear black gloves in the Place de la Republique section now. One was nearly mobbed before he was able to prove his innocence of maltreating children.

THE CARE OF GUNS ON BATTLESHIPS

Owing to the Immense Weight the Barrel Will Droop to Deck.

The dreadnoughts are to be armed with 16-inch rifles, and the layman takes it as a matter of course that these monster weapons are merely bigger brothers of the 14-inch gun. The man in the street says: "The larger gun merely means so much more metal and increased proportions; it is a simple matter of expansion."

But this offhand conclusion is decidedly at fault. The 16-inch gun is a more exacting engineering problem than the 14-inch weapon, and just because of its greater length and girth and weight it is a more difficult piece to make precise in its action. The bigger the gun the more it is prone to develop troublesome characteristics, and the ordinance engineer has his cunning heavily taxed in order to neutralize or to minimize these inherent tendencies.

To begin with, the 16-inch gun, without its mount, represents an outlay of $175,000, that being the price paid for the materials used and the skilled workmanship. Unless fabricated with exquisite regard to accuracy the weapon is neither safe to fire nor capable of standing up to its work during the relatively short active career, measured by something like a couple of hundred rounds.

It must be remembered that a 16-inch shell weighs about a ton—to be exact, 2100 pounds, and the powder impulse exerts sufficient energy back of the projectiles to start it from a standstill and to send it hurtling from the weapon's muzzle at a velocity of 2800 feet a second. It would not do to have that speeding shell jam in the bore of the rifle, because, if suddenly arrested it would probably fracture the weapon if it did not cause a graver disaster. Therefore, the ordinance engineer must see that the path represented by the bore is as nearly a straight line as it is, mechanically and physically possible to make it.

It will be remembered that one of the 12-inch guns of the battleship Michigan was ruined some months ago. The whole chase or muzzleward portion of the weapon was blown up. An investigation attributed the accident to the untimely bursting of a high explosive shell which was being fired; but among a good many ordnance experts the belief persisted that the accident was primarily due to a defect in the gun, namely, that the weapon was bent.

12 Inch Piece Deformed.

The layman will naturally wonder how that ponderous twelve-inch piece was deformed, for certainly the weapon was turned out by the naval gun factory as straight as a die. Well, if it was bent the warping might have been brought about by the action of the sun, combined with what might be described as the fatigue of the gun's long body.

A 12-inch gun of 45 calibre is 45 feet long, and except at the single supporting join the heavy mass of the extended weapon is without any sustaining help. These monster pieces of ordnance are virtually single pivoted girders, and their power to resist bending or deformation depends essentially upon the strength of the materials employed and the distribution of the mass. Clearly, then, the bigger the rifle the greater becomes the disposition to drop toward the muzzle, and not only does this impair the shooting accuracy, but in time the weapon becomes a source of danger to its own people.

The weight of some of the big guns now in use in the navy causes them to droop at their muzzles as much as half or three-quarters of an inch, and this, if not realized and allowed for in sighting, will make the shooting inaccurate, the inaccuracy increasing with the length of range. In fact, reports from abroad during the present war declare that the projectile on leaving the gun is directed by the last six feet of the muzzle. That is to say that if the rifle has a droop, the shell follows the curature instead of taking the line assumed by the gun pointer at the telescopic sight.

The Bureau of Ordnance in Washington has been working at this problem as guns have grown in length and diameter of bore. At the present time the great 14-inch weapons have an appreciable droop of only 0.38 of an inch, and this very slight bend in a total length of a trifle over fifty-eight feet is due alone to the natural elastic yielding of the material employed in the manufacture of the piece.

This droop is not enough to endanger the life of the gun or to impair its range, provided the sights are adjusted to it. But there is another influence at work which tends to affect this dropp and to cause it to vary some hundredths of an inch from time to time. This is the weather. For instance, a gun will droop when the sun shines fiercely upon its upper side while the under side is shaded. But so long as this total deflection does not exceed half an inch there is no danger of the shell jamming in passing along the slightly curved bore.

To the latest of our big naval weapons, this droop has been still further reduced by extending the jacket or hooping further out over the forward part of the gun. This serves to stiffen the gun so that the sun has not as much deforming effect as heretofore. It may be asked, "What about the other guns now in service that have not been re-enforced to check drooping?" The Bureau of Ordnance has resorted to a very simple expedient in correcting this curvature.

The deformed weapon is simply retated in the recoil sleeve of the mount until the underside of the rifle is uppermost. The muzzle, then, instead of dipping actually, is curved skyward. In time the natural elasticity of the metal asserts itself and the overhanging weight of the outstretched muzzle gradually presses the chase downward and straightens out the piece.

It sounds almost like nursing giant babies, and, in fact, that is just what these monster weapons are, for they have to be watched and tended with the utmost care. By putting the rifles on their backs, so to speak, their deformed spines return to a true line and only acquire a reverse curve or droop in the course of some months.

Not Farmer's Spectre, This, But Too, Too Solid Flesh

NEWTON, N.J.—The promise which a dying farmer of Allamuehy in Sussex county, made to his wife two years ago that he would return some time to see her after death, brought into the prosaic life of Abraham Mindlin, a vegetable peddler, an experience such as he sincerely trusts will never come again.

Bundled in a fur coat to protect him from the bitter cold, Mindlin rapped at the door of a small frame house at Allamuehy, and when a young woman opened it he asked her whether the family needed vegetables. As he spoke he entered the room—combined dining and living room—and threw open the collar of his overcoat, fully revealing his face.

As his countenance appeared from its heavy wrappings the young woman, who had begun to speak, gasped, turned white and then with a shriek fled into the kitchen, slamming the door. Interested, surprised and confused Mindlin, gazed at the door and in some trepidation saw that it was being cautiously opened inch by inch.

Its slow movement was accompanied by a series of whimpers and terrified cries, and the peddler saw in the slight crevice of the opening door three pairs of feminine eyes staring at him. They stared for only a moment, though, and then shrieks resounded through the house.

Mindlin, in pallid terror, fell onto a chair. The three women behind the door disappeared and in a moment Mindlin saw them fleeing toward a barn a few hundred feet behind the house. Shortly they left the barn with a man, who approached, hastily shoving shells into a shotgun. With the women trailing him, he strode into the dining room and asked what Mindlin was doing there.

The vegetable dealer, as soon as he was able to wet his lips and form words, asserted meekly that he came only to sell vegetables. Then the older woman of the three sat down and began to weep violently.

Between her tears and the sighs of her two daughters, the woman said that two years ago her husband had promised her that he would come back to her after he died, and that since then the belief that he would return had become almost an obsession. Mindlin, she declared (and her daughters nodded violent assent) was the image of the dead man, and all of the women felt certain that he had indeed come as he had promised.

Mindlin, with a hasty farewell, went to his waggon and drove rapidly away. He will not spend much time in Allamuehy after this.

Penny Banks in The Local Schools

Matter Was Discussed at Last Night's Meeting of the Board

The matter of introducing the Penny Bank into the local schools was taken up last night's meeting of the Board of Education. A letter from Mr. M. A. McKenzie of Toronto, expressing a desire to address the local teachers on the subject, was the means of rehabilitating the old ghost. Mr. M. A. McKenzie, who is in charge of the penny bank system in Toronto, offered to send a supply of literature dealing with the subject. At the suggestion of Mr. G. N. Gordon, the Board will send for a supply. Mr. A. Mowat, inspector of Public Schools, said that he had received letters in the past two years asking how the local Board got rid of the Penny Bank.

Mr. Eastwood, chairman of the Board, said that it was a question of whether or not the inauguration of the system would interfere with the curriculum. Brantford complained of the manner in which the system was introduced.

There was a strong suspicion among the members of the Peterborough Board that the introduction of the system would interfere with the work of the teachers.

Mr. G. N. Gordon was in favour of getting the information any way. A couple of years ago, a committee from the local Board visited Toronto and thoroughly investigated the operation of the Penny Bank system. It was felt that little more could be added to the information already received.

MILITARY TRAINING.

A communication was received from the Canadian Defence League, asking the local School Board to endorse a petition to the Provincial Legislature respecting the introduction of military training in the schools. Mr. Mowat, when asked to express an opinion, said that it would be necessary to secure qualified instructors for the work. He was astonished to entrust the matter to the Department of Education.

Sixty-nine dozen Golden Rule books will be secured for forms one and two of the Public Schools at a cost of two hundred and ten dollars. Forms three and four were supplied last year. If the books are not supplied to the schools before June the first the Government grant will be cut off.

Ald. W. H. Taylor, who represents a number of insurance companies, in a letter to the Board asked that a couple of insurance policies be returned so as not to interfere with the legality of his election to the Board. Mr. W. H. Hill moved that the matter be left in the hands of the Finance Committee.

It was reported that Miss L. Sage has returned to her duties on the Public School teaching staff. Miss Sage was granted leave of absence owing to illness.

A grant of one hundred dollars was made to the Science Department of the Collegiate Institute, fifty dollars to the Library, and fifty dollars to the Art Department. Art is taken up in the middle school.

Dr. F. C. Neal asked the Board for information regarding the inauguration of a dental clinic and also the disposition of mental defectives.

Mr. Crane reported that so far the local dentists had failed to agree as to the manner in which this work can be taken up.

Mr. Mowat was asked to report on the number of mental defectives in the local schools. There are about twenty-five altogether.

Enlarged photographs of Lieuts. G. Fife, Reginald Stratton, and Lieut.-Col. Pessenden, graduates of the Collegiate Institute, have been hung in the institution. Each of these boys have won honours on the field.

SUNDAY BLAZE IN CARLETON CINDERS

LINDSAY, Feb. 6. — A blaze was discovered in a car of cinders near the round house on Sunday about 11 o'clock. The fire brigade responded to the call and about three hundred feet of hose was used to reach the car, which was shunted down the track so as to be within reach.

The bottom of the car was partially burned, as was also one end. The fire was in the bottom of the car and was difficult to reach. Hot cinders placed in the car was the cause of the blaze.

JUDGMENT GIVEN FOR THE DEFENDANT, MR. WALLER, HAVELOCK

Mr. Justice Kelly gave the following judgment yesterday in the case of Woodbeck vs. Waller:

J. A. Macintosh and J. F. Strickland (Peterborough) for plaintiff. F. D. Kerr and V. J. McElderry (Peterborough) for defendant. Action to recover $6,000 damages for alleged illegal distrust of chattels and for an injunction.

Judgment. — In my judgment the claim that the mortgage has become void is not sustained. I find that plaintiff, without consent, written or otherwise, sold and disposed of and parted with and allowed to be removed from the premises some of the mortgaged goods, etc., and that the defendant honestly felt himself unsafe and insecure etc. Let judgment be entered (1) dismissing plaintiff's action; (2) declaring that at time of seizure the mortgage had become due; (3) ordering plaintiff to pay into court amount due on mortgage, $2,200, and interest from 28th September, 1916, less any sums already paid in, subject to further order, with costs to plaintiff.

The above legal item is of special interest to the residents of Havelock the plaintiff, Woodbeck, being a liveryman, and the defendant, Waller, being Bailiff of the Division Court at Havelock. In the action the plaintiff claimed that the defendant had wrongfully made seizure upon a chattel mortgage made by the plaintiff to one Saylor, and subsequently assigned to the defedant, Waller, but the court, by its decision, holds that the seizure was rightfully made and dismisses plaintiff's action with costs, and orders the plaintiff to pay the amount of the mortgage as claimed by the defendant.

Both Feet Froze But Settlers Got Letters On Time

Percy R. Campbell for some years a farmer in the vicinity of Dorchester and a son of J. D. Campbell who now resides near Komoka, had a terrifying experience recently in the Peace River district that might have cost him his life.

The Edmonton Bulletin has the following story regarding young Campbell who went west in March, 1812.

"The ways of mail men are not always easy. Even in the cities their duties take them out in all kinds of weather, but the carrying of the mail to Edmonton's hinterland requires considerable pluck and good staying qualities. One of these carriers is Percy R. Campbell, mail man between Peace River and Vermilion. Campbell left here about December 1 for his first trip of the winter. On the way down, and about 130 miles down the river, he encountered slush and got his feet wet.

"The day was intensely cold and soon both feet were frozen, one to the ankle. With this impediment he continued on his way, reaching Fort Vermilion in thirteen days, and staying there but 30 hours before starting on his return. Campbell aims to make the trip each month and had no time to lose. On the return journey he covered the same route by which he went and when half-way home had a serious loss. While on a river the ice gave way and the team and sleigh went into the water. Campbell seized the mail bags and managed to save them and then gave his attention to the horses. In the effort to save them he got wet, and finding he could do nothing effectual shot the animals to put them out of their sufferings.

"Meanwhile his clothing had frozen and he was in a bad way himself. Only one mail bag got wet, so leaving the mail on the ice he retraced his steps to the nearest settlement, eight miles back, to get dried out, and if possible, procure another team. He managed to do this and made the rest of his trip without mishap."

"C. W. Fredericks, the postmaster, tells how Campbell said: "Here is your mail, when can you be ready with the Vermilion mail?" as if he had done nothing unusual. Most men getting wet in weather such as has prevailed, would have perished, and as one reads mail got at such a price, there is a deep sense of satisfaction that the days of heroism and strong men are not past."

100 U. S. Officials To Be Got Out of Germany Some Way

LONDON, Feb. 6. — There is no doubt about it: the English public is as near to an emotional outburst as it ever gets. The president particularly comes in for warm approval and the temper shown by Congress is favourably commented on.

Suddenly the scales have fallen from English eyes. They see that the president had fixed his goal from the beginning and walked steadily to it thereafter.

A further good impression is made by New Yorks reception of the grave news and the behaviour of the Stock Exchange, which suggested after all Wall Street is sometimes more moved by idealism than by money making.

Among those commenting on this phase was Charles H. Sabin, president of the Guaranty Trust Company, who is here. Mr. Sabin added that in the event of hostilities America would have an opportunity to lend financial support to the common cause, and that, while it would be a duty to do this on a generous scale, no undue risk would be involved. With America in the war the whole fabric of the world's business and the honour of the civilised states would be pledged to repayment. The United States was most fortunate, Mr. Sabin said, to find itself in a position to extend assistance at a time when money meant so much in a struggle to defend civilization.

Apart from financial support, other ways and means were discussed with interest, whenever Americans and Englishmen met. It was agreed that the Americans could bring a clear mastery in the field of invention which has played so important a part in this war.

The American navy has figured in all discussion of the value of the new ally if we join the war. First of all, our naval personnel is well known, and highly esteemed. Fraternal relations would immediately be set up between the two fleets. The appearance of American warships in European waters would bring in a fresh element of brave, adventurous and highly trained men. It would relieve the strain and put new life into a service always dependable but somewhat stale after the long vigils in the North Sea.

One of the weaknesses of the American Navy is that its component parts are out of balance. If compelled to fight alone it would suffer as against Germany, for example, for lack of cruisers and scoutships. With the Allies possessing a full assortment and able to supply deficiencies, the America navy could be made to count at maximum efficiency, though of course it is not a modern navy.

The prospect of American co-operation inspires hope of prompter action in arming merchantmen. Here is an item in the war game that may appeal to Americans. I do not know what facilities the United States possesses for supplying guns, but gun crews can supply a large number of men with little or no training who could serve under expert direction. Men of no nation learn gunnery so quickly and so well as Americans. They have made a record in the artillery service in this war that puts them almost in a class to themselves.

As for training large bodies of the troops, that is a matter for America's consideration from her own standpoint. It is not thought here that they will be needed in the present war.

Last week there were many who believed that there would be a long war; to-day the opinion is general that the end is approaching. I have heard early summer mentioned several times to-day as the time limit, as it is believed by many that Germany will "blow up" after delivering her present stroke with all her might.

There has been much anxious discussion to-day about the American diplomatic and Consular representatives in German territory. It is stated that Brand Whitlock, Minister to Belgium, will go from Brussels to Havre, where the Belgian court now makes its headquarters.

Herbert C. Hoover is probably giving personal attention at Washington to the representatives of the Commission for the Relief of Belgium now in that country. There are American consuls in all the large German cities. It is estimated here that fully a hundred officials will have to be brought out in some way. The process is one that causes concern among those who fear acts of violence, owing to the state of German feeling.

IMMENSE SENSATION IS CAUSED IN LONDON

NEWS OF SEVERANCE OF RELATIONS BETWEEN GERMANY AND U.S. RECEIVED LATE IN THE AFTERNOON.

LONDON, Feb. 5. — The news of the severance of relations between Germany and the United States reached London during the quiet of the late afternoon, after most of the business and professional men of the city had left for the country or gone to their city homes.

The fact, however, quickly communicated by telephone, caused an immense sensation, especially as the earlier despatches from Washington had caused the public to believe that President Wilson had decided to wait until an overt act was committed before taking any action. The newspapers were quickly on the streets with the announcement. They found most ready buyers, particularly among the Australians and Canadian soldiers who spend their time on leave in wandering about London.

Many Millions Voted By U. S. In the Crisis

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6. — The House this afternoon, under stress of national emergency, almost unanimously adopted Chairman Padgett's Naval Committee report, which appropriates additional millions of dollars for naval preparedness. The House acted in committee of the whole. This assures passage of the items.

Included in the appropriations are 1,250,000, for machine guns; $1,000,000 for anti-aircraft guns and ammunition at arsenals; $5,568,174 for battery and for merchant auxiliaries with $7,294,941 for ammunition for the latter.

All the appropriations mentioned were "additional" to the regular appropriations, which total $351,000,000, and were granted in the form of amendments.

Other appropriations favourably reported to the House to-day, and totalling about $151,000,000, it was said late this afternoon, may be withdrawn as amendments and introduced as separate bills.

TO COMMANDEER PLANTS.

The most far-reaching preparedness legislation ever introduced at one time in both branches of Congress was favourably reported to the House to-day by Chairman Padgett, of the Naval Committee.

The measure authorizes the President to commandeer all shipbuilding plants, all plants capable of producing war materials, places at the President's disposal $150,000,000 to rush completion of ships or needed war materials, and appropriates $1,000,000 to purchase the basic patent of an aeroplane suitable for army and navy use.

Germany's disposition to regard the break with the United States with calmness and deliberation and in a peaceful spirit as expressed by Foreign Minister Zimmerman brings new encouragement to those who hope the breach between the two countries will go no further than a severance of diplomatic relations.

BUT REAL TEST TO COME.

The real test, however, comes on the actual performance of the campaign of unrestricted submarine war fare, and, while all American officials fervently share the hope that the break will go no further, there is no disposition to recede from the position that American lives and rights will be protected by whatever measures are necessary.

The work of preparing for eventualities went steadily forward to-day in all branches of the Government.

Three emergency amendments to the naval bill were presented to the house by Chairman Padgett of the Naval Committee, after conferences with Administration officials.

Naval authorities in charge of private radio stations have been instructed to allow no operators in whose loyalty they have not entire confidence at the keys.

President Wilson and the Cabinet met to-day for the first time since diplomatic relations with Germany were severed. All members were present.

AN AGED WOMAN

Tells How Vinol Made Her Strong.

In her eighty-second year Mrs. John Wickersham, of Russellville, Pa., says: "I was in a run-down, feeble condition and had lost flesh. A neighbour asked me to try Vinol, and after taking two bottles my strength returned; I am gaining in flesh, it has built up my health and I am feeling fine for a woman of my age, so I get around and do my housework."

The reason Vinol was so successful in Mrs. Wickersham's case was because it contains beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptonates and glycerophosphates, the very elements needed to build up a wakened run-down system and create strength.

Editor of the Examiner:

I notice in your report of the visit of the deputation in regard to bathing facilities before the City Council that the deputation urged the passing of a by-law prohibiting bathing anywhere in the river except at the two points selected, probably Inverlea Park and Little Lake. I hope the Council will not accede to this part of the request which, if agreed on, would defeat one of the objects of the movement. For instance, if the Council decide to establish bathing houses at Inverlea Park and on the west side of Little Lake, what are the children in East City going to do? Are they to be prevented from swimming at the Mark street wharf, where there is a natural dressing room in a grove of willows, or at the Vermont Marble Works, with its splendid, sandy beach, or further east, opposite the cemetery, at all of which places the process of disrobing can be carried on without shocking the modesty of the passersby. You couldn't expect the youngsters to walk away up to Inverlea Park or over to Crescent street. The benefit and enjoyment of the swim would be spoiled by the long walk home on a hot day. Again, if an East City point was selected, the same argument would apply in the case of the children in the southern part of the city.

A supervised bathing place with proper dressing rooms is a necessity, especially for the girls and young women of the city and for the smaller children who haven't learned to swim. Inverlea Park would be an ideal spot for such an institution. But since long before our present city fathers were boys, the youngsters of Peterborough have bathed in the river without any harm to themselves or to the morals of anybody else. Give the girls a chance by providing them with a bathing place. The boys are not worrying as long as the "Jacks," "Boat Houses," etc., are available.

Common Sense.

Bernstorff Thinks Most Americans Are Quite Indifferent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7. — The same delusion apparently now afflicts the German people as afflicted them when the war was begun. They thought then that pacifism had undermined the British character as they now think that pacifism will lead the United States to endure any sacrifice rather than fight to protect its rights.

Count Von Bernstorff, until lately the German ambassador, has no such delusions. His analysis of American sentiment is interesting at this time.

A reporter who called at the German embassy found the count alone in his library reading, at the request of an American friend, a copy of H. G. Wells' recent book, "Mr. Britling Sees it Through."

"How, in your opinion," the count was asked, "is American sentiment on the war divided?"

"I am quite convinced on that point," he said. "It is plain to me. There are three great influences in this country at work against us.

"The first is the newspapers. I won't go into that with you. Next is Wall street, or the money power. There is a reason for that. The third is American society, the four hundred, which is perhaps natural, as you are closer to England than to us.

"Speaking broadly, there are 100,000,000 people in this country. I should say that 60,000,000 of that great population are entirely indifferent about the war, and its outcome. Of the 40,000,000 remaining, I say that 25,000,000 are pro-Ally, and 15,000,000 pro-German. That is about the way it stands."

Increase in Population Of Peterborough Public Schools

Pupils Enrolled in 1916 3073—The Average Attendance Was Lower Owing to the Prevalence of Measles During the First Three Months of the Year—The Looking Forward of Pupils to Passing the Entrance Examination, Important as It Is, Should Not Be the Chief Aim of the Public School Course of Study—Inspector Mowat's Report.

The annual report of Mr. A. Mowat, inspector of Public Schools, was submitted to the Board of Education at a meeting held last evening. The report contains much interesting information concerning the work of the Public schools of the city. The members of the Board promised to give Mr. Mowat's recommendations every consideration. The report reads as follows:

Public School Population.

The total number of Public School pupils enrolled in 1916 was 3073, which is a slight increase over the enrollment of 1915 or of any previous year.

The average attendance for 1916 was, however, not so good as for 1915, owing to the prevalence of measles during the months of January, February and March.

The enrolled monthly attendance was, however, not so good as for 1915, there were 61 class rooms, the average number of pupils per teacher was 40.

School Accommodation and Improvements.

During 1916 the Property Committee considerably improved several of the school buildings, which added to the comfort of both pupils and teachers.

The new lavatory at the Queen Alexandra school has improved the sanitary condition of that building. The improvement of the roofs of the Central school buildings and the equipping of a waiting room there for the lady teachers have proven most satisfactory. The appearance of the King Edward school has been much improved by painting and the heating of the Queen Mary, Queen Alexandra and King George schools has been rendered easier by the windows of these buildings having been weather-stripped.

The chief improvements of the year were made in the South Central school. This building has, certainly, been made more comfortable and sanitary than it was, and the enlargement of the grounds should also improve conditions there. Two small improvements were not carried out and I think these should be remedied, as their cost would be comparatively small. I refer to the north hall which was not heated and a waiting room was not provided for the lady teachers. During the present year the grounds of this school should receive attention, as the yard is lower than the surrounding lots and in wet weather it presents the appearance of a pond. This should not be difficult to remedy.

The school accommodation of the city has been fairly adequate up to the present time. The school population is, however, increasing in the south and west of the city. The King Edward and South Central schools are filled to their seating capacity. There are still two rooms in the Queen Mary school unoccupied. By using these rooms and by diverting more pupils from the South Central territory, it may be possible to manage for another year with our present school accommodation, but it would seem advisable for the Board to come to some definite conclusion as to what should be done to meet the demands in the near future for more school accommodation in the southern part of the city. The present accommodation affords no room for the introduction of Household Science and Manual Training in either the South Central or King Edward School.

Progress of the Pupils.

The progress of the pupils, if judged by the number who passed their examinations, is most satisfactory since very few of them failed.

The looking forward of pupils to passing the Entrance Examination, important as it is, should not be the chief aim of the Public School course of study. Children should come to school, not with the object of taking in facts and storing them up for future use, but with the object of living a life during their eight-year course that will build character through physical, mental an moral growth by doing the right thing in the right way and from the right motive.

This growth will depend upon the character of the teacher and the nature of the studies pursued.

It is essential to the success of our schools, that the Board secure, the service of teachers of strength of character, scholarship, ability, energy and culture.

Regarding the studies, while they are fixed by the Education Department, yet, it is quite possible to specially emphasize the more important and thereby derive the greatest possible benefit; of the content subjects viz:—History, Geography and Literature I find considerable improvement in the teaching of History and Geography and also of Literature in the upper forms, but the teachers of the lower forms are greatly handicapped in literature. A love for good literature can only be acquired by familiarizing the children with good books. Unfortunately there is no collection of books for the younger children in any of our schools. There should be a small library in each school containing books suitable for young children. Their reading could then be encouraged and supervised by their teachers. This would not entail a large expenditure of money.

Another weakness of our schools is that they do not afford nearly enough scope in the hand activities, such as sewing, cooking, woodworking and games. These hand activities afford an outlet for pent up energy; they are of practical value. They enable the pupil to discover his own natural inclinations, and best of all they permit the pupil to give expression in some tangible form to his own ideas. These hand activities also supplement the other subjects of study and afford scope for both physical and mental exertion. I hope in the near future the Board may see its way clear to make a wide extension of these activities in all of our public schools.

The school life of our pupils has been enriched and benefited by the introduction of Art and Music.

Cost of Education.

The cost of education is always an important matter and deserving of serious consideration.

Practically the whole cost of Public School Education is determined by the kind of school buildings erected, size of the classes and the teachers' salaries.

I do not think any one will say that our school buildings are too good for the children, and they were erected economically.

The size of the classes is large enough. Forty pupils per room will tax the energy of any teacher.

The lady teachers have already brought the salary question to your attention. I might add that a teacher must have spent several years in preparation for the work. She must live in a comfortable home and will have to pay well for the accommodation. She must dress well. She must spend something on books and magazines. She ought to improve herself by study and travel. Besides all this she ought to save something. To do this under present conditions on a salary of $650.00 increasing to $700.00 is no easy task.

The Staff.

The Public School staff consists of 58 regular teachers, two supervisors, one teacher of Household Science, one of Manual Training, a school nurse and one supply teacher.

In addition to these, two teachers, Captains Park and Munro, are on leave of absence until the end of the war. This makes a total of 64 teachers and Instructors.

Of this number, thre are graduates of Universities, 18 hold First Class certificates; 41 are graduates of Normal Schools, and 6 are Kindergarten Directors and also hold Kindergarten-Primary certificates.

Physical Training.

With very few exceptions the teachers have physical exercises regularly and systematically. As instructed by the Board, I shall report in detail in June on each teacher's work in this branch of instruction.

The organization and supervision of the out-door games for the boys and girls is excellent in some of the schools but poor in others. More equipment should gradually be added and more careful supervision will have to be given in some of the schools, particularly in the activities of the girls.

The Health of the Pupils.

A good beginning has been made in this work by the appointment of the school nurse.

Miss Kennedy has been very helpful in the duties that come under her charge, viz:—

(a) Preventing the spread of contagious diseases.

(b) Promoting cleanliness.

(c) Visiting homes and advising parents in the treatment of minor cases and impressing upon them the need of medical attention in the more serious cases.

There is room for great advancement in the work of caring for the health of the school children. There should be a Dental Clinic in connection with the schools, as many ills arise from bad teeth and a very large percentage of children require dental attention.

Where a Medical Inspector is appointed, he gives every child a physical examination and records of these examinations are kept on file.

This examination covers:

(a) General physical condition, weight, condition of skin, eyes, hearing, teeth, tonsils, spine, tendency towards tuberculosis, malnutrition and nervousness.

(b) Mental defects—about one per cent. of school children are mentally unfit to take up the regular course of study, although many of these children have marked skill along certain lines. These children should be examined and given such work as they are mentally capable of doing. Their presence in the ordinary class room is a menace to the other children as they retard the work of the class.

The Appointment of Teachers.

The policy of the Board has been to appoint the best applicants irrespective of where they reside or where they have been trained.

This is the only possible course to pursue, if our schools are to make progress. In making recommendations for appointment to the staff, I shall continue to carry out the policy of the Board to the best of my ability. The following statement by an Educational authority on the appointment of teachers is instructive; "It is an almost necessary part of a teacher's preparation to go away from home for at least a part of her training, to come in contact with other schools and other methods of work, and to learn to think for herself by rubbing up against a difference in opinions of other people."

Summary.

2. Matters deserving the immediate attention of the Board:

(1) Heating the hall of the South Central school.

(2) Providing a waiting room for the South Central lady teachers.

(3) To make a start in providing Supplementary Reading for the younger children.

(4) To provide cupboards for the Central and South Central schools, in which to keep books and supplies.

b. Matters deserving careful consideration by the Board:

(1) To have more school accommodation provided in the near future in the south part of the city.

(2) To establish Household Science and Manual Training classes in all the Public Schools of the city.

(3) To extend the scope of Medical and Dental Inspection of school children.

(4) To provide more equipment for Physical Training.

(5) To urge upon the City Council the necessity of Bathing Places for the children.

P. S.—The hall in the South Central school has been heated since this report was prepared.

REPORTS ADOPTED BY THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Fire Escapes Will Be Placed on the King Edward School—Class Room Doors on the East and West Ward Schools Will Be Changed to Open Outward—List of Accounts

At last night's meeting of the Board of Education, the following report of the Property committee was adopted:

That owing to the extra work of operating five furnaces the janitor of the South Central school be paid an additional salary from the 1st January, 1917, equal to the amount paid per class room for schools with more than eight rooms.

2. That in view of the fact that the King Edward school is a three-storey building, your committee, after careful consideration, recommend that fire escapes be placed thereon.

3. That the class room doors at the King George and Queen Mary schools be changed to open outward, instead of inward at present.

MUD

By Canadian Overseas

Those of us at home, with our experience of war books and photographs, of Zeppelin raids and crowded hospitals are beginning to feel we know all there is to know about war.

Nevertheless we still have but little conception of life in the trenches and so far as mud is concerned, we know nothing. We have read of Napoleon's "fourth element." We have listened to descriptions of mud in Flanders and France. We have raised incredulous eyebrows, at stories of men being drowned in the trenches. We have given a fleeting thought of pity for the soldiers "out there" as we have slushed home, through the streets on rainy nights, but we have never realized what mud means.

And till the end, while the soldier flounders and staggers about in that awful sucking swamp, the pessimist at home will lean back in his armchair and wonder why the men at the front do not advance more rapidly.

It is the infantry men who suffer most, for they must live, eat and sleep and work in the mud. The plan of dragging slime that stretches from Switzerland to the sea is far worse to face than the enemy. It is more terrible than the frost and the rain, for one cannot even stamp one's feet to drive away the insidious chill the mud always brings. Nothing can keep it from one's clothes and hands and face. There is no taking off boots to dry in the trenches and as one Tommy said, "you must be just as you are and often one is lucky if one has two empty sand bags to save one from the cold embrace of the swamp."

If the mud stretch is desolate by day, it is more so by night. Picture a battalion moving up to the front trenches. The rain comes pitilessly down on the long trail of men who stumble along in the darkness. All the men are well loaded, for besides the pack, rifle and equipment, each man carries a pick or a bag of rations; there is no smoking for they are near the enemy and there is the thought of four days and four nights of watch fulness and wetness in the trenches.

Presently the winding lane strikes off across the mud and this is not mud as we ordinarily know it, but as the soldier describes it—incredibly slippery and impossibly tenacious and each dragging footstep means a tremendous effort."

The men struggle on close up together so that they hardly have room to move.

A man trips and falls, when he rises he is a mass of mud, his rifle barrel is choked with it; it is in his hair, down his neck, everywhere.

As they proceed the mud is even worse, but they must "carry on"—the parapet must be kept in repair, whatever the weather, the sand bags must be filled however, wet or stinking the earth. They must go on digging, shovelling, lining the trench with logs, bricks, tins and planks in the hope that one day they may put enough material in to reach solid ground beneath the mud.

Mud is the most relentless enemy the army can be called up to face. People wonder what has happened to the tanks? Nothing has happened. They have done wonderful work, but cannot cope with more or four feet of slippery clinging mud.

So it is the mud which the men find their greatest enemy, just now, and when even operations slacken it is due to it and not to the enemy's guns.—J.F.B. Canadian Overseas.

DOCTORS ADVISE IRON FOR THE BLOOD

Anaemia, pale faces, nervousness, stomach troubles, watery blood, etc., are some signs of thin blood. Dr. Malmsetter says to men take any of these cases and some any day in the week in two weeks time from the blood and Phosphorus for the nerves, called Wincarnis (pronounced with Ease). I have found that 95 per cent. of all stomach, liver, kidney, bowel, nerve, etc., troubles are traced back direct to the blood. Just as much as Hemoglobin with Iron in it is almost immediately absorbed by the system the blood kills the germ which otherwise are soothed by the phosphorus, makes you eat better, feel better, look better, sleep better, and finally you will be 100 per cent. stronger. Do not be talking all sorts of patent medicines and laxatives which only ruin your system; go to the root of the trouble and start taking Iron and Phosphorus your blood, restore your nerves, and your digestion and will change your whole system, pick now the Dominion Phosphorus with Iron in dispensed by one druggist in each city. F. C. Walker dispenses it for Peterboro.

"Peg O' My Heart" Coming

The attraction at "The Grand" Theatre for Monday next, February 12th, will be J. Hartley Manners' exquisite comedy of youth "Peg O' My Heart." The action of the play takes place in Scarboro, England, and has for its central figure a wild, mischievous girl who has been reared in poverty in New York, and who nevertheless has preserved a flower-like fragrance of nature born to the wildwood.

Loyalty to her father and to her father's country (Ireland), and the memory of an aristocratic mother are the watchwords of her nature. The play has an abundance of humorous situations and plenty of heart interest. The United Producing Company, under whose management the production is offered, have given it a splendid stage equipment and an excellent cast, including Marion Bentler, the Morosco Star, who will again be seen in the character of Peg, and William Sauter as "Jerry" the young Englishnobleman. Others in the cast are Kathryn Sheldon as Mrs. Chichester, Mabel Barring as Ethel, Harrison Warner as Brent, Vern Du Shayne as Alario, H. Nelson Dickson as Hawkes, and Charles Hicklin as the Butler, who has no sense of humor. The seat sale opens Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

White Advises A Town Spanker As "Foolish" Cure

EMPORIA, Kas., Feb. 2.—Wm. Allen White, Emporia's w.k. guide philosopher, and friend, in Populist days, asked and answered the question, "What's the matter with Kansas?" thereby laying the foundation for his fame.

Mr. White has just discovered "What's the matter with Kansas now."

The chief trouble, he finds, is that there is no official spanker for the boys and the girls of the small towns of the state. And he suggests that legislature pass an enabling act that will let the towns designate an official spanker.

SKIRTS OPPORTUNITY No. 1.

"The other day," said Mr. White, in discussing the latest town need, "a high school girl came sailing down the street wearing a skirt that was short even for a high school girl, and a pair of apple colored stockings which would have created a sensation on a chorus girl.

"There was opportunity No. 1 for the city spanker.

"The stockings were innocent and so was the girl, but behind the stockings and strung along for a block were a dozen high school boys. A wayfarer in passing the boys, probably heard a dozen remarks.

"The girl was not to blame for the remarks made by the horrid boys, although the horrid boys did pass perhaps a dozen properly clad girls without going to the trouble of saying anything improper.

SPANKING FOR GIRL'S MOTHER

"The average boy of high school age has good eyesight, and for that matter anyone could follow the course of those stockings across the street without either his faraway or near-to spectacles.

"Our first opinion was that the girl ought to be spanked, and then that the boys ought to be spanked. But we now think that the third opportunity for the city spanker was on the mother of the girl and he should not undertake this little job until he has had a good rest after attending to all his other duties.

"We need a town spanker for a number of fool matters."

SALE OF PIANOS IN BRITAIN IS DOUBLED

That the manufacture and sale of pianos has increased more than one hundred per cent. in Great Britain since the beginning of the war and that every piano factory is now running night and day to supply the demand was one of the curious paradoxes shown by Miss Grace Parker in her speech before the members of the American Fund for French Wounded and the Vacation War Relief Committee at their headquarters, No. 122 Madison avenue, on Friday afternoon.

She also stated that there was an unparalleled increase in the manufacture and sale of cheap jewelry since the beginning of the war.

"The war has given work at high wages to a vast number of English persons, who have hitherto never dreamed of attaining such affluence," said Miss Parker. "To thousands upon thousands of these workers the opportunity has come of possessing a piano. As to the jewelry business prosperity, every English Tommy, the very moment he enlists, is almost dead certain to be the recipient of a wrist watch or an identification bracelet, and with almost equal certainty that same Tommy will invest a portion of his first month's pay in buying some little trinklet of memento for his wife, sister or sweetheart.

Germans Assisted Housatonic's Crew

SUBMARINE TOWED BOATS TOWARDS SHORE AND SIGNALLED BRITISH PATROL BOAT.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7. — The possibility that the sinking of the American steamer Housatonic will become a serious factor in the crisis with Germany apparently was eliminated to-day by evidence that the attacking submarine acted within international law. American consul Stephens at Plymouth reported that warning was given and provision made for the safety of the crew.

Consul Stephens' despatch said:

"American steamer Housatonic loaded with a cargo of wheat for the British government, torpedoed by German submarine 12.20 on February 3rd. Vessel warned and total crew of 37 rescued by submarine and towed for ninety minutes behind submarine towards land. Submarine fired signal to British patrol boat, which subsequently landed crew at Pensance."

ORDERS TO SINK EVERYTHING.

LONDON, Feb. 7. — When hailed by the submarine, the Housatonic was flying the American flag, and had the American colours painted on her side, says a despatch to the Central News. The crew was given an hour in which to leave the ship, the submarine commander saying: "I have orders to sink every vessel coming to England."

POSTERS HURT RECRUITING

MILITARY HAVE COMPLAINED TO OTTAWA ABOUT MUNITION WORK ADS.

TORONTO, Feb. 6.—Gross lack of co-ordination among several authorities is charged in connection with recent advertisements urging munition workers to speed up.

It is urged by those who have lodged the complaint at Ottawa that money has been wasted in a fruitless appeal. The military authorities claim that considerable harm was done to recruiting throughout this district by reason of posters and advertisements for munition workers. The complaint was lodged at Ottawa, and no more advertisements appeared. The advertisements were not issued by the Imperial Munitions Board, but by the National Service directors. The recruiting officials who protested against the posters say it was outside the province of these directors to issue such posters.

HORSE SHIED AT STREET CAR DRIVER TRIED TO AVOID

Keeping to the back streets to avoid street cars, Mrs. Peter McArthur, Frank street, Byersville, was driving east on Brock street shortly before noon to-day, and arrived at the George street crossing just as a George street car was passing south. From the reports of the resulting minor mishap, the horse shied, and turning sharply to the south, upset Mrs. McArthur and her grandson and dashed across the street, running full tilt into the door of the Globe Tailoring Company on the south-west corner of George and Brock streets. The only apparent damage were the broken shafts, the broken window in the door, and minor scratches on the horse's head where it had poked its nose through the window. Mrs. McArthur and the boy apparently escaped injury.

Ready to Welcome Dorothy's Husband

NEW YORK, Feb. 6—If Dorothy Denike, only sixteen years old, has encumbered herself with a husband, as her parents fear, since she disappeared from the East Orange High School, three weeks ago, she will be none the less welcome at her home, at No. 17 Schuyler place, that city. She also should know that if she has a husband he will be welcome, too. There will be no harsh words, but instead there will be a fatted calf and any other delicacies she may hanker for and she won't have to go to school any more.

The reason for all these concessions by her father, Albert Denike, a New York merchant, is that her mother, is very ill and always is asking if anything has been heard of Dorothy.

At the time Dorothy disappeared a young man under twenty, who had been very friendly with her, also left his home, and he has been missing, too. Relatives and friends have been unable to find either of them, and the East Orange police were asked to make public inquiries for the girl.

ONLY OPERATORS KNOWN TO BE LOYAL AMERICANS ARE ALLOWED.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 6—Naval authorities in charge of private radio stations have been instructed to allow no operators in whose loyalty they have not entire confidence at the keys. Under this authority a change has been made in the operating force at the Tuckerton station The new orders apply to all plants and direct that aliens be kept away from the stations. The navy censors established as a neutrality precaution are now exercising military censorship as well, with specific instructions to prevent news that might be of military value to an enemy of the United States from being sent out.

Which newer hordes could not efface;
One older than the iron sword
And older than the oldest lord,
One older than the Druids' ring
And older than the German King,
Is he. The Tudors' years are few,
Plantagents' and Stewarts', too,
While he, before the Romans rose,
Dwelt where sweet Avon's water flows.

In England's hour of sorest need
She turns to her most ancient breed,
And finds in Wales her strongest man,
One built upon heroic plan.
He, when her ship is tempest-tossed,
Keeps what Boadicea lost.

With mighty arm on which to cling
The Briton stands beside the King.
He jostles all the haughty peers,
This man of many thousand years.

Ou, Angle, Saxon, Norman, Dane,
Yo conquerers, all proud and vain,
Old Time, long brooding by Stonehenge,
Has brought the Briton his revenge.
And now on him, his Queen, the whiles,
The fair Boadicea smiles.

Record of the War to the End of January.

New York, Feb. 6. — Submarines, mines, and other war causes destroyed more merchant tonnage during January than during any single month since the beginning of the war. The record compiled by the Journal of Commerce from all reports received in this country, including cable despatches, mail advices and information obtained from other sources, shows that last month approximately 154 merchant vessels of all types and classes, with an aggregate gross tonnage of 336,997, were sunk. This brings the total destruction for the war period, corrected to date, to 2,361 vessels of 4,368,766 gross tons.

A REAL EXPERIENCE.

"Yes," said a travelling man, "I was once out of sight of land on the Atlantic Ocean twenty-one days."

Another man spoke up: "On the Pacific Ocean one time I didn't see land for twenty-nine days."

A bald man knocked the ashes from his cigar and contributed his bit:

I started across the Kaw River at Topeka in a skiff once," he said, "and was out of sight of land before I reached the other side."

"What!" demanded the man who had spun the first yarn. "The Kaw is not more than 300 feet wide at Topeka."

"Quite true," said the bald man quietly. "The skiff turned over and I sank twice."

German Government Witholds American Ambassador's Passports

Ambassador Gerard, Officials of the American Embassy, Newspaper Correspondents, and American Citizens Will Not Be Permitted to Leave Germany Until Safe Conduct Has Been Granted to German Ambassador Bernstorff —Indignation Expressed in Washington.

AMERICAN-PRUSSIAN TREATY

Special to The Examiner:

BERLIN, February 8.—It is officially announced to-day that the German Government will not permit American Ambassador Gerard, officials of the American Embassy, American newspaper correspondents or American citizens to leave Germany, until it has received information that safe conduct has been granted German Ambassador Bernstorff and his staff.

Passports to Americans are also contingent upon Berlin ascertaining Washington's attitude toward the American-Prussian treaty permitting citizens of Germany and of the United States nine months after a cessation of diplomatic relations between the nations, in which to adjust their business.

Ambassador Gerard announced to-day that he would not leave unless the American correspondents and other American citizens could leave also. Berlin continues quiet, there are no demonstrations.

WASHINGTON INDIGNANT.

WASHINGTON, February 8.—Complete astonishment was expressed in official circles this morning, coupled with indignation, over Germany's with-holding of Ambassador Gerard's passports.

Officials said the California sinking might be the "overt act" necessary to convince President Wilson that the Imperial German Government is indeed bent on carrying out to the letter "the wilful prosecution of the ruthless naval programme," announcement of which caused Wilson to sever relations.

The fact that no Americans perished was simply a case of "pure luck" officials admitted.

TORONTO BALL PLAYER HOME FROM FRANCE

MONTREAL, February 7.—Lieut. "Bill" O'Hara, of Toronto, a former International League ball player, was in Montreal yesterday en route home on furlough. He left Canada over a year ago to join the Royal Flying Corps, after which he was transferred to the 24th Battalion, a Montreal regiment, under the command of Lieut.-Col. John Gunn, a former Toronto man. Lieut. O'Hara and a number of his friends, including Gordon Dineen, of Toronto, and Lieut. Eddie McCammon, of Kingston, spent yesterday in the city. They leave for home to-day.

HIS EXPERIENCES.

Lieut. O'Hara tells interesting stories of his experiences at the front. He was buried for several hours after an artillery duel between the Germans and the Canadians. He was sent to a hospital to recover from shrapnel wounds, after which he was granted six weeks' sick leave, this enabling him to visit his home. Lieut. O'Hara has been as successful as a soldier as he was at playing baseball, and was used as a grenade thrower for the first few weeks after being transferred to the infantry.

OTHERS RETURN ALSO.

Capt. "Chubby" Powers, one of the best-known hockey players in the province of Quebec, also returned with the party. Captain Powers, for conspicuous gallantry, was decorated with the Military Cross. In December, 1915, he was wounded. He rejoined his regiment, and in September, 1916, was again wounded. His arm is badly maimed. Captain Powers and Lieut. O'Hara became fast friends on the voyage to Canada.

Lieut. O'Hara was surprised to meet Dan Howley, manager of the Royals, in Montreal. O'Hara was pleased to hear that Lajoie has been selected to manage the Toronto team this season. He said that he would like to be back in the game, but that the game overseas was greater and more important.

LOCAL WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

While the markets are generally steady this week, the increasing cost of potatoes is decidedly discouraging to the great body of consumers who were forced to make their purchases in small lots; 60c a peck for potatoes of questionable qualities in many cases, may be welcome to the trade, especially to retail grocers, who have fall him, but to the consumer it is a too frequent and painful reminder of the high cost of living. It leaves a feeling of helplessness against an exploitation that may be more apparent than real, and of hopelessness that some measure of protection may be provided by those who are expected to safeguard the people against just such extortionate stringencies as high priced potatoes and other food commodities.

Potatoes, wholesale, are as close to $3 a bag that the difference is negligible. Matthews-Blackwell quote $13.75 for live hogs this week.

Eggs are weaker at 40c but on the Saturday markets sales of guaranteed fresh eggs have been made at 50c recently.

Butter remains steady. The Sun says: "Butter prices are being hammered down because the trade will not stand the high prices, and yet in spite of another decline of 4c per lb. in creamery, the retail stores are not showing any particular weakness in price, evidently being determined to keep the extra profit in their own tills as long as possible. Meanwhile they are furnishing the people and the newspapers ammunition for a popular demand for oleomargarine."

CREAM AT TORONTO.

While the Toronto Creamery paid 47c per lb. of fat net to shippers for churning cream for the last half of January it has warned its patrons that a lower price may be possible in the near future as a result of the decline of the market. "Whatever goes up is sure to come down" sooner or later.

Sweet cream is unchanged at 50c per lb. of fat delivered at Toronto. The demand for this grade of cream is good but a little below the normal.

COMPARISON OF FIGURES.

	1917	1916	1915
Cattle	$11.80	$8.35	$6.35
Sheep	12.50	8.75	6.80
Lambs	14.50	12.60	9.35
Hogs	14.75	10.65	8.30
Fall wheat	1.70	1.15	1.60
Oats	.70	.49	.70
Butter (creamery)	.40	.32	.35
Eggs	.50	.32	.30

Amsterdam, Feb. 8 (via London)---According to the Berlin Tageblatt the American Embassy Officials in Berlin Have Ascertained That There Are 2,600 American Citizens in Germany--There Are Only About 350 Americans in Berlin.

TO CONTROL RADIO PLANTS

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, February 8.—Reports that German authorities have decided to hold Ambassador Gerard in Berlin until assured of good treatment of Count von Bernstorff by the Washington Government threw a new element into the German-American situation. Officials were hopeful, however, that Great Britain's promise of safe conduct for the German ambassador and his party for the sea trip home, will speedily remove any possible intention of detaining the American representative.

The Government is still waiting for some act of Germany which might make relations suddenly more serious, but it was stated after the Cabinet meeting that nothing had occurred to change that attitude. The next step of the United States, if one should be necessary, will be taken without addressing any communication to Germany, it was declared authoritatively.

Congress and all executive departments of the Government are progressing in their preparations for any eventuality. It is this activity which has surprised Entente diplomats and caused them to emphasize their hope that the United States will not actually go to war. They fear a declaration of war would harm the Entente cause by stopping the export of munitions.

A break with Austria seemed to depend mainly on the reply of Ambassador Penfield at Vienna to the State Department's inquiry concerning details of the Austrian submarine note, which officials now admit has been received.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels has urged immediate congressional action looking to establishment of a Government monopoly of all radio plants. The naval bill with its $15,000,000 additions made by the House was still before that body yesterday, and debate on the Army bill was likely to start late this week, following passage of the Naval measure.

A Sure Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

$1,000,000 Weapon Offered To Wilson

HAMMOND'S WIRELESS TORPEDO AND THERMITE BOMB OF GREAT SERVICE.

Gloucester, Mass., Feb. 8. — A weapon of war for which Congress has appropriated nearly $1,000,000 for its purchase, has been offered free to the Secretary of War by its inventor, John Hays Hammond, Junior, who has wired to that effect to the Secretary of War. Hammond's wireless torpedo controlled from shore by wireless waves and reputed to be a most valuable weapon to be used against an invading enemy, and upon which the government now has a corps of army engineers working, will be turned over to the government upon a moment's notice from the Secretary of War that the same is desired by him for coast defence purposes.

With the torpedo goes Hammond's thermite bomb, a highly explosive grenade, capable of killing by gas fumes at 200 yards, and at the same time setting fire to whatever might come in contact with it. Both of these inventions have been approved for purchase by the government, and they can be had for nothing if the nation is plunged into war with Germany, young Hammond told a reporter this evening.

WHY GERMANS WANT PEACE.

Observations of Woman Who Visited Huns at Home.

Miss Madeleine Z. Doty last summer went to Germany. In part, at least, her purpose was to carry aid to underfed German babies; but it was in part to observe conditions there. Her report is appearing on successive Sundays in The New York Tribune and in The Chicago Tribune. Miss Doty is well-known for what she has done on behalf of prison reform.

She found the German people suffering from physical privations and the mental strain of war. The food that she had, except in the very best of hotels and in certain private homes, was inadequate. "Prison diet," she says, "does not promote health or strength. One can live on it, but patriotism and temper suffer." The people at a cafe which she describes were "shrunken listless, distraught." She could not swallow the cakes that were served. "Only the music is cheerful," she says. "There is a revival of band playing in Germany. It is needed to hide the lack of laughter and talk . . . life has become mere existence, a prison existence." A satisfying meal she reports as a noteworthy experience. After one such meal she writes: "It seems cruel to eat of Germany's best, but I decided to live henceforth at the most expensive hotels."

Since her preceding visit the year before she reports a change in the attitude of the German people toward America:

To-day the average person is pathetically eager to be friends. Slowly the people are awakening. For months the newspapers have fed them on the triumphs of Germany and the perfidy of other nations. But these stories of glorious German victories have resulted in what? A lean and barren country, under-nourishment, death, the hatred of other nations. The people begin to doubt their leaders.

Her account of being spied upon is amusing. She tells of doubling on her tracks when she went to visit a member of the Social Democratic party, in order that she might avoid observation. She saw enough of spies to form the following impression:

The funny thing about German spies is that they dress for the part. They are as unmistakable as Sherlock Holmes. They nearly always wear gray clothes, a soft gray hat, are pale-faced, shifty-eyed, smooth-shaven, or have only a slight moustache, and carry canes.

One spy she describes as standing out in the rain from three in the afternoon until nine o'clock. "I simply cannot take him seriously. My friend and I get into gales of laughter. I want to go out and invite him in to tea. He looks so miserable." "But," she acknowledges, "before I leave Germany the spies get on my nerves. What was at first amusing becomes a nuisance."

Even the horses show underfeeding. They are "chiefly valuable as a study in bone anatomy." She looks into their dinner-pails, and never finds there anything but chopped straw. She reverts to the appearance of the people. "They are thin. I didn't see a big girth anywhere. Food without bread, sugar, or meat she likens to "trying to run a wagon without oil. It begins to creak."

She describes the diet kitchens, and tells what good food can be had there. But "the day laborers cannot frequent city feeding kitchens. They cannot afford it. . . . Such places are a godsend to the middle class, the small storekeepers whose business has failed, clerks, and stenographers, but for the unskilled laborer the price is prohibitive."

She sums up the food situation in these words:

The tragedy in Germany is not quick starvation, it is the underfeeding of a whole race. . . . It is hard to be discontented and progressive when the stomach is full and the land flows with milk and honey. But suffering has come and a new race is emerging—a lean race, with active minds that begin to question German autocracy and militarism.

Miss Doty, on the other hand, is accustomed to observing people in the lower strata of life, and in Germany she sees privation and hardship. The suffering that war has brought upon Germany is largely hidden from the outside world, but it is to be remembered that it is also largely hidden from a great part of the German people themselves.

Hard Times Ahead.

The adored daughter was sad.

"Father," she said, "what has come over you? Since I can remember, I never had a wish you were not anxious to gratify and you even anticipated my wants and handed me money for all sorts of things that I hadn't even thought of. But now I have to ask you for every cent I need, and you growl and grunt and ask if I think you are made of money, and you rail at a woman's extravagance and invariably ask me what on earth I did with that last check or dollar or half dollar you gave me. ' It is very strange. Don't you love me any more, father?"

"My dear Ethel," her father answered, "I love you as much as ever. But you are soon to be married, and I am trying gradually to prepare you for the change."

JEWELRY IN TRENCHES.

Making of Rings and Other Things Soldiers' Pastime.

The monotony of life in the French, as in the British trenches is varied by a number of small industries, turning to account bits of stone or wood or enemy cartridge cases and spent bullets in ingenious trifles for use or for ornament.

Quite the most popular manufacture is that of finger rings from the aluminum used in German shells—"les bagues boches" they are called. These are of many kinds, from roughly hollowed out circlets to highly polished rings decorated with delicately shaped fern leaves and hearts or inlaid with pieces of polished French copper on the top of the German metal. The French soldiers carry this passion for making amateur jewelry into hospitals.

The British nurses at L'Abbaye Royaumont tell us that most of their patients who can use their hands, are busy making "les bagues boches" at every available moment after the surgeon's morning visit. They all have their little stores of German aluminum in their musettes of pockets and many have brought with them a complete outfit of files, vice, emery paper, and finger blocks cut from bits of sticks. When the time comes for the "sortants" to bid goodbye to comrades and staff there is an interchange of souvenirs. Then it is that "les bagues boches" fulfil a pleasant destiny of further strengthening the entente cordiale as gifts for the fingers of British ward sisters and nurses.—Manchester Guardian.

Italy's New War Taxes.

Italy's new war taxes, to be applied, beginning next June, are expected to bring upwards of forty million dollars. The heaviest tax, apparently, is intended to fall on manufacturers of war supplies, to the extent of 60 per cent. on profits of over 20 per cent. of invested capital. An additional tax of three-tenths of one per cent. is levied on the foreign companies doing business in Italy. Another heavy tax falls on property-owners. A direct tax of five per cent. monthly is to be paid by owners of apartment and tenement houses, or on rented houses. A small direct tax is imposed on all soldiers and officers who, though mobilized, do not form part of the active fighting troops, and another tax is imposed on men who perform no military duty because of ill-health or other reasons.

Indigestion Resulted From An Inactive Liver

The Bowels Became Constipated and the Whole Digestive System Upset

With many people constipation becomes a habit. And it is a dangerous habit which is certain sooner or later to cause serious disease.

"Daily movement of the bowels" is the first and most important rule of health. When the liver becomes torpid the flow of bile into the intestines is stopped and the bowels become constipated. But you can readily overcome this condition by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. There is no treatment obtainable which so promptly awakens the activity of the liver and bowels and thereby corrects derangements of the digestive system.

Mrs. Herbert Doherty, of Beaver Brook, Albert Co., N.B., writes: "I can truthfully say that Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are a great medicine for constipation. I have suffered from constipation ever since I can remember, but got to using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and was so benefited that I began to study this malady. I found that the indigestion resulted from a bad case of inactive liver, and as soon as I got the liver working right I didn't have any stomach trouble or indigestion. I cannot praise this medicine too highly, and would advise anyone suffering from indigestion or constipation to use Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. My husband also claims that these pills have done him more good than any medicine he ever used. You are at liberty to use this letter."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills positively relieve and cure torpid liver, constipation, biliousness, indigestion, backache and kidney disease. Put it to the test. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

ARE YOU CAREFUL

about the sort of ointment you use for your children? Do you know that an ointment applied to the skin enters the system just as surely as a remedy that is swallowed? That is why you should use only the purest substance, and the purest obtainable is Zam-Buk, which is a rare balm—not a coarse ointment.

Zam-Buk's purity is due to the fact that it is composed entirely of vegetable oils and herbal extracts and that it contains none of the animal fat or poisonous and irritating mineral drugs found in ordinary ointments. It is therefore suitable for the most sensitive skin—even the skin of a baby.

Mothers who have once used Zam-Buk say they could not do without it and children who have once had Zam-Buk applied will cry for it again because it ends their pain.

As a "first aid" Zam-Buk is wonderful—it ends pain and heals so quickly. Being germicidal it prevents all danger of festering.

Zam-Buk is also unequalled for eczema, pimples, blood-poisoning, ulcers, piles, cuts, burns, chilblains, chapped hands, frost bites and all skin diseases. 50c. druggists and stores, or direct from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto.

Purchases for Britain Are Made on Huge Scale By Government at Ottawa

DURING the past two years the Department of Agriculture has purchased for the British authorities hay, oats, and flour to the value of nearly fifty-two million dollars. Without agents or commissions, quietly and unostentatiously, the department, under the direction of Hon. Martin Burrell, has made these enormous purchases and has saved hundreds of thousands of dollars for Great Britain and put millions in the pockets of the farmers of Canada.

In October, 1914, the Minister of Agriculture was asked if his department would undertake the purchase of hay for Great Britain. Mr. Burrell at once complied and an organization for the purpose was perfected. A plant with Government compressors was established in Montreal which at the height of the season handles six thousand tons a week, employing five hundred men. There are also Government compressors in New Brunswick, Nova Scotia, and Prince Edward Island.

The compressing plant in Montreal has been in operation almost continuously since it was first started, the only exception being for a short time when the crop of 1915 had been exhausted and before that of 1916 was available. In 1915 when there was a shortage of hay in the east two compressors were sent to Alberta, where there was a good crop of timothy hay, and were located at Calgary. An extremely low freight rate was secured and between fifteen and sixteen thousand tons, a few hundred tons of which were upland prairie hay, were secured in that province. This was the first hay which was ever shipped out of Alberta.

At the same time the Department undertook the purchase of hay Mr. Burrell was asked to look after the purchase of oats for the British War Office. This also has grown to be an enormous business. The supply of oats is secured chiefly in the West, and shipped from Fort William and Port Arthur by lake steamers to Georgian Bay ports, Port Colborne, Kingston, and Montreal. Owing to the high water rates during 1916 it has been possible to ship all rail to Montreal or West St. John at practically the same cost as by water.

The War Office was so pleased with the manner in which the Department of Agriculture had handled the purchases of hay and oats that a year ago Mr. Burrell was requested to undertake the purchases of flour. A flour expert was sent out from London to assist in the matter. The plan followed in purchasing flour was as follows: A standard specification for a straight grade flour to contain not more than 13 per cent. of moisture was sent out generally, and all mills were invited to deposit a five-pound type sample on this specification. If the sample was satisfactory it was registered and put aside as the basis of any future offers that might be made by the mill submitting it. Qualified inspectors are located at the different sea-board points to draw samples from every car, compare these with the type sample and also forward a sample to the Dominion chemist at the Experimental Farm for moisture determination. Any excessive moisture over the amount allowed in the specification is debited to the contractor.

The following is a summary of the purchases of hay, oats, and flour to October, 1916:

	Tons.	Bushels.	Bags.
Oats	692,789	40,752,320	17,319,472
Hay	370,021
Flour	202,374	10,846,452	5,684,472

In sending these huge supplies overseas 339 transports were fully or partially loaded up to October 1st. For the inland movement of the baled hay, oats, and flour it has required about 60,000 railway cars or equal to 1,500 trains of 40 cars each.

In the purchase of these supplies there has been expended to October 1, the sum of $51,367,283.06.

The organization and general management of this business is in the hands of Mr. J. A. Ruddick, Dominion Dairy Commissioner. He is assisted in the operations by Mr. W. W. Moore, Chief of the Markets Division of the Dairy branch and Mr. J. L. Grant, of London, England, assists in the purchase of flour.

HANS ROTH OF RUMISBERG.

Perpetual Gratitude Shown to Man Who Saved City.

A few months ago the authorities of the Swiss canton of Soleure were making efforts to locate the eldest male descendant of Hans Roth of Rumisberg, near Soleure, in order that he might receive the Honorary Rebe and Yearly Pension voted his mediaeval ancestors as a token of gratitude for a service he rendered the city at a critical moment.

It was in the year 1382 when an unscrupulous member of the once powerful family of the Counts of Kyburg planned to take and plunder the towns of Soleure, Beinse, Thun, and Aarberg. Soleure figured as the first on the program and with the aid of Count Diethelm of Neuchatel and some treacherous inmates of the St. Ursus Abbey in Soleure, he prepared to enter into the city and to rob and kill the inhabitants.

On the night appointed for the manoeuvre the conspirators in the convent muffled the big bells of the church to this prevent the citizens from hearing a possible alarm sounded by the watchman. A nearby village was the meeting point for the noblemen and their knights and there in a lonesome inn the leaders were once more discussing their ruthless plans. And while they were talking and gloating over the spoils which would shortly be theirs, there sat behind the big tile stove in the corner of the room a man who overheard it all. He was a farmer from the neighboring village of Rumisberg, by the name of Hans Roth. When his presence was detected he feigned sleep; however, the knights were suspicious and insisted that he take oath that he had not heard anything of their conversation and that he would not tell anybody of this meeting.

But when he was finally released, Hans Roth took the shortest path to the city, and as he had sworn not to speak to any human being about the recent occurrence he related his story to the bells of St. Ursus and asked the watchman at the gate to listen. After informing the burghermasters about the gruesome fate planned for the city the watchman hurried to take away the muffling from the big bells. The alarm was given and when the troops of the Count of Kyburg arrived they found Soleure ready for defense and were consequently obliged to retreat without having accomplished the planned invasion.

As an everlasting token of gratitude to the heroic farmer, the town of Soleure created a fund which was to perpetually provide to the eldest male descendant of Hans Roth an annual pension, as well as every two years a new festive garment, made of fine material in the colors of Soleure—white and red.

This custom has been religiously observed since its establishment and up to the present day, and when the eldest male member of the family Roth of Rumisberg died last spring, the Government of the canton of Soleure made immediate efforts to locate the next eldest male descendant of Hans Roth. A careful investigation of the records showed that the present rightful claimant is Ludwig Friedrich Roth, a man of eighty-four years of age, living in the tiny village of Loan near Soleure. This eldest descendant of the house of Hans Roth was born on May 30, 1833, in Neider-Gerlafingen, on the turbulent River Emme. His father was a blacksmith and as there were nine children in the family, young Ludwig had to work hard from early boyhood. For an uninterrupted period of fifty years he worked in the big iron works at Gerlafingen, retiring only when he had attained the age of sixty-five. From that time on he has been living with his only daughter and her family.

And early in last the turn of Ludwig Friedrich Roth has come. Arrayed in his festive white and red garment he received the personal good wishes of the Government of the canton of Soleure and his relatives and friends have since related how this solemn event has altogether rejuvenated and transformed the old man.

If Strength Declines As Age Advances Follow This Suggestion

So many women grow old before their time, perhaps your wife or sister. A little while ago, buoyant, full of vigor and activity — she enjoyed life and imparted pleasure to the whole family; but now in a few short years she has faded and lost colour and strength. She is just ready to develop some disease that will further weaken and debilitate. You remember how it began, failure of appetite, tired in the morning, found housework burdensome, always nervous and a little irritable. It's a shame to let her go down hill further when you can build her up so quickly with Ferrozone. The change this nourishing tonic makes in a weak woman is surprising. It gives great zest for food, increases appetite and digestion enormously. The blood gets richer and stronger and adds new life to every organ in the body. A rebuilding process works through the entire system. The first week will show an improvement, and a month or two will fatten up the thinnest, most run-down woman you can think of. Take Ferrozone for lost colour, for nervousness, for weakness, — use it when run-down and feeling poorly — it will do you more lasting good, keep you in better health, than anything else. Just as good for men and children, too, because Ferrozone is harmless and safe. 50c. per box or six for $2.50, at all dealers, or direct by mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

The White Haired Stranger

By ALAN HINSDALE

Luigi Carrano, a young officer in the Italian army, was so expert with the foil that he was detailed for duty at the Praetorian camp near Rome as a teacher of fencing.

Luigi loved and was beloved by Bianca Cellini, a younger daughter of a nobleman. The Cellinis were of better blood than the Carranos, but there were a number of girls in the family to be married off, and on that account Luigi was accepted as a suitor for Bianca's hand. Her father was dead, and her brother, Ricardo, was the acknowledged head of the family.

Not long after the betrothal between Luigi and Bianca Jose Herrera came to Rome from Madrid. On account of his wealth he created quite a sensation in society at the capital. When he saw Bianca he straightway fell in love with her and made application for her to her brother. He was informed that the girl was engaged, but he determined to have her in any event. Ricardo was always in want of money and found a ready lender in Herrera. In this way the latter placed the former so heavily in debt to him that he found little difficulty in forcing him to enter into a plot with himself to get rid of Luigi. Between them they worked up a case against Luigi of complicity in a conspiracy that was unearthed about that time to dethrone the king of Italy and declare a republic. Their written evidence was forged, and their principal witness was paid a large sum for his testimony. But Luigi was not able to prove this. He was degraded from his rank in the army and imprisoned in a fortress for a term of years. Since Bianca could not marry the man she loved, she was finally persuaded to wed the Spaniard, who carried her away to Madrid.

A dozen years passed. One day a man with a white beard and hair, whose other features indicated that he was prematurely old, appeared in Rome. A man named Rodrigo Sanci, a man of good family, but whose poverty had prevented his taking his place in society, was sitting at a restaurant table on the side-walk in the Piazza Colonna, when the white haired stranger passed him and stared at him. Sanci naturally returned the stare. The stranger asked why he was thus stared at. Sanci replied by asking a like question. The stranger, taking up a wineglass from the table before Sanci, threw the contents in the latter's face.

The next morning two parties came together in a desolate place on the Campagna. Sanci and the stranger fought with swords used by officers of the army, and Sanci was killed. The skill displayed by the stranger was considered remarkable.

Within a few days after this affair Ricardo Cellini was sitting with some friends in the Pincian gardens when a man with white hair and beard approached him and said:

"Good afternoon, Signor Cellini."

"You have the advantage of me, signor," replied Ricardo, regarding the other curiously.

"But I know you, and I know you to be a liar and a coward."

Cellini flushed and half started up, as if to attack his accuser.

"Do not exert yourself here among your friends. If you have any message for me it will reach me at No. — Via Nationale."

With that the stranger withdrew.

It was impossible for Cellini to retain his social position in face of such an insult without resenting it, and he sent a friend to negotiate with the white haired stranger. The latter refused to give his name, and had it not been for the gravity of the charge on this account Cellini would not have pressed the matter. There being no choice for him, he agreed to a meeting at a point on the Janiculum hill above St. Peter's. He fell before the steel point of his adversary.

The stranger was now recognized as the man who had killed Rodrigo Sanci, and people began to wonder who would be the next victim of this remarkable fencer. But after the last duel he disappeared and never was seen again in Rome.

José Herrera at this time was a widower. Whether his wife had learned of the way by which he obtained possession of her or on account of his cruelty to her, she died within a few years after their marriage. One day Herrera was walking on one of the streets of Madrid when a man with white hair and beard obstructed his path. Herrera shifted aside; the white haired man did the same.

"Get out of my way!" said Herrera to him.

"I was once in your way, and you forced me out of it, and that, too, by dishonorable means. This time you can force me to let you pass in one way only."

"What is that?"

"Promise to meet me tomorrow morning at sunrise at the spot usually selected for the settlement of difficulties between gentlemen and you can pass."

"Who are you?"

"I will tell you after it has been decided which of us is to die."

By this time a number of persons had collected, among them several who knew Herrera. He agreed to the meeting and the next morning received his quietus at the hands of the unknown stranger.

As he was dying his opponent bent over him and said:

"I am Luigi Carrano."

SHE GAINED 36 POUNDS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont, writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy, had nervous headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, and was in fact, a semi-invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up but by using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 36 pounds in weight."

OUR MINERAL WEALTH.

Canada Possesses Some of World's Richest Mines.

Mr. Arthur A. Cole, President of the Canadian Mining Institute, addressed the Empire Club of Toronto recently. To show the importance of the mining industry in Northern Ontario he gave the figures of freight carried by the Temiskaming Northern Ontario Railway during the last five years, showing that 47 per cent. was contributed by the mines and 13 per cent. by agriculture. Taking the whole of Canada, the railways carried in 1913 the products of mines, 38 per cent. of the total freight, of agriculture, 16 per cent. of the total, while manufactures were 14.8 per cent. In the United States, during two normal years, the products of mines formed 53 per cent. of the total, or nearly six times as much as the freight from agriculture which was 9 per cent. of the total. He referred to the importance of the coal mines in Belgium and France which had been seized by Germany, and said the Verdun struggle was largely for the possession of iron deposits. Germany could not have continued the war if it were not for the possession of the French iron mines which they already held. Canada's total mineral production now amounts annually to $150,000,000, of which Ontario Province produces nearly half. Canada's coal resources are the greatest in the world; our asbestos deposits in Quebec supply most of the asbestos of commerce; the greatest nickel deposits in the world are at Sudbury, Ontario. This Province has also the largest body of high-grade talc on the continent, at Madoc; also the largest body of high-grade felspar on the continent, near Verona; the greatest mica mine on the continent, at Sydenham; the greatest graphite mine at Calabogie; and a recent molybdenite discovery near Ottawa may soon outstrip all rivals. We have also one of the richest silver camps in the world at Cobalt, and the most promising of the younger gold camps on the continent at Porcupine. Our smelters at Deloro and Thorold produce more refined cobalt than all the other refineries in the world put together. With such a magnificent heritage we would be very delinquent in our duty if we did not give the mineral industry the careful attention it deserves. Heretofore there has been too little co-operation between miner and manufacturer, and the lack of organization became apparent when war broke out. A special committee of the Canadian Mining Institute is now studying the mineral and metal industries of Canada to learn to what extent Canada can supply the requirements of the Empire in order to make it self-supporting and independent of outside sources, and also how to utilize the natural resources of Canada more in building up home-industries. We are now exporting much raw material which should be manufactured here, and also importing supplies which we might produce. The speaker appealed to the general public to study industrial problems so as to assist in their solution. Most of the $7,000,000 annually spent in running the Cobalt mines eventually finds its way to Toronto. Northern Ontario will soon be producing $20,000,000 in gold and silver annually, and there are better chances of locating valuable mineral deposits there than in any other country in the world.

Knew Brother Was in Peril

THERE have been many psychic experiences reported in the present war. These will not be confused with anything supernatural. The Bowmen of Mons story was something supernatural and investigation showed it to be fiction. It did not rest on a single fact. It was supported by no evidence. The author admitted that it was imaginative. He had drawn on Kipling's "The Lost Legion" for the underlying idea. Although all this came out, the story would not down. And you can find in England to-day grizzled veterans of the first expeditionary force who will tell you solemnly that when the British were in a tight hole at Mons, outnumbered and all but surrounded, the Bowmen of King Harry came to their aid, and that there were found on the field of battle that night dead men whose bodies bore wounds such as no bullet could have made! They will describe, too, how the bowmen looked and how they shouted "Hurrah" as they went forward into battle.

This and more you will hear, but it is all fiction; which is a pity, because it is very thrilling. However, there have been many stories of extraordinary psychic experiences in the war. Perhaps someone is collecting them, and investigating and sifting them and separating the false from the true, with a view to publishing them in a book some day. Meantime, here is such a story of Gallipoli. There is nothing exceptional about it, and it is said to be true:

In an English town live two brothers. One is a Church of England clergyman; the other a doctor. A third brother is a colonel in the British army. When the sea attack on the Dardanelles failed, the soldier brother was ordered with his regiment to Gallipoli. He sailed, first to Egypt, then to an island in the Ægean, and finally landed with the troops on the peninsula.

Months passed. The two brothers at home heard only occasionally from the soldier overseas. Then, one night the doctor visited the clergyman.

"Do you know," he said, "I had an odd dream last night about Charlie [the colonel]? I saw it all quite distinctly. He had been wounded and separated from his men. He was unarmed and I saw him dragging himself painfully over the battlefield. Near by was a low wall, with barbed wire strung along the top of it. There, to my horror, a Turkish officer appeared, approaching from the other side of the wall. He carried a revolver in his right hand. Charlie saw him and dropped behind the wall. There he lay, motionless, while the Turk came as far as the wall, rested one foot on a broken part of it, and looked out across the field. I was quite sure he would see Charlie and kill him, but he did not, and after a little while he turned and went away. Then I woke up."

"That is strange," the clergyman replied. "Let's see, what's the date? Ah, August 24. I'll mark it down, and when we see Charlie again we'll ask him if anything happened to him on that day."

A few days later a cable message from the colonel said simply: "Wounded. Invalided home." It was some three weeks afterward that the colonel returned convalescent. That night all three brothers dined together. Over the coffee the clergyman turned to the soldier.

"I say, Charlie," he said, "did anything happen to you on August 24?"

"August 24, I should jolly well say so. That was the day I copped it," the colonel replied.

"Tell us about it," said the doctor.

"Well," said the soldier, "I got hit and afterwards I must have been unconscious for some time, because when I came to, I was all alone on the battlefield. I didn't quite know in which direction were our lines, but I dragged myself to a low stone wall, with barbed wire on top. Suddenly I saw a Turkish officer approach the wall. He was armed and I had nothing more formidable than my cane. I dropped behind the wall, huddling as close to it as possible. Johnnie Turk came right to where I was lying on the other side of the wall. I pretended to be dead. I tried not to breathe, but I knew that he put one foot up on the broken wall beside me and remained there for some minutes, looking across at our lines. In all that time I didn't know what second would be my last, but either the Turk did not notice me or took for granted I was dead. Presently he went away, and after a while I reached a patrol who took me in."

The First Advertiser.

The Egyptian gentleman who sought a runaway slave 3,000 years ago and advertised on a bit of papyrus for his recovery, turned out the first piece of advertising copy. Whoever he was, he was a genius in more than a small way. His copy still lives, preserved in the British Museum as an exhibit of considerable archeological importance and as an example of what our advertising experts of to-day would do if they, like the Egyptian, did not have the benefit of up-to-date information. The Egyptian knew nothing about the topography of advertising, nor the effect of different colors. He didn't know, for instance, that red is the most effective eye-catching color and that green is second and black third. Of these and a thousands things that influence the character of present day advertisements he was totally in ignorance. But he gets full credit for making the first attempt at a written advertisement. Whether he got the slave back or not is not known, but he deserved to.

Holy Carpet Returned.

The ceremony of receiving the holy carpet on its return from Mecca took place in the presence of the Prime Minister, representing the Sultan, who is indisposed, says The London Times. The pilgrimage was accomplished this year without any untoward incident. There were about 30,000 pilgrims this year, including 5,000 Indians, 2,000 Egyptians, and 18,000 from the Hedjaz.

Once Convicted as a Spy

Dreyfus, Victim of a Plot, Now Fights for France

IT is not generally known that Captain Dreyfus, who figured in French history twenty-two years ago, as an alleged German spy, and who was accused of selling the secret of the French 120-gun, is fighting for his country to-day and gaining laurels on the battlefield. The Germans were almost able to penetrate the secret of the famous hydraulic brake which is now important a feature of the .75 gun. It is interesting to recall that it was in connection with this that Captain Dreyfus was degraded and sentenced. It will be remembered that the janitor in the office of the German Military Attache in Paris picked up a scrap of paper one night which aroused his curiosity, and incited him to explore the waste paper basket.

As a result he succeeded in piecing together a document which proved that some French officer was a traitor.

On the matter being reported to the Minister for War, an investigation was held, and Captain Dreyfus, of the artillery, was arrested on suspicion. The whole case depended on the handwriting, and two experts were brought in. They disagreed, and just when the judge was deliberating, a messenger from the War Minister entered and showed a telegram from the German to the Italian Attache, which read, "That animal of a Dreyfus is becoming too exacting." That sealed the officer's fate, and he was sent to Devil's Island.

Dreyfus protested his innocence, and his real friends believed in him. Later on a newspaper published a fac-simile of the famous letter. It was identified by a stock-broker as being in the hand of Major Esterhazy, one of his clients.

Another investigation revealed the fact that Esterhazy was a man of dissolute habits, but cleared him of the major charge. Later on a change in the French General Staff resulted in some old correspondence being overhauled which seemed to implicate both Esterhazy and Colonel Henri. The later was arrested; that night he killed himself, and Esterhazy disappeared.

Further investigations established the fact that Henri and Esterhazy were the traitors, and that they had tampered with the telegram that led to Dreyfus' conviction. Originally it read—"That animal of a D is becoming too exacting," and referred to a common intrigue, and not to Dreyfus, whose name was inserted to ensure his conviction.

The accidental discovery of the torn paper by the Paris concierge, undoubtedly saved the secret of the French .75 from Germany. Dreyfus, honorably restored to all his former honors, is now fighting for France against the enemy who was mainly responsible for his downfall.

Too Delicate.

A man traveling in Maine met a middle-aged farmer, who said his father, ninety years old, was still on the farm where he was born.

"Ninety years old, eh?"

"Yes, pop is close to ninety."

"Is his health good?"

"Taint much now. He's been complainin' for a few months back."

"What's the matter with him?"

"I dunno; sometimes I think harmin' don't agree with him."—Western Christian Advocate.

The First Union Church In Canada

By Its Minister, Rev. Norman Macleod

THIRTY years ago the Interdenominational Committee of Montreal, representing the Congregational, Methodist and Presbyterian Churches, established a Union Church in Ste. Anne de Bellevue. This being the first of its kind in Canada, and the Union Committee, Toronto, not having finally settled what the polity of the Union Church was to be, it was therefore incumbent upon the Church at Ste. Anne's to create its own form of government. We, after careful consideration, decided that the officers having the insight of the spiritual interests of the congregation be called "Elders." These were to be elected by the Church from amongst its members. They were to hold office for no definite period of time, and before entering upon their duties were to be ordained.

REV. NORMAN MACLEOD.

It was agreed also that those having to do with the financial interests of the congregation be termed "Managers," who were to be chosen by the Church and for a certain number of years. Besides these two bodies, then was formed the "General Board," consisting of the Elders and Managers, and representatives from the various organizations of the Church. Its duties are to secure missionary contributions, to make representation to the Interdenominational Committee concerning the Pastoral relation and to attend to matters affecting the work of the Church not assigned to any other body.

In the Sabbath worship the Presbyterian "Book of Praise" and the "Responsive Readings" prepared by Dr. Van Dyke are used.

On Communion Sunday the Elders receive the new members and arrange for the dispensing of the Supper. They also give the "Elements" to the communicants present.

In the Sabbath School, the papers, helps, etc., published by the three churches mentioned, are distributed.

So much for the government of the Church, but naturally the question is asked—How has union worked out?

In answering this inquiry, allow me to refer to two things: (1) It is quite true, like all live, working and progressive institutions, there are sure to be differences of opinion, but these, I assert, have never been on denominational lines. Never has "ism" been pitted against "ism." Other little and ordinary differences have been solely to the individual judgment. Service and truth are regarded as having a unifying force—the cement of all organization. True effort and vision, it is told, can never be the sole property of any church, but must be the treasure of all denominations. The members of the Union Church felt they were making an experiment which should be given a fair trial untrammelled by prejudice, particularly when the principle behind it can solve many of the serious problems confronting our churches in Canada. To say that church members will not unite and work together is to deny that they possess the same charity and intelligence in religious service which they show in other activities.

(2) The second thing to which I refer is the benefit the Union Church has been to the students at Macdonald College. They have taken a deep interest in the welfare of the Church. Not only do they attend in large numbers our services and support financially, but many of them have become members. At the Communion last April, all the men students in the Schools of Agriculture and for teachers attending the Union Church, with the exception of five or six, united with the Church. About two weeks later we had practically the same experience, when the women students in the schools for Teachers and of Household Science partook of the Lord's Supper.

In connection with the Sabbath School, the Rev. W. O. Rothney, B.D., Lecturer Macdonald College, established the "Religious Education School" with a staff of four teachers, in which definite instruction is given in social and religious service.

Among the subjects taught are:
Church School organization and management,
Graded lessons,
Primary equipment and work,
Expressional activities and worship.

The school endeavors to give such a training as will help the students to solve many of the problems they will meet, and to qualify them for leadership in religious education in the communities where they will live. Last year eighteen (18) certificates were granted after the necessary examinations were passed. This season over fifty (50) are enrolled and are taking the lectures regularly.

Besides these courses, the members of the Union Church has been for two years conducting normal classes with group leaders of the College Y. M. C. A., when the following subjects were studied:
Religion and the problems of the students.
The social and economic ideals of Jesus.
The rural problems of Canada.

The aim of these studies was to prepare for leadership—"Mastery for Service."

In all the courses and classes referred to, no denominational bias is seen. Truth knows nothing about the limitation of prejudice and passion. The nearer we get to the truth the closer we get to each other. "We are united in the things we know, but are divided in the things we think we know."

Now, the things to which I have referred, allow me to say, could not have been done if there was no Union Church. Whatever has been accomplished is due to Union, because it makes the financial burden easier and conserves true and human energy. It creates the enthusiasm of members and destroys the jealousies and bickerings of denominationalism. The story of Christ and His Church is paramount rather than the progress of a particular "ism."

What has taken place in Ste Anne de Bellevue can be duplicated more or less in any part of Canada. Human nature and church problems are pretty much the same everywhere in our vast Dominion.

Creamed Parsnips.

Wash and scrape a half dozen good sized parsnips. Cut crosswise in a saucepan with a pint and a half of hot water, to which has been added a heaping teaspoonful of salt. Cook gently about three-quarters of an hour or until tender. Drain off the water add a tablespoonful of granulated sugar, a heaping tablespoonful of butter and four tablespoonfuls of sweet cream, and set on the range until the cream boils up. Mash fine with a potato masher, heap on dish, set in the oven until a delicate brown and serve hot.

Turnip Balls.

Wash and peel fine grained turnips, then cut into balls, using a vegetable scoop. Drop into boiling water, lightly salted, adding also a very little sugar, and cook until tender, but not broken. Drain, cover with butter or cream sauce, sprinkle lightly with minced parsley and serve very hot.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

CHILD'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

A girl begins to take notice of her frocks almost as soon as she passes the "rattle" age, but not until she has gone over the sixth year mark does she know how to take the necessary care of them to make mother's work easy. Therefore, mother should select such dress models as will be no work to make, to launder or to slip on and off the girlie.

This illustration suggests the correct way to make a day dress for a girl of from two to six years of age. It shows the front with a yoke that is finished for lacing after slipping the frock on over the head. The upper edges of the dress fronts are neatly gathered and joined to the yoke, and a belt with its ends buttoned to the front sides is arranged over the back fulness. To match the sailor collar, the belt is of contrasting color goods; the cuffs on long sleeves have a piping to correspond. It rests with you whether the short sleeve is to be used instead.

For a pity dress linen, gingham, cotton cheviot and like weaves are suitable, and for kindergarten wear plain ground woollen weaves and wool plaids and checks are excellent. There are no buttons or buttonholes to bother with and really one can cut out and finish several of these little dresses in a very short time.

The dress pattern No. 8114 cuts in sizes two, four and six years. To make in the medium size requires 1¾ yards of 36 inch material, ½ yard contrasting goods to trim 32 inches wide.

To obtain the pattern send [illegible] to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

Death Ended Royal Scandal

SNUBBED by court officials, taunted by those who were jealous of her power, forbidden entrance to the death-chamber of the man who loved her, Katti Schratt makes her exit from Austrian affairs. That she takes with her into retirement a handsome legacy from her royal lover, the late Francis Joseph of Austria, makes a fitting ending to a very sordid affair. The liaison between the emperor and the actress was particularly notorious because it lasted thirty years.

Astounding as the fact may seem, it is now known that the late Empress Elizabeth was herself responsible for the bringing together of the Emperor and the actress. We have it on the authority of the Countess Marie Larisch, who, in her remarkable book entitled "My Past," lays bare not only many of the facts concerning the estrangement between the Emperor and his queen, but also the soul of the unfortunate royal wanderer who was assassinated in Geneva. It appears, from what the countess writes, that the frequent trips abroad of the Empress Elizabeth were made in search of relief from the disappointment of a wrecked life and a vanished love. Yet, says the queen's erstwhile companion, "her kind heart reproached her when she thought that her husband would perhaps be lonely in her absence." Elizabeth then made inquiries of her ladies-in-waiting to find out if any of them knew of someone who could be relied on to comfort the Emperor while she was abroad. "I mentioned several ladies," writes the countess, "who, I felt sure, would only be too delighted to console the imperial grass-widower, but Aunt Gissi did not approve of them, and the matter dropped until she suddenly told me one day that she discovered the right person in the actress Katrina Schratt, who was always considered to be more interesting off the Burg Theatre stage than on it. People rather disapproved of Elizabeth's attitude, but she was quite right in thinking well of the actress, who has, since the death of my aunt, proved herself to be a devoted friend to Francis Joseph."

An extraordinary story, to be sure, and one that could not be accepted, as Francis Gribble rightly asserts in his recent "Life of the Emperor Francis Joseph," without corroborative testimony. The author of that book supplies the corroboration by means of an interview which, many years afterward, a representative of the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger secured with Frau Schratt. The immediate occasion of the interview was a rumor that a morganatic marriage was about to take place between Francis Joseph and Frau Schratt, the cause of the rumor being found in a report of a quarrel in which the Emperor's daughters, Valerie and Gisela, after a long period of seeming quiescence, took their father severely to task for his mode of life. Frau Schratt discreetly left Ischl and, after a short stay in Brussels, turned up in Rome in the company of the late Empress' sister, to receive the benediction of the Pope, and a declaration (according to the Paris Siecle), annulling "her marriage with Baron Kisch, by whom she has a son." From this it will be understood how the rumor of the morganatic marriage arose. To the Berlin interviewer, however, Frau Schratt declared that all such talk was nonsense and "that those who engaged in it knew neither her nor the Emperor." Then, in reference to the Empress Elizabeth, Frau Schratt added: "That high-minded and noble lady was my most gracious patroness and friend. In the unrest caused by the mental and bodily pains which drove her from one place to another, it was a comfort to her to know that a good-tempered, light-hearted woman cheered up her husband, and gave him many a pleasant and harmless hour by chatting with him and relating all sorts of anecdotes and stories; attending him in his morning walks in the Schoenbrunn Gardens while he was taking his Carlsbad water, and never abusing her extraordinary position for intrigues or to push protegees. It was the Empress herself who, hating the stiff court life and court dignitaries and ladies-in-waiting, had created my position, which I then maintained owing to the gracious confidence and gratitude of the Emperor. Every spring I was the first to bring the late Empress, wherever she was staying, the first violets, and I always spent a few days with her. An empress, however magnanimous and high-minded she may be, remains in certain questions above everything a woman. And is it, therefore, really possible to believe that the Empress would have honored me with her grace and confidence in such an extraordinary way if even the possibility had existed in her thoughts that, after her death, I might marry the Emperor?"

Anyway, no marriage took place, and after the little storm had blown over, Emperor and actress renewed the companionship which, both in Vienna and Ischl, had brought them so many pleasant hours. In the Austrian capital Frau Schratt had her own private residence to which the Emperor almost daily repaired for a quiet dinner and a friendly game of cards. The card party, for many years, was made up of the same four people: the Emperor, Frau Schratt, and two well-known Viennese bankers, both sworn companions of his Majesty.

Within a few hours after the death of the Emperor, this woman who had helped to make a degenerate court of Austria a by-word throughout the world, was ordered from the palace. So ended a royal intrigue that had in it a suggestion of the middle ages.

Except that of China, San Marino has the longest national hymn.

Prof. Hugo Munsterberg Lost Great Reputation By Attitude in the War

PROF. HUGO MUNSTERBERG of Harvard, whose activities on behalf of Germany in the United States have been so notorious since the commencement of the war, fell dead a few days ago while lecturing to a class of young women. If he had died before the beginning of the war he would have been profoundly mourned by the American people as one of their greatest educators. Passing away now, he disappears amid the wreckage of a fine reputation, regretted only by his immediate friends. The people of the United States who knew Prof. Muensterberg realized soon after the beginning of the war that they had completely misunderstood his character and aims. They realized, moreover, that all the years he had been lecturing at Harvard he had been an unofficial agent of the German Government, sowing seeds that he hoped to reap for Germany in war's red harvest. Considered the leading psychologist in the United States and ranked as the very flower of German culture, he suddenly revealed himself a Junker, with no sympathy for ideals that the American people as a whole cherished, with not even the thoughtful man's ability to weigh evidence or rid himself from race prejudice. He justified the attack on Belgium; the sinking of the Lusitania; every outrage that the German army committed, and he sought to show the American people that their duty was to become Germany's ally. For a time he was Germany's best spokesman in the United States, for he threw himself into the work of propaganda with tremendous enthusiasm and ingenuity.

He wrote letters to the newspapers over his own signature, and over the signature of others. He interviewed editors and public men, and though rebuffed time and again he would reappear whenever an opportunity presented itself. In the past few months he changed his methods, for he had come to the conclusion that the sentiment of the American people could not be turned against Great Britain. Then he came forth with the proposal that Germany, Britain, and the United States should form an alliance which should guarantee their own future and the peace of the world. Ridicule met this suggestion, and gradually Munsterberg fell silent. His classes at Harvard, which used to be perhaps the most numerously attended at the university, fell away from him. His superiors at the great American seat of learning spoke out strongly in opposition to his teaching. His influence, except with German-Americans, disappeared. His former standing as a psychologist was forgotten, and the public generally came to regard him as a pest. Nor is it likely that when the war is over his former reputation will be revived.

Hugo Munsterberg was moved to say last year in one of the periods in which he was subjected to American criticism for his ardent advocacy of the German cause: "I am a German and have never intended to be anything else." He had prolonged his stay in the United States chiefly because he had become "fascinated by the hope to help toward international amity." He conceived his task to be that of an interpreter "of the German ideals to the English-speaking lands, and the Anglo-Saxon ideals to Germany." He incessantly eulogised German kultur and prophesied that it would spread over all nations, but he denied that he had participated in any political action of the German Americans.

The intensity of pro-Ally sentiment in the community in which Professor Munsterberg lived and worked cost him, however, the estrangement of colleagues who before the war had been among his closest friends. Professor Josiah Royce was one of these, and on the latter's death, last September, Professor Munsterberg absented himself from the funeral on the ground that his presence might prove embarrassing. He sent a floral tribute, however, and in answer to criticism penned a marked eulogy of his old associate.

Twice his resignation as a Harvard professor had been urged by colleagues and alumni of the university because of his propagandist efforts in behalf of Germany, the second time in October, when a letter purporting to have been written by him to Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg was intercepted by the British authorities. In this letter Professor Munsterberg was quoted as predicting that President Wilson would jump at the chance to become peace mediator.

OUR UNEXPLORED LAND.

Fortunes May Await Seekers in Canada's Vacant Stretches.

Unexplored Canada is the subject of an article, by Mr. Charles Camsell of our Geological Survey at Ottawa, in The Geographical Journal. He says:

"I find in Western Canada areas aggregating 642,000 square miles in extent which must still be considered as unexplored, and in Northern Quebec about 259,000 square miles more, making an aggregate of 901,000 square miles. This does not include areas under 4,000 square miles in extent."

East of Reindeer Lake and Kasan River, in Manitoba and North-West Territory, there are 73,000 square miles of unexplored country, it is estimated. This is larger than Missouri or North Dakota, and larger than the sum of the areas of New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, and Massachusetts. On the peninsula between Ungava and Hudson Bays, Quebec, there is a still more extensive area of 75,000 square miles that is a blank on an honest map. Here are other large tracts that invite the explorer: South and East of Backs River, North-West Territory, 72,000 square miles; north of Eastman River, Quebec, 65,000 square miles; northwest of Great Bear Lake, Northwest Territory, 61,000 square miles; north of Great Slave Lake and Backs River, North-West Territory, 61,000 square miles; east and south of Kaniapiskaw River, Quebec, 54,000 square miles. For the purpose of comparison the area of New York is 49,204 square miles. North-west Territory contains more blank spaces even than Yukon. Ontario has three, in extent from six to eight thousand square miles. Twenty-eight per cent. of Continental Canada is still unexplored.

The earlier pioneers searched the Canadian wilderness for fur bearing animals; to-day men penetrate it to look for minerals and oil. "If we superpose these unexplored areas on the geological map of Canada," says Mr. Camsell, "we shall find that the greater part of them lie in what is colored as pre-Cambrian, or in geological formations similar to those in which, under certain conditions, the rich deposits of copper, nickel, iron, silver, and gold of Northern Ontario occur." But there must still be productive agricultural land in the Peace River and Athabaska River regions marked as unexplored. In the basin of the Mackenzie River "it is believed to be one of the largest areas of possible oil bearing country yet unexplored on the face of the earth." It is to be noted that experts estimate that the oil supply of the United States will be exhausted in thirty years.

Indians have reported lakes in Yukon sixty and seventy miles long that no white man has ever seen; the Mackenzie Mountains even the Indian knows nothing about; and it will be many years before the mystery of Northern Canada is lifted for the cartographer. Fortunes await the daring prospector; for the hunter there is an abundance of game and fish, and innumerable virgin peaks invite the mountain climber.

Was Troubled With Shortness of Breath

When the heart becomes affected, there ensues a feeling of a choking sensation, a shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensation, dizziness, and a weak, sinking, all-gone feeling of oppression and anxiety.

The nerves become unstrung, you dread to be alone, have a horror of society, start at the least noise and are generally fatigued.

On the first sign of the heart becoming weakened or the nerves unstrung, Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills should be taken. They are just what you require at this time. They regulate and stimulate the heart, and strengthen and restore the whole nerve system.

Mrs. C. M. Cormier, Buctouche, N.B., writes: "Since two years ago I was troubled with a shortness of breath, and sometimes I could hardly breathe. I went to see several doctors, and they said it was from my heart and nerves, but they did not seem to do me any good. One day I got one of your B.B.B. Almanacs and read of a case similar to mine.

"I bought a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after taking it I noticed such a change that I kept on taking them until I had used four more boxes, when I was cured."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c a box, three boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

TRIBUTE TO "THE GUNS."

Noted Writer Tells of Work of "Divisional Artillery."

An article from Charles G. D. Roberts, special correspondent, attached to the Canadian corps, is issued by the Canadian War Records Office. It is entitled, "Divisional Artillery: Red Rust Waste Wrought by the Canadian Guns." He writes in part:

"You have started out to cross the monstrous, stark-naked, shell-tortured expanse of red mud in which 'div. arty.' has dug his hidden lairs. Somewhere far ahead of you, in an undistinguished wrinkle of the mud, lies one of the most advanced of these lairs, to which you are bound. The warmest tributes to the all-round excellence of 'div. arty.,' to its professional thoroughness and its ready, daring initiative come not from Canadian, but from Imperial sources, from those units of the Imperial infantry whose achievements have been made possible by its support.

"A section of our front trench held by a thread of mud-caked, rain-drenched, shivering, sleep-starved berserkers perceives an overwhelming wave of the enemy rolling down on it. Back over the telephone wires goes the S.O.S. call and buzzes softly into the ear of the nearest artillery brigade commander in his dugout the exact location of the peril. In almost as little time as it takes to tell about it every battery of the brigade is belching forth its response to the call and a curtain of unimaginable destruction descends along the front of the advancing wave. Those of the enemy who win through that curtain of death, backed as it is by our machine gun and rifle fire, are usually not in the best of form to meet our bayonets. In a word, it has become a commonplace of tactics that no serious advance is possible without the most intimate and sensitive cooperation between the infantry and the guns; and for every triumph the acclaim should be apportioned equally to the two branches of the service.

"The guns would be blind at the most critical emergency but for the work of the 'F. O. O.'s' (field observation officers) serving their positions in their solitary soil holes out in the forefront of the storm; but for the work of the linesmen in the fire-swept open, calmly keeping their wires patched up beneath that hail of death."

White Pine Threatened.

Through the invasion of the "white pine blister rust," a virulent fungus disease imported from Germany about seven years ago, Canada is seriously threatened with the extermination of her white pine resources, probably the most valuable forest asset of Eastern Canada. This disease has destroyed the white pine in Europe, has made serious ravages in the pineries in the northeastern states, and is spreading in Ontario and Quebec. Centres of invasion are scattered from Maine to Minnesota in the United States, and from South-Western Ontario to Southern Quebec in Canada, the Niagara peninsula being the most seriously infested district in the Dominion. For its full development and for transmission to the pine, the disease is dependent on the currant and gooseberry bushes. The fact that it cannot spread directly from one pine to another offers a means of control and no effort should be spared to combat the rust by exterminating the currant and gooseberry bushes in infected or exposed districts, or at least by prohibiting the shipment from these regions of all currant and gooseberry bushes and fruit and by placing an embargo on the importation of such stock. Unfortunately, the wild gooseberry is equally dangerous as an intermediary in spreading the disease. Any loss entailed by even the total destruction of the whole currant family is insignificant compared to the value of the white pine in Canada. In 1914 the white pine production of Eastern Canada, including logs and sawn lumber, totalled $16,160,000. The cutting and manufacture of this timber furnishes employment to thousands of men and supplies hundreds of industries with raw material for which no satisfactory substitute can be secured. The white pine is one of the most important tax-payers in Canada, and contributes no less than $1,250,000 to the total revenue of about $4,000,000 which the four eastern provinces derive annually from their forests.

He Spoiled the Picture.

Heroine went out West to be a governess. She had a beau in her home town, but she wanted to marry a Westerner. She had been in the West only a few days when a great herd of cattle was driven down the lane near the house where she was teaching. A mile away the outfit stopped in a pocket for dinner, and the woman at whose home Heroine was staying took her out to the camp. There she saw the men she had dreamed about, and the boots, the spurs, the gloves, and the hats that were calculated to win the heart of any girl. It was a great picture, and only one thing marred it. There was one man who had on shoes and only one spur. He wore a black hat and had no gloves. He was entirely out of place, and Heroine wished that he had not been there. Just as it would spoil a moving picture of Indians on the warpath to have the public school building in the background, it spoiled the picture to have this ordinary looking fellow in the camp. Heroine couldn't see why the other men didn't drive him away, and she said to the woman who was with her:

"Who in the world is that man?"

The woman looked at him for a moment and then said:

"Why, he is the fellow who owns the herd."

United States the Only Neutrals To Break With German Pirates

Other Nations Will Content Themselves With Morally Supporting Wilson to the Extent of Protesting Germany's U-Boat Warfare--United States Now Awaiting the Inevitable U-Boat Strike That Will Bring War With Germany.

BELIEVE BLOW WILL FALL SOON

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WASHINGTON, February 8. — It is assured now that the United States stands alone among neutrals of the world in her break with Germany. Other nations, however, in response to President Wilson's suggestion for a break, have morally supported him to the extent of protesting Germany's U-boat warfare.

Press reports and unofficial indications show that most other neutrals will not break, though they condemn Germany's course. This means, as authorities see it, that Germany is one step nearer war with all neutrals, though the subsequent developments may not draw all into the the struggle.

Authorities had no way of knowing whether this wave of moral pressure will sway Germany, although her acts indicate that she intends to go ahead regardless of world opinion.

One of the chief results, the United States officials and neutral diplomats said to-day, may be to put Germany on a black list commercially after the war.

NEW YORK, February 8.—The International Mercantile Marine is likely to be the first American line to defy the German submarine proclamation by sailing its ships armed for defence and refusing to paint them with red and white stripes as ordered by the German Admiralty. They were advised by Secretary Lansing that they may arm their vessels for defensive purposes if they desire. The St. Louis, of the American Line, a branch of the Mercantile Marine, which has been in port for several days, probably will furnish the first test.

Steamer Turino Is Sent to the Bottom

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, February 8.—The British steamer Turino, 1,850 tons, has been sunk by a submarine, it was announced to-day.

PETROGRAD, February 8.—The capture of a German trench northeast of Kirlibaba was announced in to-day's official statement. Two counter attacks were repulsed.

The Russian official says: "Northwest of Kirlebara, in the Carpathians, some distance north of Roumania, our advance detachments made a rush on the enemies' foremost trenches. Being met by fire and mine explosions, our troops dashed forward through the gaps in the wire, formed by explosions, and occupied the trench. A counter attack by two enemy companies with the object of regaining the trench failed."

LIMA, Peru, February 8.—A British auxiliary cruiser yesterday stopped the Chilean steamer Macto a short distance off Callao, boarded her and took off Captain Grauss, marine superintendent of the Kosmos line, a German steamship firm. Krauss was charged by the British officers, according to information received here to-day, with giving the German officials information concerning the movements of British ships.

WASHINGTON, February 8.—All German enlisted men on vessels of the United States Coast Guard service were dismissed Tuesday, it was learned at the Coast Guard here to-day.

Two More British Steamers Are Sunk

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

LONDON, February 8.—The British steamer "Hollinside," 2,000 tons, has been sunk. Her captain was safely landed. The crew took to the boats.

Two lives were lost in the sinking of the British steamer "Dauntless," 2,000 tons, reported to-day. Six of her crew were brought ashore and taken to the hospital, where two subsequently died.

The sinking of the British steamer Boyne Castle and the Swedish steamer Varing, was announced late to-day, making a total of five for to-day.

WASHINGTON, February 8.—The United States Government has set itself to await what is regarded as the "inevitable" U-boat stroke that will bring war between American and Germany.

Officials to-day believe the blow will fall very soon.

The tremendous activity of German submarines, including the spectacular and unwarned attacks on the British steamers California and Eavestone, almost entirely removed any hope that Germany would not carry out her avowed intentions.

LONDON, February 8.—An American negro, George Washington, a fireman, was killed when the British steamer Torino was sunk by a German submarine.

WASHINGTON, February 8.—Great Britain and France to-day granted safe conduct to German Ambassador Von Bernstorff. The British Government stipulated that in returning home, Bernstorff and his staff should touch at Halifax for the examination of papers.

Patrol Encounter On the Western Front

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

PARIS, February 8.—Patrol encounters were the only fighting activities on the Western front reported to-day in the official statement. French forces captured a German patrol near Bonzee, in the region of Verdun.

GRANDCOURT WAS CAPTURED BY HAIG'S FORCES YESTERDAY

Important Success Scored by the British Troops—Strongly Held Village and Defensive Work Near It Are Captured

BAPAUME IS THREATENED

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb 7.—General Haig's troops have gained an important success on the Ancre, having captured the village of Grandcourt, together with a defensive work adjoining it.

The British advance on Grandcourt and Miraumont, two fortresses covering Bapaume from the west, has been successfully progressing for the past few days. The capture of Grandcourt village, which the British official statement says is now entirely in British possession, is regarded as of considerable importance. The British troops now seriously threaten the strong German position at Le Transloy.

The official report from headquarters reads: "As a result of our continuous pressure on both banks of the Ancre River the enemy has been forced to evacuate the village of Grandcourt, which is now entirely in our possession, together with a defensive work adjoining it. We secured a few prisoners. During the operations of the last few days the enemy suffered heavy losses in the neighborhood.

"A hostile raid attempted during the night in the neighborhood of Gueudecourt broke down under our barrage. Early last night we entered the enemy's lines south-west of Labassee and killed a number of Germans and destroyed several dugouts; we took a few prisoners.

The mutual artillery activity was most marked north of the Somme in the neighborhood of Courcelette and between Armentieres and Ypres. Effective counter-battery work was carried out by us during the day at a number of places on our front.

"Bombing operations by our aeroplanes continued yesterday with success. There were many air-fights. Three German machines were driven down damaged; two of ours are missing."

There is a renewal of activity along the French lines. In the Argonne a German surprise attack near Bourcuilles only resulted in enemy losses. German troops after a spirited bombardment yesterday forced their way into the French positions at the salient of the battle front near Embermenil,

RAID BY CANADIANS.

LONDON, Feb 7.—The following communique was issued to-day by the Canadian War Records Office:

"Revelling in the opportunities presented by the Wintry conditions. Canadian troops have carried out two more successful raids. Carefully planned and brilliantly executed, both operations were completely without a hitch and as a result recent Canadian captures were swelled by twenty-three prisoners and two machine guns.

"One raid was made at night by a composite party form Manitoba and Alberta, and the other in daylight by men from Quebec. The principal purpose in each instance was to harry the enemy, destroy his mine shafts and secure prisoners. Both parties thoroughly fulfilled their mission.

"In addition German dugouts and machine-gun emplacements were destroyed by explosives and the enemy is believed to have suffered casualties four times greater than those of the Canadians, which were very light in proportion to the complete success of the enterprises.

"The Canadians have now to their credit a total of seven successful raids in the past nine days."

A correspondent of the Farmers' Advocate, writing from King's county, N.B., says that over half the farms once occupied in his neighborhood are now vacant, while of those occupied only two or three are really progressing. The remainder are tilled in a haphazard way, and the majority of the farms are decreasing in value.

Pte. Horace Hill of 93rd Battalion Was Killed In A Raid

Peterboro' Boy Took Part in Successful Advance of Canadians and Was Killed by Machine Gun Fire—Letters From the Front—To-day's Orders of the 247th Battalion and General Military News.

Mrs. McKinlay, 498 Aylmer street has received the following letter from France:

Dear Mrs. McKinlay,—As a friend of Horace Hill, I am sorry to open my letter to you with the sad news. Horace was a chum of mine in the 93rd, and he has often mentioned your name to me, since we have been in France. I hope you and your family will not take the news badly as I am sure he has gone to a better world. It happened on January 17th. Horace was in a big raiding and bombing party, and was hit by machine-gun fire, in "No Man's Land." Horace was a good lad and was in the Comp. Bombers with me and I am real sorry as his life in this world has been short, and at any time you wish to enquire, my service, as to news, my address is Lance Corp. W. J. Turner.

P.S. If you will be kind enough to break the sad news to his friends. I am enclosing a few addresses I found in his kit.—W.J.T.

Ptes. J. C. Hunter and S. E. Wood have been added to the strength of the 247th Battalion.

It is published for the information of candidates reporting to a District School that before leaving Battalion Headquarters he be examined by a medical officer of his unit, who will if he finds the candidate fit to undergo the course, provide a certificate to this effect, which the candidate will hand to the officer in charge of the school he is attending.

Attention of officers commanding companies is especially directed to this matter.

2. Duties—

Orderly officer for Thursday, February the 8th, 1917: Lieut. J. F. Strickland.

Next for duty, Friday, February the 9th, 1917: Lieut. T. W. Quinn.

A. E. Brittain, Lieut.,
Adjutant 247th O.S. Batt., C.E.F.

France, Jan. 18, 1917.

Mrs. Cripps has received the following letter:

Dear Mrs. Cripps,—Just a line to thank you and the S. W. and M. Club for a pair of socks and package of chewing gum which I have received. My name is Pte. J. A. Mitchell, No. 105,955, Grenade Section, 5th C.M.R., B.E.F., France.

It makes a fellow happy to know that he is not forgotten by those at home. The socks came in quite handy and there is nothing like a chew of gum to soothe the nerves. Peterborough should be proud of her soldiers at the front. No matter where you go you meet a Peterborough boy. I am in the same section that Corporal Stanley was in charge of before he was hit. He was pretty well known in this battalion. Corporal Robt. Haddow, another Peterborough boy, has taken his place.

I guess this is all for this time. I will close wishing the S. W. and M. Club the best of luck, and again thanking them and yourself for the socks, I am,

Yours sincerely,
Jas. Mtchell.

P.S.—I was formerly a member of the 23rd, A. Co.—J.A.M.

Mrs. E. G. Dormer has received a letter from her husband, Pte. E. G. Dormer, which in part reads:

France, Jan. 15. 1917.

My Dear Wife,—Just a few lines to let you know how I am getting along and to be excused for not writing to you sooner for it will be three weeks to-morrow night since last I wrote to you. Well, this is the first letter I have written to anybody this year, and I have received no letters from anybody since I received yours on Christmas eve. I have not been with my battalion since Dec. 28th. I was sick since Dec. 24th and was sent out of the trenches by the doctor on the 28th. I was five days in the hospital and three days in a convalescent camp. I am now in the 3rd Canadian Divisional Company, but how long I will be here I do not know. The weather here has been simply rotten, never a day or night passes but what it rains. When we were up in the trenches the last time the mud was awful, it being over our knees. Write to the same old address: No. 195567, Pte. E. G. Dormer, 5th C.M.R., B.E.F., France.

Word has been received that Bombardier Claude Nelson, nephew of Miss McWilliams, of 273 Park street, has been awarded the military medal for bravery at the front. Bombardier Nelson, who is a son of Mr. W. J. Nelson, 291 Laughlin avenue, was born in Peterborough and has many friends and relatives here. He went overseas with the 34th Battery, C.F.A.

The 247th Band left at noon to-day for Port Hope, where they will stay until Monday. Their visit is expected to stimulate recruiting in the Lake-Shore town.

Among the Canadian officers who are sailing for home is Major K. G. Lech, whose name appeared in a cabled list yesterday.

Writing from Royal Infirmary, Sunderland, Durham county, England, Gunner Duke Pearson, son of Rev. E. A. Pearson, formerly of Peterborough, tells his parents something of how he was hurt recently and why he is in the hospital.

In part he says:

"At last I am safely ensconsed in most comfortable quarters after travelling about half of France and some of England. A resume of how I was hurt. I was down in the front line with one of our officers for the purpose of cutting wire. It became pretty hot and the infantry was cleared back of us to the supports, so we were left alone. Both of us were on the firing step when a German 4.1 shell struck the parapet and buried us. That proved to be our best luck for the earth acted as a sort of shield. The officer did not receive a scratch while I was struck by only one piece of shrapnel. He helped me to the first aid station where I was bandaged. From the first aid station we were motored to the Fifth field ambulance. The doctor in charge was Bill Sinclair whom I knew at school, and the 5th F. A. is composed of Varsity Meds. Murray Carlisle being among them. Wilf McKenzie was in that unit before his attack of trench fever. I remained there overnight and then proceeded to the casualty clearing station some distance back of the line. I was immediately operated upon by one of the most eminent surgeons in the British Isles, so they told us. The piece of shrapnel was extracted. It had penetrated the left thigh about two inches, nicely avoiding the bone on its journey, which meant no fracture. After my temperature lowered and most of the pus had been extracted from the wound we took the hospital train for Etaples, which is quite close to Boulogne. The hospital trains are wonderful. They are fitted with every convenience and there are nurses and doctors and what is best of all, the wounded dine four times per day. I remained in Etaples for three days and the 26 hours' train ride to Havre. We crossed the Channel and disembarked at Southampton just a year from the time we left that same port for France. The hospital ship was cosy and I enjoyed the trip very much, for you see I suffer no pain although my leg is quite stiff and it is necessary for me to lie down and wait until it heals. We had a ten hour train ride here passing through Oxford, York, Leicester and Sheffield en route.

"This is a fine large hospital, everything modern and we receive the very best of attention. In fact, no person need worry about their relatives after they leave the firing line, for we are in the very best of hands. I cannot say too much in eulogy of the nurses, for they are so kind and considerate. I have the dearest little Scotch nurse imaginable. I will likely be here a couple of weeks then a month in convalescent home, then a week's leave in London ere I report to the depot at Shorncliffe, which means a couple more months. Everybody considers me quite lucky at receiving such a nice 'blighty' just after returning from furlough, for it means several months over here."

Friends of the soldier and of the family will be pleased to learn this detail concerning the wounding of the soldier. Two brothers are still actively engaged in service, the youngest, Vaughn, being a signaller in France with a battery and the other being with a hospital unit near Saloniks.

Gunner Pearson enlisted in March, 1915, and was given his B. A. degree from the Toronto university about the

The Liner California Sunk By Submarine

Crack Ship of the Anchor Line Goes Down Off the Coast of Ireland—Was Bound For Glasgow and Carried 31 Passengers and 184 of a Crew.

NO WARNING GIVEN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Another trans-Atlantic passenger steamer plying between New York and British Isles—the California—has been sunk by a German submarine. Like the Lusitania the steamer is declared to have been torpedoed without warning and some of her passengers and crew, including two women and several children, are said to be missing. The only American on board was rescued.

The sinking of the liner took place off the coast of Ireland. The survivors among her 31 passengers and crew, of 184 are being taken to Queenstown. The California was a vessel of 8,602 tons.

Consul Frost cabled the State Department to-night that the British passenger liner California had been torpedoed without warning off the Irish coast, and that the one American known to have been on board was saved. Some of the passengers and crew were still missing, including two women and several children.

The captain of the ship was quoted as saying the submarine did not hail or give any warning before firing two torpedoes from a distance of 300 yards and sending the California down.

The American survivor was John A. Lee, of Montgomery, Ala., who is supposed to have been a member of the crew.

The passengers, it was said by officials of the line, were all British or Canadian subjects. The British shipping commissioner here said that only four members of the crew were shipped at this port, none of them being Americans. The rest of the crew, he said, was taken on at Glasgow and he believed they were all British subjects.

Built at Glasgow in 1907, the California is registered as a vessel of 8,602 tons gross, and 370 feet in length.

Four Others at Sea.

Officers of the California, the first large passenger liner to be sunk since the publication of the recent German note defining a new sea policy, were Captain John L. Henderson; Surgeon, William F. Alger; Purser D. Etherington; Chief Steward, W. Henry.

The loss of the California leaves the Adriatic, Baltic and Cretic, also British passenger vessels now at sea to be heard from the Baltic being due to arrive in Liverpool to-day.

The California was one of four large twin screw passenger vessels built in 1907 for the Anchor line fleet, the others being the Cameronia, Caledonia and Columbia. She was 370 feet long and was fitted up with all modern conveniences for the comfort of sea travellers.

Tonnage of 22,828 Sunk.

Including the California, British, Italian and Peruvian ships of a known tonnage of 29,426 have been sent to the bottom during the last 24 hours by German submarines. In addition one British steamer, the tonnage of which is not known, and two British steam trawlers and two fishing boats also have sunk while the British steamer Azul, a vessel of 3074 tons, is reported as "probably" sunk.

The British steamer Saxon-Briton 1,337 tons, has been sunk by a submarine. Two members of its crew were killed. The captain and fourteen others have been landed. Lloyd's announces that twelve survivors of the Azul were rescued by a sailing vessel.

Lloyd's announces the following reported sunk: British steamer Crown Point of 5,216 tons gross; British barque Lorton, of 1,419 tons gross.

ALLIED SHIPS TO BE CONVOYED TO THEIR DESTINATIONS

Fleet of Twenty-five British, French and Italian Ships Left Virginia Ports To-day and Will Be Escorted By Warships

OTHER SHIPS FOLLOW

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NORFOLK, VA., Feb. 8.—Loaded to the gunwales with war munitions, cotton and general supplies for the Entente Allies, a fleet of twenty-five British, French and Italian ships, sail and steam, left Virginia ports to-day. Twenty-five miles off shore allied warships picked the cargo boats up and will convoy them.

It was said in shipping circles here to-day the Allies have adopted a plan of convoying cargo boats in squadrons of ten or more hereafter. Several Danish, Dutch and Swedish ships are keeping close trail behind the guarding warships.

BRAZIL SENDS SHARP NOTE

But Argentina and Chile Will Not Adhere to Terms.

RIO JANEIRO, Feb. 7.—The Brazilian reply to the German declaration of unrestricted warfare has been despatched to the Brazilian Minister at Berlin.

The note protests against the violation of international law, involved in the submarine blockade, and points out that such a blockade could, if effective, close the entire high seas, a situation which could not be permitted. The note protests by anticipation against any hostile act from which a Brazilian merchant ship should suffer by virtue of the blockade, and holds Germany responsible for such acts.

Dr. Lauro Muller, Foreign Minister, will confer again to-day with the representatives of the other South American countries. It is understood that Chile and Argentina will refuse to adhere to the terms of the Brazilian note. Argentina is said to hold that the breach of relations between the United States and Germany has been delayed too long. Each South American Republic will make an independent reply.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS.

Rosseau gave utterance to this sentiment—"to abstain that we may enjoy is the epicureanism of reason." In this a philosopher and poet expressed the germ of a great truth, recognised alike by wise men, by economists, and men of success, as applicable to the material affairs of life. It expresses the value of the often-heard injunction these days, to save and serve—serve not only ourselves, but our families, the community, the state and humanity at large.

There is reason to fear that we do not yet seriously realise the seriousness of the times in which we live, nor the seriousness of the popular and national situation. As in the days before the flood, we are eating and drinking, marying and giving in marriage. That is, we are intent upon the pursuit of all the pleasures of normal times, and as a people most of us act as if there were to be no flood—as if the present times would last; as if the harvest were sure; as if there were no need for sacrifice and self-denial to prepare for the time of possible, and probably inevitable, trouble.

We don't apparently appreciate the demands for saving and thrift that are made upon us. We do not stop to think what is meant in the way of national financing, in which we must all do our share, and submit to the consequences. What does it mean that Parliament the other day voted as one year's budget, 500 million dollars, the equivalent of the total of our average national income for five years? What does it mean that we are spending 20 million dollars per month for war purposes?

This tremendous present and prospective outlay must be met by the people of Canada. It must be met. It is the price, or part of the price, of our very existence, of our liberties, of the peace and freedom from domestic disturbance we now enjoy.

Do we realise this? Do we realise that the money prosperity we now enjoy will not continue undisturbed? Do we realise that if the government is to get the means to carry on our share of war work successfully, the people—that is you and I—must help supply the means.

And how can we buy war certificates — an opportunity for patriotic service and of good investment—and contribute to absolutely necessary national loans, unless we have the money?

And how can we have the money if we spend it lavishly and foolishly; spend it on foolish pleasures and unwise extravagance? We cannot have the money to help in this time of special need, unless we exercise some self-denial, unless we SAVE.

There are two reasons that should impel us to such a course. We can help, as we shall have to do more and more, finance Canada's war work; and we must look out for ourselves. The antediluvians wouldn't believe Noah and laughed at his ark. We may not believe that there is any reason for economy, for retrenching unnecessary luxuries, and all unnecessary and, as they are, under the circumstances, coming to be, sinful pleasures.

In almost every home, with scarcity of fuel, and no cheerful certainty of future supply, is there not the strictest economy in the use of coal? These conditions apply to our general conditions; we have abundance of employment and easy money at present, but we are not sure that these conditions will last.

In every belligerent country there is the strictest—enforced, compulsory—economy; there is saving and thrift. We are practically one of the belligerents, though we are so far untouched with the horrors of war or the straits of scarcity; but we must bear our share of the burden, which is chiefly confined to financing the war.

We can do this by saving and serving by lending—and we can save by economising. We shan't need to deny ourselves much, and a good deal of the saving we may do will be for our own personal good.

The injunction to save will, it is admitted, be hard to meet. We Canadians have been brought up with extravagant habits. We have never been taught by necessity or training to realize the value of thrift and saving. We have been a nation of wasters. Without controversy, in the average government, national, provincial or municipal, in every average household, taking them as a whole, in every personal life on the average, there is as much waste as profitable expenditure.

Our children have naturally followed our lead; we could not teach them thrift and saving when there was no belief in it, or practice of it, by ourselves.

We should teach saving and thrift in our schools so that saving and thrift should be systematized in theory and practice. We should then have a nation of children growing up who would have learned the prime condition of material success.

The late J. J. Hill, the Canadian who became a millionaire and more, declared the first essential of the secret of success was the ability to save—"If you can't do that," he said, "you might as well confess yourself a failure in life, for you are one." About a year after this great truth was published in a public journal, the same journal published testimonials from many who had taken Mr. Hill's hint. Several told of beginning to save, and others told of their succeeding in having for the first time a bank account.

We teach in our schools many subjects that are no practical use in future life, yet we can't find time to teach the rising generation—by theory and practice—by example in the form of Penny Banks, the lesson that a great millionaire declared was the secret of his success in worldly matters.

A NATIONAL DETRIMENT.

We are asked to produce more, and to patronise home industries. The Government is right in giving this advice, and adds force to its injunction by practicing what it preaches. That is, if the reports that come from Dorchester, Quebec, are only half true. It is stated that the canvassers on behalf of the Conservative-Nationalist candidate, Mr. Sevigny, encouraged home production by purchasing from farmers' wives, home-made rugs at fifteen dollars apiece, the price of a Persian rug of richest loom—for a rag-time rug, that would have been well bought at fifty cents. This reminds one of old times, in the degenerate days, in this district, and elsewhere, when fancy prices for hogs and chickens were familiar incidents of election campaigns. The sticklers for morals, and even the election courts, regarded these things as base bribery; but we find so staid and staunch a Conservative journal as the Montreal Gazette, throwing the broad mantle of party charity over the Dorchester rag rug transaction. It suggests that the buyers of these high-priced rugs were "merely benevolent patrons of home industry." Here we see how partisanship twists the vision of even the greatest Conservative organ of the Conservative party in Canada.

It is no wonder that there is to be a mand in parliament to stifle the party spirit that finds, and has found, continuous expression in the villainous patronage system, applied not only to the ordinary business of administration, but applied even to the tremendous responsibility of waging our share of this war. Canada is spending at the rate of twenty millions dollars a month for the purposes of war; and we are urged to practice saving and thrift—to deny ourselves—to have money to contribute to the government. We do this willingly, but we would do it more willingly and more fully, if we had the assurance that the money was being carefully spent. It is discouraging, however, to know that the patronage system indirectly exacts its toll of a great deal of the money that is spent. When money is spent with a view to the interest of patronage, it is not spent on business principles; to get the greatest value, but in such a way as to favour friends of the dominant party, with necessary impairment of value received. And when partisanship and its instrument, the patronage system, influences military appointments, and other vital national measures of war participation, the evil should be recognised, arraigned, and banished, or interned with Germans who would seek the same end—weakening our war efforts—in a different way. We should encourage home industries, not only by preferential purchase of home goods, but by providing that every dollar we spend for the war, and other purposes, shall, like the "sniper's" bullet, reach the mark. An officer would not select a sharp-shooter because of his social standing at home, his party allegiance or for any other reason than his ability to shoot straight. On no other principle should public money be spent—with any other object than making every dollar reach the mark, unweakened by filtering through the partisan sieve. The people through their representatives in parliament, vote freely without distinction of party—the other day they voted 500 millions with both hands—and it is not unreasonable to ask that such stupendous sums should be spent to the best advantage, nor unreasonable to hold our administrators responsible, without incurring the charge of treason to national interests.

The war is operating upon us as an eye-opener. It will be a big compensation if it helps us see and helps us to rid our public life of one of its greatest evils, the patronage system, which without distinction of party, has for a long time—ever since Confederation—been a national detriment and source of waste.

HOW UNITED STATES GOING TO WAR WOULD ADVANTAGE THE ALLIES

Superficial observers of passing events may occasionally be heard remarking that a declaration of war by the United States against Germany would be of little advantage to the Entente Allies. It is worth while to enumerate some of the ways in which the latter would gain by having the United States as an associate, if not an allied, power:

It would put an end to the uncertainty caused by President Wilson's unsolicited and disturbing peace proposals. The whole world would then understand that the war is a fight to a finish.

This kind of interposition would reinvigorate instead of harassing the Allies, especially if American delegates should join with them in war councils.

The United States Government would at once seize all the German merchant ships in its ports—some of them among the finest in the world—and would convert them permanently as war spoils, to its own mercantile purposes.

The United States has a powerful navy, to which it is steadily adding war vessels both large and small; as fast as they could be put into fighting trim all vesels suited for such a service would be used as commerce protectors and submarine destroyers.

The United States could not send an organised army to Europe, but it could facilitate instead of prohibiting recruiting for the Allied armies, so that the fifty thousand Americans now fighting in France and Belgium might soon become half a million, and indefinitely more if the war should last long enough.

The boundary between Canada and the United States would be safeguarded by State troops against hostile raiders, and Canadian trained soldiers, now engaged in policing the frontier, would be free for transportation to the fighting front.

The manufacture of guns and munitions would be hastened, with the double motive of supplying the Allied armies and of equipping the home troops so far as may be necessary or expedient.

A declaration of war would at once open up ways of financing the purchase by the Allies of supplies of all sorts, which the American producers are keenly desirous of selling to them.

The Jews, who have only one of the Allied powers to look to for special protection, would then have two: Great Britain and the United States. A joint protectorate of a Jewish State in Palestine would be very much better than a single one.

Participation by the United States in the war would bring about a more thorough nationalisation of that country, by the more complete submergence of the alien peoples who have been giving the nation a great deal of trouble at various times in its history. In this way its efficiency for all purposes would be indefinitely increased.

The United States would be represented at the peace-making conference, instead of being left out indefinitely to take part in the more academic work of devising means to prevent future wars. As the American people are not seeking any territorial footing in Europe, American statesmen would hold in a peace conference an exceptionally influential position.

The participation of the United States in this war would make more certain the ultimate triumph of democracy the world over, including such autocratic countries as Russia, Germany, Austria-Hungary, and Japan, all of which stand greatly in need of the leavening of the masses, which is sure to follow the war.—The Globe.

Hastings Items Of Interest

Finances were found to be in a very satisfactory condition.

The local Chapter of the I.O.D.E. met on Monday for business. Parcels will be prepared at an early date to be sent to the boys at the front. The Chapter is very grateful to the citizens for their liberal support in every way.

Mr. D. H. Moore Captures The Macaulay Cup

There must, in spite of Shakespere's negative inquiry, be something in a name. Mr. D. H. Moore is to be credited with more success—securing more insurance business—than any man in Central Ontario.

He has won "for keeps" the Macaulay Cup," a beautiful gold-lined silver flagon, offered in competition in the Central Ontario bailiewick of the Sun Life. It is awarded to the representative of the Company securing the largest amount of paid-up business in each month, and for the greatest number of months in the year. There is, naturally, fluctuation in the monthly successes, but Mr. Moore won out by being oftenest at the top of the list, and, consequently, keeps the Cup for Peterborough, although Messrs. Cameron and Waddell were close seconds.

This win is only a sequel to Mr. Moore's successes. Last year he won the gold watch offered, and awarded to the member of the Macaulay Club, securing $100,000 worth of paid-up business each year for five years in succession.

And Mr. Moore has made a good beginning for winning another competitive trophy—a shield—for the most conspicuous business success in each month. He has made the win for the first month of the year (January) and, judging by precedent, his chances for another success in trophy-winning are excellent.

BILLY SUNDAY'S OUTFIT.

NEW YORK, Feb. 2. — When Rev. Billy Sunday, the evangelist, goes to New York for a three months' campaign, which begins next April, he will take with him one of the ablest and most efficiently organised groups of gospel workers that has ever been gathered together. Including Mr. Sunday himself, there were nineteen in the evangelist's party in the campaign that has just closed in Boston, and practically all of these are sure to take part in the New York campaign. It is a compact body that has grown up gradually during the last dozen years until now it includes men and women who can handle every sort of work connected with a revival. Other evangelists have had their singers, their Bible teachers, their assistant evangelists to conduct outside meetings, but nobody has had the scientifically organised expeditionary force that Sunday carries with him.

It is a body of experts. Though the evangelist himself and his wife exercise command over the party, each worker is left much in control of his or her particular sphere. And strangely enough while each is expert in one thing nearly all can turn to in a pinch and perform with a reasonable degree of expertness in something else.

The payroll of the organization is approximately a thousand dollars a week, of which Mr. Sunday pays one-third and the local committee and his supporters two-thirds. But this thousand a week does not include board, lodging, automobile hire or railway fare to and from their homes, all of which is paid by the local committee. Moreover all of the party share in a lesser degree the attraction which Sunday possesses so prominently of drawing presents from local admirers. And, since most of the expensive pleasures of life are condemned by the creed to which they all give earnest adherence, they make a good deal of money. No one who has seen a Sunday campaign will deny that from the point of view of cold efficiency they are worth it.

GARBAGE COLLECTION

Difficulty has been caused in the collection of ashes by the receptacles being too large or awkward in shape for handling and by not being strong enough. They should not be of more than two cubic feet capacity or weigh more than 75 pounds when full, and should be sufficiently strong. Neither should they be too small, for this unnecessarily increases the time required in handling and the expense. No other material or refuse shall be mixed with ashes. Table and kitchen waste must be drained and wrapped in paper. All refuse must be placed out for collection before the collector calls.

Householders are asked to carefully observe the regulations, so as to avoid unnecessary trouble for all concerned, and to co-operate to make the work successful.

The Police Department Dealt With 727 Cases During the Year Nineteen Hundred and Sixteen

Chief of Police Thompson Presents His Seventh Annual Report—Increase in Fines and Costs Collected For the Year—Marked Decrease in the Number of Persons Arrested For Drunkenness—Increase in Pay Will Be Asked For

DECREASE IN MORE SERIOUS CRIMES

The seventh annual report of the Police Department which was submitted to the Board of Police Commissioners by Chief of Police Thompson contains much of interest. The number of cases disposed of in the Police Court during the year 1916 totals seven hundred and twenty-seven. This is an increase of eighteen over the previous year. Chief Thompson reports a decrease in the more serious crimes, and also the absence of murder.

Since the inception of prohibition there has been a marked increase in the number of persons arrested for drunkenness. On the other hand there has been a large increase in the number of fines collected since the advent of the dry measure. The total increase in fines and costs collected for the year 1916 is $1,128.28. Each infraction of the Temperance Act usually results in a fine of at least $200 with a minimum fine of $10.00 for the man who is found drunk in the dry belt. Several large fines have been collected in Peterborough since last September and more than one man has realised the futility of continuing the traffic in wet goods.

Special reference is made in the report to the excellent work accomplished by Mrs. McElheney, Police Matron. Mrs. McElheney makes regular visits to the various institutions of the city and on Sundays conducts a service at the gaol.

Chief Thompson includes in his recommendations a request for a substantial increase in pay for the members of the force, due to the fact that there has been a marked depreciation in the purchasing power of a dollar.

NCREASE IN WAGES FOR THE MEN WHO PATROL THE BEAT

eterboro' Board of Police Commissioners Compare the Salary Schedule of the Peterborough Police Force to That of the Munition Workers Who Are Staying at Home and Getting Their Bit—Bouquets For Chief of Police Thompson.

That men eligible for military ser- e will not be taken on the local lice force was made plain at a meet- g of the Board of Police Commis- n held yesterday afternoon. The rce is at present under strength, t Chief Thompson informed the Po- e Commissioners that with the co- eration of the present staff of Con- ables, the Department will try and ld the fort until the boys come me. It may be necessary to take on man during the vacation period. hief Thompson also promises to give outlying district more attention m if it becomes necessary convert two of the centre trict beats into one. A re- uest from the men for an increase in ges met with favourable considera- n and as a result the local night ck twiddlers will receive increases along the line.

In support of the mens' contention higher wages a list showing the hedule of salaries paid in a num- r of Ontario cities was submitted the Board. In all cases higher wag- were paid in other cities.

THE SCHEDULE.

he old and new schedule of wages to the local police force is as ws:

	Present Schedule	New Schedule
f Constable	$1600.00	$1750.00
ective Newhall.	1050.00	1100.00
ective Meagher	900.00	1000.00
geant Brown ..	950.00	1050.00
rol Sergt. Reid.	875.00	975.00
rol Sergt. Kidd	875.00	975.00
st Class Con. ..	850.00	950.00
nd Class Con..	800.00	850.00
rd Class Con. ..	700.00	750.00

A COMPARISON.

A comparison of schedules adopted other cities is shown in another mn. His Worship Magistrate mble remarked that there was not arge discrepancy between the wag- paid here and other cities. The atest discrepancy was in the sal- paid to the Chief of Police. His rship was decidedly in favour of ing the Chief's salary because he ned to know his value. "In the ice Court said Magistrate Dumble rarely have anybody to conduct a ecution, who is paid by the city. nty Police Magistrate Langley ms that he finds himself handi- ped because the County Police are ble to present their case and dle the witnesses in a manner table to the court. This is not the in the City Police Court as in of Thompson. We have a man who is well qualified to act in the capacity of Prosecutor. The Chief is not adequately paid. His salary here is much lower than in other places. I would recommend that it be increased $100.00 each year for a period of three years. This would bring it up to $1900.00."

MUNITION WORKERS.

His Worship Mayor Duffus did not favour committing next year's Board to a salary increase for the Chief. This, Magistrate Dumble pointed out was no different to having a sliding scale of wages for Police Constables, which increased automatically each year.

"Sufficent for the day is the evil therof," quoted His Honour, Judge Huycke. "I am told that we have stalwart young eligible men making munitions for their country at $6.00 or $7.00 a day. That is their idea of patriotism. If that is true we have a great deal better class of men on the police force at lower wages and I am in favour of giving them an increase" added Judge Huycke.

Chief Thompson said he would put his staff of men against any in Ontario for intelligence and efficiency.

The Chief said that in London, Ontario the men only do eight hours a day and have one day off each week. They also have a pension to look forward to. He was satisfied to get along with fewer men and increased salaries. Eligible men are not being taken on the Toronto Police Force, and the same thing applies to the Peterborough Police Department.

"When are you going to appoint a Crown prosecutor and take charge of all prosecutions," inquired Magistrate Dumble of Mayor Duffus.

There was a profound silence on the part of the Mayor, as he scribbled away at a salary schedule. The proposed new schedule was subjected to a number of minor alterations before it was finally adopted by the Board on motion of Magistrate Dumble and Mayor Duffus. The Mayor objected to some of the larger increases proposed for the executive officers of the force. It was here that minor changes were made. The Mayor contended that the reduced purchasing power of one dollar, which was one of Chief Thompson's reasons for a salary increase, was just as important to a man like Constable Pratt who has been on the force only a few months as it was to some of the officials higher up, and that the salaries should be increased proportionately. Salary increases will take effect from January 1st of this year.

GENERAL REMARKS

I take this opportunity of complimenting Lt.-Col. T. J. Johnston, Commanding Officer of the 93rd Battalion, and his staff on the splendid behaviour of his men, during their stay in our city they conducted themselves in a manner worthy of the King's uniform, and I know that our citizens appreciated their gentlemanly conduct up to the time of their departure from this city; they carried with them the respect and best wishes of us all.

I also desire to thank Sergeant Millership and his staff of Military Police who worked harmoniously with the Civil Police and therefore rendering on many occasions valuable service to the citizens.

I also desire to thank Lt.-Col. Ackerman and his staff and men for the valuable service rendered at the Quaker Oat's Fire when he placed his entire staff at my disposal.

I wish to take this opportunity of thanking the citizens of Peterborough in general for valuable information they have supplied at various times regarding Alien Enemies, which has assisted me materially in carrying out this branch of my work which covers the City and County.

POLICE MATRON.

I would also like to express my appreciation of the very energetic way in which Mrs. McElheney, our Police Matron has performed her many and trying duties. She has visited the various institutions of the city, and on Sunday has held services at the gaol. She has been ever willing day or night, to do her part in investigating the numerous reports that has been handed to her. Her kindly disposition and Christian character has been the means of leading many young girls who have fallen, back into useful lives and respectable citizens.

I also desire to thank Adj. McElheney for his willingness to assist the Police Department, he has made arrangements for some unfortunates with whom it would have been difficult for the Department to deal.

I am also very grateful to Chief Howard and his staff for their willing co-operation with the Police Department.

I wish to express my thanks to Mr. Joseph Wearing, Solicitor for the Children's Aid Society, and Mr. Spence, agent for the Society for the excellent manner in which they have performed their duties in connection with the poor and neglected children of the city; this is a work that should commend itself to every right-thinking citizen.

I desire to thank the Press of the city, for their assistance which has at all times proven valuable in making inquiries regarding persons who have been missing and whom their friends are anxious to locate.

I am pleased to say that the general health and conduct of the Department during the year has been good.

I would recommend that the members of the police force receive a substantial increase in pay and that our salaries be put on a basis equal to that of police forces in other cities of our size, as your honourable Board knows that the purchasing power of a dollar has dwindled to such an extent it is necessary that something be done in this regard.

The Chief Constable's Association of Canada is scheduled to meet this year in the City of Quebec, and I trust gentlemen you will permit me to attend and provide the necessary appropriation.

In conclusion I sincerely thank your honourable Board for the courtesy I have received, and for your sincere interest in endeavoring to keep the Department up to a high standard of efficiency.

D. THOMPSON,
Chief Constable.

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgment in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it formed stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

HALF BILLION WAR BILL PASSED IN SHORT ORDER

Premier Declares Government is Not Averse to Discussion on Wisdom of Past Expenditures—House Will Adjourn After To-day's Session

OTTAWA, Feb. 7. — The Dominion's half-billion-dollar war appropriation bill, the greatest appropriation ever sanctioned by Parliament, received its third reading and was passed ten minutes after the House assembled this afternoon. Hon. Dr. Pugsley, just prior to the passing of the bill, asked whether any portion of the money would be used for the purchase of building of war vessels, such as submarines, etc. The Prime Minister considered it injudicious to give any public statements on that question, but declared himself ready to communicate any information which he promised to the leader of the Opposition.

E. M. MacDonald of Pictou, desired to know whether, when the House reassembled after the adjournment, opportunity would be provided for the discussion of the wisdom of past war expenditures of the Government.

WILL ALLOW DISCUSSION.

Sir Robert Borden declared that he was not inclined to oppose the slightest objections to such discussion. It had been intimated last night that the Government was averse to criticism and opposed to giving information. On the contrary, said the Premier, he was not averse to criticism, and would give all information in his power.

The bill was then passed and went to the Senate for ratification.

Sir Robert Borden then moved that the following members be appointed a committee to consider the question of a suitable recognition of the fiftieth anniversary of Confederation; Sir George E. Foster, Hon. G. P. Graham, General Hughes, E. M. MacDonald, Clarence Jamieson, Hon. R. Lemieux, Hon. Albert Sevigny, Col. J. D. Taylor and Hon. Chas. Murphy.

The following committee was appointed to consider the whole question of the returned soldiers, and to report to the House after adjournment; Sir Herbert Ames, R. B. Bennett, W. S. Middleboro, Hon. Chas. Marcil, Hon. Charles Murphy, Fred Pardee, Duncan Rose, Donald Sutherland, F. B. McCurdy. The committee will meet during the adjournment.

TO ADJOURN UNTIL APRIL 19.

Sir Robert Borden moved that when the House adjourned to-day it stands adjourned until April 19 next. Easter this year, he said, will fall on April 8, and it was right that a suitable interval be allowed between these dates and the re-opening.

Mr. Lemieux referred the Minister of Trade and Commerce to the fact that a deputation of Montreal and Toronto business men had waited up on him some weeks ago with a view to finding means for increasing trade between France and Canada. Mr. Lemieux understood that a complete scheme for "exhibition trains" had been suggested to the Minister of Trade and Commerce.

Sir George Foster said there was no question of negotiations between France and Canada as to trade relations between the two countries. The proposal made had not been sustained by the department as a possible scheme. The Minister told the deputation that if the manufacturers thought it feasible and would provide the samples at their own expense, and hat if arrangements could be made for the carriage of goods to France without expense to the Dominion, the question might be considered favorably. French liners he understood, would carry the samples, and the French authorities looked with favour on the proposal. This was the situation as he left it when he set out for England. He had some doubts wheher this was an opportune time for carrying out the scheme in view of the tremendo burden laid upon the transportation system of the Allies.

ROGERS ON GALT REPORT.

Hon. Robert Rogers, Minister of Public Works, rose to question of privilege in the matter of the Galt report. The report, he declared, carries with it unmistakable evidence of animus, temper, and misrepresentation.

"Order!" interrupted Sir Wilfrid Laurier. "The honorable gentleman has risen to a question of privilege. He can explain his position, and if in a position to do so can refuse the findings of the judge, but he cannot impugn his character."

Mr. Speaker was inclined to consider the point well taken.

Mr. Rogers continued. The report made, he said, was largely due to the fact that on an occasion Mr. Rogers had referred to Judge Galt as bartering the honour of the King's Bench.

Cries of "order, order," again interrupted the minister. "The honorable gentleman," said Sir Wilfrid, can deny or qualify the judge's finding, but he has no right, I maintain, to impugn his authority at this time, or to cast reflection upon his character."

"Does the right honorable gentleman contend" asked Sir Robert Borden, "that he held a judicial position?"

"That is not the question," replied Sir Wilfrid, "the minister has no right to question his authoriyt today."

"I did not do so," retorted Mr. Rogers.

"You said he held an illegal position," said Sir Wilfrid, "the minister had no right to do so."

It is reported that one of the questions which Hon. J. D. Hazen, Minister of Naval Service, will take up with the British Admiralty is the possibility of substituting Halifax for neutral lines to Scandinavia. This would eliminate their passage through the war zone. Mr. Hazen is accompanying Premier Borden to Britain.

Little Hope to Get Dr. Beland Released

Baron Von Mundheim Still in Internment—Baron Polen's Case.

OTTAWA, Feb. 7.—Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justic, told Parliament in a brief statement at the opening of sitting that there seemed little prospect of obtaining the release or exchange of Hon. Dr. H. S. Beland, formerly Postmaster-General in the Laurier Administration, and now a prisoner of war in Germany.

The Minister made his statement in response to inquiries made by Hon. Charles Marcil as to why the Government had not effected an exchange at the time of the reported release of Baron von Polen and Baron von Mundheim. Some time ago, as the result of international negotiations, these two German noblemen were reported to have been released by the Canadian authorities.

Hon. Mr. Doherty stated that the report that Baron von Mundheim had been released as a result of the negotiations was erroneous. "He is still being held at the internment camp at Fort Henry," observed the Minister.

He was unable to make public the facts surrounding the release of Baron von Polen, but he added: "I may assure the public that at the time of his release conditions were such as to make it absolutely impossible to effect an exchange for our colleague, Dr. Beland. In fact, it was quite impossible to connect up the two cases." The Minister added that the police had been consulted, and that, in the case of Baron von Polen, every precaution was taken to carry out his release without endangering the public safety."

It is understood that Baron von Polen was permitted to go to the United States, with the understanding that he should report regularly to the British or Canadian auhorities, and not attempt to return to Germany until the close of the war.

Capt. Stampé reached the wreck with a tug.

IF BACKACHY OR KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat less meat also take glass of Salts before eating breakfast

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad. Eat less meat, drink lots of water also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a table spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralise the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent should take now and then to keep the should take nw and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

HOTEL LIFE IN LONDON UPSET BY THE DEMANDS OF THE WAR

LONDON.—State requirements for extensive building have caused a tremendous upheaval in hotel life in London. About a dozen of the biggest have been commandeered by the government for temporary use or for the duration of the war, and managers of the leading hotels live from day to day in trepidation lest they may be called upon to evacuate their houses at the very shortest notice.

Thus it follows that the big hotels that are left are full; many of them are crowded; a number have had to turn away disappointed applicants. Some Americans who have "wirelessed" from steamers on the way over have reached London to find that the rooms they asked for in certain hotels have been unobtainable.

The main explanation is to be found in the fact that there is a shortage of upward of 4,000 rooms consequent on the government requisitioning building one after the other. People have had to relinquish apartments which they have held as long as twenty years, citizens prominent in public life sharing in the trek; visitors have had to break a routine almost as firmly established, and many have been driven to protracted search before securing new quarters.

Officers brought to London by duty and on leave from the front have shared the disagreeable experience of finding hotels with which they are familiar already full.

"I don't want to spend my leave careering around in a taxi," remarked one who had devoted the better part of an evening to a futile quest and that after the early despatch of a telegram which he thought had safely reserved a room in a handy centre.

The Gordon hotels have been specially hit by the war, six out of fifteen being closed. First three across Channel—at Dieppe, Monte Carlo and Cannes—were needed, and then in London the Metropole, the Grand and the Victoria, all in Northumberland avenue, commandeered for the Office of Works.

In many hotels fully one-tenth of the residents are permanent; in others the proportion runs as high as twenty-five per cent. That narrows the chances of vacancies. Inquiries at some leading hotels showed current business to be apportioned thus:—Crowded, thirty per cent., full twenty-eight per cent.; nearly full, twenty per cent., and houses which have had to turn away applicants, twenty-two per cent.

One hotel which has heavy bookings and is continually crowded has seventy or eighty officers leaving every morning; another, which made special terms for officers, cannot take all who apply. A West End hotel expects to be busy until the close of the war; another, which will be full until the end of January, reports some applicants having lamented that "they cannot find room anywhere." others again have bookings well ahead.

The qualifying statement is made in some quarters that it is the dislocation of hotel routine rather than shortage which occasions embarrassment and disappointment; in a wider radius rooms are obtainable, though the weary traveller may be loth to desert familiar landmarks.

From the proprietors' standpoint the most acute problem will arise at the end of the war, when, for example, a great American influx is expected. It is feared that this will come before the commandeered hotel can be restored to its tenant's keeping or its wonted smartness; and the argument is advanced that even the houses which are securing many visitors to-day are handicapped by increased taxes, restrictions, staff difficulties and high prices—in short, that it is not a money-making period.

The staying properties of that wonderful comedy "Peg O' My Heart" has justified the employing of a cast this season that has not been equalled since the first year that the play was put out. Resignation Of Sanitary Inspector Cooper Accepted

Has Been in Ill Health For Some Time and Forced to Relinquish His Position

TAKES EFFECT AT ONCE

Sanitary Inspector T. R. Cooper handed his resignation to the Property Committee last night with a special request that, on account of ill health, he be relieved of his duties as soon as possible. Mayor Duffus moved, seconded by Ald. Smith, that the resignation be accepted, and in reply to Chairman Saunders' enquiry, stated that he would continue in service until his successor was appointed; and Mr. Cooper observed that he understood the City Fathers had a man ready to step into his shoes, and would give his time in outlining the work and the details of the position.

The illness of Mr. Cooper was apparently a recurrance of a pulmonary trouble that developed in service overseas. Mr. Cooper was one of those who suffered from the enemy's gas and the cold weather proves particularly trying to him.

DISLIKE FOR FOOD

Every healthy man and woman should have a natural desire for food at meal times. This means that the digestion is in working order and that the blood is in good condition. But if you feel a dislike for food—if the sight and smell of wholesome food repels you—then you may be sure that nature is telling you that all is not well. If after a night's rest you have no appetite for breakfast, your digestion requires attention. If your food is distasteful, or if you feel that it is a trouble to eat, your stomach is rebelling. You do not digest properly the food you are taking and are therefore not hungry.

All these symptoms of a disordered digestion mean that the blood is not absorbing proper nourishment from the food for the work of the blood is to collect proper nourishment from food and impart it to the system. The stomach tries to refuse food the nutriment from which the blood cannot absorb, and this causes the lack of appetite. If you force yourself to eat, the undigested food becomes a clog to the system. Nature is warning you. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills alone give the blood the richness and purity that it requires to perform its natural function. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure the most obstinate cases of indigestion—why they will cure any trouble due to poor blood.

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

COLLEGIATE'S GALLERY OF HONOUR GROWS WITH NEW PICTURES

Of the former students of the Collegiate Institute who have enlisted in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces, twenty-seven have been killed. Some time ago Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, the principal, took the first steps to a memorial to these boys whose sacrifice has reflected the highest honour upon the old school, by arranging to hang in the halls of the Collegiate Institute their pictures, inscribed with their names, rank and date of death. Already he has reported to the Board of Education the receipt of a number of pictures, and on Monday night presented a supplementary report of the later additions. Mr. W. G. Morrow has presented an enlarged photograph of the late Major George W. Bennet of the 2nd Battalion, Mr. Frank Adams a similar photograph of his son, the late Trooper Merton Adams, who died at Barriefield in 1915, and Mr. James A. Fife of Edmonton, former Science Master of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute, a photograph of his son, the late Lieut. Gordon Stanley Fife of the Princess Patricias, a Rhodes scholar and one of the most brilliant of the students graduated from the old school. Lieut. Fife was killed in action last summer.

Mr. Kenner has also received a number of photographs of students who have won military decorations, are still serving. Dr. T. N. Greer presented a picture of his son, Capt. Garnet Greer, of the medical services, who was decorated with the military cross, Ald. A. H. Stratton has presented a photograph of his son, Lieut. Reggie Stratton, who also won the military cross, and Mr. Cortez Fessenden has promised a picture of his son, Lieut. Col. Jack Fessenden, who has received military decorations from the Kings of Italy and Serbia.

Mr. Kenner has photographs of other students killed in action. These are being enlarged and will be duly announced and placed in the gallery with their fellows. It is only fitting to add that the original plan anticipated, the receipt of photographs of which enlargements would be prepared, and the cost defrayed by the present student body. In a number of cases this is being carried on, in others the parents have themselves secured the enlargements. The idea is a most commendable one and when finally effected will be dearly prized by every graduate of the Collegiate Institute.

Iron, Steel and Metal Market

In its summary of the iron, steel, metal and machinery market for the week ending February 6, Canadian Machinery and Manufacturing News, Toronto, makes the following observations:—

IRON, STEEL, METALS AND MACHINERY.

"The industrial situation has been materially affected by the breaking-off of diplomatic relations between the United States and Germany. The effect, so far, has been most noticeable in the ingot metal markets, where prices have advanced on copper, tin and antimony. The advance in tin, however, is due more to the possibility of shipments being lost on account of the proposed submarine blockade and not because of the likelihood of an increase in demand, as in the case of copper and antimony. Steel prices continue on the up-grade, iron and steel bars, plates and shapes all having reached higher levels. The steel market is very strong and the recent developments in the international situation will tend to further strengthen the situation. The output of the mills is still being curtailed on account of the difficulty in obtaining supplies of coke and raw material in sufficiently large quantities. In this regard the outlook in the meantime is not very bright, although a strenuous effort is being made to relieve the congestion of freight by the railways. Canadian foundry pig-iron continues off the market and a considerable tonnage is now being imported from the United States. The machine tool market is quiet, pending the placing of third and fourth quarter contracts for munitions."

CITIZENS IMPEDE WORK OF THE GARBAGE COLLECTORS

Contractor Graham Tells Property Committee of the Difficulties Arising out of Disregard of the Garbage Bylaw —Public Notices in Press

The trials of the garbage collector as related to the Property committee last night provided an unfavourable commentary on the civic spirit of many citizens who are expected to assist, not impede, the operations of this public service. At the conclusion of Mr. Graham's recital Ald. Smith moved seconded by Ald. Dobbin, that notices be inserted in the local press again reminding the citizens of the regulations respecting the form and capacity of the garbage and ashes containers, the time they should be put out for collection and where they should be placed.

Mr. Graham, who is contractor for the removal of garbage, stated some people put out wash tubs heaped up with ashes. One of these weighed 198 pounds. Evidently these householders expected the garbage collectors to possess herculean powers. The containers have to be lifted up to the sleighs to be emptied.

Conditions Becoming Worse.

"Things are getting worse instead of better," said Mr. Graham.

Ald. Dobbin—"Bring us the names of these people and the numbers of their houses."

"I'd never get through a day's work," replied the contractor. "It would take up too much time writing."

Ald. Dobbin remarked that the citizens should be made observe the bylaw.

Mr. Graham told of a recent instance in which a doctor's garbage that had been put out was removed, and when the collector returned for the ashes a barrel of paper had been put out in the meantime, and after the last collection was made.

"We left it there," added the contractor.

"I would have taken the barrel and all and burned it," said one of the aldermen.

Mr. Graham related a grocer's similar disregard for the regulations.

Behind Woolworth's store a barrel with nails around the top is used for ashes. The collectors emtpied it once, but because of the difficulty to handle it asked that the nails be removed. This request was not complied with and Mr. Graham stated that the ashes would not be emptied until the nails were drawn.

Several other difficulties were mentioned, all of them strengthening Mr. Graham's case that too many citizens show an utter disregard for the rights of the contractor. The impression remaining after his recital was that there must be more co-operation between the public, the contractor and the Council if the garbage collection system is to operate at its fullest effectiveness.

Clean Sheet For East City.

Ald. Smith stated that he had heard no complaints from Ashburnham, and Mr. Graham added that the work in East City was very satisfactory to himself. The regulations were adhered to and collections thereby facilitated.

HUN SYMPATHIZER MAY HAVE POISONED CELERY SHIPMENT

Arsenate of Copper Was Thickly Sprinkled on Stalks.

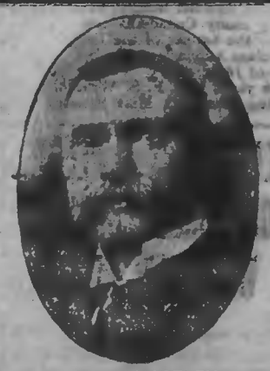
ST. THOMAS, Feb. 7.—Twelve dozen heads of poisoned celery are supposed to be in circulation in this city. Sanitary Inspector Shaw has issued an order calling in all celery stocks from the various grocery stores which belonged to the consignment, but some had already been sold.

On Saturday Abdelh Bros., wholesale and retail fruit dealers, communicated with Inspector Shaw in reference to a shipment of celery they had received from Toronto. The inspector examined the celery and thought at the first glance that the green substance on the stalks was a fungus growth, and after instructing the fruit firm not to permit any more of the food to go out of their store he had the material that was found in the celery plant analyzed, but failed to find anything poisonous in the material.

The inspector communicated with Dr. Hastings, M.O.H., Toronto, who stated that his analyst and a second analyst had discovered that the green material on the celery, which had also been circulated in Toronto, contained arsenate of copper, which is a poison which makes up the poisonous properties of paris green. Many St. Thomas citizens have been peculiarly sick since Saturday. The celery which the health inspector examined was saturated throughout, and only the usual washing-off process of the celery has prevented serious results.

The car of celery was received in Toronto by A. H. Ash wholesaler from Florida and Abdelh Bros. purchased 25 cases from the same car. It is believed the paris green which was very thickly applied may have been sprinkled by the person who packed the cases. The St. Thomas firm delivered one case to Woodstock.

The authorities believe positively that the action was perpetrated by a German sympathizer knowing the merchandise was for Canadian consumption. The goods will be destroyed.



MR. J. J. HARTLEY,
Elected President of Trades and Labour Council For New Year.

DISPUTE WITH PASTORS.

Hamilton's Mayor Urges Them to "Display Horse Sense."

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 7.— Members of the Methodist ministry and Mayor Booker, an ardent Baptist, are having a lively set-to following his Worship's permission to coal dealers to deliver on Sunday. INSURE NEUTRAL SHIPS.

None Need Remain in Port Because of Cost.

LONDON, Feb. 7.—The Times says that the new scheme of war insurance for neutral ships becomes operative on the London market on Wednesday. Rates will be far lower than heretofore for neutrals carrying essential cargoes, such as foodstuffs, munitions and coal, and, the Times says, will be so moderate that it will be needless for owners to keep ships in port owing to insurance cost.

The list of rates under the new scheme includes one of five per cent. on ships from America bound for Italian ports west of Sicily or to points on the British Channel and east coast of Britain. Seventy shillings per cent. is the rate from America to the French Mediterranean and the west coast of Great Britain.

IN THE WORLD OF SPORT

PETERBOROUGH SOLDIERS HAVE LEAD OF FIVE OVER THE KINGSTON ARTILLERYMEN

Homesters Won Last Night's Second Round Intermediate Game Before the Biggest Crowd in Several Years by 11 Goals to 6—Were Behind in First Period.

ARMSTRONG WAS STAR

The 247th Battalion team have a comfortable lead of five goals to carry to Kingston with them on Monday. Before 1,500 excited fans, the biggest crowd at Brock Street Rink in several years, Manager O'Flynn's speed boys took the fast Kingston Depot Batteries team into camp last night to the tune of 11 goals to 6. Outside of the first period when the Peterborough aggregation could not seem to hit their stride, the light, but speedy, Artillery team were decidedly out-played and the Peterborough margin should have been larger on the play. On the form shown last night the 247th should repeat their victory in the return game, and go into the third round without any trouble. And at that the Gunners are a clever, fast little team.

Outside of the first ten or fifteen minutes the 247th played grand hockey last night. With their extra weigh thrown in with their speed and stick handling, they had a decided edge on the visitors, and only a fine exhibition of goal keeping by Tobin averted a larger score. On the go-in the local Soldiers were slow in getting started. The forwards bunched and failed to back-check, and the defence twice chased after the puck carrier and left the centre wide open. The result was that Kingston led by 2 to 0, and a little later by 4 to 2. Then the Petes got under way and took command of the game for the balance of the proceedings. Before the end of the period they were ahead 5 to 4, and they were never in difficulties afterward. At the end of the second it was 8 to 4, and they outscored the visitors 3 to 2 in the final session.

Although everybody had a share in the victory, Armstrong was the star for the 247th, last night. The tall lad in centre not only scored five goals, but he never stopped, his rushes and shooting being always dangerous, while he contributed a lot of useful checking as well. Halpin was always in the lime-light with three nice goals to his credit, and little Pat Flanagan back-checked like a fiend, and although he did not score himself, the assist column shows he was responsible for three counters. Jack Adams and George Evans did not find the nets as often as usual, but were in the game all the way, and Adams' back-checking in the last two periods helped a lot. Thornton worked hard all the way. It was a funny game for Legros. He was not called on very frequently, but when the attack came he had little chance to save, as the visitors secured all but one of their goals from the mouth of the nets on neat plays.

The visitors, all of whom hail from Ottawa, are fast and tricky. Apparently not as heavy as the Kingston Juniors they make up in speed and in clever use of the poke-check what they lack in weight. They were distinctly outplayed after the first period last night, but at that they were always dangerous when they broke, and three or four of their goals were scored on beautiful plays. In Burnett, formerly with the Ottawa-New Edinburghs, and who would have been in the N. H. A. long ago if he were heavy enough, the visitors have a star centre man. He was fast and clever all the way, as was Burke, the captain and left-wing, who contributed two sparkling rushes and clever passes that netted goals. The defence pair were good and Tobin, in the nets, turned in a sparkling performance. It is a safe bet that he has a few bruises to-day from some of the drives he turned aside last night.

Referee Stan. Burgoyne handled the game in good style.

The teams:

Kingston		247th
	Goal
Tobin		Legros
	Right Defence
Spence		Thornton
	Left defence
Tubman		Halpin
	Rover
Grimes		P. Flanagan
	Centre
Burnett		Armstrong
	Right Wing
Roy		Adams
	Left Wing
Burke (Capt.)		Evans

The 247th broke away from the face-off and inside the first ten seconds Tobin had to clear a shot from Adams. The locals missed several chances, Armstrong losing a pass at the goal mouth and then the Easterners broke away and carried the rubber to the homesters' end of the rink. Grimes secured a loose puck and beat Legros with a quick shot. Depot Batteries, 1; 247th, 0.

Burnett, the speedy little centre man, broke away and was right inside when Halpin tripped him, drawing a penalty, but averting a score. Adams was soon after chased for a trip. When the two came back the homesters missed several good chances when close in, while Tobin saved half a dozen times in quick succession. In spite of the bombardment, however, it was the visitors who finally scored. Burke tore down the side, drew out the 247th defence and then neatly centred Burnett coming in fast for a pretty goal. Depot Batteries, 2; 247th, 0.

Flanagan and Spence were benched for a mix-up. The Petes finally broke into the scoring column when Adams beat Tobin with a nice shot from the side on a pass from Armstrong. Depot Batteries, 2; 247th, 1.

The Artillerymen came right back with another counter, however. Halpin lost the rubber at centre and Roy broke away with Burnett beside him. Halpin back-checked, covering Burnett, but Roy fooled Thornton by a fake pass, and when the Peterborough defence man charged at Burnett, Roy slipped in alone and scored easily. It was a heady play by the right wing man. Depot Batteries, 3; 247th, 1.

A pretty rush by Halpin was responsible for one next counter. The Peterborough Captain was checked when close in, but Armstrong secured and poked the rubber into the nets. Depot Batteries, 3; 247th, 2.

The visitors kicked on this goal, and the goal umpire was removed.

Tobin made several pretty saves of hard shots, and the Petes seemed to have no luck around the nets. Finally Burke got away again and after a pretty rush down the ice, centred to Grimes, who registered. The rover had to close in fast to get the pass and it was a nice play on both ends. Depot Batteries, 4; 247th 2.

Armstrong got that back in short order when he went in alone and beat Tobin at close range. Depot Batteries, 4; 247th, 3.

The homesters came right back, and tied it up, Halpin doing the trick after a dodging rush. Depot Batteries, 4; 247th, 4.

Tobin was hurt and there was a short delay until he recovered. Halpin broke away again and although Spence checked him. Armstrong banged the rubber in the nets and the 247th were in front, never to be headed.

247th, 5; Depot Batteries, 4. The period ended with the figures unchanged.

The second period was decidedly in favour of Major O'Flynn's outfit, who had the Artillerymen on the defensive all the way through. Only great goal-keping by Tobin and hard luck around the nets kept the score down. Half a dozen times early in the period, the rubber was batted out of scrimmages around the nets, when a score seemed certain. Adams drove a beauty that struck under the bar at the top of the nets, but the Kingston goal umpire failed to see it and was removed. In one hot scrimmage Tobin went down on his knees and was benched, but the Petes could not score when he was off, Spence making a good stop of the only shot they got on the nets. Soon after Tobin came back, Legros was chased for slashing, but the Batterymen did not have a chance to take advantage of the absence of the 247th goaler. From the face-off that followed Legros' removal Armstrong tore down the ice, outskating the Kingston forwards and shot as he circled the defence, driving a lightning shot into the nets that Tobin hadn't a chance with. 247th, 6; Batteries, 4.

Adams was penalized for tripping. The local Soldiers were having all the better of the play at this stage and Armstrong tested Tobin with three beauties in succession. Then Flanagan and Halpin came down together and although the rubber drifted into the corner, Flanagan recovered and passed out to Halpin, in front of the nets, and the little Captain did the needful. It was a nice play by the Gold Dust twins. 247th, 7; Batteries, 4.

Halpin was also responsible for the next counter. He and Adams broke away together, and although Tobin came out and spoiled the first shot he was knocked down in the process and Halpin slid the rubber into the nets. 247th, 8; Batteries, 4.

Thornton drew a penalty for what looked like a square body-check, shortly before the period ended.

The Gunners were the first to score in the last period. Grimes and Burnett got away together and the little centre man found the nets. 24th, 9; Batteries, 5.

Evans drew his first O. H. A. penalty of the year for tripping. Just after he was chased the lights dimmed so badly that play had to be stopped, but after a ten-minute wait the juice came back, and the game was on once again.

Evans got back on the ice just in time to pull off one of the best individual stunts of the night, when he dodged through the Kingston defence and beat Tobin from the mouth of the net. 247th, 9; Batteries, 5.

A pretty rush by Flanagan gave Armstrong a chance to rip another into the nets in the next minute. 247th, 10; Batteries, 5.

The homesters were all over the visitor at this stage. Flanagan broke away again and when the Kingston defence charged at him, slid the rubber across to Adams, who took Tobin's measure with a pretty side shot. Flanagan made it sure by batting the rubber through again, as it bounced out. 247th, 11; Batteries, 5.

The Artillery men got the last goal of the night when Thornton lost the rubber in starting a rush, and Burke darted in and scored neatly. 247th, 11; Batteries, 6.

The summary:

First Period—

1—Kingston, Grimes, 1 min.
2—Kingston, Burnett, 4 mins; (assisted by Burke).
3—247th, Adams, 5 mins; (assisted by Armstrong).

HOCKEY GOSSIP

The ice at Peterborough Monday night was as hard as ivory. Players state it was lightning fast and the best stuff that could be found any where.—Kingston Standard.

The Kingston Standard says:—The six to two score in the Kingston Juniors-Peterborough game on Monday is not a true indication of the closeness of the play and the fans can count on a hair raising struggle at the local rink, Friday night. When one considers that it took the locals eighteen minutes to find the nets that is sufficient evidence to show that it was some game. The next goal went to Peterborough, just beating the bell of the second period. There was no further scoring until ten minutes of the last stanza was played, when Peterborough evidently cracked under the dizzy pace and Kingston won as they pleased. However, any game that will only show two goals in fifty minutes is some battle and the fans can rest assured that the same article will be offered here Friday night. There is likely to be a change in the local line-up which will weaken the team. Gratton suffered from a bad knee sprain at Peterborough and may not be able to play, which will prove a distinct loss to the club. McKelvey, will in that event likely be given a chance to make good, going to the line, which if Gratton is not there will have to be shifted about. No official has been appointed for the game Friday, but there is a chance that Steve Vair will handle the bell again. Vair is an old pro. player.

The Peterborough Juniors will go to Kingston to-morrow morning at 8.10 o'clock for the return game with the Kingston hockey club. The team will practise at 7 o'clock to-night, and every player is expected out. The Petes are going to give Kingston a real battle to-morrow night.

Capt. Simpson, Jack Bigelow, "Chuck" Carew and other Lindsay fans were visitors at last night's game and rooted lustily for Peterborough. The Lindsay gang sent a waggon load of money to Kingston a week ago to bet on the 247th, but could not get it covered.

TANKARD HONOURS TO OWEN SOUND

Defeated Peterborough by Ten Shots in Final Game Last Night

LOCALS HOME TO-DAY

Two husky rinks from the Owen Sound Curling Club snatched the Ontario Tankard from Peterborough in the final games on the Lakeview ice, Toronto last night, winning by the score of 32 to 22.

Tired by the two days grind the locals decided not to compete for the Governor General's Cup in the Consolation Round and returned home to-day. They demonstrated beyond a doubt, that the Peterborough club possesses curlers worthy of a place with the best in this province, and their performance, while bringing recognition and acclaim to the local club also inspires it with a stronger desire, a new impetus to put the name of Peterborough in the list of Tankard winners.

From reports of the players they were undone by the soft ice at the Lakeview rink. Only two degrees of frost soon made the going soft and heavy and many a stone counted among the "hogs" and when played stronger hit the ends. The Owen Sound players were for the most part young and big. They were able to put into the finish more of a reserve force than appeared in Peterborough's concluding play. However, the club is highly pleased with the results. The two rinks acquitted themselves well. They were game all the way and particularly cool in the pinches.

The score follows.

Press Comment.

To-day's Mail and Empire contained the following account of the final games:

Owen Sound—the merry curlers from Grey County—proved the dark horse in this year's Ontario Tankard competition, when yesterday they achieved their ambition by winning the cup from Peterborough by a margin of 10 shots. It was their first Tankard victory, although they were in the finals three years ago.

The finals were played at Lakeview Rink, for the first time in the history of the competition. This was neutral ice for both clubs, as neither had played here. Owing to the morning games finishing so late, the final did not get started until 4 o'clock, and it was well after 8.30 when it was finished. There was 4 degrees when the pay began, and 2 degrees when they finished. The ice, though was inclined to be sweaty, and therefore hard to judge the exact weight for a draw. The play throughout was very even, but Skip Wright of Owen Sound, made a strong finish, scoring seven on the last three ends and tieing Skip Waddell, his opponent. These rinks counted the even number of ends. On the other rink, Batchellor of Owen Sound, was always up on Lang, and towards the finish drew away to win by 17 to 7.

At the conclusion of the final President Tom Thauburn of the O.C.A., presented the cup to the winners, Skip Wright receiving it on behalf of his club. Short speeches were also made by Honorary Secretary G. S. Pearcy, his predecessor James Macfadden, and the veteran Sam Ray of Peterborough. Mr. Macfadden remarked that this was the eighteenth Tankard presentation that he had witnessed.

To get into the finals, Owen Sound disposed of Galt Granites in the morning at Victoria Club, while Peterborough beat Queen City after an extra end at the Granite. It was Peterborough's second extra end victory of the competition, they beating Barrie also. The Peterborough-Queen City game was a thriller from start to finish. Queen City had a small margin with two ends to play on the Kerr-Waddell eighteenth end. Waddell was lying two shots when Kerr played his last stone, it raising in a Peterborough stone for another shot, thus tieing them up. Rice and Lang were tied with two ends to play, Lang getting one on the seventeenth end, and was also lying one on the eighteenth end, but Rice laid shot with his last stone. On the extra end both Peterborough skips secured one.

Women's Patriotic League Has a Busy Meeting

The Woman's Patriotic League of Ashburnham held their monthly meeting yesterday afternoon and the large attendance at both the work and the business meeting was decidedly encouraging. Quite a number of letters were read from the boys at the front acknowledging the receipt of their Christmas boxes, which were all received in good condition. It was interesting to note the comments on the articles enclosed and how they appealed to the different boys. It will be quite a help to the ladies again. Lately the League has been forwarding cheques to the different Patriotic Societies, but now the workers are turning out in such good numbers, they hope to largely increase the output of sewing as well. The resignation of Mrs. Craig as convenor of the Buying committee was received with deep regret. Owing to ill-health, she was obliged to resign.

18 jackets (Red Cross.)
12) socks (Canadian S.C.C.)
14 gauze suits (Canadian S.C.C.)

time of crossing to England in August, 1915.

Mrs. M. Wilford, 59 Olive avenue, has received several interesting letters from her husband, Sergt. Major Harry Wilford, who went overseas with the 59th Battalion, and is now in France. In one he says:

"We left the base on Jan. 14th, spent three days in box cars and eventually got to headquarters. It's rough living in this locality. Sleeping in barns with rats running about you all night is anything but pleasant, but you soon get used to it; in fact I am just beginning to enjoy it. It's not so cold as I expected, but of course we are wrapped up pretty warm, with skin or leather coats. Bless your life, you would laugh at times to see the comical objects we look. We have not been in the trenches yet, although we are close to the big guns and they are banging away all day and night for they don't give give Fritz a rest. I don't know what they are going to do with me yet, whether I am going to the Divisional School as an instructor or going to join the regiment, so we must trust to luck.

In a later letter Sergt.-Major Wilford writes:

What a good job I did not post this letter before I went back to my billet, for sure enough there was my Christmas parcel, containing one cake, cigars, tobacco, fruit, sweets, socks, handkerchiefs and gum. Were we not delighted, for we had been eating iron rations for a few days, so you may guess what we felt when we opened it.

Just fancy to yourself a very dark barn, with no windows, a small bit of wood burning in an old coal oil tin, with six sergeants trying to keep warm by it. (My but we did make a good meal. We were fortunate enough to have a little tea and sugar, so we made some tea and just enjoyed ourselves. We certainly enjoyed the cigars before we rolled up for the night. Of course in these times we all share in our parcels from home so far as eatables go.

Committee Will Meet To-night

A meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council will be held this evening when it is expected that an initial attempt will be made to prepare the estimates. That this year's tax rate will be higher than last year goes without saying. A tax rate of about twenty-eight mills is about the expectation.

SHEARER—McCAFFREY.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Fatt, Dovercourt Road, was the scene of a quiet wedding on Tuesday, when Margaret Elizabeth, youngest daughter of Mr. Chas. McCaffrey, became the wife of Mr. Harry Shearer. The house was decorated in pink and white flowers and ferns and the ceremony was performed by Rev. R. McCullough. The bride, who was unattended, wore a gown of white crepe de chene and tulle, with veil and orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lily of the valley. Later Mr. and Mrs. Shearer left for New York.

PRUSSIAN PLOT TO BLOCK AMERICAN PORTS IS BARED

Heavy Guards Are Ordered Placed Around German Merchant Vessels Here, at Panama and Manila to Prevent Crews From Sinking Them as Obstructions to Navigation—Ships Have Been Dismantled and Some of Them May Never Be Fit For Service Again.

PARTS DROPPED INTO THE SEA

Examiner Special:

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 9.—Confirming the report published exclusively last Friday, administration officials admitted to-day that they have evidence of a well matured plot to destroy all the ninety-three German merchant vessels in American ports. Furthermore, the plot includes the sinking of ships in the harbour at Manila and in the Panama Canal, causing a serious menace to navigation.

There also is evidence to show that the Germans have prepared to sink ships in other ports, in narrow channels, to cut off traffic for as long a period as possible.

As a result of the disclosures the officials have directed that heavy guards be placed around the German merchantmen to see that they are not sunk or blown up. The guards are being supplied by the customs service, which is acting under authority of the law for the protection of ports.

MR. BAKER SEES PRESIDENT.

Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, admitted the receipt of such information after a conference with the President at the White House. On returning to the War Department he issued this statement:—

"The the harbours of Manila and elsewhere in the Philippine Islands and at Colon, Panama, the German merchant vessels were discovered to have had certain parts of their machinery removed and in some instances evidences of preparation for the sinking of these vessels had been made.

"Solely for the purpose of protecting the several harbours and other shipping and property therein, steps have been taken to prevent damage, but none of the ships has been seized by the government of the United States, and in all cases commanders and crews have been informed that the government of the United States has made no seizure, claims no rights to the vessel and does not dispute the right of the commanders and crews to dismantle the vessels if they see fit, so long as the destruction is accomplished in a way which will not obstruct navigable port waters or endanger other shipping or property.

"The breach of diplomatic relations between the governments of the United States and Germany has not changed the relations of these ships or their crews to the government of the United States or forfeited their right to our hospitality, and the steps taken are limited to necessary police regulations to prevent injury to the property of others or the obstruction of harbour waters."

NO VESSELS SEIZED.

At the White House afterward it became known that the United States in no instance has seized the German merchant ships or has asserted title to them. It was said that the vessels and their crews had been placed only under such guard as to prevent anything being done to obstruct navigation.

The administration, it was explained, is taking the greatest pains to see that no right of any foreign government or foreign owner is violated.

The Treasury Department received an official report from the Collector of Customs at Boston, saying that the German steamship Kronprinzessin Cecilie had been damaged to such an extent that she could not be used without extensive repairs. The Treasury Department immediately telephond to the Collector, who explained that he was sending a complete report of the occurrence by mail.

There is plenty of evidence to warrant the assertion that almost all the German merchant ships in American ports, valued at upward to $100,000,000, have been dismantled to such an extent that they would be useless without months of repairs. Some of them, shipping experts declare, will never be fit for use again.

PARTS DROPPED INTO SEA.

Most of the engines have been dismantled and essential parts dropped into the sea. To replace them would take large expenditures and require months of work. Duplicate parts, it is believed, are obtainable only in the home port in Germany.

There is no law, as explained in Mr. Baker's statement, which will prevent the masters and crew of the vessels from taking them apart or destroying essential parts of the machinery. The ships are German property, and, strictly speaking, under the law, American officials cannot even go on board, except to prevent the destruction of the vessels by explosives or sinking. The general port laws permit the guarding of ships for that reason.

The statement that some of the vessels are worthless now is based on the fact that they have been in American ports for two and a half years without repair.

Market was steady and firm for good to choice butcher cattle, and for choice heavy steers. On the whole, it was a fair, steady market, making all due allowances for a few mixed lots of poor quality.

PRESIDENT'S ACT BRINGS WORLD NEARER PEACE

Viscount Bryce Declares It Is Beginning of the End—No One Can Now Talk of a Draw—The Current Phases of the War Discussed by Viscount Bryce.

NEED NOT BE SURPRISED

Examiner Special:

LONDON, February 9.—Viscount Bryce, formerly British Ambassador at Washington, yesterday gave his views on the current phases of the war and the probable effect of America's action. Speaking first of Germany's declaration of war zones and the menace to neutrals, he said:

"This is the first definite step that brings us nearer peace. It looks like the beginning of the end. Up till now, many thought the outcome of the war might be a drawn game, but now the German Government, recognizing approaching economic exhaustion and the growing scarcity of supplies, has become desperate and is resorting to desperate measures. Seeing no other hope of success, it is throwing over every remaining restraint of law and proclaiming its contempt for neutral opinion.

MUST KNOW ALLIES' MIND.

"It undertook the invasion of Roumania on the belief that victory there would startle the world, would appease discontent in Germany, and enable it to dictate peace on its own terms.

"When the German armies scored success in Roumania, the German Government thought the time for dictating peace had come. This was its calculation. But the offer was made in a way which showed the terms were to be terms imposed by a conqueror, which would enable her to retain most of her ill-gotten gains. She ought to know the allies could not possibly admit such terms, but she underestimated the resolution and confidence of the allies. When the allies unanimously rejected the offer, because they knew it could not secure a durable peace, but would merely give her time for resting till she was ready to resume her attacks, the German Government grew desperate and determined to try desperate expedients. Hence these submarine threats, which almost amount to a declaration of war against neutrals.

NEED NOT BE SURPRISED.

"We need not be surprised, for the whole conduct of the German Government has been of a piece. They began by invading Belgium, an innocent country with which they had no quarrel, merely to gain a military advantage. They slaughtered thousands of innocent Belgians, men, women and children. They drowned innocent passengers and crews of passenger and merchant ships, many of them neutrals, 1,900 on the Lusitania alone. They stood by and tacitly acquiesced in the plan of their Turkish allies to exterminate the whole Christian nation of Armenians with unheard of cruelties when they could have stopped the massacres by warning the Turks to desist. Instead they have been conferring honours on the bloodthirsty ruffian Enver (Turkish War Minister), the principal author of the massacres. And now they are carrying into slavery many thousand peaceful Belgian workmen, who are driven by force to toil against their own country and help maintain in Belgium German tyranny of those who have been slaughtering their fellow countrymen."

Deutschland Sunk By Airman's Bomb?

NEW YORK, Feb. 9. — Notwithstanding a Berlin despatch to the newspapers stating that the merchant submarine Deutschland had never left Bremen, several passengers on the White Star liner Lapland, which has just arrived here, said that the submersible had been sunk in the North Sea by an aviator who descended to within 400 feet of the surface before he dropped the bomb.

The force of the explosion was so great that it turned the airplane completely over, they said, and dropped the pilot and the gunner into the sea, but they were both rescued. The aviators did not know it was the Deutschland that they had sunk until they noted the great bulk of the submersible as she was blown into pieces.

CARING FOR WOUNDED REACHING LONDON

Difficult Problems of Transport Handled by Volunteer Workers and Organizers

Describing the work of the London Ambulance Column, the volunteer society of ineligibles which takes charge of the transport of wounded soldiers in the metropolis, a London journalist says in part: Each patient receives a soft bandana handkerchief, while the drivers of the ambulances and cars provide them with cigarettes voluntarily. Many of the trains arrive in London during the "small hours," when vitality reaches its lowest ebb, and it is a gratifying fact that there has not been a single case of death during transportation. Many of the cases are terrible, and wring the hearts of the helpers, particularly where the poor and gallant lads have been exposed to the ferocity of liquid fire. But with it all, the wounded are marvellously cheerful and grateful for all that is done for them.

Honeymoon on Duty

And it should be realized that not a single worker in the Column is paid—all are voluntary. Chiefs, nurses, office staff, organizers of stores, chauffeurs—each is doing his or her bit cheerfully, glad to be allowed to do something for those who have done so much for them already. An instance of the devotion these unpaid workers have for their duty is provided by the case of a young chauffeur, who had been granted a week's holiday to get married. The "big push," however, coincided with his marriage, and he and his bride contented themselves with taking the bare day for the ceremony. And the morning after they turned up at the Column's headquarters, sacrificing their honeymoon completely so that they could, each in their own way, minister to the comfort of the gallant soldiers.

Every patient has a clean pillow case, and the washing of these provides opportunity for another "bit." Many people who live near the headquarters have no cars to lend, but they willingly undertake to wash so many pillow slips per day. Occasionally, however, when the rush is bigger than usual, the number to be washed exceeds the promises, and these have to be sent to the laundry.

Recording the Cases

Two blankets are sent for each case in summer, as many as are required in winter, and when the blankest has ceased its sphere of usefulness as an article of bedding it is fashioned into a warm overcoat, in which some poor soldier is wrapped during the chilly nights. When a car or ambulance leaves headquarters for the station it is to go to, its driver knows the number and nature of the injuries of the patients it is to take. These are carefully checked when the hospital is reached, and an official signs the card. In this way a complete record of the number of cases is kept, and that it is no easy matter is evidenced by the fact that in twelve months 46,000 cases were handled by the Column.

When Raiders Hover

Besides these duties, whenever a raid by air is threatened the ambulances of the Column are sent out to various places allotted to them by arrangement with the military authorities, and there stand by to transport to hospital any victims of the bombs. And so perfect is the system of organization that each ambulance is always in touch with headquarters by telephone, so that in the event of any particular section of London, from Bethnal Green to Brixton, or Highgate to Bermondsey, requiring reinforcements, the ambulances can be withdrawn from the untouched districts and sent to where they are needed.

Get the Habit of Drinking Hot Water Before Breakfast

Says we can't look or feel right with the system full of poisons.

Millions of folks bathe internally now instead of loading their system with drugs. "What's an inside bath?" you say. Well, it is guaranteed to perform miracles if you could believe these hot water enthusiasts.

There are vast numbers of men and women who, immediately upon arising in the morning, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is a very excellent health measure. It is intended to flush the stomach, liver, kidneys and the thirty feet of intestines of the previous day's waste, sour bile and indigestible material left over in the body which if not eliminated every day, becomes food for the millions of bacteria which infest the bowels, the quick result is poisonous and toxins which are then absorbed into the blood causing headache, bilious attacks, foul breath bad taste, colds, stomach trouble, kidney misery, sleeplessness, impure blood and all sorts of ailments.

People who feel good one day and badly the next, but who simply can not get feeling right are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to make anyone a real crank on the subject of internal sanitation.

Just as soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening and freshening, so limestone phosphate and hot water act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It is vastly more important to bathe on the inside than on the outside, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.

PUT WORST SIDE OUT

Britain Hides Her Greatness—Lets Critics Talk Freely

Mr. Arthur Gleason writes as follows in The New York Tribune: England has no publicity sense. She advertises all her blunders and crimes and goes silent when she does well. We know all about the 698 labor strikes of 1915. The failure at Loos is publicly proclaimed. The Admiralty competed with the War Office in giving bad impressions of great things done. England allows freedom of speech in Hyde Park, in "The Herald," "Common Sense," "The Labor Leader," "The Nation," "The New Witness," "The Financial News." She allowed it to Ramsay MacDonald, Philip Snowden, Ponsonby, Trevelyan, Lowes Dickinson, Lansbury, Sylvia Pankhurst, and a hundred other voices or organs that continue the great tradition of personal liberty.

But when she restricts one man, Bertrand Russell, from the munitions areas she uses a megaphone to tell the world that liberalism is dead. Wherever the War Office has stepped in and encroached on the liberty of the subject and the claims of private property the civil courts have upheld the rights of the individual against military necessity. A series of decisions throughout the war prove this. But all that England speaks of is the Defence of the Realm Act, as if a band of grim officers were yanking struggling civilians into penal servitude. When England has a choice offering that would win praise and sympathy she puts a veil of silence between the attraction and the neutral public.

TOOK SICK CHUM'S PLACE

Heroic Young Winnipeg Soldier Died at Unnecessary Task

The circumstances surrounding the death of Sapper J. E. Williams, of Winnipeg, were unusually pathetic. This young Canadian will be listed among the most heroic of his countrymen. A letter from Harold Morrison, from the trenches, stated that the late Sapper Williams undertook some exteremely dangerous work in the place of a chum, who was too ill to go on. "His own duties," he says, "did not call upon him to do this work, and it was very sad, indeed, that he should be caught on his first trip up." He was aged twenty-one and had lived in Winnipeg all his life.

ROBERTSON'S SECRET

Mr. Leask compiled an excellent little biography of the Chief of the Imperial General Staff. No story of romance is better reading than this description of Sir William Robertson's career from his days "in the ranks," to his great position. "General Robertson is every inch a soldier," says Mr. Leask, "but never allows you to forget he is also a man. There is always a latent lurking twinkle in the clear, firm eyes. He possesses a deep sense of humor—it is not every soldier who possesses it—and loves to hear and crack a joke."

Every Briton, combatant or non-combatant, might well learn by heart Sir William Robertson's "secret of success," which is: "Good digestion, determination; learn to be friendly; don't worry or brood over details; go to bed early and get up early."

heavily interested in Canada's nickel industry in the Northern Ontario district, was made First Commissioner of Works when Lloyd-George became Premier of Britain. SMUTS ON EAST AFRICA

Glorious, Difficult Country and Chivalrous United Troops

Gen. Jan Christian Smuts was accorded a magnificent public welcome on his arrival in Pretoria from the East African campaign. The streets, which were decorated, were crowded with people from all parts of the Transvaal. Gen. Smuts, replying to addresses, said that he had been surprised beyond measure at the splendid co-operation of the mixed forces of his command and their wonderful work in the campaign, which "perhaps was the hardest in the history of the world." Gen. Smuts said that the difficulties of the campaign were far greater than had been anticipated.

He described East Africa as one of the most glorious countries he had ever seen, but also the most difficult and dangerous, with incomparable mountains, forests and swamps. Gen. Smuts added that what gave him the greatest pleasure was that the young South African troops were composed of gentlemen, declaring: "I never have seen better behaved troops in my life. If you want a certificate of their character go to the numerous German women and children scattered throughout that barbarous country and ask them what they think of the South Africans; they will tell you."

OVERCOMING INERTIA

Teaching New Trades to Disabled Soldiers of France

An English visitor writes: The full beauty and usefulness of the Grand Palais—the greatest hospital of Paris—do not stay at rescuing combatants from the ranks of the "reformes" or sending men made whole (or nearly so) back to civil life. Trades are provided for those who lack the strength necessary to pursue their old avocations. Thus the carpenter, no longer able to move heavy banks of timber or to ascend a scaffolding, is taught cabinet making.

This principle prevails in all the "adaptations." The cafe waiter, whose legs have been affected either by wounds or frostbite, is instructed in picture frame making or some kindred occupation. Others I found devoting their leisure whilst undergoing treatment to learning English in the graduated classes conducted at the Palace. Others again apply their nascent energies to tailoring, but they have to learn, perhaps, to cut out with the other hand. Harness making provides a living for others, whose lower limbs are injured, and I saw coiffeurs going about their business on the upturned chins of their fellows, whose hands had not escaped scathless.

AUTOMOBILE EPIC OF VERDUN AND FRANCE

Endless Chain of 4,000 Machines to Save the Fortress—Time Meant Everything

A special correspondent with the French army writes: It is not improbable that some future poet will sing the song of "The Four Thousand Automobiles of Verdun." When the Germans began their big drive, the most railhead from which the French could bring up their munitions and supplies was at Bar Le Duc, some 50 miles away, and connected with Verdun by a single roadway capable of sustaining heavy motor truck traffic. It was over this one roadway that France immediately established its endless chain of 4,000 automobiles.

Not Second's Delay

They maintained a uniform distance from each other of 20 yards, and moved at a uniform rate of one yard a second. There was only one order to be observed, and that was that never for a single second of the night or day must anything stop or slacken this endless, ever-rolling chain. If a chauffeur discovered something going wrong with his machine, his duty was to run the automobile into the ditch before he should be obliged to stop in the roadway and clog the chain. At all hours there passed up and down the side of the roadway gangs of repair men.

Cast-away Cars

They hastily examined each machine as it had been run into the ditch. If it was found it could be quickly repaired it was repaired and thrust back into line. If it was found the accident was serious, the auto was ruthlessly cast aside, the repair gang merely carrying away the more essential and important parts for use in making other repairs. The cost if a single auto at that time was not worth the loss of a second to France.

HOW WOMEN WERE MADE

A Description of the Origin of Woman by a Hindu

According to a Hindu legend, this is the proper origin of woman.

Twashtri, the god Vulcan of the Hindu mythology, created the world. But on his commencing to create woman he discovered that with man he had exhausted all his creative materials, and that not one solid element had been left. This, of course, greatly perplexed Twashtri, and caused him to fall into a profound meditation. When he arose from it he proceeded as follows: He took the roundness of the moon, the undulating curves of the serpent, the graceful twist of the creeping plant, the light shivering of the grass blade and the slenderness of the willow, the velvety softness of the flowers, the lightness of the feather, the gentle gaze of the doe, the frolicsomeness of the dancing sunbeam, the tears of the cloud, the inconstancy of the wind, the timidness of the hare, the vanity of the peacock, the hardness of the diamond, the sweetness of honey, the cruelty of the tiger, the heat of the fire, the chill of the snow, the cackling of the parent, and the cooing of the turtle dove. All these he mixed together and formed woman. Then he presented her to the man.

Care of the Gloves

A stitch in time saves nine" may be well applied to the treatment of the summer glove. The small breaks should be repaired especially before washing the gloves, as washing only makes them worse. The set of various cotton threads and small darner is an excellent glove equipment.

Save the tops of the long cotton, silk or kid gloves. Cut them off at the wrist, and when a pair of long gloves are needed they may be easily made by sewing these tops to a pair of short gloves. This is quite an economy.

The silk glove should be washed most carefully. Put on the hands and wash in tepid water and white soap with a wringing motion of the hands. Rinse well. Always mend before washing them.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS

It is proposed to prohibit all fairs in England during 1917 that are likely to "impede or delay the production, repair or transport of war material or of any work necessary for the successful prosecution of the war."

There is urgent need for prompt action and extreme care in procuring the best available seed grain supplies, because of injury to the grain crops in the Prairie Provinces and parts of Eastern Canada during the season of 1916.

Nearly 100 auction offerings of American Herefords are on record for the past year, and the general average stands at $355. An offer of $20,000 for the season's grand champion Hereford bull, Bocaldo 6th, was refused.

The first essential in seed of any kind is strong vitality. The extent of the injury to grain, from the standpoint of its suitability for seed, is measured by the extent to which its vitality, or strength of growth, has been impaired.

The amount of fall ploughing that has been done in Saskatchewan is noticeably less than the amount done in the fall of 1915, and much more so than in 1914, as the following figures will show: 1914, 4,407,320 acres; 1915, 1,731,497 acres; 1916, 1,246,677 acres.

The extent of injury to oats from frost is difficult and often impossible to determine from appearances. If the crop encounters even a light frost at a certain stage in maturity the grain may be rendered unfit for seed, but be quite normal in appearance and weight. This renders a vitality test with oats especially important.

Cattle feeding, like any other business, must be followed year after year, if one is to be successful. There will always be "ups" and "downs" and the feeder who jumps in one year and out the next will likely go in in a bad year, and stay out when the profits would be large.

GRAFT IN PERSIA.

Officials Pay For the Privilege of Fleecing the Public.

A LAND WITHOUT LAWYERS.

And Yet That Extraordinary Exemption Does Not Help the Unfortunate Who Gets Into Trouble—Coaxing the Accused to Confess.

It would be difficult for a Persian who has not traveled to understand American excitement over what the newspapers here call "graft." My motherland, Persia, is not yet quite awake to the possibility of a man's serving the public for a certain fixed salary and taking nothing more. In Persia they take it for granted that every officeholder will "gouge" people whenever he gets a chance.

There are no lawyers in Persia, so there are no jokes about lawyers' appetite for gold and silver. If you have ever had a costly lawsuit on your hands you may think that makes matters simpler, but getting into trouble means being squeezed for money, wring for money, as if you were a piece of wet cloth in a washerwoman's strong grip.

This is how it is managed: First, you see, the governor of a city or of a province never has a definite salary from the state—not at all. On the contrary, he pays the state treasury several thousand dollars more or less for the privilege of being governor and of making what he can out of the enterprise. He is not an elected officer; he is more like a "concessionaire" at one of your big expositions, who offers a large sum for a chance to run a restaurant or to provide ice cream soda or candy.

The governor (or mayor) of a large Persian town may have perhaps 100 to 150 employees under him. Of these only a few house servants (cook, coachman and the like) have fixed wages. The incomes of the others depend upon the amount of money which they can help turn into the great man's hands in the form of fines and taxes. You can guess whether the neighbors are fond of them!

Suppose now you live in Persia. You have leased a piece of ground or you have sold some goods and the other man does not pay. You dun him. Then you threaten him. Then you go to the governor and make a complaint. An officer arrests your debtor and takes him before the governor's secretary for examination. Possibly he can convince that important personage that it is not a just debt. If he cannot do that he would better put all his wits to work to convince the secretary that poverty makes it quite impossible to pay up.

This is where many of the 150 under employees get their chance. A large part of their occupation is hunting up facts about everybody's property, everybody's business, everybody's income. They know an amazing number of things which your debtor supposed were safely secret. They produce information whenever information is wanted.

Your man's pretense that business is bad and that he is all but bankrupt is brushed aside, and he is made to produce an amount of money considerably larger than the original debt. "Made" to produce it? Yes. There are shocking things that can be done to him if he hesitates too long, and he knows it. So, like a child aware that there is an ugly stick waiting in the corner, he usually does not hesitate too long. He lives his skin and hands over the money. You get maybe 80 to 90 per cent to satisfy your claim—that is, the officer of justice practically collects from you something for his own services. The rest goes to the governor and such of the employees as may be considered in the case.

Perhaps you have a shop in the town bazaar or market place and some poor good-for-nothing steals a chicken that was hanging on the wall. If a woman was the thief she is most likely fined—possibly whipped if she has no money to pay a fine. If the culprit is a man they punch a hole through the cartilage of the lower end of his nose, put a cord through the hole and lead him in this painful disgrace all around the bazaar. The officer collects as he goes along a few cents from this shopkeeper and a few cents from that one as an acknowledgment of the officer's service in publicly exposing a thief.

Naturally it often happens that some outrageous robbery occurs or somebody is brutally murdered, and the guilty one is unknown. Then the governor's detective agents set to work. Anybody may be arrested on suspicion and examined either as the probable offender or as a witness. If the suspect has plenty of money he can always prove his innocence or his ignorance by paying cash to the examining officers, though, since there is no regulated tariff in such matters, the proceeding may be quite expensive.

If the suspect is too poor to make things right with the examiners or too stubborn to tell what he knows—and sometimes, I am afraid, if he really does not know anything to tell—they have some "third degree" methods warranted to make a man say something. One such method is what they call the "bastinado." It is whipping the soles of the bare feet with slender rods. Often fire comes from a pipe are put on the shaven head of a prisoner to make him confess. Sometimes — But no. Probably you would not care to hear any more along this particular line. Persian inventions in this department of criminology are clever in their way, but not things to describe in full detail.—Leon Medem in New York World.

New Brunswick Oysters.

An attempt, said to be the first in New Brunswick, to cultivate oysters on a large scale was inaugurated about three years ago by a small group of local capitalists, who formed a company with headquarters at Great Shemogue, in this province. Already they have invested approximately $30,000. The company holds under government lease four areas of beds, three in New Brunswick—at Great Shemogue, 200 acres; at Little Shemogue, 50 acres; and at Port Elgin, 150 acres—and one of 300 acres at River John, Nova Scotia.

The first recovery from these areas was made recently when 100 barrels of oysters were raked at Great Shemogue. In another year it is anticipated that a yield of 1,000 to 2,000 barrels can be taken without risk of damage to the beds.

The company now employs about fifty men in all departments. It owns a steamer, which is used for bringing seed oysters from Richibucto and also in distributing the culch—the shells and kindred materials upon which the young oyster fastens and remains until removed at maturity. The craft has a keel length of more than 60 feet and cost $8,000. The company also owns and operates a gasoline launch and a fleet of small boats.

The question of establishing an oyster cannery has not yet engaged the serious attention of the company. Its representatives, however, have visited canneries in the United States and have made themselves familiar with the requirements of such establishments. One of the directors intimates that, whereas the large cities of Canada now offer for oysters in the shell excellent markets, which are conveniently accessible on account of the periodical service of insulated cars provided by the railroads, a source of profit may be found in canning for export.

A Friend of Canada.

Not many people have, since the war began, served Canada more faithfully than Mrs. Rivers Bulkeley. It is pleasant to know that the return of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught brought her great pleasure. Among the first to greet the party were Mrs. Bulkley and her baby boy, Robert. As Miss Pelly, this lady was a member of the vice-regal household and her marriage to Captain Rivers-Bulkeley, of the Governor-General's staff, was a source of great pleasure to all members of the family of the Duke of Connaught. Then came the birth of the baby. Answering the first call to join the forces, Captain Rivers-Bulkeley fell in the retreat from Mons. Ever since, the widowed mother has devoted herself to the service of the Red Cross. As soon as the need of the prisoners of war became known, she chose for her field of labor the supply of their necessities. By her work on their behalf Mrs. Bulkeley has earned the gratitude of Canadians from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

Grouches.

Thomas Beagment Hohler, British charge d'affaires at Mexico City, said during his recent visit to Washington:

"The Germans, having lost Combles and Thiepval and the girdle of forts about Verdun, are sulkily recriminating. The blame is put here, and the blame is put there, but the blame, I fancy, lies everywhere.

"The Germans remind me in this crisis of the two men who sat glaring and glowering at each other in a provincial Y. M. C. A.

"'Who are the two grouches?' a salesman asked.

"'One is our hotel proprietor,' a native answered, 'and the other is the editor of the local paper.'

"'What's got their goat?'

"'Well,' said the native, 'it seems that at our school treat last evening the magician asked for the loan of a handkerchief, and somebody handed him up a big square of muslin.

"The magician unfolded the square and said:

"'Thank goodness there's at least one clean sheet in this town.'

"And ever since then the editor has insisted that the magician was alluding to the hotel bedclothes, and the hotel man has insisted that it was the editor's paper that was being knocked.'"

This Ointment Possesses Power To Heal The Skin

Two Cases Which Prove the Extraordinary Healing Power of Dr. Chase's Ointment

The use of Dr. Chase's Ointment is wonderfully satisfactory because you can actually see the results accomplished. It is surprising what change can be brought about in a single night by this great healing ointment.

Mr. George Beavis, 119 James street, Peterborough, Ont., writes: "As a healing ointment, I consider Dr. Chase's the best obtainable. I had a large running sore on my leg, and although I had tried all the prescriptions of two doctors I was unable to get any relief from the pain or to get the sore healed. One day my druggist handed me a sample box of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I used it with such good results that I decided to give the ointment a fair trial. Altogether I used four boxes, and am glad to be able to say that the sore on my leg is entirely healed up. Since this experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment I have recommended it to many people."

Mrs. W. W. Oliver, Port George, Annapolis Co., N. S., writes: "I am going to tell you my experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment. There was a spot came on my face something like a mole, but it kept getting worse, and several doctors whom I consulted said it was skin cancer, and that it would have to be cut or burned out. I intended having this done, but changed my mind when my brother recommended Dr. Chase's Ointment. Before I had finished one box, of the ointment this skin trouble had gone, and has not bothered me since. I cannot praise Dr. Chase's Ointment too much, and you are at liberty to publish this letter."

If you have never used Dr. Chase's Ointment send a two-cent stamp for a sample box, and mention this paper. Price sixty cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.

The silo will solve the problem of the successful feeding of cattle for beef on high priced land.

Thirty-one Shires realised $13,730, an average of $443, in the sale by McCray and Fowler, at Danville, Ill.

During the past five years the total number of hogs in Canada has decreased by almost a million head.

A little charcoal or wood ashes in the feed of the brood sow will tend to prevent a development of pig-eating.

The experimental farms and the Experimental Union, through actual trials of the leading varieties, are able (says the Farmers' Advocate) to choose the best for their own conditions, or for an average of all, but it remains for the individual experimenter to prove which of the top-notchers is best suited to his own farm and his own conditions.

Extremely Severe

Dyspepsia

Halifax (N.S.) Sergeant in the C.E.F. Cured Completely by Dr. Cassell's Tablets.

SERGEANT DUNCAN MacNEIL, of the CANADIAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, writing from Europe this home address: 18 VIII, PLEASANT STREET, HALIFAX, N.S.) says:—

"For six years I suffered from frequent attacks of Dyspepsia, each attack being more acute than the last. During one of these attacks life would become almost unbearable, and I would have to regulate my diet to liquid foods only, often being in bed for days at a time. I was under the care of a Physician, and tried all the remedies on the market, spending a small fortune, but obtained little or no relief. Beyond human endurance, but not once became utterly discouraged, and had almost given up all hope of Cure.

"When the war broke out I joined the Expeditionary Force and came to England. I had not been long there, however, when my old trouble returned, and I had to go to hospital. While in hospital a friend told me of Dr. Cassell's Tablets, and I decided to try them. The first box brought such pronounced relief that I continued the treatment. To make a long story short, a complete cure was effected.

"Since taking Dr. Cassell's Tablets I have been through hardships almost beyond human endurance, but not once has my old trouble returned to bother me."

The above is the frank, clear testimony of a Canadian soldier. He has been cured of extremely severe dyspepsia, which even the healthful life of the training ground could not overcome, and he wishes to tell others that he owes that cure to Dr. Cassell's Tablets.

Of Interest To Farmers

The Canadian farmer, if he were not a forbearing creature, would have long ago risen in wrath and rattled together the empty pates of a number of city blatherskites whose tongues waggle from platform to platform about the little the farmer is doing to win this war.—Farmers' Advocate.

Mr. T. A. Crerar, President of the Manitoba Grain Growers' Grange, in an address at the Manitoba Live Stock convention, predicted low prices for grain after the war, perhaps the lowest we have known for years, but expressed the belief that prices of live stock would be high for at least ten years after the war.

Thirty years ago a Minnesota experiment station began by planting one bushel of apple seed, a peck of peach seed, and five hundred apple, pear, plum, and cherry trees, and for eleven years thereafter there were planted each year enough apple seed to bring 1,000 trees. Thus far it has taken from three to five hundred seedlings to give one first-class apple, although the seed was taken from the best apples the station had.

1,200 ALIENS IN COUNTY

Full List of Names at Every Police Station

The Gloucestershire Standing Joint Committee, on the motion of Colonel Jeune, decided to deposit a list of all enemy aliens in the county at the headquarters of each of the twenty-five petty sessional divisions. Colonel Jeune said there were about 1,200 enemy aliens in the county, a great number of whom, if not spies, were potential spies, and every precaution should be taken to guard against them. Some sought to allay suspicion by saying they had sons in the British army, but what could the German Secret Service like better than to have Germans living in England with sons in the British army? Mr. W. Colchester Wemyss, the chairman, said some of the naturalized Germans over whom they had no power were probably the most dangerous of the resident enemy aliens.

Patriotic Family

At Sidcup, Kent, there is a family of five sons, all over forty-one years of age, who have voluntarily taken up arms and are serving with the colors. Some of them are married, and gave up lucrative posts in order to demonstrate their loyalty to their country. All honor to veterans like these.

Mrs. Alfred Winter, Castor, Alta., writes: "I would like every woman who is suffering from nerves or heart trouble to know how much Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have helped me. For two years I kept a hired girl and was doctoring all the time. After having taken four boxes of your pills I am able to do all my own work. HAND GRENADE USED IN WARFARE IN 1536

ORIGIN OF TERM 'GRENADIER'

Japanese Employed Protective Nets of Wire Against Them in Fighting Russians.

The use of hand grenades as an implement of war dates back nearly four centuries and this deadly weapon remains to-day, as in the sixteenth century, one of the most effective weapons of warfare. In the current issue of the United States Infantry Journal, published by officers of that arm of the regular service, there is an article dealing with grenades, which is a translation from the German military publication, Militar-Wochenblart.

"Hand grenades," the article reads, "as an implement of warfare date back many centuries. History records their use as far back as 1536 at the siege of Aries. Up to the close of the eighteenth century soldiers were trained in the throwing of hand grenades. They were for that reason called grenadiers.

"The grenades were hollow balls of iron or other metal about two and a half inches in diameter, filled with powder and provided with a fuse, which was lighted before being thrown. At first there were a few in each regiment, later entire companies were formed, and still later every infantry battalion had its grenadier company, which in the different armies had precedence over the other companies at parades and other formations. This continued to be the case long after the grenadiers had ceased to carry grenades which had originally given them their names; their distinguishing characteristic became their great height and their peculiar headdress (grenadier caps).

"During the war between Russia and Japan hand grenades were again used in great quantities by both sides, especially in fighting at close quarters and in assaults on the different forts about Port Arthur. Those of the Japanese were in the shape of a small thin cylinder about 8 inches long and 3 inches thick, which were filled with explosives and had a safety fuse in the cover. If the fuse was lighted before throwing, the grenade would have about nine seconds to reach its destination before exploding. It did not, however, burn long enough to make it possible for the enemy to pick it up and throw it away before it could do any damage.

Return to Former Types.

"In a general way, these grenades and their use indicate a return to former types. Any conserve can, filled with powder or dynamite and provided with a fuse, could accomplish about the same damage.

"Nevertheless, the effect of these hand grenades, especially in an inclosed space, was very great. For example, on one occasion, a guard of seventeen men in the guard room were killed by the explosion of an improvised grenade of this type, which consisted of a piece of gun cotton, provided with a fuse, and which was thrown into the room through a window.

"As the effect of the grenades is great, especially when they are used under favourable conditions, for example in the hands of an assaulting column or a sortie detachment, the Japanese employed special protective nets which consisted of wooden frames covered with strong wire netting from 120 to 210 cm. high, when working on fortifications at close range from the enemy.

"If hand grenades attained so satisfactory an effect in an improvised form, it is not surprising that the inventor's mind occupied itself with this means of combat, and has endeavoured to adapt it to the requirements of modern warfare.

"First of all, it was very important to invent a projectile that would unite deadly effectiveness with complete safety of the thrower. Mr. Assen, the Danish inventor, constructed a number of hand, rifle and mine grenades which are said to fulfill these requirements.

"The hand grenades are carried by the man until required and then thrown by hand. The rifle or 'howitzer' grenades are fired from a firm rest such as a wooden stand made from a rifle placed on the ground and directed at various angles of elevation by means of stakes. The mine grenade is anchored in the ground and discharged by electricity upon approach of the enemy.

"The following report is made of the tests which the inventor held with his grenades on his private proving ground in Copenhagen:

"Seven men behind cover fired volleys at a group of 80 wooden double silhouettes, distributed over a space of 900 square meters under cover. From the first volley 93 hits were made on 43 silhouettes. After the third volley 72 targets showed 168 hits. The distance was between 300 and 400 meters.

Weight of Rifle Grenade.

"The rifle grenade weighs about 550 grams. It contains 72 bullets weighing 2.5 grams and 72 grams of explosives. The 72 bullets cover a space of at least 40 to 50 square meters. The rifle grenade may be fired from an ordinary army rifle at any range up to about 400 meters. The great destructive effect of the grenade is due to the fact that the explosion takes place immediately after the grenade strikes the ground before it has had time to bury itself in the soil.

"The 'howitzer' grenade weighs one kilogram and contains 215 bullets and a bursting charge weighing 200 grams. It can be thrown with the hand forty meters or with a 'howitzer' 300 meters. The 'howitzer' is a contrivance made of a cylinder and weighs twelve kilograms. It may be carried like a rifle. The bullets of this grenade cover a semi-circular space of at least eighty square meters and spread only to the front and laterally, but not to the rear toward the thrower. They are, therefore, ofo especial value for fighting at close quarters. They are constructed that they may be exploded only after they have traveled eight meters toward the target.

"Tests with this kind of grenades had the following results:

"Volleys were fired from seven 'howitzers' at a group of eighty figures distributed over a space of 900 square meters at distances of 280 to 310 meters. After the fourth volley sixty-eight figures were hit 148 times.

"The hand grenade weighs 1 kilogram and contains 190 bullets weighing 2.4 grams and a bursting charge weighing 110 grams. In contrast to the above-described 'howitzer' grenade, the bullets fly in every direction, so that it is only adapted for throwing from cover. A volley of seven grenades, thrown by hand from cover, made 119 hits on 33 figures against the target already described.

"The last kind of these grenades is the mine grenade. It weighs about 4 kilograms and contains 400 3.8-gram bullets and a 200-gram bursting charge. The 400 bullets will cover a space of at least 800 square meters. These grenades together with their electrical connections are placed about one-half meter under the surface of the ground, so that they are completely invisible to the enemy.

Bullets in All Directions.

"When it is set off, the grenade rises about three fourths of a meter above the ground, then explodes, and throws the bullets in all directions parallel with the ground. At a distance of ten meters the bullets will go through wood at least 100 millimeters thick and retain deadly effectiveness for a distance of fifty meters. A detachment of 100 men can lay a line of these mines over a front of 4,000 meters in less than two hours.

"In a test three mine grenades were laid in the corners of a triangle whose legs were thirty meters long, among a group of 145 wooden double silhouettes that were scattered over a space of 2,700 square meters. The grenades were set off electrically, one after the other. The result was that 120 silhouettes were hit 700 times."

Alkali in Shampoos Bad For Washing Hair

Don't use prepared shampoos or anything else, that contains too much alkali, for this is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for, months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust dirt and dandruff.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

GIRL'S DRESS.

By Anabel Worthington.

For the sum total of excellence in a dress for a girl of from six to twelve years of age, look at the little frock illustrated. It gives every evidence that the designers do not depart one jot from the straight line effect whether planning a dress for a fashion follower of the doll age or one who has greater cares.

In the back the dress is perfectly plain, with its fulness adjusted by the arrangement of a belt. It is a matter of choice whether you use the belt over the front panel or tack the belt ends to the side fronts, leaving the panel free, as shown by the smaller and lower view of the dress. The cut of the collar indicates that collars seem very much this season; it has a frill of lace following the edge, but this detail may be omitted. The frill cuff on a rather loose sleeve tells its own story. The frock has left side closing, but the right side has the button and loop decoration also.

Serge, satin, broadcloth, velveteen, duvetyn, wool poplin and similar weaves are excellent materials from which to choose for this model. Linen is another fabric that might be selected. If you have a little time to spend and a lot to get for it, buy the pattern and make this little dress.

The dress pattern 8103 is cut in sizes 6 to 12. To make in size 10 requires 3¼ yards 36-inch material, 1¼ yards edging.

To obtain the pattern send 10 cents to the office of this publication.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 10 cents, or 2 for 25 cents.

One of the original Labor selections for the Lloyd-George Cabinet. He was one of the first of the Ministers to take strong action in his department and to "get on with the war." LEARN TO LOVE TANKS

Crews of Monsters Think Them Beautiful—Know Their Points

Upon having his first close view of a Tank or Willie, a British correspondent wrote from France the following: I had read so much of his ungainliness and general monstrousness that I expected to be almost alarmed by his near proximity. On the contrary, I found myself charmed. The Willie is certainly big—there is no getting away from that; but he has his own beauties of shape and proportion, and there is a certain loveliness in the streaming lines of his track—that endless caterpillar road on which his slug-like body slides.

You may say a slug is not beautiful; but if you had a very big slug, a very intelligent slug, who would do all sorts of things you told him, and be a watchdog for your homestead, and go out and kill your enemies, and then come back and go to sleep in a field—don't you think you would begin to delight in his smoothness and blackness and slowness—in a word, in his sluggishness? And would not you end by thinking him beautiful?

Well, the men who man the Willies have developed the tank eye; they know the points of a tank as you know, or think you know, the points of a horse; and they love the Willies and know them to be beautiful even while they are removing the mud from a bearing with a shovel or cursing their particular charge for having done one of the very few things that tanks are forbidden to do. Thus, although they might have been taking a few afternoon hours of holiday, they were foregathered with the Willies in the field, testing them, playing around with them, cruising about the obstacle course, and generally consolidating that intimacy which makes one thing of a man and his machine, one family of a ship and her crew. For the tanks are passing out of their prodigious infancy into childhood; and their education must be attended to.

GERMAN SACRILEGE

Bloody Hun Version of Lord's Prayer Is Published

A German pastor has adapted the Lord's prayer to the needs and temper of the German people. Imagine a congregation of Christian people, assembled in a house of prayer, offering up in unison this petition prepared by the Rev. Diedrich Vorwerk: "Though the warriors' bread be scanty, do Thou work daily death and tenfold woe unto the enemy. Forgive in merciful longsuffering each bullet and each blow which misses its mark! Lead us not into the temptation of letting our wrath be too tame in carrying out Thy divine judgment! Deliver us and our ally from the infernal enemy and his servants on earth. Thine is the kingdom, the German land; may we, by aid of Thy steel-clad hand, achieve the power and the glory.

THE MONK'S INFLUENCE

"Germany Knew How to Make Use of Him"

Speaking of the murdered monk Rasputin, the Paris Journal, recalling his great influence at the Russian Court, says: "Germany knew how to make use of him. The Germanophile ex-Premier Sturmer benefited from this perhaps more than is believed. The Grand Duke Nicholas had to suffer from it. We will not say more. It is for the Russian newspapers alone to probe further into the revelations concerning this internal crisis, and they are not missing the opportunity."

STOMACH MEDICINES ARE DANGEROUS

DOCTORS NOW ADVISE MAGNESIA

Just how dangerous it is to indiscriminately dose the stomach with drugs and medicines is often not realised until too late. It seems so simple to swallow a dose of some special mixture or take tablets of soda, pepsin, bismuth, etc. after meals, and the folly of this drugging is not apparent until, perhaps years afterward, when it is found that gastric ulcers have almost eaten their way through the stomach walls. Regrets are then unavailing; it is in the early stages when indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, flatulence, etc., indicate excessive acidity of the stomach and fermentation of food contents that precaution should be taken. Drugs and medicines are unsuitable and often dangerous—they have little or no influence upon the harmful acid, and that is why doctors are discarding them and advising sufferers from indigestion and stomach trouble to get rid of the dangerous acid and keep the food contents bland and sweet by taking a little pure bisurated magnesia instead. Bisurated Magnesia is an absolutely pure ant-acid which can be readily obtained from any drug store. It is absolutely harmless, is gratefully tasteless and a teaspoonful taken in a little warm or cold water after meals, will usually be found quite sufficient to instantly neutralise excessive acidity of the stomach and prevent all possibility of the food fermenting.

MACHINES TO TEST POILU'S RECOVERY

Wonderful Triumphs and Methods of Healing Art Transformed Grand Palais in Paris

Before the war the Grand Palais was the centre of Parisian elegance, the hub of art and of sport. Here were held the horse show, the spring salons, and autumn exhibitions of motors, either aerial or terrestrial. Now there are no smart people—only army doctors and half-clothed "poilus." The latter pass in endless line before instruments which either record their physical incapacity or seek to overcome it by means of exercise. There are all sorts of engines that restore strength to stiff and paralyzed limbs. Instead of its hacks and hunters and its kilometres of canvas, the handsome relic of the Great Exhibition, which is the Grand Palais, is now the therapeutic arsenal of Paris. It is the great machine for restoring the wounded man to circulation. How it is done constitutes one of the marvels of the war.

Measuring "Quality"

There is an instrument, positively primitive in its appearance, with its simple lever weights, and the rest, which establishes incompetence. This, together with the dynamo-ergograph, both designed by Professor Camus, of the Paris Faculty of Medicine, provides an accurate register of physical deficiency. The principle of the second instrument is to measure the "quality of movements" of affected members. This is expressed in foot-pounds, obtained by multiplying the known weight by the height it is raised. The graph cannot lie, nor is it subject to prejudice. It draws the curve, which may be either forty or fifty, or even more, per cent. below the normal line. The object of Professor Camus and his brilliant staff is to straighten out this curve to its highest point.

Long Treatment

His successes are little short of marvellous. They are tabulated in the archives where hang water-colors and casts in plaster and wax—as if the Salon had come back again. But the sketchings and mouldings are but the surgical record of abnormal limbs, even though works of art. The deficiencies are added up and the man's state exactly known. Everything is measured. Not the least important calculations are the angles of extension and flexion of his articulations. The craftsman lives by his hands. If either is damaged his efficiency suffers, until massage or mecano-therapeutic means have brought about a change. Sometimes the change is long in coming and only yields to persistent treatment, extending, maybe, to a period of years.

FINDING FOE'S RANGE

It is one thing to spot a hostile battery and another problem altogether to hit it. The locality may be well known, but the range difficult to determine. To simplify matters in this respect, "tracer" shells are used. Into the base of the shell a metal case is screwed containing a material which is self-igniting as te hprojectile rushes through space. For night operations the material used in the "tracer" bursts into a brilliant flame, but by days the "tracer" leaves a trail of dense black smoke. By this means the gunners are able to watch and time the shell right up to the moment the explosion takes place, and by knowing the locality in which the shell bursts, the adjustment to the range of the target is comparatively a simple matter.

ECZEMA ON FACE
WAS SO BAD HAD TO STAY IN HOUSE

All skin diseases such as eczema or salt rheum, itching or burning rashes, eruptions, ulcers, boils, pimples, etc., are all caused by bad blood, and while not usually attended with any fatal results, may sooner or later develop into some serious blood trouble and the entire system become affected.

Burdock Blood Bitters, that old and well-known remedy, will cleanse the blood of all its impurities, and by this means cure all skin diseases and other blood troubles.

Mrs. Ernest Andrews, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "My face was covered with eczema and was so terribly bad I had to stay in the house. I had ten different doctors but got so tired of their treatment that I went and bought a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and it helped me, so I kept on taking it. Now I am cured, and have a lovely skin.

"People who used to see me when I was so bad and see me now will not believe it, but I always tell them that nothing cured me but Burdock Blood Bitters."

Give Confiscated Liquor To Public Institutions

KINGSTON, Feb. 9.—Owing to the protests made at the action of the police department in pouring good confiscated liquor into the gutters, while the local hospitals and charitable institutions have to purchase liquor for medical purposes, Mayor Hughes will ask the Provincial License Commission to have the law changed, so that confiscated liquor can be handed over to the public institutions.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture wa sto make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended fo rthe cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Twelve Hundred Yards of German Held Territory Has Been Captured

American Ambassador Gerard Prepares to Leave Berlin

The British Forces Have Captured Over Twelve Hundred Yards Of German Held Territory Since Tuesday

A Considerable Number of Prisoners, Guns and Stores Taken---German Prisoners Show Extreme Pessimism---"To All Intents and Purposes Germany is Now at War With the United States," Says the New York World---American Ambassador Gerard Will Leave Berlin on Saturday---Will Be Provided With a Military Escort.

LINERS IN THE WAR ZONE TO-DAY

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD, February 9.—German prisoners taken during the last few days indicate extreme pessimism as to their cause, as the result of the possibility of the United States entering the war. That they are becoming more and more downhearted is evidenced by the comparative ease with which the British forces have taken over twelve hundred yards of German-held territory since Tuesday, with considerable prisoners, guns and stores.

The British in the Somme region of France are keeping up their new offensive against the Germans in their efforts to push forward toward Bapaume. Southeast of Bapaume, along the Bapaume-Peronne road, they have taken the highest point of Sailly-Saillisel hill and captured a large number of Germans and one machine gun. Along both sides of the Ancre River west of Bapaume, further progress has been made, including the capture of a trench near Grandcourt, where a goodly gain was made Wednesday.

BERLIN ADMITS LOSSES.

BERLIN, February 9.—Loss of terrain in two places to the British forces was announced in to-day's official report. One near Vaillescourt, and the other north of St. Pierre Vaast Wood.

NEGRO WAS BORN IN CANADA.

WASHINGTON, February 9.—Consul Frost, Queenstown, reported officially to the State Department to-day, that George Washington, a negro, killed in the torpedoing of the "Turina" yesterday, was barn in Alberta, Canada, and was apparently a British subject.

NORWEGIAN STEAMER SUNK.

LONDON, February 9.—Two were killed when a German submarine shelled and sank the Norwegian steamer Ida, it was announced to-day.

The Norwegian steamer Hans Kinck was also reported sunk to-day.

FRENCH OFFICIAL STATEMENT.

PARIS (French Official Communique), February 9. — Enemy aviators dropped bombs on French positions and cities in the region of Dunkirk, killing four civilians. The only fighting activity mentioned in the statement was the repulse of enemy attacks east of the Meuse in the region of Vaux Les Palameix.

FOUR SAILORS WERE INJURED.

LONDON, February 9. — Four of the crew of the British steamer Hanna Larsen were injured when that vessel was torpedoed by a German submarine. The captain of the Hanna Larsen was taken prisoner. Nineteen of the crew landed.

War With Germany Is Considered Inevitable

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, February 9.—"The American people might as well make up their minds that war with Germany is inevitable," the New York World, administration newspaper, declared in an editorial to-day.

"The German Government intends to carry out to the letter the policy of ruthless submarine warfare, which is proclaimed January 31. The destruction of the 'California' without warning is the final proof of this."

The World declares the commander followed the tactics of the commander of the submarine which sank the "Lusitania," and while "there are no American dead, there is no moral distinction in premeditated murder."

"To all intents and purposes Germany is now at war with the United States," says the World.

Fighting Resumed on the Macedonian Front

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, February 9. — The French official report with reference to operations in the eastern theatre says:

"For several days artillery fighting was particularly pronounced on the Vardar, on the Franco-Italian front in the direction of Bojilla and at Monastir. The enemy has shown a certain activity along the whole front. Bulgarian reconnaissances have been repulsed at Kalendra, ten kilometres southwest of Seres. Several patrols have been operating south of Lake Presba. Our advanced posts have occupied Ojani, and are before Vesteni."

GERMANS TO STRIKE U. S. FROM MEXICAN BORDER

Bernstorff and His Aides For Months Past Have Been Superintending Departure of 300 Teuton Officers to Carranza's Domains

PROVIDENCE, R.I., February 9.—The Providence Journal says:—

"If Germany succeeds in dragging the United States into war her first blow against this country will be struck through Mexico. For the past two weeks the German Ambassador, working among his own Consulates all over the United States, as well as those of Austria-Hungary, has been superintending the departure of over 300 officers of the German army, both regulars and reservists, from various American ports and railroad centres to Mexico City, where orders governing their future activities will await them. It has not been generally known that a large number of German army officers, who have been captured by the Russians during the present war and have made their way here at various times through China, have been held in this country without any attempt being made to smuggle them back home. The Department of Justice has had information for several months that several of these officers have been with Villa and Carranza in Mexico. Since last Saturday there has been a wholesale exodus of those that have remained to Mexico City, and at least 200 officers of reservists have accompanied them or gone in small parties to the same destination. The Government is in possession of information that a large quantity of arms and ammunition, collected here at the beginning of the war and stored in two large warehouses in New York, has found its way to Mexico City, where it has been held intact since its arrival.

INCREASE HATRED OF "GRINGOES."

"Some months ago a long German Consular report was sent from Mexico City to the Foreign Office in Berlin by way of G. Schadt, an employee of the German Embassy at 11 Broadway, New York, under seal to F. Gersdorf, No. 5 Martensallee, Copenhagen, Denmark. This communication, a copy of which has just been received in this country goes into the conditions in Mexico from the German point of view very fully, and declares that what is known as the German Alliance in Mexico is supporting every effort to increase the hatred against Americans in that country by inaugurating a series of German gatherings in behalf of Mexican nationality, mixing socially with prominent Mexican leaders and flooding the country with pamphlets of pro-German character.

"This communication incloses another, written by Gen. Maximilian Klos, an artillery officer in Mexico City, in which he declares that the distribution of military material has been placed in his control."

AN IMPORTANT STATEMENT BY ROBT. HICKS COMPANY

The Coal Situation—How It Will Be Handled After the 15th of February

For some time past we have been obtaining coal from jobbers and from any source we could, to supply the extra demands upon us, but we will not be obtaining coal from these sources now and must depend upon our regular sources of supply to carry out our contracts with our regular customers. We will then be able to reduce the price of coal to our regular customers, subject to any advances in prices imposed on us. We regret that we are forced to announce to the public that after the 15th inst, we cannot undertake to supply coal to others than our regular customers whom we have agreed to supply. It may be possible that other dealers have arrangements by which they can obtain the coal required to take care of the needs of these customers whom they have usually supplied, but who during this temporary famine, required to come to our Company for coal.

CITY WILL PURCHASE THE OTONABEE SYSTEM

Utilities Commission Authorized to Purchase From the Ontario Government the Otonabee Street Plant at a Cost of $7,512—Committee of the Whole Council.

THE STREET RAILWAY

The feasibility of purchasing from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, three local utilities in the form of the street plant of the Otonabee Power Company, the Peterborough Radial Railway Company and the gas plant, was discussed at a meeting of the committee of the Whole Council that was held last evening. As a result of the deliberations the committee recommended that the Utilities Commission be authorized to purchase the street plant of the Otonabee Power Company from the Ontario Government at a cost of $7,512.

Mr. Matthews, chairman of the Commission, said that the Commission, would take up the matter of purchasing the plant at once and operate it by the first of March.

Street Railway.

His Worship Mayor Duffus brought up the matter of taking over the Peterborough Radial Railway and the gas plant. The former is making a profit, while the latter is losing a little. The two operated together can be operated at a profit. The Hydro Commission is of the opinion that ten thousand dollars should be spent in improvements on the gas plant. The Commission is also open to receive suggestions for the improvement and extension of the street railway. The two utilities can be purchased by the city at a cost of $490,000. The Mayor was of the opinion that the purchase of the two plants should be deferred for a year or two until financial conditions improve. Extensions that are made in the meantime will add to the purchase price.

Sir Adam Beck.

Mr. R. Hicks of the Utilities Commission, pointed out that in two or more years, Sir Adam Beck, who he characterized "as the friend of municipalities, and a man who is moving along in public life, might not be head of the Hydro Power Commission of Ontario when the city is prepared to purchase the utilities, and the city might find it more difficult to deal with a successor.

"That's one of the strongest points I have yet heard for immediate purchase of both the street railway and gas plant," said Mayor Duffus.

Ald. Stratton brought out the information that all three utilities, namely, the Otonabee street plant, the street railway and gas plant, produced a total annual profit of approximately nine thousand dollars.

Sir Adam Beck offered to make arrangements whereby the city could carry the utilities for ten years without a sinking fund and to provide a satisfactory market for the city's debentures.

Would Pass By-law.

Mayor Duffus had no doubt of the ratepayers' willingness to pass a by-law authorizing the purchase of the utilities, providing the situation was thoroughly explained.

"The trouble," said Ald. Smith, "is that the ratepayers don't think for themselves. They have to have somebody think for them."

"They don't have to think for themselves when they have a City Council to think for them,' put in Mr. Moore of the Utilities Commission.

Ald. Stratton predicted a larger consumption of gas owing to the high price of coal. This would insure a larger earning power.

It was moved by Ald. Stratton and seconded by Ald. Duncan, that the Railway committee of the City Council consider what extensions of the street railway and improvements are required and report to the City Council for recommendation to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario and that this committee also recommend that the question of the purchase by the city of the street railway and gas plant, as suggested by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission be taken up and seriously considered and that a committee be appointed to procure all information regarding these utilities from that Commission, the committee to be appointed by the Mayor.

PTE. H. J. WEIR, formerly of the 93rd Battalion, who was wounded in the recent fighting.

VETERAN OF THE SOMME OFFENSIVE IN PETERBOROUGH

Lieut. Oxley, Who Is Well Known Around Stoney Lake, Was Twice Wounded and Is Now Home on Sick Leave—He Is One of Five Brothers at the Front

TWO KILLED IN ACTION

A veteran of last year's activity on the Somme front was in Peterborough yesterday, in the person of Lieut. G. E. Oxley. The latter, whose home is in Toronto and who is at present home on five weeks' sick leave, in Canada, is well known around Stoney Lake. Lieut. Oxley will have to report for duty in France, on March 12th. That he is home at the present time is due to wounds received during the drive last summer. Lieut. Oxley was first wounded in August of last year and again on November 18th. On the last named date the Canadian troops were in action in front of the village of Pys. Speaking of this engagement, Lieut. Oxley said: "The way the Canadians went over the parapet was marvellous and a sight never to be forgotten by one fortunate enough to witness it, and return with a whole skin. The attack was launched about six o'clock in the morning, and the position consolidated during the day. The casualties were very heavy among both men and officers. Out of eleven officers only one returned uninjured.

Battalion Exposed.

The 75th Toronto Battalion, to which Lieut. Oxley was attached, suffered severely from a strong enemy post situated to the right of the Pys. road. Unfortunately a brigade on the right of the 75th Battalion was not quite so successful in obtaining the objective and had to retire on Regina trench. This left the 57th Battalion more or less exposed and the men were heavily sniped from the right.

Lieut. Oxley was full of praise for what he characterized as the marvellous organization of the British army. He referred to the capture of Grandcourt on Tuesday of this week by the Britsh troops. This, he said, would prove a great factor in the taking of the big railway centre of Bapaume.

One of Five.

Lieut. Oxley is one of five brothers, all of whom have volunteered.

FRIDAY, FEB. 9, 1917

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE.

While it is natural that newspapers should have an adequate appreciation of the value of advertising, as a royal road to business success, yet the eye of self interest is not the only one open to the advantages of intelligent newspaper advertising. At the Fairs and Exhibitions Convention in Toronto, Mr. R. J. Bushell, manager of the Kingston Fair, during the discussion upon the President's report, made an illuminating statement, in saying that when he took over the management "his fair board was spending $70 in advertising, and there was a deficit." "Last year," he said, "he spent $600 in advertising, and the business of the fair showed an increase of 400 per cent., and there was a surplus." Argument like that, and proof like that need no auxiliary comment in order to show that it pays to advertise.

A LEADING INSURANCE COMPANY.

Perpetual sunshine is, in nature, an unknown thing; but it obtains in the case of the Sun Life Insurance Company of Canada, which has always a clear sky. The annual report whose essential features will be found in another column, indicates a continuance of the strong conditions that make the Sun Life a leader. It is strong in its rate of progress; strong in its assets and strong in public confidence. This latter feature is evidenced by the compiling of a phenomenal record of new business the past year; and in this respect it has maintained its leadership and surpassed even its own record. The Sun Life has during the past year, issued new insurance, paid for in cash, to the large amount of $42,700,000. This is a new record in insurance, and brings the total of Sun Life insurance in force up to the grand total of 281 millions of dollars. The recent rate of progress is indicated by the fact that the assurance in force has increased more than three times over in the past twelve years. The financial strength of the Sun Life is shown by the fact that during the past year its assets have increased by eight and a half million dollars, bringing the total of assets up to the figure of 83 million dollars. The net surplus—over all liabilities and capital—now stands at $8,509,865, an increase for the year of close upon a million dollars. The cash income from premiums and investments amounted to nearly $18,500,000. Since its organization the Sun Life has paid its policy holders over sixty million dollars, of which $7,578,000 was paid during the past year. Such an annual report, and such a record reflect great credit upon the management—the directors and officers of the company.

The local and district interests of the Sun Life are very efficiently represented by Mr. W. H. Hill, manager for the Central Ontario Division, and Messrs. D. H. Moore and J. D. Cameron, Inspectors.

To the conspicuously successful operations of the Sun Life for the past year as disclosed by the report, the Peterborough district has very largely contributed. When it is remembered that the Central Ontario division has three Macaulay Club members—securing each $100,000 worth of paid-up business—Messrs. E. D. Dyer, D. H. Moore and J. D. Cameron, it is no wonder that this Division has to its credit this year the largest total of business during the past thirty-six years.

RESPONSIBILITY.

Parliament adjourned on Wednesday after a short session, and carpers may say that little has been done. But, in the short time, a total of seven hundred millions of dollars has been voted; and unanimously, by both sides of the house. This emphasized also the fact that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his Liberal followers have been, and are, prepared to lend their full assistance to the government, in prosecuting all legitimate work in war waging; this desire and will were further shown by the fact that in spite of the fears of some, and perhaps, the hopes of partisans, Sir Wilfrid gracefully and, as political feeling goes, graciously, facilitated the possibility of the Premier, Sir Robert Borden, going to the Imperial Conference. Sir Wilfrid, at the opening of the session suggested that all moneys necesary for war purposes be voted, and interim supply provided, so that parliament should adjourn in order to allow Canada to be represented in the Imperial Conference in the person of her Prime Minister. This programme, which is not the programme of the Government, but of the Opposition, has been carried out. Partisanship has been supplanted by patriotism in providing for effectual measures to help Canada help in the war.

Though some would call it partisanship, yet true patriotism has been shown by the course of the Opposition, and by some members of the Government, dealing in sharp and pointed criticism of the manner in which the Government has discharged some details of its responsibility, in respect of the expenditure of money, and the promotion of the interests to be assisted by the use of it, so freely and ungrudgingly voted. There has been sharp criticism, and it was the duty of the Opposition to give it. The Opposition gave its voice in voting immense sums of money, and in so doing assumed a definite responsibility for seeing that the money voted was to be expended to the best advantage. Criticism and inquiry with that object in view were patriotism and not partisanship—unless the government's failure to act up to its tremendous responsibility, provided the party advantage. No one would blame the Government for winning partisan gain by an impeccable administration of war interests; and no one should, in fairness, decry as treason and embarrassment of the Government, a course of action that would help the Government to win glory by faithful and effective administration of public affairs. When the people of Canada, voted, through their representatives, the big sum of seven hundred million dollars at, so to speak, "one fell swoop," the people would not hold the national auditors, the Opposition, guiltless, if they failed in their responsibility of seeing to the proper, economical and legitimate expenditure of the money they took the responsibility of voting. They have to account to their constituents for voting it; and have to account to their consciences and their constituents, in respect of seeing that it is wisely expended.

SINNING AGAINST LIGHT.

The Review, untruthfully enough says:

"The question of whether or not potatoes are being shipped to the United States or Cuba is not worth discussion, as the story is improbable on the face of it."

Of course, nothing is worth discussing if documentary proof—confirmation strong as proof of Holy Writ—is rejected. Yet the Review continues to argue. The Examiner founded its statements on reliable market reports, and showed the below evidence from the sales manager of the New Brunswick Potato Exchange:

"Boston bought heavily at a price equal to $2.45 in bulk, Toronto basis, and Woodstock, (N.B.) wires that Cuba has paid for 8,000 bags at a price equal to $2.60 per 90 lbs. in bulk Toronto freight basis."

And again Mr. W. J. Oke, of this city, a square-dealing, reliable merchant, received a letter from W. J. Hubbard, the Superintendent of the Dominion Government Experimental Station, New Brunswick, containing this statement:

"I am informed that shippers realised last week over $5 a barrel for 10,000 barrels sent to Cuba, so I do not know what you can buy at."

If the Review persists in its mendacious disregard of straight evidence its case is hopeless. When it refuses to listen to the official statement of the official of its own Government—the Government it supports—its case is hopeless, and it is convicted of knowingly "bearing false witness against its neighbour."

Healing Effect of Hand-holding in Military Hospital Nursing

Sir Sam Hughes strongly objects to the English style of nursing. He declares that in consequence of the way the English girls rub the brows and hold the hands of wounded Canadian soldiers Canada is to-day paying separation allowances to scores of newly-made wives. This is one of the principal reasons why he wants Canadian soldiers to be segregated and attended to by strictly Canadian nurses, who, in Sir Sam's opinion, ought to be given the first refusal of every Canadian soldier.

In our opinion Sir Sam is straying beyond his province. He may be a military genius, and he may be an authority on the merits of the Ross rifle, but we doubt if he is qualified to pass an opinion on such delicate matters as smoothing a soldier's brow or holding his hand. We believe that no Cabinet Minister or ex-Cabinet Minister in England has ever presumed to address a semi-official protest to Canada against Canadian girls casting languishing glances upon poor unsuspecting English immigrants in Canada, or to propose that Englishmen be segregated in colonies in this country to protect them from Canadian girls. If the Canadian Government should now undertake to address a protest to the British Government on the subject of hand-holding and brow-smoothing, we are afraid it will open the door to serious controversies and possible misunderstandings, especially as Sir Sam has not the poetic temperament so absolutely necessary to a sympathetic consideration on the subject.

We have a high enough opinion of Sir Sam's courage to believe that if he were a young, unmarried Canadian soldier he would have pluck enough to face the brow-smoothing and hand-holding of the English girls without flinching, and would prefer to confront this fascinating peril like a soldier and a man, and certainly without the protection of a grand-motherly Government three thousand miles away. That being so, surely the wisest course would be to presume that the average Canadian soldier would think the same way—especially as the English style of hand-holding seems to have such a remarkably recuperative effect.—Montreal Herald

NO EXCUSES FOR ANY EVASION OF TEMPERANCE ACT

STRATFORD, Feb. 8.— Upholding an appeal by County License Inspector Elliott, Judge Barron to-day gave judgment finding George Deihl $200 without costs. This decision quashes that of Police Magistrate Makins, who recently dismissed a charge against Deihl of having in the Royal Hotel liquor of illegal alcoholic strength. The appeal was made at the instigation of the Attorney-General as a test case as to the responsibility of a hotel-keeper for the strength of any beverage sold by him on the assurance by the manufacturer that it is not illegal. In this case seven bottles of a beverage were taken from the Royal Hotel by Inspector Elliott and Police Chief Lannin. Of these one bottle of "cherry whiskey" was reported by the Provincial Analyst to be over-strength. It was purchased from a Hamilton firm, and was labelled as of legal strength.

Lack of Intent Not Excuse.

In dismissing the charge, Magistrate Makins held that Deihl was innocent of intent to break the Ontario temperance act. Judge Barron, in his judgment to-day, thoroughly agrees with the view of the Magistrate as to the facts of the case, and the innocence of wrong intent by Deihl, but adds: "In my opinion, the Ontario temperance act admits of no excuses for any evasion of the act."

The Judge referred in his judgment to a case of somewhat similar nature tried by Mr. Justice Falconbridge, in which, by mistake, wrong liquor was sent to a hotel proprietor, and, through no fault of his own, the liquor was found on his premises, and the conviction was upheld, although the Chief Justice thought it a case for executive clemency. In like manner, Judge Barron cites this as a case for executive clemency, because in no way was there any intention or desire to break the law. He also points out that the Ontario temperance act is so drastic that it can easily be made an instrument to punish an innocent man.

Under these circumstances, the appeal was upheld, and a fine was imposed but, inasmuch as the question of costs is within the discretion of the court, Judge Barron imposed the fine without costs.

A ROUTE MARCH THROUGH INDIA

Quaint Shops, Where Everything That Is Required by the Natives Is Kept.

LAHORE, Jan. 27.—We march out of the parade ground in column of route. The band strikes up in front, and we turn on to the dusty white road that stretches across all India.

"March at ease," is given, and, slinging our rifles over our shoulders we settle down to a regular step.

The cool winds through a grove of Mango trees and over a rise, which offers us a view of a native village nestling in a valley beyond.

At first the village seems deserted, but, attracted by the band, every hovel disgorges swarms of inhabitants, who flock out to see what they probably have not seen before—English troops marching through their village.

Native women in red and yellow shawls, surrounded by little naked children, their brown stomachs shining in the sun, crowd at the entrances of the houses. Some women water-carriers, with their bronze bowls on their heads, on their way to the tank or pond outside the village, stop as we pass. Still more children attired in all manner of rags, smiling at us with dark eyes, are clustered round the villagers—little enough, indeed. Hut of bamboo thatching.

Here is sold everything required by the villagers—little enough, indeed. Baskets of rice and millet, jagsi and chilis are arranged in rows, bundles of betel-nut leaves, and an appetizing array of the little brown coils of Indian sweet meats. In front in the road sits the proprietor, surrounded by bananas and custard apples, busily roasting monkey-nuts and corn-cobs in a large round pot.

Resemble Dugouts.

The houses of the village resemble dugouts with heavy granite supports. Others are less pretentious, their walls and roof being of thatchwork, with a small hole at one end to serve as a door. Over nearly every threshold is a garland of leaves to ward off evil spirits. The cattle are tethered to the front door, and the goats and poultry live inside with their owners. Sanitation seems to be an unknown quantity.

In the centre of the village, propped against an enormous Java fig tree is a large brass image of Vishnu, and around it, to form a kind of low wall, are the sacred serpent stones. They are usually in threes.

Leaving the village we pass through fields, thick with tall crops of maize and sugar-cane, and beyond is the luxurious green of the soaking paddy fields. The two white towers of a temple rising out of a banana plantation proclaim another village away to our right.

The wayfarers of an Indian road are many and various, like a Pilgrim's Way in the middle ages. A string of bullock carts passes us, loaded with produce from the country; the drivers with their shrill "Hi, hi," urge on their cattle by pulling at their tails. They plow past us, grunting and squeaking.

They are followed by a line of native women carrying large bundles of dried grass on their heads, to take into the bazaar, and sell for two annas a bundle, their day's pay. Behind them are trotting some small brown donkeys, each with a white bundle of clothes tied on his back. A dholi is driving them to the nearest tank, where he will wash the clothes in a special way of his own He wades out to a rock in the pond, rinses the clothes, and proceeds to beat them violently on the stone until they are either clean or torn to shreds. Such is an Indian laundry.

The sun has risen to its full height, and a halt is called. We fall out in the shade by the side of the road and light up. In front of us is Nundidroog, 5,000 feet high, standing out like an inland Gibraltar, its head wreathed in a white circle of clouds. A humorist asks if you could see Southampton from the top.

The dust of the road and the indescribable smells of the east are strong in your mouth as the head of the column winds up the rise that lies between us and the camp.

We have rounded the hill, and see the tents in long white rows ahead of us. To the sound of the Passing Show we very soon swing into camp and halt, dusty and tired, on the parade ground.

"Fall out the officers. Battalion dismiss," and we make for our lines, where Sam and Michael, ready with their tea urns, are crying, "Hot tea wallah (fellow), sahib," and you quench your thirst before cook-house blows its cheery sound.

AUDITORS' REPORT

We, the undersigned, beg to report that we have made a full examination of the books, accounts and vouchers of The Toronto General Trusts Corporation to 31st December, 1916, and find same to be correct and properly set forth in the above statements of Profit and Loss and Assets and Liabilities.

We have examined, and find in order, all the mortgages, debentures, bonds and scrip of the Corporation, as well as those negotiated for the Supreme Court of Ontario, and Trusts, Estates and Agencies in the Corporation's hands, and we have checked same with the mortgage and debenture ledgers and registers.

The Trust investments and funds are kept separate from the Corporation's own securities and funds, and all securities are so earmarked in the books of the Corporation as to show the particular Estate, Trust or Guaranteed Account to which they belong.

The Bankers' Balances, after deducting outstanding cheques, agree with the books of the Corporation.

All our requirements as Auditors have been complied with.

We have also examined the reports of the Auditors of the Winnipeg, Ottawa, Saskatoon and Vancouver Branches, and find that they agree with the Head Office books.

R. F. SPENCE, F.C.A. "Can." } Auditors.
GEO. MACBETH.

Toronto, January 22nd, 1917.

The President, Mr. Featherston Osler, K.C., D.C.L., in moving the adoption of the report, which was seconded by John Hoskin, K.C., LL.D., D.C.L., addressed the Shareholders as follows:

In moving the adoption of the Thirty-fifth Annual Report of the Corporation, which has already been placed in your hands, I do so with some confidence that the shareholders will feel no difficulty in expressing their approval of it, and their satisfaction with the manner in which their Directors have handled the large and varied interests entrusted to their care.

The net profits for the year are shown to be upwards of $321,000—no very material difference, all things considered, from those shown in the previous year. The disposition of these profits has already been outlined in the Directors' Report, and will be dealt with at greater length by the General Manager.

The past four or five weeks have been fruitful in meetings of banks and other monetary institutions at which the prevalent financial conditions and prospects of the country, and, indeed, one may say, of the world at large, and those of which the existence may be anticipated after the war, have been discussed from many points of view. These discussions and the consideration involved are no doubt familiar to you all, and it would serve no purpose were I to add my own reflections on the subject to those of abler heads. I shall, therefore, content myself with briefly referring to some other matters of more immediate interest to the shareholders, as concerned with the work of the Corporation, which are to come before them to-day.

The shareholders will miss the familiar face of our late valued Vice-President, Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., who was one of the original charter Directors of the Corporation, and upon whose useful services and influence the Corporation was always able to rely. Mr. Foy died on the 13th of June, 1916. His place on the Board as Vice-President was filled by the appointment of Sir John Gibson, K.C.M.G., LL.D.

The Directors, feeling that a Board of twenty Directors is amply sufficient at present to manage the affairs of the Corporation, have passed a By-law, your confirmation of which will be asked for, to reduce the constitution of the Board to that number instead of twenty-one, as provided by the existing By-law.

During the year your Directors subscribed for the Corporation towards Patriotic, Red Cross and British Sailors' Relief purposes the sum of in all $13,500, feeling that their course would meet with the cheerful approval of the shareholders, and your confirmation of their action in this respect will be asked for.

One or two other By-laws of a formal character passed by the Directors during the year will also be submitted for your approval shortly.

After the last Annual Meeting steps were taken by your Board, in accordance with existing statutory powers, to establish a Branch in the City of Vancouver, B.C., as it appeared to them that conditions presented a favorable outlook for remunerative business in that Province. The Board has been fortunate in securing the services of an Advisory Board, comprised of such well-known names as A. H. McNeill, Esq., K.C., and Messrs. Eric W. Hamber, F. B. Pemberton and R. P. Butchart. The Management has been entrusted to Mr. F. M. Pratt, a former valued and trusted official of the Corporation, and the Directors have every reason to hope that this extension of the work of the Corporation will prove successful.

The work of the Inspection Committee, whose report you have no doubt listened to with interest, is commended to the notice of the shareholders as an important guarantee of the safety of the operations of the Corporation as regards the value and title and existence of their securities, and of the carrying out of the orders of the Board. You will remember how strongly the importance of this Committee was insisted upon by the late General Manager, and, as the activities of the Corporation increase and extend, the value of the work of such a Committee becomes increasingly evident.

I wish again to impress upon the shareholderes and the public that the main object of the existence of this Corporation, as indeed, is implied in its name, is the care and management of the business of others, whether as Executors or Administrators of the estates of deceased persons, or as Trustees of Settlements of all kinds, or as Agents for managing the diverse forms which property and interests in it assume in the modern business world. The difference between the ordinary safety of management by a trained and competent staff, devoted to and familiar with this class of business, and that of management by a private individual engaged perhaps in other business than of the Trust, and whose failure may involve the ruin of the Estate, is so plain that it seems needless to insist upon it. Every form of control which the courts exercise in respect of administration by a private person as to accounting, settling compensation, etc., is applied in the case of the Corporate Trustee. It is with satisfaction that the Board points to the great increase of the business of the Corporation in this direction, a fact which indicates that the public are becoming more and more impressed with the advantage of employing the Corporate Trustee.

In conclusion, one remark of a more general nature may be permitted me. We are now far on in the third year of a more appalling war than history, ancient or modern, records. The destruction of life and property is on a scale incommensurate with anything like it in the past. This means that the resources of every country affected by the war are likely to be strained to the utmost in providing the means necessary for carrying it on, and for the conduct of the Government at home. It means that everyone should take to heart, and should practise the lesson of economy and thrift, which has been already forcibly urged by those entitled to speak with authority on the subject, and whose words I would, however feebly, re-echo.

The President then called upon Mr. Langmuir, the General Manager, to address the shareholders.

Mr. Langmuir said:—

The Statements of the Corporation's business for the past year, which have just been submitted to you, and which are set forth in such detail, clearly show the results of the past year's operations, and I am confident will be accepted by the Shareholders and our clients as satisfactory.

The large volume of new Trust Estate work taken over during the past year amounting to the sum of $10,075,979.17, comprising 455 Estates, as against 349 Estates in 1915, and 367 Estates in 1914, compares most favorably with any previous year's business. Indeed, with the exception of the years 1912 and 1913, it represents the largest amount assumed in any one year in the history of the Corporation.

In connection with new business I am pleased to observe the increase in general Agency work entrusted to the Corporation, indicating, as it does, the desire for one reason or another on the part of many individuals to be relieved of the care and management of at least a portion of their affairs in their lifetime, obtaining thereby strict accounting, a safe depository for their securities, and prompt investment of their surplus funds, all of which is undertaken by the Corporation at a very moderate charge.

The following Summary of Executorships, Trusteeships, Administrations, Guardianships, Agencies, etc., entrusted to the Corporation since its inception in 1882, grouped in ten-year periods (except the last period, which is for five years only), furnishes, I think, conclusive evidence of the growing confidence of the general public in the management of Estates by Corporate Trustees.

Ten years ended 31st March, 1892	$ 9,111,896.17
Ten years ended 31st December, 1901	28,098,895.18
Ten years ended 31st December, 1911	43,781,196.32
Five years ended 31st December, 1916	46,311,305.54
Total	$127,303,293.21

It will be observed that the new Trust Estate work taken over in 1916 is larger in amount than the total volume of business taken over during the first ten-year period; also, that the last five-year period ending 31st December, 1916, shows a greater volume of business than the whole amount received during the previous ten-year period ended December, 1911, facts which justify me in believing that the Corporation has firmly established itself in the confidence of the public. There remains in the hands of the Corporation of this large amount Trust assets as at the end of our financial year of no less a sum than $64,692,313.60, the greater portion of which is covered by Trust Settlements, and will, therefore, remains with us for an indefinite number of years.

In the light of these results, I think it can be confidently accepted that the Corporation may look for a continued and largely increasing business from the public, so long as a high standard of service is maintained at a reasonable cost, which at all times has been the main purpose of the Corporation. The facts that a person desiring to use the services of the Corporation is assured of having a permanent and experienced trustee, with an efficient staff, and that the management and charges are at all times subject to audit and revision by the courts, are a sufficient guarantee of the capable and economical administration of estates.

The demand for loans on farm and city properties has fallen off greatly in the last three years. You will have observed from the statement of Investments submitted to you that the amount invested in mortgages as at 31st December, 1916, shows a reduction in these securities during the year of $634,922.42, the repayments having exceeded the new loans negotiated to this extent.

The following comparison of Mortgage loans negotiated and repayments made for the last three years will exemplify the extent of this falling off:—

	Mortgage Investments Taken in Ontario and Northwest.	Repayments in Ontario and Northwest.
1914	$3,905,126.06	$2,473,631.64
1915	2,735,893.94	3,531,914.60
1916	1,942,326.62	2,577,315.20

The causes which have brought about these results are mainly attributable to conditions incident to the war, the great falling off in the number of immigrants coming to Canada, the large number of men who have gone overseas on active service, the decline in building operations and the bountiful harvest of 1915, together with the high prices obtained by farmers for their produce in 1916, which has enabled borrowers to largely reduce the amount of their mortgage liabilities.

On the other hand, it will have been observed that our investments in Municipal Securities and Government Bonds have been increased to the extent of $1,364,737.23, at rates of interest which a few years ago would have been considered highly satisfactory for even mortgage loans, the result being that our clients have experienced very little disturbance, if any, in their income. The Corporation's investments in these two classes of securities now amount to the sum of $30,738,140.94, as compared with $29,058,893.71 in 1915, or a net increase of $679,746.81.

Interest rates on mortgages have been fairly well maintained during the past year, although latterly, on account of the difficulty in obtaining first-class mortgage applications there has been a tendency towards somewhat lower rates. It is always interesting, from the viewpoint of our clients, that they should know and feel that in the investment of their funds they are receiving the highest rate consistent with security, and in this connection I am sure it will be satisfactory for them to know that the average rate of interest return on their Ontario mortgage investments is 6.27%.

The policy of the Corporation with regard to the investment of funds belonging to Ontario Trust Estates has been to confine its investments, except in the case of Guaranteed Funds, to this Province. I am sure this policy will be commended, having regard to the satisfactory rates which are at present current, the greater permanency of the investment and the more prompt payment of interest which is obtained, rather than seek higher rates in Western Farm mortgages with interest only payable yearly, and where a considerable amount of arrears of interest has to be carried over, not to say anything about the legislative disabilities that are being enacted from time to time in the Western Provinces.

With regard to the collection of interest and income on investments negotiated by the Corporation, we have no arrears on any of the $6,770,331.35 invested in Municipal Debentures and Bonds, and 98.34% has been received in respect of the interest charged during 1916, including arrears brought forward from 1915 on the $16,517,309.79 invested in Ontario mortgages and 78.38% on the sum of $7,450,002.90 invested in Western mortgages.

The Net Profits as a result of the year's operations amount to the sum of $321,382.88, or 9.59% upon the Corporation's paid-up Capital and Reserve Funds, which, added to the balance of $77,674.12, the amount carried forward from last year, after deducting $21,138.48 for 1915 Dominion War Tax, leaves $399,057.00 at the credit of Profit and Loss for distribution. Out of this amount your Directors have declared and paid four quarterly dividends at the rate of Ten per cent. per annum, amounting to $150,000, carried to Reserve Fund $100,000; have written off Head Office Premises $25,000; provided for the 1916 Dominion War Tax payable in 1917, $12,000, and contributed $13,500 towards Patriotic and Red Cross purposes, leaving a balance to be carried forward to the credit of Profit and Loss account of $98,557.00.

It will thus be seen that our Paid-up Capital Reserve Fund and undivided profits as at the 31st December, 1916, amount to $3,447,557.00.

It should be well understood in the matter of the Corporation's earnings that the profits are not entirely derived from Commissions and Compensation received from the management of Estates—there are also the profits from our Guaranteed Investment Funds as well as the interest received from the investment of our Capital and Reserve Funds, and from other sources of the Corporation's business. The gross profits derived by way of compensation for the care, management and distribution of Estates, Trusts and Agencies, etc., including the collection and disbursement of Income which appear in this Statement, aggregate $239,109.76, as compared with the sum of $247,368.80 in 1915. It will, therefore, be evident to the Shareholders and the public generally how moderate is the compensation awarded us, having regard to the large volume of estate business entrusted to the Corporation.

It will be observed from the Assets and Liabilities Statement which has been placed in your hands that the total assets under the care of the Corporation now aggregate $77,180,513.62, being an increase during the year of $5,311,043.52. It will also be seen from this Statement that of the Assets comprising Estates, Trusts and Agencies $23,356,900.50 are represented by investments made by the Corporation; the balance, $41,335,413.10, are the original assets passed over to us, which are held in conformity with trust deeds, wills or other legal documents, under which the Corporation derives its powers for retention of same.

In the near future careful consideration will require to be given by your Directors to the enlargement of the present offices in Toronto, in order to provide additional space for certain departments made necessary by the growing requirements of the business of the Corporation. The property owned by the Corporation to the east of the present building has been retained for that purpose.

Having regard to existing conditions, I feel, with General Managers of Banks and other Financial Institutions who have already expressed themselves, that the time is opportune to impress upon all Canadians the importance of exercising economy and thrift, to the end that we shall be able to bear our full share of the burden that devolves upon us in connection with the great world war in which we, with so many other nations, are engaged. We have done well so far in the giving of our treasure to meet the demands for subscriptions to the several war bond issues and the various Patriotic and Red Cross funds. The future, however, is bound to impose still greater demands upon our resources, and inasmuch as Canada has responded in a national way so greatly, it is to be hoped that no matter to what extent these demands may be made upon us, we should see that they are duly met.

Canadians have surprised the world in the way in which they have produced men, money and equipment to meet the requirements of the Mother Country, and they have also, I believe, surprised themselves as a nation. They have realized more of their capabilities and the possibilities of this wonderful Dominion of ours in the last two years and a half than could perhaps have been learned in a generation under peace conditions. Our achievements during the war are bound when peace comes to reflect to our advantage in all our future undertakings. Undoubtedly we must look forward to meet and provide for greatly increased taxation, the readjustment of labor conditions made necessary by the greatly increased advent of female labor, and higher claims for remuneration than has heretofore been paid to the wage-earning class.

It is therefore important that these matters should be kept continually before us, in order that we may not find ourselves unprepared to meet the problems that will surely arise immediately following the declaration of peace.

During the past year seven more members of the staff have been released for active service overseas, bringing up the number of those who have left us for that purpose to thirty. Three of these—Gavin Ines Langmuir, Lawrence S. Shields and E. Raymond Jarvis—have laid down their lives for their King and country.

In conclusion I desire to place on record my appreciation of and thanks for the loyal and zealous manner in which the members of the staff at the Head Office and Branches of the Corporation have discharged their duties during the past year.

The Report was unanimously adopted.

It was then moved by Mr. H. J. Wright, second by Mr. E. T. Malone, and resolved, that the following Shareholders be and are hereby appointed Directors for the current year, namely: W. R. Brock, Hamilton Cassels, K.C., LL.D., Sir William Mortimer Clark, K.C., LL.D., Hon. Senator W. C. Edwards, Brig.-General the Hon. Sir John M. Gibson, K.C.M.G., LL.D., Arthur C. Hardy, John Hoskin, K.C., LL.D., Lieut.-Col. R. W. Leonard, Thomas Long, J. Bruce Macdonald, Hon. Sir D. H. McMillan, K.C.M.G., W. D. Matthews, Hon. Peter McLaren, Lieut.-Col. John F. Michie, Sir Edmund Osler, M.P., Featherston Osler, K.C., D.C.L., J. G. Scott, K.C., Sir Edmund Walker, C.V.O., LL.D., E. C. Whitney, Wellington Francis, K.C.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors the following officers were elected:—President, Featherston Osler, K.C., D.C.L.; Vice-Presidents, Hamilton Cassels, K.C., LL.D., and Brig.-General the Hon. Sir John M. Gibson, K.C.M.G., LL.D.

FORCES OF PRUSSIANISM ON ALL FRONTS BEING PUSHED BACK, SLOWLY BUT SURELY

LONDON, Feb. 8.— Apparently the forces of Prussianism on all the fronts are checked. They are no longer moving forward, but even in Roumania are moving back. Berlin's plaintive cry for a conqueror's peace was perhaps a realization that she had reached the apex of her progress and that if peace did not come at once the terms obtainable later would be far less favourable. The Allies called her bluff and the war will go on until their objects are attained.

Meanwhile something like John Stuart Mill's law of diminishing returns seems to be at work and the outlook is for gradually decreasing energy on the part of the Prussians. On the other hand, the Allies were never stronger or more confident. The Rome conference showed perfect harmony in the projects for the conduct of the war and revealed abundant resources to carry it on to a successful conclusion.

SWITZERLAND THREATENED.

In such a desperate situation, with the ever growing pinch of hunger at home, the massing of Prussian troops on the Swiss frontier is considered by military observers as very significant. Of course, no one imagines that Prussia would have the slightest scruples in violating the neutrality of Switzerland if she saw an advantage in so doing. A pretext could easily be found in the refusal of Switzerland to increase her exports of food to Germany in return for Belgian coal which an agreement with Berlin allows her to receive.

That the Swiss General Staff believes such a move is in contemplation is shown by the decision to mobilize next Wednesday, two divisions, or 36,000 men. This region is new territory, and the Prussians may imagine they have another Roumania to deal with. The situation, however, is far different. In Roumania once the ring of mountains around Transylvania was broken through the Prussian army had easy manoeuvring on the open plains from the Vulcan pass to Bucharest and on the Sereth. But in Switzerland it would be a continuous mountain climb, increasing in difficulty the further the invasion were carried.

But if the object of the Prussians would be held by French troops, as Swiss officers are reported to be convinced, there would be no need to cross the mountains either into Italy by way of St. Gothard or into Southern France by way of Lausanne. The Prussians would only have to cut through a corner of the canton of Basle, north of the Jura Mountains, to turn the French line.

POSSIBLE LINE OF INVASION

This long line, which begins where the waves of the North Sea wash the Belgian coast, ends on the Swiss frontier opposite Lutzel in a barbed wire fence, closing the bridge across the Lutzel River, which here forms the French boundary. In a little custom house on the Swiss side a few officers sit playing cards all day, while a small detachment of troops has its quarters in the village. The barbed wire gate is opened three times a day to allow peasants from the neighborhood to pass through for mutual trade, but every Frenchman is searched to prevent the exportation of foodstuffs. Even a potato concealed in one's pocket is confiscated.

The Prussians have a similar gate fifteen miles further east at Fluhen, but there few are allowed to pass through. A sufficient force coming down the Rhine Valley, avoiding Basle on their left, could easily break into Swiss territory here, cross the Lutzel above its junction with the Birs, south of the French border, occupy the town and, proceeding west, enter Alsace southwest of Pfirt. Turning the headwaters of the Ill, they would move on Altkirch.

Should such an operation prove successful, however, they could hardly hope to reach Mulhausen before French troops would be pouring in from Montbeliard, and Belfort to hold the line of the Rhone-Rhine canal, where Berlin to-day speaks of "reconsolidating enterprises." But to carry out such a project the Prussians have no reserve forces and would be compelled to weaken their line in the east or west to a dangerous degree.

PRUSSIANS LOSING STRENGTH

Evidence of growing Prussian weakness on both fronts continues to multiply. During the week the British made a successful attack in the direction of Serre, north of the Ancre winning a position which General Haig says considerably improves the British observation area. Further north, near Lens, the Canadians were successful in a raid on the Prussian trenches, entering their second line. French troops easily penetrated Prussian trenches in the Verdun sector and in Apremont forest. Most significant was the evacuation by the Prussians of an important position near Serre, northeast of Beaumont-Hamel, from which the Prussians today state they have in turn shelled out the British.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

A NEW BACILLUS

Generated By World-Renowned Artists Who Thrill Audiences in an Unprecedented Manner

Since the advant of the three young brothers, Leo, Jan and Mischel Cherniavsky, violinist, pianist and 'cellist, who are to appear here on Monday evening February 12th at the Conservatory Hall, students and critics of music have been endeavoring to formulate a theory that would intelligently explain the phenomena of the musical expression of these extraordinary gifted artists. The musical bacilli which the Cherniavskys possess in abundance is at present a mystery to occidentals whose psychological knowledge of artistic expression is as yet in the embryo stage.

It is interesting to note that during their visit to India the mysticism at the root of these young artists' genius was intellectually grasped by a large body of cultured Hindus. The Indian mind delves down deep into the causes underlying artistic expression. Like the ancient Greeks, Egyptians and Persians, their intellectuality and imagination enables them to perceive in all expressions of beauty, archetypes of the deep realities existing within the heart of nature.

The Oriental psychologist would sum up the contagiousness of the Cherniavskys' music, which is indeed the new renaissance, as a fuller and more adequate expression in sound of the hidden beauties, than the world has heretofore been accustomed to. He would say that here at last artists have by their intuition redeemed themselves from the slavish technique which in the past has bound them with limitations.

He would say that their superlative technique is of the etheric nature, and therefore, very responsive to their feelings, their mind and their inspiration. He would also say that their extraordinary concentration stills the emotions and mind, opening up a passage for the influx of inspirational force which in its turn illuminates the mind, stimulates the emotions and makes a kind of magic take the place of what the world believes to be perfect technique.

The coming visit of these much discussed brilliant young artists will contribute greatly to the musical treasures of this city.

Toronto General Trusts Corporation

Submits Excellent Annual Report To Shareholders

At noon, Wednesday, Feb. 7, was held the thirty-fifth annual meeting of shareholders of the Toronto General Trusts Corporation in the board room of their head office building. The past year has been one during which most financial institutions have felt that the future was uncertain but eventualities have proved 1916 to be as good a year and as profitable as the most sanguine hopes could look for. The Toronto General Trusts Corporation in particular is to be congratulated upon a very successful year's business, and the statement, as submitted to the shareholders, and published in another column reflects credit upon the management. The handsome sum of $10,075,979.17, representing new executorships, trusts and agencies, acquired during the year, is a flattering indication of the high respect and confidence placed in this oldest Canadian Trusts Corporation. A generous contribution of $13,500.00 was given to patriotic purposes. $100,000.00 was transferred to Reserve Fund, bringing it up to a total of $1,850,000.00, being $350,000.00 more than the paid-up capital. The general assets were increased to $77,180,573.62. During the year occurred the death of Hon. J. J. Foy, K.C., one of the charter members and Vice President of the Company. The same board of directors was re-elected by the shareholders and, at a subsequent meeting of directors, the same officers of the preceding year were re-elected.

"CITIZEN" CHALLENGES HON. ROBT. ROGERS TO REPEAT STATEMENT

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb.—The Morning Citizen to-day challenges Hon. Robert Rogers to repeat outside of Parliament the statement made by him in the house that the Minister of Public Works could have secured the support of "The Citizen" had the Government purchased about a block of land for a post office site in Montreal from F. N. Southam of that city for $400,000. "The Citizen" reiterates that Rogers' statements in respect to this paper's integrity and sincerity are not only false in every particular, but that Rogers knew they were false when he made them.

PERSONALITY OF ONE MAN KEEPING INDIANS IN HAND

PESHAWAR, NORTH WEST FRONTIER PROVINCE India, Jan. 10.—The British army officers and Tommies in this north western section of British India who often turn their thoughts longingly toward the activities in the great theatres of war, solace their thoughts with the fact that they are holding "the eastern end of the front," anyway. Under the direction of Sir George Roos-Keppel, Chief Commissioner for the North West Frontier Province, they are keeping open the Peiwar Kotal and Khyber Passes, the gateways into Afghanistan, and are preventing the tribesmen of the intervening territory from carrying into British India a warfare which might have a strong bearing on the situation as a whole.

When the war broke out there was considerable uneasiness among British officials regarding the thousands of independent tribesmen, who are ever ready to make trouble, and who, if they should succeed in burying their tribal feuds and unite, would present a serious menace. Numbers of German and Turkish emissaries had made their way into this independant region, and had been busy trying to stir up the mountaineers to war, playing on the religious fanaticism of the latter. To a certain extent they were successful, for they created more or less unrest and aroused hopes of conquest which held dangerous potentialities.

At this critical juncture Sir George Roos—Keppel, who was then on protracted leave of absence in England, returned to take charge of his province, which forms the buffer between the tribesmen and the rest of British India. As a result of the measures which he instituted the situation is said to have been thoroughly in hand, and while the habitual fighting still continues there is no longer any fear of serious trouble.

The handling of the tribesmen is largely a matter of personal influence, and Sir George is credited in official circles with being extraordinarily successful. One thing that undoubtedly has contributed to his success is the fact that he is a typical leader of men; tall, broad shouldered, keen eyed, quick of mind and with a particularly strong personality—the type the tribesmen respects. The Chief Commissioner deals with the chiefs as man to man, employing their own open-handed form of diplomacy. He has established a reputation among the tribes of never trying to bluff, a fact which is said to have bridged many a difficulty.

The Afridi, the most warlike and powerful of the tribesmen, have been remaining strictly neutral ever since the arrival of the Chief Commissioner, although they were restless when he left England. Here the personal influence of Sir George came into play, for he had worked among the Afridi for nine years, and is known and respected by the people. The fact that the Afridi are friendly is most important, as it prevents the tribes on either side of them from joining hands against the British.

The Mohmands, whose territory lies near Peshawar, have been giving considerable trouble, as have also the Mahsuda, far to the southwest, but it is not depredations by individual tribes that is feared, as only a concerted action by all of them would give cause for particular worry. The Mohmands, who have been committing outrages in British territory and waging petty warfare from time to time, already are paying for their hostility. Not only have they been barred from entering the province to carry on trade by which they have been sent to secure the necessities of life, but virtually all the Mohmands in the British domains have either been driven back into their own country or interned.

The Mohmands have been particularly active and have devastated a large tract of the province along their border. For the present they are being merely held in check, but Sir George Roos-Keppel told a correspondent of The Associated Press that after the war a punitive expedition would be sent into their territory and that heavy reprisals would be exacted.

IMPROVEMENT WORK WILL BE LIMITED

Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission, informed the Committee of the Whole Council last evening that very little improvement work would be done this year in connection with the Waterworks Department, owing to the high cost of materials and other conditions. Cast iron pipe, which last year could be purchased for thirty-six dollars a ton, is now fifty-six dollars.

SOCKS WORTH OVER $3,000 SENT TO FRONT BY KITCHENER LEAGUE

The Kitchener League has sent to the men at the front 5,078 pairs of socks which at a price of 65c brings their total value to over $3,000. And 65c is a low estimate for those socks in these days of high-priced wool.

By way of an accounting of the work of the Kitchener League which is holding a Valentine tea and dance on Feb. 14th, the contributions to the soldiers have included:

800 woollen scarves.
100 Balaclava caps.
400 wristlets.
160 knee caps.
600 packages of cigarettes and tobacco.
Hundreds of dozens of lead pencils and candles.
100 boxes of gum.
Hundreds of handkerchiefs.
400 writing pads.
Hundreds of pounds of chocolate and peppermint.
10 dozen mouth organs.
Liniment, foot and vermin powder.

In addition to these articles which were forwarded in a steady stream there were the special holiday packages which are sent at the Christmas and Easter holidays and included little luxuries and necessities the soldiers have gratefully acknowledged. Sweater coats and flannel shirts were sent during the first few months of the war before the Government issue was ready.

These are some of the activities of the Kitchener League. Its work has been steadily pursued week in and week out. It has received the confidence of the public who desired to assist such organizations and it has proved its worthiness of that trust.

The Valentine tea next Wednesday afternoon in the Oriental Hotel dining room, and dance in the evening is a Kitchener League method of securing funds to continue its work.

Keep Wednesday, Feb. 14th, an open date in your Diary, or rather mark Kitchener Tea and Dance opposite it.

Handwriting Shows Girl Is Not Guilty Of Theft

OTTAWA, Feb. 9.—Peculiarities of chirography entered largely into the trial of Gracia Leduc, of Thurso, who was arraigned before Judge Gunn at the Court House on a charge of stealing $25 from Leo Moquer, postmaster of sub post office 6, of which indictment she was honourably acquitted.

The loop and stroke in a "5" were strong points in the evidence.

The figures in the record folio book did not correspond in character or design with those written on a slip of paper by the accused.

Another strong circumstance in the favour of the accused was that her demeanour and testimony under oath indicated that she had not committed an offence or a crime. "I did whatever he told me," she said in relation to Moquer's instructions to her.

The charge was that on the 29th day of September the accused had been given $146, the proceeds of the sub post office, to be placed in a registered letter to be sent to the Bank of Montreal.

The letter, on arrival, it appears, contained only one hundred and twenty dollars. Where the twenty-five dollars shortage went to is not at present known.

Miss Leduc had been employed at the sub. post office for eleven days prior to the offense charged. Yesterday afternoon in her evidence, when the Crown questioned regarding entries in the books, she said that alterations had been made, and that the figures bearing on the action had not been made by her.

COULD MANUFACTURE ONE THIRD MORE THAN GERMANY

SPECIAL TO THE EXAMINER:

NEW YORK, Feb. 9.—Elbert H. Gary, President of the United States Corporation, declared his steel plant could manufacture one third more than all munitions now being used by Germany.

Paris Has Shortage Of Coal and Feed

PARIS, Ontario, Feb. 9.—Paris is now up against two shortages, coal and feed. The feed situation is serious, particularly in the rural districts. For ten days not one freight train has reached Paris over the Buffalo and Goderich line of the G. T. R. from the Tavistock district, from which the large portion of the feed used in Paris is received. While no actual coal famine exists in Paris, residents are alarmed, and some of the churches are holding services in the schools with a view to conserving the supply.

The former came through to Galt, but the latter is staying in Ottawa. It is understood that the services of Lieut.-Col. Clarke will be retained by the military authorities.
